"This is also the custom in large troop movements. I saw one division being transferred from one part of the line to another. Troop trains kept coming through for forty-eight hours. The Y. M. C. A. was on the job when each of these trains passed through the stations, and got hot coffee or hot chocolate to every man. I was told that as those trains started the Y. M. C. A. workers at the point of departure gave every man a packet of cigarettes and a cup either of coffee or chocolate. Nothing at all is charged in cases such as this, and the total given away last year, besides that supplied by private contributors, would, I imagine, be nearer $2,000,000 than $1,500,000.

"A further investigation will be made into the matter, and it seems to me that some formal statement of this side of the association's work should be made in France, at the various recreation huts and other centres, in order to clear up any misapprehension. I have an idea that the men remember the cases when they had to pay the regular price, and probably forget at the time that there have been many occasions when tobacco and coffee were furnished free."

OUR MEN VICTORS IN PATROL ACTIONS

SILENT RAID IN PICARDY

German Trenches Entered — Berlin Insists, However, That They Took Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—General Pershing's bulletin for Sunday, issued tonight by the War Department tells how an American patrol of an officer and twenty men in the Lorraine sector last night drove back and inflicted losses upon an enemy patrol armed with light machine guns and assisted by machine gun fire from the enemy lines.

On Friday, according to his Saturday report, which was delayed in transmission, American troops in Picardy raided German trenches, killing and capturing a number of the enemy.

Today's statement says:

In the course of patrol encounters our troops drove back the enemy, and inflicted a number of casualties.

Last night in Lorraine one of our patrols, consisting of an officer and twenty men, gained contact with an enemy patrol of about equal strength, which was supplied with light machine guns and assisted by machine gun fire from its own lines. In the fighting which ensued our patrol drove back the enemy, killing several of them.

Following is the text of Saturday's report:

Yesterday in Picardy our troops executed a successful silent raid, and inflicted on the enemy a number of losses in killed and prisoners.

There is nothing else of importance to report.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 26, (Associated Press.)—An American patrol had an engagement last night in the Lunéville sector with a German patrol carrying light machine guns, and routed the enemy in a sharp fight. Several of the Germans were killed. Their bodies were dragged back by their comrades. There were no American losses.

On the same sector a German Sergeant crept into the American lines, holding up his hands and shouting "Kamerad!" He said he had had enough of fighting for the Kaiser and von Hindenburg. He was sent to the rear.

The artillery action generally was light in the Toul and Lunéville sectors. American airmen concluded several missions successfully without encountering any German machines.

American forces in the Montdidier region carried out a silent raid upon enemy positions day before yesterday, killing six men and capturing one. Without the assistance of the artillery, the Americans slipped into the enemy trenches and quickly accomplished their work.

Berlin Reports Our Patrol "Cut Up."

AMSTERDAM, May 26. — "Heavy losses" were inflicted upon the Americans on the Picardy front in the repulse of strong American patrols yesterday west of Montdidier, it is asserted in a semi-official German report received today in a Berlin telegram.

The report, in the course of a description of yesterday's military operations, says:

"West of Montdidier strong American patrols advanced against our front. One American patrol was entirely cut up by our fire. The others were thrown back by counterattack. The Americans thereby suffered heavy losses."

FOUR U. S. AVIATORS MISSING.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE BRITISH FRONT, May 25, (Associated Press.)—Four American aviators have been reported missing on the British front, two of whom were brought down behind the German lines, since April (May?) 12. The names of the missing men are not yet available.

There is no confirmation as yet of the claim of Thursday's German official statement that three American airplanes were brought down on Wednesday on the Lys front.

SCOFFS AT OUR 'HORDES.'

AMSTERDAM, May 26. — Regarding the American "hordes" training in the French camps, the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Berlin remarks:

"Fresh reinforcements are meanwhile maturing in our recruiting depots behind the front, and we will wait and see whether the lightning-trained Yankee will hold his own against the German lads who have had military training from their youth."

WASHINGTON TO ISSUE PERSHING'S BULLETINS

Communiques to be Given Out at Capital in Future to Relieve Cable Congestion.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—General Pershing's daily communiqués will hereafter be issued for the press of the United States exclusively at the War Department here.

Copies for the papers of England, France, and Italy will be given out at headquarters of the expeditionary forces, where it is understood they will be available to American correspondents, but only for their information.

Decision to have the communiqués issued here is understood to have resulted from two considerations. The first was to prevent further congestion of already overcrowded cable wires which would result from each American correspondent cabling the communiqués separately, and the second was to make the communiqués available in Washington for all newspapers of the United States at the same time.

BIBLE CHECKS BULLET OVER SOLDIER'S HEART

W. R. Wilson, Whose Life Was Thus Saved, Will Present Relic to the Government.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 26, (Associated Press.)—Many stories have been told since the beginning of the war of lives being saved by Bibles. An American soldier is in actual possession of a bullet-riddled Bible which saved his life. He is William R. Wilson, 19 years old, of New Castle, Penn.

Young Wilson is alive today in a hospital in the rear of the American sector in Picardy, rapidly recovering from a minor wound. A Bible and a small trench mirror, which he was accustomed to carry in his left breast pocket, prevented a German sharpshooter's bullet from reaching his heart.

According to his friends, Wilson, who is an orphan, had been in the habit of reading the Bible daily. He was resting in the rear lines last Sunday, with his Bible as his only comfort. He was ordered to the front line, where a sharpshooter's bullet felled him. Comrades who carried him off found that he was suffering only from a flesh wound in the breast, thanks to his Bible and the trench mirror through which the bullet passed. A second bullet struck him in the arm, but this wound is not serious.

Wilson says that he is going to present the Bible to the United States as soon as he is discharged from the hospital.

General Pershing Reports 28 Casualties; 5 Commissioned Officers on Day's List

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The War Department today gave out a list of 28 casualties in the American army abroad, bringing the total to 6,342. The list included 5 killed in action, 2 died of wounds, 5 died of disease, 2 died of accident, 7 severely wounded, 5 slightly wounded, and 2 missing in action.

Five commissioned officers are included. Major Samuel M. Wilson, Captain William J. Burdell, and Lieutenant Frederick H. Cone were wounded severely. Lieutenants Walter Victor Barneby and Paul B. Kurtz, both aviators, were killed by accident.

LIEUT. F. H. CONE WOUNDED.

First Lieutenant Frederick H. Cone, who was reported on General Pershing's casualty list yesterday as wounded, was attached to the supply train of the 77th Division, Quartermaster's Department. His home is at 170 West Fifty-ninth Street, where his wife was apprised of his injury.

Lieutenant Cone is 43 years old and served for many years in the 7th Regiment, N. G. N. Y. He attended the Officers' Training Camp last May, and a few months later received his commission, being attached to divisional headquarters. He sailed for France about two months ago. He owns an export and import business, Frederick H. Cone & Co., at 1 Burling Slip.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—Lieutenant Paul B. Kurtz, mentioned in the casualty list, was the son of William B. Kurtz, a Philadelphia banker. He recently received the French cross of war for bravery in air battles. He was a student at Harvard, and had been in the American ambulance service in France since 1915.

Brooklyn Soldier Captured.

The Misses Eleanor and Katherine Lehane of 921 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, learned yesterday from the War Department that their brother, Jeremiah Lehane, 27 years old, a private in the 9th Infantry, had been taken prisoner by the Germans. He was reported missing on May 6. Lehane came to the United States from Ireland eight years ago. Before he joined the regular army at the beginning of war he was a waiter.

BRITISH DOMINANT IN MESOPOTAMIA

LONDON, May 26.—Large areas of Mesopotamia have been cleared of the enemy, denying to him the most fertile districts at a time when the crops are just ripening, thousands of prisoners have been captured, together with many cannon, machine guns, and an enormous amount of booty by the British forces operating in the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates since March, according to the official correspondent with the field forces in that theatre of the war.

Describing the operations which led to the defeat of the Turks in March, the correspondent says the Turks attempted to make a stand at Khan Bagdhadi, which the British infantry assaulted and took on the evening of March 26. In the meantime, the British cavalry, after a weary and difficult march, gained the Aleppo Road where it crosses the Wadi Hamrin, and cut off the enemy's retreat by road and river. The foe's attempts to break through this barrier at midnight were repulsed, and they lost over 1,000 prisoners.

The next morning the pursuit was vigorously continued and went on during March 27 and 28. The prisoners taken included a commander and staff of the 50th Turkish Division and 5,000 men. Fourteen guns and about fifty machine guns were also captured, in addition to vast quantities of rifle ammunition.

The large quantities of munitions taken by the British forces indicated that preparations had been made for the Turco-German army that was to have descended from Aleppo and captured Bagdad last Autumn. This movement, however, was frustrated by the British forces concentrating on the Gaza front, in Southern Palestine.

At the beginning of May the scattered distribution of Turkish forces in the Kifri and Kirkuk areas afforded an opportunity for the infliction of another defeat upon the enemy. These operations were successful, both Kifri and Kirkuk being taken, with about 3,000 prisoners, sixteen cannon, and twenty-six machine guns, besides much other booty.

HEARD GERMANS BOAST AS LAST DRIVE STARTED

Miss Spink, American Singer, Back from Berlin, Says They Were Confident of Victory in March.

Miss Bonaventura Spink, an American singer, arrived yesterday in New York on her way home to Indianapolis after singing for four years in Germany. She went over in 1914 to join the Royal Dresden Opera Company and was afterward transferred to the Imperial Opera House in Berlin, where the management had promised an engagement, which did not materialize.

"They told me that I was to sing all season in Berlin," Miss Spink said, "but after I reached the city I was told that German singers must be taken care of first. I left Berlin on March 25, four days after the Germans started what they termed the march that was to drive the English into the sea. German officers said that the British armies were being cut to pieces and were panic-stricken after the German attack, and that the officers had no control over the men. They also said that America could not do anything, and sending an army was only a bluff, as the English would all be dead before they arrived. All the Allies would be shot and Germany triumphant in a victorious peace before the end of the year. That was the kind of information given to the people in the first days of the offensive.

"The Germans never keep their word. At Christmas time, when the peace was made with Russia, the Government promised not to remove any troops from the eastern front, but they were right then sending trains packed with soldiers from that section to the western front day and night. I know because they used to pass the house where I lived, and I watched them many times. At that time the German General Staff was afraid of the strength of the British Army, and I heard officers say that it was imperative to rush all the reinforcements they could to the western front to prevent the enemy making an offensive before they were ready to attack the Entente Allies in the Spring. The railroad cars were very delapidated, and all the metal work and leather straps and seats had been removed. The locomotives were broken down, too, and unable to haul the trains at any rate of speed, until a number of new engines were brought down from the Baltic provinces and put into operation on the main lines in Germany."

Miss Spink said that many of the rich merchants in Denmark were pro-German, and had sold all their milk, eggs, butter and other dairy produce to the Germans. When she spoke to some of them in Copenhagen about it they excused themselves by stating that England was such a long way off they were obliged to sell to Germany. She added that the rich people in Germany could get food, but the poor had very little to eat.

STOP ALABAMA STRIKE.

Taft and Walsh Induce Iron Miners to Accept Arbitration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—William H. Taft and Frank P. Walsh of the National War Labor Board effected an agreement in St. Louis yesterday between the striking employes of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company of Russellville, Ala., and officials of the company, by which the men will immediately return to work pending arbitration.

The men work in the iron mines operated by the company, and between 400 and 500 have been involved in the strike. The present wage rate runs from 19 to 38 cents an hour. The men are asking a flat increase of $2 a day. They also ask a reduction of the working day from ten to eight hours, and relief from certain other conditions, including an alleged practice of the company of charging 20 per cent. for salary advances in cash and of a so-called "permit system," under which none of the men may enter the employ of another company in the Russellville district without a permit from their last employer.

Company officials denied the existence of the permit system except as it applied to transfers from one to another of the departments of the same company. Representatives of the company also declared that wages had been increased from 80 to 100 per cent. since 1914. Representatives of the men, however, assert that the present scale of wages does not provide a living wage in view of the prevailing cost of necessities.

CROWELL CUTTING ARMY RED TAPE

Inaugurates Survey to Reduce Lost Motion in Various War Department Bureaus.

INVOLVES 25,000 EMPLOYES

Col. Reeves in Charge of Inquiry by Which It Is Hoped to Establish Constructive Reforms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—With a view to determining where more army red tape may be eliminated, Benedict Crowell, First Assistant Secretary of War, has inaugurated a thorough investigation into the office personnel and methods of the various War Department bureaus. The survey is being conducted by Colonel Ira L. Reeves, an infantry officer, detailed temporarily in the Inspector General's Department.

"The inquiry," said Mr. Crowell today, "is intended to be of a constructive nature. No criticisms will be made unless accompanied by full recommendations as to an improved means of performing the work. It is intended to make changes of an evolutionary rather than a revolutionary nature. Reports are rendered from day to day of weak spots in the War Department organization, with recommendations that immediate steps be taken looking to their correction. The intention is that no general plan of reorganization shall be attempted, as such a plan would retard activities. The idea is to speed up, but to do it through the elimination, one at a time, of congested centres. Results are being expeditiously obtained, and it is believed that the survey already has resulted in increased efficiency, the speeding up of activities generally and the turning out of a greater amount of work with fewer employes."

There has been very rapid expansion of the various bureaus of the War Department. At the outbreak of the war there were fewer than 3,000 employes on duty. The number is now approximately 25,000, an increase of 800 per cent. The increase in the army itself has been more than 1,500 per cent. The increase in personnel at the administrative end of the war has not kept pace with the growth of the military establishment.

"When the present inquiry was begun," said Mr. Crowell, "many criticisms of the War Department were taken up for consideration. Some of these were based on presumption and were not of a constructive nature. The inquiry has developed the fact that many blunders were attributable largely to inexperience on the part of those charged with the responsibilities and the lack of sufficient trained force to master at once all the details of the enormous undertaking.

"When the United States entered the war the entire army, including all officers and enlisted men, consisted of less than 100,000. The army, however, had had some experience in handling problems larger than those normally confronting it in the mobilization of the National Guard on the Mexican border. The border troubles also had resulted in a small increase in the permanent establishment and the retention in the service of a considerable number of National Guard troops."

Four out of every hundred officers in the service now were in the army at the time the war began. Probably less than one-third of 1 per cent. of the entire commissioned force has had sufficient service to be equipped for responsible military positions as judged by European standards.

Army officers say that one feature of the military administration which is not plain to the layman is the fact that there are legal requirements making it necessary that more complete records be kept of all military activities than is required in the case of large industrial institutions. These requirements usually are referred to as "red tape." They involve an increased amount of office work, requiring a large clerical and supervisory force.

"In the face of such legal restrictions as exist," said Mr. Crowell, "the army has attempted to clear itself of so-called red tape. It is the purpose of the present inquiry to eliminate lost motion and get direct results. Most of the bureaus already have employed efficiency experts who have attempted to install modern methods. Many new suggestions have been made which are rapidly being carried into effect. In installing new efficiency methods it has been essential to maintain certain characteristics of the military establishment necessary to sustain military discipline."

RECORD CARE FOR ARMY.

Nothing Like It Ever Before in History, Says President.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—No army ever before assembled in history has had more painstaking thought given to the protection and stimulation of its mental, moral, and physical manhood than the new American army, President Wilson declared in a statement made public here today by the Commission on Training Camp Activities.

"Every endeavor is being made to surround our fighting men with the kind of environment which a democracy owes to those fighting in its behalf," the President said. "I do not believe it is an exaggeration to say that no army ever before assembled in history had had more conscientious and painstaking thought given to the protection and stimulation of its mental, moral, and physical manhood. In this work the Commission on Training Camp Activities have represented the Government and the Government's solicitude that the moral and spiritual resources of the nation should be mobilized behind the troops."

The President's statement appears in "Keeping Our Fighters Fit for War, and After," an official account of the educational and recreational activities in the army and navy training camps, written by Edward Frank Allen in cooperation with Raymond B. Fosdick, Chairman of the commission. A striking contrast is drawn between the demoralizing conditions obtaining on the Mexican border in 1916, when American troops were concentrated there, and the conditions of training camps today.

GLOOM IN CONGRESS.

Prospect of Summer Work on Tax Bill Causes Disappointment.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A dissatisfied but resigned Congress is prepared to revise its legislative program this week, and abandon plans for adjournment in July. President Wilson is expected to state formally in a few days why revenue legislation before the December session is regarded as imperative.

The Democratic and Republican leaders having failed to agree on plans proposed by the President for a special session after the Fall election, the work of framing a new Tax bill will proceed at once, unless there is some most unexpected development. Final conferences on the question will be held tomorrow. Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee, will see Secretary McAdoo, and a compromise movement to afford Congress a Summer vacation later on may follow. Leaders hope the Administration may consent to an adjournment after the Revenue bill has made substantial progress early in the Fall, possibly after it has reached the Senate, and defer completion of it until the Winter session.

M'ADOO INDORSES WAGE INCREASES

To Distribute $150,000,000 Soon.

The pay increases are effective next Saturday, and retroactive to last Jan. 1. More than $150,000,000 will be distributed within a few weeks as back pay in lump sums ranging approximately from $100 to $200.

All increases now ordered will be determined according to a percentage scale based on pay received in December, 1915, and any increases which have been allowed within that time will be deducted. In many cases raises in pay in the last two and a half years are about equal to the increases now approved, and consequently those employes will get little if any more. To correct just such situations when injustices are apparent will be one of the principal duties of the new Wage Board, whose creation was suggested by the Railroad Wage Commission. In no cases are wages to be reduced.

Men working on the monthly, daily, hourly, piecework, and mill basis will benefit by the new allowances, and members of the four leading railway brotherhoods, whose pay was raised through operation of the Adamson act, are to receive from 10 to 40 per cent. additional, a smaller increase than they asked of the railroads shortly before the Government took control.

The wage order applies to all employes of the 164 roads now under Federal management, but not to the so-called short lines, unless they are retained by the Government after July 1. It affects employes of terminal, union station, and switching companies, lighters, ferries, and tugs owned by railroads, but not employes of railroad boat lines on the lakes, rivers, or coastwise traffic. Although Pullman cars now are under Government operation, Pullman employes will not benefit unless the Railroad Administration decides to retain management of the cars.

In announcing his decision Mr. McAdoo appealed to railroad employes to forget dissensions and disappointments arising under private control, and to remember that the success of the war depends largely on their service.

To meet the expense of the wage increase, the biggest ever granted to railroad or any other class of employes at one time, the Railroad Administration has discussed raising freight and passenger rates.

The percentages of wage increase range from 43 for men who received $46 a month in December, 1915, down to a small rate for those receiving just under $250, and no more is allowed men who made $250 or more in 1915. The actual additions run up to $34.

With the exceptions of officers and messenger boys under 18, who receive smaller increases, all employes who received less than $46 a month receive a flat increase of $20, with the provision that laborers paid by the day shall get a minimum of 2½ cents an hour above the rate six months ago.

Table of Increases.

The table of increases as announced, itemized for each dollar of wages received in December, 1915, may be summarized as follows:

$46 to $50	$20.21 to $21.50

225 to 230	5.69 to 5.33

Increases on Daily and Hourly Basis.

Old Rate Per Day.	New Rate Per Day.
$0.75 to $1.50	$1.52 to $2.27
1.55 to 2.00	2.32 to 2.88
2.05 to 2.50	2.89 to 3.53
2.55 to 3.00	3.00 to 4.23
3.05 to 3.50	4.30 to 4.77
3.55 to 4.00	4.81 to 5.20
4.05 to 4.50	5.24 to 5.62
4.55 to 5.00	5.66 to 6.05
5.05 to 5.50	6.09 to 6.47
5.55 to 6.00	6.51 to 6.90
6.05 to 6.50	6.94 to 7.32
6.55 to 7.00	7.36 to 7.75
7.05 to 7.50	7.79 to 8.25

"Wage Runs with the Place."

To figure the increase he will get each employe should determine the pay which his present position carried in December, 1915, for if he has been promoted or demoted his new wage is based upon the 1915 pay of the position which he now holds. Increases which have accompanied promotions are not increases in the sense of the new schedule, since "the wage runs with the place," not with the man.

Back pay due under the retroactive increases will be sent to any man who has been dismissed from the railroad service since Jan. 1 or who has entered the army or navy, but not to an employe who quit voluntarily.

An important principle contained in the Director General's order is that reductions in hours since 1915 are not to be regarded as increases in pay. This means that employes of the four brotherhoods affected by the Adamson act are to receive additions on top of the increases developed by that act.

For instance, an engineer who made $4 a day working ten hours in 1915 may have had his pay increased to $5 for the same number of hours under the Adamson act. But for the purposes of applying the new scale the $5 is considered as $4 a day of eight hours, with $1 for two hours' overtime. Consequently, the pay will be increased on the basis of $4 a day, and overtime will be paid at the same rate of increase.

On this principle train employes, including members of the leading brotherhoods, will receive approximately the following proportional increases over 1915 pay, or their equivalent when pay is based on miles operated: Passenger engineers, 11 per cent.; passenger firemen and helpers, 28 per cent.; passenger conductors, 15 per cent.; passenger baggagemen, 38 per cent.; passenger brakemen and flagmen, 40 per cent.; freight engineers, 15 per cent.; freight firemen and helpers, 34 per cent.; freight conductors, 20 per cent.; freight brakemen and flagmen, 40 per cent. These men also must deduct increases granted since 1915.

Recognition of Eight-Hour Day.

The recognition of the eight-hour basis, though important as a principle, does not materially affect the scale of new wages granted. For instance, a man who in 1915 received $3 for a ten-hour day would now get $4.23 for ten hours, but this $4.23 would be considered as $3.38 for a day's work (eight hours) and 85 cents for two hours' overtime. When readjustments are made later, involving possibly extra rates of pay for overtime, the full effect of the new principle will become more apparent.

Mr. McAdoo explained that although the Wage Commission had not recommended adoption of this principle he felt it just to do so, both in view of the general movement toward recognition of the shorter working day and more specifically because the Government recognizes the principle in public works and contracts.

The principle of paying women the same as men for comparable work and negroes the same as white men for the same services, the Director General also explained, is in conformity with Government policies in other lines of employment.

The negro rule will affect many roads in the South, where negroes are employed largely as firemen, trainmen, switchmen, laborers, and for other work. This rule will become effective June 1, but payment of back wages will not include increases resulting from the rule.

The new Board of Railroad Wages and Working Conditions is composed of J. J. Dermody, Vice President of the Order of Railway Telegraphers; G. M. Sines, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; A. O. Wharton, head of the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor; F. F. Gaines, Superintendent of motive power of the Central of Georgia Railway; C. E. Lindsey, Maintenance of Ways Engineer for the New York Central, and W. E. Morse, General Manager of the Denver & Salt Lake Railroad. The latter three have resigned their positions with the railroads. The board will sit in Washington, probably continuously.

Duties of the Board.

"It shall be the duty of the board," says the wage order, "to hear and investigate matters presented by railway employes or their representatives affecting inequalities as to wages and working conditions, whether as to individual employes or classes of labor, conditions arising from competition with employes in other industries, rules and working conditions for the several classes of employes, whether for the country as a whole or different parts of the country. The board shall hear and investigate other matters affecting wages and conditions of employment referred to it by the Director General. The board shall be solely an advisory body and shall submit its recommendations to the Director General for his determination."

This order contemplates a strong effort to iron out many inequalities now existing. The board will deal with organized and unorganized employes alike, and the Railroad Administration on its own initiative will take up the claims of railway clerks and other unorganized men.

In the preamble to the wage order Director General McAdoo said:

"No problem so vast and intricate as that of doing practical justice to the 2,000,000 railroad employes of the country can be regarded as completely settled and disposed of by the decision or order; therefore the Board of Railroad Wages and Working Conditions is hereby established."

Appealing for the enthusiastic support of officials and employes, Mr. McAdoo said:

"It is my earnest hope that railroad officials and railroad employes will realize that their relations under Federal control are not based on the old conditions of private management. Dissensions and disappointments should be forgotten, and all should now remember that they are not only serving their country in the operation of the railroads but that upon the character, quality, and loyalty of that service depends in large measure our success in this war.

"It is an inspiring task—this task of putting upon a more just and equitable basis the wages and working conditions of loyal workers in railroad service—and I confidently expect the patriotic support and assistance of every railroad official and every railroad employe in performing that task with credit and with honor to their country."

The only provision for limitation of earnings in the order is a rule that, in individual case where the new scale permits increases "greater than is appropriate or necessary to those trainmen and enginemen who make abnormal amounts of mileage and who therefore make already abnormally high monthly earnings," officials of each railroad may take up with committees of men the question of limiting mileage made per month by employes paid on the mileage basis.

Special rates of pay are provided for office, messenger, and chore boys, and similar employes under eighteen years, as follows: $20 increase per month, where the pay in December, 1915, was from $30 to $45 a month; $15 increase, where the rate was from $20 to $30 a month; $10 increase, where the rate was less than $20 a month.

Creation of the new Wage Board will not affect the duties of the existing Railway Board of Adjustment No. 1, having charge of disputes over interpretation of wage or employment rules affecting the trainmen's brotherhoods, nor other adjustment boards to be created soon for other classes of labor. These adjustment boards are quasi-judicial bodies, passing on interpretations which involve wages only incidentally, while the new board of railroad wages will have much broader functions. All these labor boards will be under the supervision of W. S. Carter, Director of the Railroad Administration Division of Labor.

M'ADOO RULING APPROVED.

Railroad Operators and Labor Leaders in Chicago Both Gratified.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Both railroad operators and labor leaders in Chicago seem contented with Director General McAdoo's wage ruling. In both quarters tonight satisfaction was expressed with the creation of the new board of railroad wages and working conditions, the view being that it would tend to promote equity in any wage controversy.

"There is nothing new in the ruling," said E. P. Ripley, President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé. "The Director General has done what the railroads would like to have done before, if given the opportunity. The creation of the new board was the proper thing. I think it will work well. How well will depend upon the loyalty of labor. I doubt whether the proposed increase in rates will counterbalance the increase in labor cost and the cost of coal, but that is something that only the future can determine."

"One of labor's grievances was the fact that it was not represented on the wage board," said John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor. "Possibly the new board will be the instrument by which all objections of labor will be removed. The equal representation of labor is a step in the right direction, and probably the Director General understands that by its creation he is assuring labor of its rights. Of course, in advance of knowing exactly what is provided by the new scale, I cannot express a definite opinion, but I am sure the new board is a practical, sensible proposition."

PLEASES ORGANIZED LABOR.

Principles Recognized by McAdoo a Distinct Advance, Says Frayne.

Hugh Frayne, General Organizer of the American Federation of Labor and a member of the War Industries Board, said last night:

"The policy outlined by Director General of Railways McAdoo is a marked progressive step. While the question whether the pay increases themselves are satisfactory is for the men themselves to decide, I can say that the general principles adopted are far in advance of anything ever done by the railroads under private ownership.

"Equal pay for equal work under all conditions is a principle for which we have long been working. If an employer can hire a colored man at lower pay to do the same work done by the white man, the tendency is to establish a lower standard, and also to produce inefficiency. A man who does the same work as another, but gets lower pay for it, is not encouraged to do his best. The same principle calls for equal pay for women. In these respects the announcement is bound to be gratifying to organized labor.

"Secondly, the new policy is one under which the Government deals collectively with all railroad labor, and that, too, is a step in advance. It is a policy which is pretty sure to prevent labor troubles and to make adjustments easy in individual cases.

"The Government's railroad policy also recognizes the basic eight-hour day, which has never been recognized by railroads under private management. Now that the Government has taken this step, private industry will have to follow, and the eight-hour day is bound to become the general and permanent standard."

RESCUED 34 ADRIFT AMID SEA OF FLAME

MEDALS OF HONOR FAVORED

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Secretary Daniels today made public reports giving the details of the gallant work of American naval vessels in rescuing thirty-four of the seventy-five members of the crew of the Florence H., when that steamship was destroyed by a fire and explosion on the night of April 17, in a French port.

Rear Admiral Wilson, in charge of our naval base in France, praises all the officers and men of the vessels which were engaged in the work of rescue. He especially commends Lieutenant Harvey S. Haislip, Frank Monroe Upton, Quartermaster, and Jesse W. Covington, the ship's cook, and recommends that medals of honor and gold lifesaving medals be awarded Upton and Covington.

Lieutenant Haislip, the commander of the American destroyer which swept a path through the blazing ammunition boxes so that the small boats could reach the Florence H. and rescue the survivors, is a native of Virginia, only 29 years old. He entered the naval academy from Wisconsin and was graduated in 1911. His wife is living at San Mateo, Cal. Covington is from Durant, Oklahoma, and has a sister, Lena Dearing, living at Gracemont, Okla. Upton is from Denver.

Other officers mentioned in the commendatory orders, who were in charge of boats which went to the rescue, are:

COON, MARVIN L., Lieutenant, (junior grade,) N. N. V., Hancock, Mich.

JOHNSTON, R. A., ensign, U. S. N. R. F., Nantonia, Kan.

The doctors and chaplains mentioned by name as having assisted in caring for the injured who were rescued were:

PLAUTT, JESSE A., Passed Assistant Surgeon, N. N. V., Midland, Texas.

Amid Exploding Powder Boxes.

"On this occasion," says the Admiral's report, "that any lives were saved was due to the heroic conduct displayed by the United States naval vessels which happened to be in the vicinity at the time of the incident. The sea to leeward of the wreck was covered by a mass of boxes of smokeless powder, which were repeatedly exploding, and among this wreckage were a number of survivors. The wreckage was so thick that small boats were unable to reach these men. The heat from the burning vessel in the vicinity was so intense that the converted yachts present, with wooden upperworks, could not safely penetrate the wreckage.

"Under these conditions Lieutenant Haislip took his vessel at high speed into the midst of the wreckage at considerable risk of detonating the depth charges carried on his vessel, and made lanes through which the small boats lowered by his and other vessels could reach the survivors.

"The dash, initiative, and courage shown by Lieutenant Haislip on this occasion are in accord with the best traditions of our service, and it is recommended that he be commended by the Navy Department.

"F. M. Upton, Quartermaster, and J. W. Covington, ship's cook, plunged overboard to rescue a survivor of the Florence H., who was surrounded by powder boxes and who was too exhausted to help himself. They did this fully realizing that similar powder boxes in the vicinity were continually exploding and that they thereby were risking their lives in saving the life of this man. It is recommended that they be awarded gold life saving medals and medals of honor."

The French Vice Admiral, who is Commander in Chief of the district, in orders commended Lieutenant Haislip as "an excellent commander of patrol full of courage and decision," and said of his action:

"During the recent destruction of a munitions transport he took his ship across a mass of boxes of blazing munitions, which were scattered over the surface of the sea, and in the midst of the explosions, which followed each other, tried to rescue the survivors, showing at the same time proof of a superb contempt of danger and remarkable qualities of seamanship."

Admiral's Special Order.

Admiral Wilson issued a special order to the forces under his command, in which he said:

"The conduct of the officers and men attached to these vessels was in accord with the best traditions of our service, and by reason of their heroic efforts thirty-four survivors of a crew of seventy-five were rescued under conditions in which it appeared that all on board the Florence H. must have perished. Due to the prompt and gallant action of these vessels it appears that all who were not killed in the flames of the Florence H. were rescued."

The conditions which existed when the Florence H. was destroyed are described in the following extracts from reports of commanders of the United States vessels which were present:

"The night was cloudy and dark. A few moments before 10:30 P. M. it was noted that some one on the bridge of Florence H. was signaling with a signal searchlight; our attention was directed toward this signaling. Suddenly, without previous warning, the Florence H. burst into brilliant flame similar to flashlight in suddenness. Flame did not subside, but on contrary in a moment entirely enveloped the ship and shot up about one hundred feet in the air.

"The suddenness may be appreciated by the remark I made, 'There will not be a living soul get off that ship,' and this was my firm belief. There was no explosion felt or heard at this time. The fire continued to rage with varying intensity, constantly enveloping the ship, and in about ten minutes she split open amidships and sank about five minutes later.

"As soon as the fire broke out two United States vessels immediately started for the stricken ship. In a very few minutes there was ejected from the burning ship a mass of flaming cases and wreckage which spread to leeward like several enormous rafts, so thick were they packed. In the midst of these packed masses of wreckage and for a considerable area all over the vicinity every second numerous cases were exploding and shooting their flame and gases into the air. These explosions, with resulting flame, resembled blow torches, the flames reaching from ten to twenty feet, and making a whistling noise similar to acetylene torches.

"On the Florence H a few minutes after the fire broke out the fixed ammunition on deck began to explode and showered up like fireworks, and shortly afterward the guns went off. I signaled the ——, who was then very close to the burning ship and standing in to get in under her stern, to be careful, as I feared she had fixed ammunition. The —— was also standing in very close toward the burning wreckage in the water, and I was concerned about the ammunition, ejected flaming materials, or explosions in the water setting fire to our woodwork or setting off our bombs.

In a Burning Furnace.

"I could not yet believe that any living being had escaped from this burning furnace. At this time the commanding officer of the —— heard some cries in the water in the midst of the flaming wreckage, and thereupon ran his ship into this to reach the men.

"We were now joined by all the escorts of the southbound convoy and all lowered lifeboats. The lifeboats, however, had great difficulty in getting to the men, as wreckage was so thick rowing was out of the question and poling had to be resorted to.

"Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the magnificent conduct and fearless courage of these men out in small boats working their way through these blazing masses of ammunition cases to rescue the men. The conduct of the destroyers was superb. Seeing the difficulty of the small boats in getting through, they steamed into this wreckage to open up lanes for the small boats and also to throw lines to the men in the water.

"The thickness of this mass may be appreciated by the fact that it at one time jammed one vessel so she could not manoeuvre. The vicinity was nearly as bright as day from the burning ship and from the exploding cases in the water, and by this light men could be made out at times clinging to as yet unexploded cases.

"Three men were observed in a blazing lifeboat, hemmed in by other wreckage and ammunition cases. The —— steamed alongside of this boat and pulled the men aboard. Several of the men of the —— jumped overboard to hold up injured and burned men, and succeeded in saving them. This act is considered especially meritorious, as many of the survivors of the Florence H. were burned about the head and arms after they got away from the ship and while in the water, due to nearby ammunition cases exploding. It is certain that several lost their lives in this way.

"The work of Dr. J. A. Flautt and Dr. G. E. Cram is deserving of high commendation, as also that of Chaplain Maguire. These officers were out in small boats assisting in the rescue and afterward attending to the wounded. W. Lorber, pharmacist's mate, was also in our boat.

Rescuers' Great Risk.

"It is desired to commend the action of all patrol boats on the scene, who, at great risk, went into burning wreckage and exploding ammunition, the destroyers being especially conspicuous in that they steamed through it. Each and every man who went out in small boats did so at great risk of life, and their conduct is deserving of commendation.

"The men in the boats fearlessly pushed into the burning mass of wreckage with powder cases exploding around them to save lives. In particular the motor dory, with its inflammable fuel, was in constant danger. In spite of this and risking their lives with every attempt, the motor boat saved seven men. The whale boat brought nine men aboard this ship, and three others were landed on another.

"Some of the survivors were in small boats which were on fire and surrounded by burning boxes of powder. They were literally being burned alive, and, as it did not appear possible for a small boat to enter this mass of wreckage, I utilized the power and manoeuvring qualities of my vessel to break through to their rescue. The other vessel also stood into the wreckage and lowered boats, one of which assisted us in getting men on board. Other escorts lowered boats and took up the rescue work.

"Lieutenant, junior grade, M. L. Coon, N. N. V., took a boat into the wreckage and rescued three men. It is believed that this was the first small boat to go among the wreckage. Lieutenant H. R. Eccleston, U. S. N. R. F., was in charge of a motor boat which he took into the wreckage and, due to its power and speed, succeeded in rescuing one man who could not be reached by a boat from another ship because it could not get through. The coolness and energy displayed by Lieutenants Coon and Eccleston and the boat crews while performing this extremely hazardous duty are considered deserving of special commendation.

Made Path for Boats.

"A motor dory in attempting to save some survivors in a lifeboat became jammed between the burning wreckage and exploding powder cases which threw flame of probably fifteen feet in radius. Realizing the danger these men were subject to, I immediately ran the bow of the —— into the floating wreckage, which covered an area of about one-half mile, in order to make it possible for the dory to extricate itself and a lifeboat with survivors.

"The men who manned the boats which took part in the work of rescue, and were mentioned in orders as worthy of commendation, were:

Find Boy's Body in St. Paul's Cabin

The police reported yesterday the finding of the body of a 15-year-old boy in a cabin of the American liner St. Paul, which was sunk on April 25 between Piers 61 and 62, North River. The body is believed to be that of James Wright, a messboy on the vessel. At the time of the accident it was reported that three persons had lost their lives.

PIQUA WELCOMES DR. DAVIS.

Kaiser's Former Dentist Speaks on Food Situation in Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

PIQUA, Ohio, May 26.—A large crowd assembled at the Miami County Fair Grounds today to welcome Dr. Arthur N. Davis of New York, former dentist to the German Kaiser. Dr. Davis, a former resident of Piqua, delivered an address while twenty airplanes from the Wilbur Wright Field at Dayton flew over the grounds.

The speaker made no reference to the Kaiser, but confined his remarks to food conditions in Germany, the immensity of the German war line as he had seen it on several visits he made to the front to treat the Kaiser, and the great necessity for our people to sustain our Government in its war preparations.

In discussing food substitutes in Germany, Dr. Davis related the story of a German in Berlin who said the people would soon be eating rats. Another answered that would be all right until a rat substitute was imposed on the people.

THINK MEREDITH SAFE.

Pennsylvania Authorities Do Not Identify Him with Captive Aviator.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—Lawson Robertson, coach of the University of Pennsylvania track team, does not believe that Lieutenant J. J. Meredith, the aviator who is reported to be a prisoner in Germany, is J. E. (Ted) Meredith, the former world's champion middle-distance runner.

Mr. Robertson said today that he had a letter from Meredith written two weeks ago, in which the former runner said he was studying and tutoring in the Aviation Corps, had not crossed the battleline, and did not expect to do so for at least two months.

There are several other former Pennsylvania athletes in Meredith's unit, and if anything had happened to him the Pennsylvania authorities say they probably would have been advised.

"A Nation At Bay"

This book by Sergeant Ruth S. Farnam is the story of Serbia's sufferings, as told by an American woman. Mrs. Farnam was the first woman of any nationality to enter reconquered Serbian territory.

Recently, at a banquet of the Woman's National Book Association, Sergt. Farnam delivered an address in which she spoke of the magnitude and unselfishness, of the sacrifice Serbia had made upon the altar of world freedom. So deep was the impression made by Mrs. Farnam that the booksellers at the tables ordered 2,500 copies of the book. Our order was for 250 copies.

The Book of Progress

Marking man's progress as a creator, as a destroyer, and man's activities in nature.

In this fascinating compilation of articles culled from the files of the Scientific American by one of its editors, Albert A. Hopkins, tabloid facts are presented of things we see and hear every day with unseeing eyes and deaf ears. It is as if a new world were opened before our astonished gaze.

Do you know how to SEE sound? And it is dollars to doughnuts that you know little more concerning the TIME FACTOR IN BASE BALL, for all the "fan" you think yourself.

In these three volumes answers in concise language are given to many like questions. For instance, there are chapters devoted to LABOR SAVING DEVICES OF BIG HOTELS and to the ever interesting subject of DETECTING CRIME. We are given an insight into the scientific side of HANDWRITING, and TESTS FOR TYPEWRITING — MEN VS. WOMEN.

Of course there is a great deal said of things electrical, aerial, mechanical, industrial, chemical and physical; enough to furnish one with a liberal education.

Profusely illustrated by 1,615 plates. Three vols., 8vo, bound in Linen Weave Cloth. $1.24 set.

DILLON OPENS WAR ON THE SINN FEIN

OPPOSES EAST CAVAN TRUCE

DEVLIN ATTACKS EVIDENCE

O'Brien Also Assails British Statement—Bishops Against Deporting Prisoners.

BAILIEBOROUGH, Ireland, May 26, (Associated Press.)—John Dillon, Chairman of the Irish Nationalists, speaking here today, declared war to the death on the Sinn Fein. The occasion for his speech was a meeting of delegates from East Cavan to decide whether the Nationalist Party ought to withdraw its candidate and permit the Sinn Feiner, Arthur Griffith, to be elected unopposed.

Mr. Dillon's speech bristled with references to America, and appeals to Irishmen not to neglect American public opinion. He emphasized his denunciation of the Sinn Fein by quoting several phrases from his statement recently made to The Associated Press, and added:

"Some English newspapers have quoted the interview I gave to The Associated Press of America as evidence that I have 'broken off' my alliance with the Sinn Fein. You cannot break off what has never existed.

"I am being denounced today by the Sinn Feiners as an imperialist, which I never was, and as an enemy of the true principles of Irish nationality. I have repeatedly explained that, while I was in favor of the Mansion House conference for the sake of presenting a united front on the single question of conscription, I was so far from believing that there was any other possible common platform with the Sinn Fein that I was more bitterly and more irreconcilably opposed to de Valera and Griffith than ever before in my life.

"I am today more convinced than ever that the Sinn Fein policy is calculated to rob Ireland of the sympathy of America and of all democratic people throughout the world."

"The Sinn Fein is not only alienating Americans, but our own Irish people in America. Every morning I receive letters from friends in America, asking what has come over the Irish people and if it is possible that they sympathize with the Germans.

"Of course, this is largely due to British propaganda in America, and if it were not for the happy circumstance that we sent T. P. O'Connor to America, and that he was the ear of the American public, all America would now be poisoned against Ireland.

"Our foes in America, Canada, and Australia are anxious to see what will be the verdict of East Cavan. If we advise the Nationalist candidate to withdraw, such action will be taken by the world as acceptance of the policy of Sinn Fein."

After denouncing the Government's "revelations" as not evidence, but "merely Lloyd George's opinion of evidence," Mr. Dillon said:

"The Government of Great Britain and the military advisors are playing the Sinn Fein game because they think they have in the Sinn Fein an effective weapon to destroy the Constitutional movement in Ireland."

O'BRIEN REJOINS ANGRILY.

Asserts British Course Will React—Miss Bruns Arrested.

LONDON, May 25.—William O'Brien, member of Parliament, telegraphs to the newspapers in reference to the Sinn Fein revelations:

"Since the anti-Popish plot some centuries ago there has been nothing more disgraceful to English statecraft. The Irish people will read Lloyd George's story with the same mingled indignation and contempt that they felt when they read the forged letter published by the authors of 'Parnellism and Crime.'

"A similar reaction, even in England, is sure to follow. The fact that internment is the punishment for traitors is a sufficient commentary upon the rubbish, showing it to be an attempt by foul means to break up the anti-conscription movement. The German plot will turn out to be even a grosser blunder than the extension of conscription to Ireland.

A sensation was caused in Tipperary yesterday, according to the Exchange Telegraph, by the arrest of Miss Bruns, an Austrian subject, who has been serving as Secretary to Major Edwards, owner of a stock farm at Bansha, in County Tipperary. She was taken into custody at the Edwards home and removed to Dublin. The charge against her was not announced.

Edwards, a widely known sportsman, was at home preparing to go to the Limerick Junction races, in which he had a horse entered, when the arrest was made. Two motor cars with police and military officers drove to the house and the authorities spent several hours searching Miss Bruns's correspondence before arresting her. She had served as Major Edwards's Secretary for four or five years.

PROOF LACKING, SAYS DEVLIN.

Assails the Government and Calls for "Peace by Understanding."

BELFAST, May 26.—Joseph Devlin, Nationalist leader, does not accept the Government's statement regarding the alleged pro-German conspiracy in Ireland as at all conclusive of the truth of the charges, he indicated in a speech at Dungannon today.

"I am afraid that the Government, in its confused and panic-stricken state of mind," he said, "has got German plots on the brain. Arrests have been made on a wholesale scale of Irishmen and Irishwomen on vague charges which the Government is unable to prove in the only way in which charges can be proved, and that is by trying the persons before a jury of their own countrymen.

"No ex parte statements containing indefinite and unsubstantiated evidence will satisfy men of impartial mind, and the Irish people will not believe one of these charges until they are proved before the only tribunal which lovers of justice and fair play recognize."

Mr. Devlin came out boldly as an advocate of "peace by understanding."

"Don't you think," he said, "that the time has arrived when the weight of the influence of Ireland and Irishmen the world over ought to be thrown into the movement, already strong in all of the belligerent countries, in favor of a just general peace? If the question of peace were submitted by a plebiscite to the rank and file of the armies of the world hostilities would cease within twenty-four hours.

"Everybody knows that Germany's position is as difficult and uncertain now as it is likely to be two or three years hence, and that even if Germany were beaten to the dust it would be just as difficult to negotiate peace. If Germany, as she says, is willing to negotiate now, is it not a crime against civilization to prolong the war a single day, let alone for an indefinite number of years?"

Referring to the powerful voices of Lord Lansdowne and others in favor of peace, Mr. Devlin said:

"If the Irish race takes up the question it can help it forward as no other race can. If we once get a peace conference together the question of Ireland might well be submitted to it, since British statesmanship has proved incompetent."

IRISH BISHOPS OPPOSE DEPORTING PRISONERS

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

DUBLIN, May 25.—The Catholic hierarchy is considering the advisability of issuing a statement denouncing the deporting of Sinn Feiners, regardless of the charges against them. This is an old sore with the Irish since the Land League riots in 1881, when Parliament granted power to Mr. Forster to suppress the league by arrest and imprisonment without trial of what he termed "les mauvais sujets."

Forster promised Parliament that when he had the ringleaders under lock and key the outrages would cease and peace would be restored. The outrages, however, increased instead of decreasing under the lettre de cachet system until after six months the English people themselves inveighed against such secrecy and demanded that a stop be put to it.

The fact that the world is at war is not accepted as justification of the extraordinary measures taken by the Government to stamp out sedition and the alleged intrigue with Germany. What the average Irishman sees, and that to the exclusion of all else, is England reasserting the right to deport Irishmen from Irish soil.

This resentment has been handed down for generations and goes back to the root of the whole Irish question laid in 1610, when the plan was first undertaken by King James and later affirmed under Cromwell, when Papists were consigned to "hell or Connaught" and large numbers were deported beyond the seas.

The plea that Ireland should forget the past and take its place beside the Allies in the present struggle to save democracy seems to be wholly misunderstood here. They are nursing the wrongs of centuries instead, and one of the sorest points in the whole Irish encyclopedia of alleged English wrongs is the question of deportation.

It is not likely that reliably informed Bishops will go so far as to defend Sinn Feiners against the Government charges, except to contend that the facts thus far disclosed do not establish sufficient evidence to warrant the drastic action taken. In any event the Bishops, I understand, are prepared vigorously to oppose England's resurrection of the deportation precedent.

While there is a sprinkling of Sinn Feinism among the higher clergy, the great majority of Catholic Bishops oppose the principles and methods employed by the rebels. They are ardent Home Rulers, however, and strong supporters of the constitutionalist and nationalist plan for dominion home rule inside the empire.

Among the younger priests the Sinn Fein is rampant, and whatever charges there might be they disbelieve them and continue to brand the whole proceedings as "another British plot to destroy Ireland." Even among the Bishops I hear that the evidence thus far disclosed has not made much impression.

The Nationalist leaders, I understand, are almost a unit in holding that the evidence thus far disclosed does not justify deportation. Nationalist newspapers all over Ireland today are ridiculing the evidence and while careful not to bring down the wrath of the censor they get dangerously near the line in hurling back broadside plot charges at the British Government. The Unionist and Loyalist press, on the other hand, rejoices that the alleged plot has been nipped and that the ringleaders have been removed.

The Dublin Irish Times, editorially commenting on the evidence, approves enthusiastically the Government's move and adds:

"The Government's statement will convince all impartial men in every allied country that the Sinn Fein has been in league with Germany, and that any cause that continues to link itself with the Sinn Fein, even superficially, will be damned forever in the eyes of Englishmen, Frenchmen, and Americans. It is Mr. Dillon's immediate duty to dissociate his party publicly and emphatically from his fatal alliance with the Sinn Fein. If he hesitates, even for a week, his unfortunate country cannot repair the consequences in a hundred years."

The Freeman's Journal, the organ of the Nationalists, rakes the British Government fore and aft in its leading editorial. It sums up thus:

"At last the revelations have been made and not a single document has been produced. Instead we are asked to accept for evidence a series of allegations and a solitary excerpt from a speech of De Valera. Beyond this extract no attempt is made to connect even one of the hundred individuals with any German agent. The statement on the face of it is an elaborate and skillfully constructed political manifesto issued for the purpose of prejudicing the cause of Ireland with the allied nations.

"To imprison people and, while their mouths are closed and they are prevented from facing their accusers, to send broadcast to the world a document charging them with the most desperate and serious offenses unsupported by a tittle of real evidence or by any of the documents so lavishly promised appears to us one of the most outrageous instances of injustice in the long history of British misgovernment in Ireland."

ARREST J. J. O'LEARY ON FEDERAL CHARGE

TO BE ARRAIGNED TODAY

Fugitive Sinn Fein Agitator Who Evaded Trial Is Still Sought by the Authorities.

John J. O'Leary, a brother of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, the fugitive Sinn Fein agitator, was arrested by agents of the Department of Justice last night and taken to the office of Charles F. De Woody, the Chief of the Department of Justice Secret Service for the New York district. It was announced by Assistant United States District Attorney Earl B. Barnes, who is in charge of the Jeremiah O'Leary case, that John O'Leary was arrested in connection with the disappearance on May 8 of his more widely known brother.

John J. O'Leary is a lawyer, with an office at 52 Broadway, and lives at 1,732 East Nineteenth Street, Brooklyn. The order for his arrest was issued by Chief De Woody late yesterday afternoon. O'Leary is being held pending action by the United States Attorney's office. He will be arraigned in the Federal Building before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock today.

When the trial of Jeremiah O'Leary was called on Monday John J. O'Leary said that he did not know where his brother was, that he had last seen him on May 7, when he had expressed his intention of going to the Adirondacks. John J. O'Leary produced copies of three telegrams which he had sent in an effort to trace his brother. One was to Miss Alice Moynehan, Glens Falls, N. Y.; one to James Breen, Jahamus, N. Y., and the other to a brother, Dr. Daniel O'Leary of Newburg. The replies to these all said that nothing was known as to the whereabouts of the missing man. John J. O'Leary also said that he had been searching for his brother since May 16.

When it became known last Monday that Jeremiah O'Leary was a fugitive from justice and it was intimated that he was trying to make his way into Mexico, Mr. Barnes began a Grand Jury investigation of the case in an effort to find whether any of his friends knew how he escaped. Many witnesses were called before the Grand Jury, among them Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, John Devoy, the editor of a Sinn Fein weekly; Grover Whalen, secretary of Mayor Hylan, and the mother and father of the fugitive. John J. O'Leary was not called before the jury.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder, counsel for Jeremiah O'Leary, said when he announced the disappearance of his client, that John J. O'Leary had made every effort to trace his brother. John, he added, had even made a trip to the Adirondacks, where he made a personal search for the fugitive.

John Devoy also said he had not heard from Jeremiah O'Leary and knew nothing as to his whereabouts. Other witnesses testified to the same effect.

SCIENCE IN WAR MISAPPLIED

Dr. Faunce Points Out That It Is a Non-Moral Power.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 26.—"There is not room in Europe, not room on the Atlantic or the Pacific Ocean, for four nations who believe that government by the people is 'government by the gutter' to live with twenty nations who believe that the voice of the people is the voice of God," declared W. H. P. Faunce, President of Brown University today, in his baccalaureate address. He spoke in part as follows, using as his text Luke x., 19: "Behold I give unto you power * * * over all the power of the enemy":

"We are fighting against the power of misapplied science. If ever we have dreamed that society would be saved by scientific discovery and invention, our dream now is shattered. Science is a non-moral power which ignores our distinctions of right and wrong. It may wear the livery of Heaven or that of hell, and is equally effective as the servant of the Red Cross physician and as toolmaker for the assassin. Little children in France today sit in school with gas masks beside them on the desk, and chemistry is perverted into the destroyer of infancy. On Good Friday the hurtling shell, after its seventy-five-mile journey, falls on a church in Paris, burying human beings as they kneel before the cross, and it was higher mathematics that traced the path of the shell before it was fired.

"Bacteriology is made to serve the purpose of those who would spread abroad the germs of contagious disease, and all the sciences, which were invented to release man from weariness and fear and pain, are now made the engines of tyranny and malice. The cruelties practiced in warfare by the American Indians were many, but they were not scientific. The ruthlessness of Assyria and Babylonia was terrible, but it was mere excess of passion and thoughtless anger. Now we are contending with a cruelty that is thoughtful and deliberate, as frightfulness planned and printed in war manuals, with atrocities coolly wrought out in laboratories and with the murder of the wounded by strictly scientific methods. Those facts should be remembered by those who say that after the war is over our schools and colleges will become simply technical schools. Science gives us marvelous and indispensable tools to work with; but it gives no hint as to how or why we shall use them."

GERARD ADVOCATES AIR REPRISALS BY ALLIES

Ex-Ambassador Wants War Brought Home to German People by Raids on Towns.

Air reprisals by the Allies was advocated last night by James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, who spoke at the Church of the Ascension Forum, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street.

"The war should be brought home to the German people," said Mr. Gerard, in reply to a question from some one in the audience as to whether he believed in reprisals. "The Allies should conduct air raids against German towns."

When the Germans first discussed the use of their engines of war for dropping bombs on enemy towns, said the ex-Ambassador, only one lone Socialist in the Reichstag objected. "Let the German people learn that those who live by the sword shall perish by the sword," he added.

He accused the Chicago Board of Education of being disloyal in not dropping the name "Bismarck" from one of the large Chicago schools, and declared that the New York City Board of Education should have known of the German propaganda in certain text books adopted since the war before deciding on the use of the books.

Today there is no party, of liberal tendencies in Germany, said Mr. Gerard. The Social Democrats had declared themselves against the monarchy, but also against religion and in favor of free love, and for this, he asserted, they are outcasts in Germany.

"Why did you allow your book, 'My Four Years in Germany,' to be published in the Hearst papers?" Mr. Gerard was asked from the audience.

"Because Mr. Curtis of The Ledger bought the book and sold it to whomever he pleased," was the reply.

America ought to hurry her war preparations, said Mr. Gerard, because of the possibility of Germany's attempting to raise armies from the conquered provinces of Esthonia, Livonia, and Courland.

"Why could not the 35,000,000 Protestants and the 20,000,000 Catholics in Germany stop the war? Are they not Christians?" Mr. Gerard was asked.

"They are not Christians, for, if they were, they would have stopped the war," he replied.

Mr. Gerard advocated sending thousands of American propagandists to Russia to make appeals through the moving pictures and in other ways to the Russian people, and, as far as possible, make "an intellectual conquest" of Russia to show Russia on which side it is of advantage to her to align herself.

In reply to a question on the German syste of pensions and old age and accident insurance, Mr. Gerard characterized all these insurance plans as means to keep the German from immigrating. For, he said, by making them pay so many premiums, the people are tied to the soil, and while not actually in a state of starvation they are always working for low wages.

Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the church, made an appeal for 1,000 members for the forum before the end of June. He said that the forum has 930 members, of whom 170 belong to the church as well. Among those present were Major August Belmont, George Gordon Battle, and William Sulzer.

DANISH MISSION ARRIVES.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port from Denmark on a Danish steamship was J. Clan, Chief of the Division of Foreign Affairs of the Danish Ministry, who is on his way to Washington to confer with the Danish Legation on shipping affairs.

Mr. Clan, who was Consul General in New York for eight years, is accompanied on his mission by Kay Rhinhard, A. O. Anderson, and A. Holms, who are connected with Danish steamship companies, and Harald Nielsen, Secretary General of the Danish Joint Committee of Trades. They will accompany him to Washington to discuss a trade agreement between the United States and Denmark which is being negotiated through diplomatic channels.

AID SENT TO PORTUGAL.

United States Furnishes Relief to Dependents of Soldiers.

LISBON, May 25.—The American Government has sent a sum of money to the Portuguese Government for the immediate aid of the dependents of Portuguese troops who suffered from the recent German offensive.

The American Minister here had informed his Government of the numerous casualties among the Portuguese and of the bravery the Portuguese troops displayed. The American Government has expressed its desire to help the Portuguese by all possible means.

WIDOW MAY NOT GET HERALD

Paris Doubts Either Mrs. Bennett or Her Sons Will Inherit Newspaper.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 26.—The Paris executor of the estate of the late James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of The New York Herald, is out of town and no information is obtainable as to the disposition of The Herald. The first announcement will probably be made in New York.

It is not now believed by the friends of the widow of Mr. Bennett that the newspaper properties in New York and Paris have been bequeathed either to her or to her sons by her previous marriage with Baron de Reuter.

MAYOR FAVORS SPANISH.

Urges Instruction in the Language in the Higher Schools.

A statement written by Mayor Hylan setting forth the reasons why New Yorkers should know Spanish has been sent broadcast by the organization which has for its purpose the establishing of better trade relations between this country and South American countries. In his letter the Mayor says:

"We should especially encourage the teaching of Spanish in all the high schools, colleges, and universities of our great city. It should be the chief foreign language studied by our youth. It is questionable whether any foreign language should be taught in our elementary schools. That type of school should be left free to give to the child a thorough training in English and in the rudiments of knowledge that will make him a better citizen of New York and of the United States. The training of Americans to teach Spanish is now made more necessary than ever by the fact that this last April the State legislative body passed an amendment to the educational law which makes it necessary now for every teacher entering the school system of the State or city to be a full citizen of the United States.

"It is hoped that in the convention which President Menocal has proposed should be held in Havana this coming Fall something concrete and definite may be done to increase the number of trained teachers of Spanish in the United States and especially in New York City."

PEACE SOCIETY FOR WAR.

Full Support Pledged to a Winning Fight for America.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Resolutions pledging the whole-hearted support of the American Peace Society to the Government in winning the war were announced today by the society's Board of Directors at the close of its ninetieth annual meeting.

Representative James L. Slayden of Texas was re-elected President, and W. H. Taft, W. J. Bryan, Andrew Carnegie, Theodore E. Burton, and J. H. Ralston were re-elected Vice Presidents.

LOSSES OF GERMAN "ACES."

Berlin Paper Records the Death of 19 of 41 Principal Fliers.

In connection with the report of the death in battle on the western front of Captain Baron von Richthofen, Germany's champion fighting aviator, the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag of April 24 printed a table showing that, of the forty-one German aviators who had brought down fifteen or more opponents since the beginning of the war, nineteen had fallen in action and two had been reported missing. The list of the fallen German fliers, together with the number of their victims and the year of their death, follows:

Lieutenant Boss	30	1917
Captain Boelcke	40	1916
Lieutenant Gontermann	39	1917
Lieutenant Max Muller	38	1918
Lieutenant Kurt Wolff	34	1917
Lieutenant Schaefer	30	1917
Lieutenant Allmenroeder	30	1917
First Lieut. von Tutschek	27	1918
Lieutenant Bohme	25	1917
First Lieut. Bethge	20	1918
Lieutenant von Eschwege	20	1917
Lieutenan. Frankl	19	1917
Lieutenant Wintgens	18	1916
Lieutenant Baldamus	18	1917
Lieutenant Hess	17	1917
First Lieut. Immelmann	15	1916
Lieutenant Dossenbach	15	1917
Lieutenant Schneider	15	1917

Lieutenant von Bülow, with twenty-eight victims, and First Lieutenant Dostler, with twenty-six, were reported missing.

Memorial for Dartmouth Fighters.

HANOVER, N. H., May 26.—Memorial vespers for the nineteen Dartmouth men who have died in service since the outbreak of the war were conducted by President Ernest M. Hopkins, in connection with commencement exercises at the college today. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by the Rev. Willis H. Butler of Boston, whose subject was "The Matter of Morale." Ozora Davis of Chicago, a member of the class of 1889, was elected President of the Alumni Association.

WIDOW MAY NOT GET HERALD

Paris Doubts Either Mrs. Bennett or Her Sons Will Inherit Newspaper.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 26.—The Paris executor of the estate of the late James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of The New York Herald, is out of town and no information is obtainable as to the disposition of The Herald. The first announcement will probably be made in New York.

It is not now believed by the friends of the widow of Mr. Bennett that the newspaper properties in New York and Paris have been bequeathed either to her or to her sons by her previous marriage with Baron de Reuter.

MAYOR FAVORS SPANISH.

Urges Instruction in the Language in the Higher Schools.

A statement written by Mayor Hylan setting forth the reasons why New Yorkers should know Spanish has been sent broadcast by the organization which has for its purpose the establishing of better trade relations between this country and South American countries. In his letter the Mayor says:

"We should especially encourage the teaching of Spanish in all the high schools, colleges, and universities of our great city. It should be the chief foreign language studied by our youth. It is questionable whether any foreign language should be taught in our elementary schools. That type of school should be left free to give to the child a thorough training in English and in the rudiments of knowledge that will make him a better citizen of New York and of the United States. The training of Americans to teach Spanish is now made more necessary than ever by the fact that this last April the State legislative body passed an amendment to the educational law which makes it necessary now for every teacher entering the school system of the State or city to be a full citizen of the United States.

"It is hoped that in the convention which President Menocal has proposed should be held in Havana this coming Fall something concrete and definite may be done to increase the number of trained teachers of Spanish in the United States and especially in New York City."

PEACE SOCIETY FOR WAR.

Full Support Pledged to a Winning Fight for America.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Resolutions pledging the whole-hearted support of the American Peace Society to the Government in winning the war were announced today by the society's Board of Directors at the close of its ninetieth annual meeting.

Representative James L. Slayden of Texas was re-elected President, and W. H. Taft, W. J. Bryan, Andrew Carnegie, Theodore E. Burton, and J. H. Ralston were re-elected Vice Presidents.

LOSSES OF GERMAN "ACES."

Berlin Paper Records the Death of 19 of 41 Principal Fliers.

In connection with the report of the death in battle on the western front of Captain Baron von Richthofen, Germany's champion fighting aviator, the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag of April 24 printed a table showing that, of the forty-one German aviators who had brought down fifteen or more opponents since the beginning of the war, nineteen had fallen in action and two had been reported missing. The list of the fallen German fliers, together with the number of their victims and the year of their death, follows:

Lieutenant Boss	30	1917
Captain Boelcke	40	1916
Lieutenant Gontermann	39	1917
Lieutenant Max Muller	38	1918
Lieutenant Kurt Wolff	34	1917
Lieutenant Schaefer	30	1917
Lieutenant Allmenroeder	30	1917
First Lieut. von Tutschek	27	1918
Lieutenant Bohme	25	1917
First Lieut. Bethge	20	1918
Lieutenant von Eschwege	20	1917
Lieutenan. Frankl	19	1917

Lieutenant Baldamus	18	1917
Lieutenant Hess	17	1917
First Lieut. Immelmann	15	1916
Lieutenant Dossenbach	15	1917
Lieutenant Schneider	15	1917

Lieutenant von Bülow, with twenty-eight victims, and First Lieutenant Dostler, with twenty-six, were reported missing.

Memorial for Dartmouth Fighters.

HANOVER, N. H., May 26.—Memorial vespers for the nineteen Dartmouth men who have died in service since the outbreak of the war were conducted by President Ernest M. Hopkins, in connection with commencement exercises at the college today. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by the Rev. Willis H. Butler of Boston, whose subject was "The Matter of Morale." Ozora Davis of Chicago, a member of the class of 1889, was elected President of the Alumni Association.

$50,000 BID FOR PICTURE.

More than $50,000 will be bid for Ridgway Knight's famous picture, "After the Battle of the Marne," if the picture is to come to an American owner. Cable messages received by the American, British, French, Belgian Permanent Blind Relief War Fund, to which the painting was given by William Nelson Cromwell, inform the American officers of the fund that such a sum has already been bid in Paris.

Arrangements were perfected yesterday by which a photographic reproduction, the exact size of the painting, will be hung today in the Anderson Galleries at the American Artists' exhibit for the fund. This reproduction will hang beside the original of the companion piece to the painting, "Bas de Laine," (The Worsted Stocking,) which has been lent to the exhibition by its owner, James McLean, and this also will be shown for the first time today.

A feature of the week will be the auction sale of, among other paintings, the "River Lys," in the vicinity of which the present German drive is concentrated.

NAME TRADE EXPERT.

Albert Barnaud Will Be Attached to Paris Embassy.

The New York office of the Department of Commerce announced yesterday that Albert J. Barnaud, who has been connected with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce for three years, has been appointed to the post of Trade Expert connected with the office of the American Commercial Attaché in the United States Embassy at Paris. It was said that his work in France will include important investigation and studies for which he is peculiarly equipped by his knowledge of conditions obtained in his former travels in almost every European country and his ability as a linguist.

H. C. Mac Lean, formerly of the Merchants' Association, is to succeed Mr. Barnaud in the bureau and William Strechan, also of the Merchants' Association, is to be sent by the bureau to Central America to make an investigation of economic and commercial developments.

MATHIEU CASE IS HEARD.

Three Ex-Ministers with Sarrail on French Treason Inquiry.

PARIS, May 26.—Three former Ministers, M. Briand, Painlevé, and Violette, and Generals Sarrail and Cordonnier heard yesterday the case of Captain Mathieu and Sergeant Paix-Seailles, and decided to take testimony Monday morning.

Although the case is being heard in camera, it is attracting as much attention as the Bonnet Rouge affair, as it is considered an overture to the Caillaux and Malvy cases.

Captain Mathieu and Sergeant Paix-Seailles are charged with having given important military information to unauthorized persons. The information consisted of a copy of a report sent by General Sarrail to the French Government concerning the situation in Salonikl, and asking for reinforcements.

"Against the Wall"

Brand Whitlock

"I had one more visitor that evening, von S., a German officer. He came in from the field cold and wet. He passed his hand wearily over his face and covered his eyes with his palm. 'This thing,' he began, 'this thing of standing old peasants up against a wall—well, it's no business for a gentleman!'"

At last the truth about Belgium is being told—in all its stark horror—being told by the one man in all the world fitted by experience and talent to tell it to the world—our own Minister to Belgium, Brand Whitlock.

Brand Whitlock sends the manuscript of this historic story, first direct to the State Department at Washington, and from the State Department it comes to Everybody's, where it is appearing exclusively. It is "The one great piece of literature to come out of the war," says a member of President Wilson's Cabinet. It is an unprecedented privilege for Everybody's Magazine to be able to publish the story of Belgium by our own United States Minister—still at his post of duty in stricken Europe. This story will go down through the centuries. It has information you want—an immediate significance that will mean much to you. Every word will electrify you.

GERMAN WAR CIPHER

Recently used in Minnesota
Exposed by Melville Davisson Post

Tam o' the Scoots
This series of stories by Edgar Wallace is brilliant, daring, tender, gorgeously humorous, and incorrigibly Scotch—the most thrilling tales of an airman's prowess ever put in print.

Making Seaworthy Sailors on Dryest Land
An entertaining description of the training base for blue jackets, where Commander Warren S. Terhune is turning out everything, from an aero pilot to a ship's cook, for our greatly enlarged Navy. An article guaranteed to deprive grumblers of an excuse for the time being.

German War Ciphers
Exposed by Melville Davisson Post. An amazing revelation of what the German mind is capable of and how our Government has protected us.

The Ruling Love
A love-story told from absolutely a new angle, in which father and lover pit their brains against each other, and arrive at an unexpected agreement.

For Grub and Guns
By Harold Titus. Another vivid word-picture of how we are getting into the war.

A Confession Under Difficulties
A wonderful little bit of realism, which preserves the spirit of true faith with none of the outward forms of orthodox religion.

The Duchess of Siona
A dashing serial romance of the days when knighthood was in the flower of its magnificence. This new novel is by Ernest Goodwin, an English writer, who has come up so fast that his work is comparatively new to Americans.

We Can if They Can
By Mr. Howard Wheeler, editor of Everybody's, who has just returned from the front. A tonic picture of the men on the fighting lines, and of the splendid spirit of the women of England who are keeping high their hearts at home—an inspiration for every one over here.

The White Arc
Henry Kitchell Webster—master of words and emotions—never has done a finer, more powerful piece of work than this—his latest serial.

Patriotism and the Plow-tail
Talbot Mundy, whose fighting stories have made him famous, here issues a call for recruits in a field hitherto strange to his pen.

The Autocrat

After the War—?
A new department by and for Everybody's readers—an opportunity to clarify opinion and profit by mistakes of the past.

MOTHER'S PLEA PUTS THIRD SON INTO ARMY

HAS TWO BOYS IN FRANCE

Proud That the Fourth Will Answer Next Call—Sorry Her Four Girls Can't Be Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., May 26.—Private John Mangini can thank his militant mother that poor eyes will not prevent him sending his compliments to the Kaiser in the form of big shells from the howitzers of the 309th Motorized Field Artillery. Revoking a previous order that had removed him from his regiment following the report of surgeons that his vision was poor, division headquarters has directed that Private Mangini be restored to his old company and once more the three stars twinkle brightly in the service flag which Mrs. Rose Mangini displays proudly from her home at 913 Cortland Street, North Bergen.

Into the office of Lieut. Col. G. S. White, Chief of Staff, where come scores of mothers, sisters, and wives seeking exemption of relatives, Mrs. Mangini came on a very different errand. She had heard from son John that he was not to be allowed to go to the front and she came all the way to Camp Dix to find out why a Mangini who "could handle a dozen Huns" and who wanted to fight and could fight was not to be allowed to fight for his country.

"If it is new spectacles he needs, I'll spend my last cent to buy him the proper lenses," she told Colonel White. "I want him to help rid the earth of the Hun menace to civilization. He may not be able to see to thread a needle in the dark, but that does not prevent him from loading heavy shells into the big guns."

The patriotic mother proudly explained that she had two other sons probably now near the firing line in France, and she could not bear to think of John not being there to help his brothers. A fourth son, she said, was ready to go to camp in the next draft, and she declared if her eight children were all boys she would ask that each should have the honor of shouldering a gun; then she, herself, could enlist as a war nurse. Denied the latter privilege, she is devoting her energies to Red Cross work at home, but the thought of her son John not being over there when the Allies begin their big push to clear the earth of the Potsdam gang has been a recent damper to her enthusiasm.

Mrs. Mangini's appeal, the most unusual that has come to the attention of the Chief of Staff, brought immediate action. Private Mangini was re-examined today and with Colonel White's indorsement he went back to help polish the big gun at his battery with the hope that will some day help blast the path by which the "Lightning Division" will hurl itself like a thunderbolt through the Hindenburg line.

Camp Lix has made its first contribution of men for the organization of the United States Guard, a big detail of 454 soldiers having been assigned from the 153d Depot Brigade to a unit forming at the Charlestown Armory at Boston. These soldiers are efficiently drilled and schooled in military work, but surgeons have decided they are physically disqualified for overseas service. Their inability to stand long marches, however, will not unfit them for coast guard and other duties.

BASEBALL LEADS IN CAMPS.

Fosdick Commission Reports Athletic Activity Widespread.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The extent to which athletic sports have been developed in the American Army training camps in this country is emphasized in a statement issued by the War Department tonight based on reports received by the Fosdick Commission on Training Camp Activities. In some camps it has become necessary to enlarge the athletic fields. The most popular sports are base ball, track athletics, swimming, tennis, boxing, wrestling, polo and volley ball.

"Baseball," says the statement issued tonight, "heads the list of activities of the men when free from military duties. To encourage play, full equipment has been sent to each of the National Army cantonments and to each of the camps of the National Guard, as well as to the smaller camps which are training men for special service. More than 70,000 baseballs and 3,000 bats have been sent to the camps along with gloves, masks and chest protectors. New baseball diamonds have been laid out in nearly every camp in the country. Sixteen fields are now being used in Camp Lewis, Washington. Camp baseball teams have received the cooperation of major and minor leagues in every instance, and considerable gate receipts have been received from various exhibitions.

"Wherever facilities permit swimming instruction is carried out. Three camps already have this sport under way. At Camp Devens, Mass., a class of 200 non-commissioned officers has been started. Hell Pond has recently been converted into a swimming pool of the 301st Engineers, and is now used as the swimming centre. The same methods are being followed at Camp Lewis. As many as 5,000 men have marched to American Lake for their swim. At Camp Travis, San Antonio, Texas, efforts are being made to have every man in the division swim seventy-five yards.

"Tennis courts have been built in every camp, and the sport is gaining popularity among the men. As many as forty courts have been built in one camp. Through the co-operation of the United States Law Tennis Association the commission has been able to provide the immediate tennis needs of the camps. The tennis association is diverting its receipts this season to meet the demand for equipment in the camps.

"Next to baseball, boxing is proving to be the most popular sport. So great has become the demand for instruction that in one camp alone more than 800 assistant boxing instructors are kept busy. More than 6,000 sets of boxing gloves have been sent to the men.

"Through the generosity of local golf clubs the great demand for courses is being partly met. In every case the clubs have donated their grounds to the officers and men who have been quick to take advantage of the invitations."

Thousands of persons thronged South Field, Columbia University, yesterday afternoon to watch the seventy members of the West Point cadet choir parade in full dress for half an hour before they marched in procession to St. Paul's Chapel to sing at the services there. In the morning the Academy choir sang at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Amsterdam Avenue and 110th Street.

The West Pointers were invited to Columbia to assist in the dedication yesterday of a new chapel bell, which was presented to St. Paul's by the class of 1868 on its twenty-fifth anniversary. The bell will be sounded for the first time on commencement day, June 5.

The cadets, who were nearly all first and second year men, were commanded by Major J. Hanna and Corporal B. Peckham. In the ranks was a young Chinese, who handled himself with alert military bearing. He was a first-year man named Lucean Dzan, one of two Chinese studying at West Point.

DRAFT DODGER KILLS THREE IN KENTUCKY

Shoots Men in Belief That They Reported Him, Then Resists Arrest by Posse.

Special to The New York Times.

GRAYSON, Ky., May 26.—To prevent possible mob violence, Melvin Collins of Olive Hill, Ky., who killed three men who he believed had reported him eligible for the military draft, was rushed to another town today for safe keeping. Collins shot and killed Vint Carpenter, who was driving a team for the Hitchins fire brick plant. Entering the plant, he killed Cleveland Sparks, who was sitting at rest, and then rushed into the brick machine department, where he killed John Howard. Collins tried in vain to find another man, declaring he would kill him also.

The murderer then fled to a nearby farmhouse, where he barricaded himself and defied the Sheriff and posse, who surrounded the house and prepared to burn it. He fired from a window and wounded Levi Shields in the hip. The Sheriff's officers fired as a man came from the house, and wounded Tony Stephens, who had entered the house to persuade Collins to surrender.

Collins finally surrendered when the officers started to fire the house. He had failed to register, declaring he was under draft age. He is 23 years old.

LAUDS ORDER'S WAR WORK.

The thirty-second annual convention of the Independent Order of B'rith Abraham was opened yesterday morning by Grand Master Solomon Schelinsky at a meeting at the New Star Casino, 115 East 107th Street, which was attended by delegates representing the 200,000 members of the order in the United States.

Acting Mayor Alfred E. Smith welcomed the delegates and praised the war work of the order. Mr. Smith said that what pleased him most in regard to the order were the numerous subscriptions which its members had made to the Y. M. C. A. War Fund. The order, Mr. Smith said, could do great work in co-operation with the Council of National Defense in preventing an increase of infant mortality and in guarding the health of the children of the nation. Mr. Smith said that one-third of those subject to the draft had been rejected because of physical disabilities caused by lack of care in their childhood.

It was announced at the meeting that $1,500,000 of Liberty bonds and $200,000 of Thrift Stamps had been purchased by the members of the order. The order has pledged itself to buy at least $800,000 of Thrift Stamps before the end of the year, making $1,000,000 in all. The membership of the order, it was announced, had been increased by 9,580 since the last convention.

Rabbi Max Fried delivered an invocation and a prayer for the success of the United States and the Allies. A resolution was passed at the afternoon session indorsing the participation of the United States in the war, which will be sent to President Wilson.

Among the other speakers was Max L. Hollander, Grand Secretary of the order. The afternoon session was taken up with the nomination of officers. The convention will continue today and tomorrow, when Governor Whitman will address the delegates.

WHITMAN'S HOUSE AFIRE.

Summer Residence of Governor at Newport Badly Damaged.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 26.—The Summer residence of Governor Whitman of New York, a small stone house at Price's Neck, was discovered afire by a member of the Coast Guard early this morning. The firemen, who found the fire had started over the boiler, the flames reaching from the lower part of the house to the roof, were able to control the fire. The middle of the house is badly damaged.

What caused the fire is a mystery. The caretaker visited and inspected the place Saturday. A severe thunder and lightning storm prevailed in the night may have caused the fire.

Governor and Mrs. Whitman had planned to take possession next month.

WHAT happens in your office when something from your files is wanted in a hurry, and the regular file clerk happens to be out to lunch, or ill, or on vacation?

Does your index system always and instantly show where to find any needed information, regardless of who goes to the files, or is part of the system carried around in somebody's head?

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK

Fifth Avenue and 44th Street

NEW YORK

"I Guess—I Reckon"

All is well with us at home except for the reappearance of partisan politics. This way danger lies, for if at any time in the history of the United States party lines should have disappeared, it is now.

Less guessing on the part of our legislators and more facts and figures would eliminate a good deal of undesirable politics in our Government, and once more the Harriman National Bank calls for a budget system. Let us stop guessing at our financial needs. People who are providing the revenue for the Government are investing in the Government. They are entitled to know what they are to be called upon to pay, and how it is expended. No bank or business could survive the estimated 30 per cent. waste of the moneys appropriated by guessing for running the United States.

The Red Cross gets what it wants because of confidence in the organization. The Red Cross does not guess. Let us have a budget system and avoid the alarming confusion into which our business men and others have been thrown so frequently of late. Instead of guessing our need for a bond issue of $12,000,000,000, where our actual needs are $3,000,000,000, let us know; instead of "reckoning" revenues from taxes at $2,500,000,000 and collecting $4,000,000,000, let us estimate upon facts and figures.

Congress guesses that further tax legislation may wait until next winter's session; the administration guesses that it is imperative that a new tax law be enacted now—mere guessing. There should be no guessing where billions are concerned. A budget would tell.

CHURCHGOERS GIVE TO THE RED CROSS

Large Collections Taken in Most of City's Churches Yesterday.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD

G. A. R., Confederate Veterans, Police, and 22d Engineers Pay Tribute to Their Dead.

Large collections for the Red Cross were taken in most churches in the city yesterday in connection with memorial services and prayer for the success of American soldiers. Special Red Cross services were held in all Catholic churches, and collections of many thousands of dollars taken. Veterans of the civil war, veterans of the Spanish-American war, and various organizations of the Police Department held religious exercises.

Memorial services for the deceased members of the Defendam Association of the old Twenty-second Engineers, now the 102d United States Engineers, were held by the Chaplain, Dr. G. A. Carstensen, in Holyrood Church, Fort Washington Avenue and 179th Street. Special prayers were said for the well-being of the men of Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt's regiment now in France.

The services at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Temple Street and the Crescent, Astoria, L. I., were divided between a patriotic rally for the registrants of Local Board 172 and memorial observances for the G. A. R. Dr. A. J. Smith, pastor, speaking to the draft-eligible registrants, urged them to go to the front with the same spirit that inspired the men on both sides in the civil war. Acting Police Commissioner John A. Leach presided, and sacred and patriotic songs were rendered by the Police Department Glee Club.

The New York Camp of Confederate Veterans held its annual memorial services yesterday afternoon at Mount Hope Cemetery, Westchester. The exercises over the graves were conducted by Commander William Kieley. Assistant District Attorney William Harman Black, who made the principal address, said:

"We are fighting Germany to the death and we will continue to fight her until we drive autocracy from the earth. When we have destroyed her military power we have just begun. We must protect our country from German commercial invasion. I would build a tariff wall between Germany and the United States so high that even a Zeppelin could not get over it."

Several hundred Spanish-American war veterans, with an escort of sailors, marched to St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday afternoon for their annual services. The Rev. John P. Chidwick, Chaplain of the ill-fated Maine, and now President of Dunwoodie Seminary, said:

"It was just twenty years ago on a day of golden splendor that the gallant 69th Regiment marched down Fifth Avenue on its way to Cuba and Porto Rico to battle, not for the freedom of America, but for a most disinterested purpose, the liberation of another nation. Never did those who watched expect to see our country again in war. Our hopes have been ruthlessly shattered and now millions are responding to the bugle call to fight, not for one nation, but for the world."

More than 600 members of the Police Department yesterday attended the annual services conducted at Trinity Church for the Police Department. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity, and now in service, could not be present, but in a letter he said:

"The New York Police Department is one of which our city has good reason to be proud, and its members as a body deserve the warm appreciation of our citizens for their efficiency, their good judgment, their vigilance in maintaining order and repressing crime, and their readiness at all times to risk their lives for the protection of others and in the performance of their duty."

The Rev. John A. Wade, who preached the sermon, praised the Police Department, and added:

"A menace with which this country has to deal today is with the muddle-minded and conscienceless Socialism as it exists in the country today. Some months ago loyal Americans were startled by the fact that over sevenscore thousand of United States citizens in this city voted for a man who refused to buy bonds for the defense of that liberty which had made possible his own rescue from Russian oppression and a life of affluence in our menaced land. The type of citizen that voted for this traitor bit the hand that fed them."

The Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, who preached last night at services at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church in West 104th Street, which were attended by the veterans from seven G. A. R. posts, spoke in praise of General Grant. He read a letter which he had received from Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who said:

"Veterans of a former war still have active duties to perform. Although they are beyond the active fighting age, they can still urge on those who are preparing for the present war and do all they can to support the vigorous prosecution of the war. Having gone through a great war, their words will be listened to."

The Rev. Major Lachlan McLean Watt, chaplain of the Black Watch of the Gordon Highlanders, stirred a large audience last night at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. He said:

"I do not know whether the people of America have grown blasé to the war, but I hope you have not. That was our trouble in England for some time after the outbreak of the war. Publishers would not print anything about the war. Preachers said it was wrong to talk too much about the conflict, and the average layman deemed it a crime to read anything about the great struggle. Those who preached that it was their duty to face the facts were called pessimists, while the definition of an optimist was one who never read bad news about the war. My message to America is not to speak up, but to speed up."

TWO AIR INQUIRIES LIKELY.

Thomas Says Hughes Is Not Opposed to Senate Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Senate subcommittee on aircraft, of which Senator Thomas of Colorado is Chairman, will decide tomorrow whether to go ahead with the inquiry authorized last week. Senator Thomas said tonight that at his conference two days ago with Charles E. Hughes, special investigator in the Department of Justice, Mr. Hughes had made it plain that he did not oppose an investigation by the Senate, but merely wanted it kept distinct from the line of inquiry by the department. Mr. Hughes wanted to make sure that the Senate Committee would not call witnesses who, through their appearance before the committee, might obtain immunity from prosecution.

"Mr. Hughes in no wise opposes investigation by the Senate Committee looking toward an exposure of inefficiency or deliberate effort to thwart the aircraft program," said Senator Thomas. "He simply wants the line drawn between the scope of the criminal investigation by the Department of Justice and that of the Senate. I do not know whether the majority of the committee will favor going ahead or not. That is to be decided tomorrow."

RELAX NO EFFORT IN RED CROSS DRIVE

day for the attempt to gather in enough additional millions on the final day of the campaign to make the oversubscription here greater than that of other large cities.

With the example set by the city in its remarkable finish in the last Liberty Loan campaign in mind, the leaders believe that there is a chance that New York City will make good the predictions early in the drive that it would add 50 per cent. to its quota. Today must be by far the most successful day of the drive, however, if this is to be accomplished.

The hope for a big oversubscription rests mainly on the work of the Division on Corporations, of which Colonel William Boyce Thompson is in charge. Most of the large corporations have made their gifts, but there are many smaller ones to be heard from, and the total from this source is expected to be large.

Expect Large Street Collections.

It is believed that more money will be taken in today in collections on the streets and in public places and in the big program of Red Cross events than at any other period of the campaign. The Red Cross will be out in its full strength of more than 150,000 persons. The great event of a crowded week will be the operatic program at the Metropolitan Opera House. Two big auctions in the evening at the Waldorf-Astoria and at the Ritz-Carlton are expected to reach unprecedented totals.

Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Red Cross War Council, telegraphed from Washington yesterday, emphasizing the necessity for forgetting quotas and raising the largest sum possible. He said:

"The program of the campaign to raise $100,000,000 was adopted in the early part of the year under military conditions then existing, with the idea that the campaign would be carried on in February or early March. If the program for the Red Cross campaign were to be formulated under present conditions in Europe, the Red Cross Council would feel it should be upon a basis exceeding $100,000,000 as a minimum, but in order that there should be no confusion in the campaign and in confidence that American people were fully alive to the new and exacting demands, and that the quotas would be exceeded throughout the country, no change was made in the plans and figures as first published.

"Hope you will advise all divisions to encourage subscriptions exceeding allotments and that the effort to secure increased subscriptions shall not be lessened in any part of the United States until the end of the allotted time, the evening of May 27."

In calling for a great effort on the last day of the drive, William C. Breed, Chairman of the drive in this city, said yesterday:

"There has been something of a misconception of the task placed before us. The country's quota is $100,000,000; New York City's, $25,000,000. The important thing to remember is that these are minimum figures. The Red Cross War Council decided that it could keep things going for a certain length of time on a budget covered by $100,000,000. More will be needed, and when the supply of money now being provided is gone the Red Cross will have to turn again to the public.

"New York's quota, fixed by the War Council, is one-fourth of the amount raised by the entire country. Reports indicate that the other sections of the country are responding to the Red Cross appeal by heavily oversubscribing their quotas.

"Our committee will not be satisfied unless New York maintains its position and gives one-fourth of the entire amount contributed by the whole country. That was the estimate of the measure of New York's patriotism and generosity, and we must not fall below the estimation placed upon us.

Urges Unremitting Effort.

"To attain this result our best efforts must not be relaxed one minute during the next twenty-four hours. Opportunity is still open to all of us to meet our individual responsibilities. A gift to the Red Cross is an individual matter, and each individual must make his gift and his conscience square. I hope that the estimate which many placed upon their obligation to meet the Red Cross appeal in the early part of last week will be revised in the light of the magnificent response of the people throughout the entire city, and the obligations which rest upon the Red Cross as an organization of service and mercy.

"We all know that the calls upon the Red Cross during the next six months will be tragically heavy. Our own people, our own soldiers and their families are going to suffer and need the help of the Red Cross as never before. The fact is easily read in the face of events which are foreshadowed from the European battlefields. Those who can look to the immediate future and feel in their hearts that they have done their full duty by the Red Cross are fortunate indeed.

"The campaign, which closes tomorrow night at midnight, has proved itself to be truly democratic, as evidenced by the thousands of earnest workers, mostly women, who have been seen in the streets day and night since the campaign began. This democratic phase of the campaign should be emphasized. There is one way to show that the public appreciates the unselfish efforts of those who have been working without hope of personal recognition, and that is by making Monday the best day of the campaign."

Workers to Make Reports.

The final meeting of the New York Red Cross War Fund Committee and those who have worked with the committee in the drive for the Second War Fund in New York City will be held this evening at the Waldorf-Astoria at 7 o'clock. There will be a dinner, after which full reports will be made by the various committees and teams which have had charge of collecting New York's quota.

The meeting will begin with a reception which will last half an hour. After the dinner Chairman Breed will make an address. He will be followed by Seward Prosser, Chairman of the First Red Cross War Fund Committee of last year. Then the Captains of thirty-one teams will make their reports. After the team Captains have reported there will be reports from the committees on Profit Sharing, Corporations, House to House Canvass, Entertainments and Benefits, and Industrial Campaign by their respective Chairman—Louis Stewart, Colonel William B. Thompson, Walter Stadler, Alfred B. Ashforth, and [illegible].

Reports are also to be made by boroughs as follows: Richmond, Norman S. Walker; Bronx, Otto J. Stephens; Queens, C. G. M. Thomas, and Brooklyn, Darwin R. James, Jr.

Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., is to give available returns for the entire country, and Gerhard M. Dahl is to give returns for the Atlantic Division outside of Greater New York.

Mrs. August Belmont will tell the story of the Martha Washington watch which is to be auctioned off by Joseph P. Day. Chairman Breed will close the meeting by making a final [illegible].

Program of the Final Day.

9:00 A. M. to 6:00 P. M.—Hotel Ritz-Carlton, ballroom; exhibition of paintings and other works of art donated to the War Fund of the Red Cross; admission free.

9:00 A. M. to 6:00 P. M.—Knoedler Galleries, 556 Fifth Avenue; exhibition and auction of Willard L. Metcalf's painting, "Deerfield River, October."

12:00 M.—St. Paul's Chapel; Red Cross meeting; Justice Aimet F. Jenks and James M. Beck will speak.

12:00 M.—Harry H. Gardiner, "the human fly," will climb the Park Row Building.

3:00 P. M.—Polo Grounds; Red Cross Day; baseball game between Yankees and Cleveland; wrestling bouts; base running and fungo hitting contests; auto racers' parade; concert. Ten per cent. of gross receipts goes to Red Cross.

4:00 P. M.—Union League Club; Red Cross meeting, with speakers and music.

8:00 P. M.—Metropolitan Opera House; concert by Caruso and other members of Metropolitan Opera Company.

8:00 P. M. to 12:00 Midnight—Open air film shows of Red Cross war zone work at Madison Square,
Herald Square,
Times Square,
Fifth Avenue and Forty-Second Street,
Columbus Circle,
125th Street and Seventh Avenue.

9:00 P. M.—Auction of paintings and other works of art donated to Red Cross; Joseph P. Day, auctioneer.

This afternoon a box containing the bids on Willard L. Metcalf's painting, "Deerfield, River, October," will be opened at the Knoedler Galleries, 556 Fifth Avenue. The picture is one of the most recent products of Mr. Metcalf's brush, who donated it to the Red Cross War Fund with the understanding that it should be placed on exhibition during the campaign and that it be sold to the highest bidder, the proceeds to go to the war fund. The painting shows a charming bit of Western Massachusetts scenery, and is said to be a characteristic example of the work of the artist.

An auction sale of antiques, jewelry, and relics from the European battlefields and from the civil war will be held tonight at Ninety-fourth Street and Broadway by the Red Cross Committee of the Ninth Assembly District. Mae Bryant and other actresses will entertain the crowd and auction articles put up for sale for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Washington, D. C., May 24, 1918.

Louis Wiley, Chairman Committee on Newspapers, New York:

As a newspaper man temporarily transferred, I congratulate you on the organization of the Newspaper Division in New York for the second Red Cross War Fund drive. The information which has reached me is that many of the 165 newspapers represented in the Newspaper Division have already reached the goal of 100 per cent., and that the labor unions whose members are employed by the newspapers are cooperating with the utmost cordiality and success.

I am sure that with their customary spirit of service every department of every newspaper in New York will be happy to make this perfect record in this noblest of causes. It is the enthusiastic and united support of civilians, as shown by their contributions to the Red Cross and other patriotic efforts, that maintains the morale of the army and navy and will help win the war.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS,
Secretary of the Navy.

Almost $23,000 has already been obtained in cash and pledges for the War Fund of the Red Cross among the civilian employes of the Quartermaster's depot on Governors Island. Of the 2,583 persons who have been solicited for contributions, 2,385 have subscribed for a total yearly contribution of $22,893.63.

BROOKLYN GIVES $500,000 TO THE FUND

Great Audience at Academy Responds to Appeals—$50,000 Raised at Theatres.

Brooklyn responded enthusiastically at a great mass meeting yesterday afternoon at the Academy of Music to an appeal by Red Cross officials and borough officials for an increase in Brooklyn's contributions to the war fund. Many large gifts were made at the meeting, and it was reported that a total of $500,000 had been subscribed.

More than 3,500 persons attended the meeting, and hundreds of others were turned away because the hall was crowded to the limit. Patriotic appeals were made by ex-Controller William A. Prendergast, John R. Rathom, editor of The Providence Journal; Colonel René de Salaberry, and others.

Performances at the Century Theatre and the Winter Garden last night netted more than $50,000 for the Red Cross. In both theatres the Kaiser's gold cup, which has been a feature of the series of entertainments arranged by the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team, was sold many times by United States Marshal McCarthy, and on each occasion returned to the fund. At the Century Theatre the cup was sold five times for a total of $14,600.

The total receipts at the Century were estimated to be between $35,000 and $40,000. A polo pony presented by Fred Stone was auctioned off jointly by Stone and Will Rogers, and brought $1,000. Those who appeared on the program included Weber and Fields, Al Jolson, Clifton Crawford, Rock and White, Nat C. Goodwin, McIntyre and Heath, Fanny Brice, Eddie Cantor, Florence Moore, Irving Berlin, Adele Rowland, and many others.

At the Winter Garden Al Jolson introduced a novelty by calling all the uniformed men to the stage and asking for a donation in the name of each. The top price, $50, was obtained for a Chinese Sergeant Henry W. Wing. The total at the Winter Garden was about $14,000.

Five thousand Poles gathered last night at the Red Cross rally in the big drill hall of the Seventy-first Regiment Armory at Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue. Numbers of Poles in uniforms and Polish women in Red Cross uniforms who are soon to go to the front were on the platform. Ignace Jan Paderewski, the chief speaker, said:

"You Polish people are a patriotic and religious people and the American Red Cross sinks deep into your hearts. The Red Cross means to the Polish people mercy and redemption, and the American nation means to the Poles a free heart's hope and home. We are sending an army from America of Polish boys. They are already fighting in France, many with the American Army and many with the French.

"Eight per cent. of the names on the death lists of America so far are Polish boys from this country. They have died glorious deaths for the American flag, which will ultimately mean the freedom of their beloved Poland."

RED CROSS AT ELBA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 26.—There is hardly a corner in the kingdom of Italy that has not been visited by the American Red Cross to bring succor to the poor families of soldiers and to refugees. From northern to southern Italy, in Sicily, and Sardinia the Star-Spangled Banner is known and cheered with as much enthusiasm and ardor as the Italian tricolor.

The only place that had not been visited by the Red Cross was the island of Elba, where Napoleon was imprisoned. On May 24, the anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war, Captain A. J. Akin landed and distributed food and clothing to the population, who acclaimed America, having heard about her generosity and greatness in the mainland. Captain Akin also distributed the message of President Wilson translated into Italian. This called forth loud cheers.

Dr. Lambert Says Americans in Hospitals in France Need Their Cheering Influence.

Major Alexander Lambert, Surgeon in Chief of the American Red Cross in France, in an address last night in St. Andrew's Methodist Episcopal Church, West Seventy-sixth Street, near Columbus Avenue, told of the work and needs of the relief organization abroad. In the course of his talk he criticised the rule forbidding women relatives of American soldiers from entering the war zone.

"If you have any influence at Washington," he said, "use it to have rescinded the rule which does not permit sisters or other women relatives of soldiers from visiting them in hospitals in France. If you are successful in having that prohibition removed you will be conferring a blessing on the soldiers."

Major Lambert said there was great need of the cheering influence women relatives would exert on the sick soldiers. He said the men often had expressed a wish to have about them nurses speaking English, and that whenever the French nurses were replaced by Americans the men seemed to improve.

Tracing the work of the Red Cross, Major Lambert alluded to the unprepared state of the country when war was declared. He said that at first the Red Cross had nothing to work with, but that now every need was amply provided for. He added that all the American hospitals were well equipped, and more than 4,000 French physicians were being supplied. Dr. Lambert added that 72 per cent. of the physicians of France were mobilized in the army.

There were not enough physicians in civil life, he said, to minister to the ailments of the French population, and for that reason the Red Cross had extended its work.

Speaking of the great strides in war surgery, Dr. Lambert confirmed the cabled reports that vermin were the carriers of trench fever, but said that efforts to isolate the germ had not yet been successful. He praised the remarkable work of British and French surgeons in handling bone cases and said that, with ordinary luck, wounded soldiers were back on the firing lines within a month after being shot. He said that the efforts of French surgeons had placed the danger of septic poisoning from shell or rifle wounds at a minimum.

Dr. Lambert asserted that the soils of France and Belgium were germ laden because of years of cultivation. This ever-present menace, he said, had schooled the war surgeons to work with a speed of which they would probably be incapable in peace times. In these emergency operations, he said, the surgeons were now using the old-fashioned "laughing gas" as an anaesthetic instead of chloroform or ether, thereby reducing the shock which followed the administration of the two standard anaesthetics.

In closing his talk Major Lambert declared the men at the front were in splendid trim in every way. He added that the moral healthiness of the American soldiers in France could not be better.

GERMAN PRISONER KILLED.

Shot After Crossing the Dead Line at Fort McPherson.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 26.—Heinrich Knappke, a German prisoner interned at Fort McPherson, yesterday overstepped the dead line maintained inside of the wire fence surrounding the camp and failed to halt at the order of a soldier guard. He was shot, and died an hour later in the post hospital.

Colonel Van Orsdale, commandant, said tonight that the sentry complied with his duty and that no inquiry was required.

USING PACKARD TRANSPORTATION TO BUILD UP THE RACE

MOST of us will never see the firing line. We shall not be asked to give "the last full measure of devotion"—we shall be left behind to do the host of indispensable things that must be done here to support the boys that go and to lay the foundation of a future that shall make their great work worth while.

To do our part as they do theirs, we must have in our hearts the same spirit of sacrifice—the same willingness to do and to give to the uttermost for the safety of the nation and the welfare of the world.

We must share our good things—use them for the common weal. Our motor cars—what opportunities they give us! What good-will they can spread! How they can cement the tie between the man who has and the man who has not!

Try it out with yours. Fill it up with kiddies who only know the automobile as something to dodge. Give them a day in God's country—and turn in at night happy in the thought that you have done something to rear a race of men and women worthy of the big brothers they are sending over there!

WOMEN DISAPPOINT ALL PARTY LEADERS

Failure of Many to Enroll for Primaries Ascribed to Various Reasons.

BROOKLYN THE BRIGHT SPOT

Republican and Democratic Bosses Claim Majority of the Voters Who Went on Record Saturday.

Less than one-half the women eligible for enrollment availed themselves of the opportunity afforded on Saturday to become affiliated with political parties, take part in the State primaries in September and qualify for places on the various committees which in the aggregate constitute the machinery of political parties, according to suffrage leaders and politicians. There was no doubt from the talk of leaders both in the suffrage movement and in the political organizations that the comparatively light enrollment of women was a disappointment to them, although some refrained from saying so.

Miss Helen Varrick Boswell, head of the Women's Division of the New York County Republican Committee, said that, despite the action of Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, in "raising the ban" against women of her organization affiliating with political parties, the vigorous propaganda which had been carried on by Miss Hay and other suffrage leaders against women enrolling with the political parties had had the effect of keeping thousands of women who had been actively identified with the suffrage movement from enrolling.

"I had evidence of this as late as last Friday night, when I went to New Rochelle to address a meeting arranged for the purpose of arousing women in that city to the importance of enrolling," said Miss Boswell. "A number of suffragists, headed by Mrs. Montague Glass, had posted themselves outside the hall and were urging women not to enter and to remain non-partisan in despite of pleas to the contrary on the ground that the time to declare themselves for one party or the other was not until after Congress had adopted the proposed Federal Suffrage amendment. I know that what they did had the effect of keeping very many women away from the meeting. I am also well aware that some of the most active suffrage workers in the city did not go to the polls and enroll yesterday."

Miss Hay, when told that the light enrollment had been ascribed by some to that earlier propaganda of the suffragists for non-partisanship among the women until the ballot fight was won, said there was nothing to the contention.

"No one has the right, besides, to call yesterday's enrollment light," added Miss Hay. "It was anything but light. In fact I find myself a pretty fair prophet. I predicted that 50 per cent. of the women who could enroll would take advantage of the opportunity. We have almost reached that percentage. Thousands of women are absorbed in patriotic work at this time, and while they regard voting as the duty of a patriot, they do not so regard affiliation with a political party.

Home Women Stayed There.

"In spite of the good work done by the Women's Suffrage Party and by some of the political Captains, many strictly home women did not hear the call to duty. We are well satisfied with the way the women of New York have taken their first steps along the political pathway. If they take so much interest in the minor matter of enrolling in the parties, what will they do when it comes to really voting at a general election?"

The only genuine note of satisfaction over the enrollment was sounded yesterday by the leaders in Brooklyn, men and women. As in the enrollment of men last October, that borough led all the other boroughs in the number of women enrolled on Saturday. There is no doubt that the comparatively heavier enrollment in Brooklyn was due in part to the factional differences in the Republican organization and the prospect of a fight over the Gubernatorial nomination in which some Brooklyn Republicans still fondly hope that a Republican from their own borough, Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey, may figure prominently.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader in Brooklyn, jubilantly declared that yesterday's enrollment was only the forerunner of a bigger enrollment of women next October when the electors in the Borough, men and women, would number approximately 300,000, and the cherished desire of Brooklyn to have the biggest vote of any borough in the city and become the dominant influence in New York City politics become realized.

"I am very much pleased with the returns," said Mr. McCooey. "The women, in my opinion, did splendidly. You can best appreciate it if you remember that the enrollment of men last year was only 235,000 and in the previous year, when there was a Presidential election, only 269,000. Candidly, I thought the women would be doing well if they mustered 100,000. We are safe in counting at least 65 per cent. of the women who enrolled as Democrats. Add this to the normal Democratic plurality of 20,000 in this borough, and the Republicans will have a plurality of 50,000 to overcome here in Brooklyn."

"There goes my friend, McCooey, rainbow chasing again," said Jacob L. Livingston, the Republican leader, when told what Mr. McCooey had said. "You take it from me, the heavy enrollment was not due to anything the Democrats did. It was due solely to the effort made by the Republican organization to get the women to come out. We mailed 100,000 letters to Brooklyn families urging the women members to enroll. We gave them fifteen reasons why they should enroll as Republicans. This, no doubt, was responsible for bringing out a heavy enrollment."

"I am pleased beyond measure," said Mrs. H. Edward Dreier, Chairman of the Woman Suffrage Party of Brooklyn, "that Brooklyn, which has always been strong for woman suffrage, has made the best showing in yesterday's enrollment. The enrollment figures should end the theory that a woman's party, separate and distinct from any other party, would be set up in this State. It shows that a great majority of women voters prefer to go into one or other of the major parties, thinking that in that way they can do the most for better politics and better government."

Both Sides Pleased.

While the leaders in Manhattan said they thought the women "had done well, considering," there was an undercurrent of dissatisfaction which frequently came to the surface in comment they made.

"Naturally, I am sorry we did not have a larger enrollment," said Miss Heled Varick Boswell, the Republican woman leader in the borough. "More women should have come out. I'm glad to notice, however, that on the whole the Republican districts, such as the 7th, 9th, 10th, and 15th, did better than the others. This gives us reason to expect that more Republican than Democratic women enrolled yesterday."

Miss Isabel M. Pettus, Chairman of the Women's Regular Democratic Organization of Greater New York, said:

"While the number of women enrolled was not as large as we may have wished it would be, we must remember that it was the first time and that women are learning as yet. What impressed me particularly in my rounds of polling places was the intellectual calibre of the women who came out. We have urged consistently against women segregating themselves into a separate political group for independent action as women, and urged that they should affiliate with the party nearest to their convictions, even if it does not in every particular conform with their ideals. I trust a majority of the women who enrolled decided to join the Democratic Party."

Senator Robert F. Wagner, Chairman of the Tammany Hall General Committee, said:

"I note with particular pride that my own district—the Sixteenth—did better than any other Assembly district in Manhattan in the number of women enrolled. But, taking it all through the city, our forces—men and women captains—were well organized and had been for months preparing to get out the Democratic women to enroll. I know in my district the Democrats were the only ones who did any work with that end in view. I have no doubt that 70 per cent. of all the women enrolled will be found in the Democratic column."

George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, said:

"It wasn't very big, was it? But I would rather not talk about it until the figures have been analyzed. Maybe the captains up-State will realise now that they will have to work a little harder during the weeks that remain for enrollment of women voters in rural communities."

MEDICAL AID FOR PALESTINE.

Zionists to Send 51 Doctors and Nurses as Basis for Large Corps.

The New York Chapter of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization, of 44 East Twenty-third Street, is preparing to send a complete medical unit to Palestine, consisting of fifty-one physicians and nurses. This unit will form the foundation of a large and permanent system of medical relief work that is to be conducted on a basis of general assistance to all, irrespective of race or religion. The American leaders of the unit intend to train a large corps of assistants, men and women, to develop the work throughout the country and meet both present and future conditions.

All of the equipment has been provided except a motor truck, but this has exhausted all the available funds, and to meet the cost of the truck, $1,000, the organization yesterday sent out a public appeal to its friends and members for subscriptions. Contributions may be sent to the New York Chapter of Hadassah, 44 East Twenty-third Street. Mrs. J. C. Guggenheimer, 308 West Ninety-fourth Street, is the President of the Hadassah.

CONDEMNS SWEDISH MUDDLING ON LUXBURG

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, May 26.—The standing committee on constitutional matters makes reference in its report to Parliament to the action of the former Foreign Ministers, Wallenberg and Lindman, in connection with the transmission of telegrams for the German Legation in Buenos Aires.

In the first place, they are against the transmitting of the German telegrams at all. From the documents the committee has found that the Swedish Foreign Office not only did not know the contents of the transmitted messages but even had no possibility of controlling them.

It is particularly noteworthy, the committee says, that this transmitting on account of Germany had been started and continued without question of the authority being taken under careful consideration from the point of international law and diplomatic usage, a fact by which the position of Sweden was to a great extent endangered through the discussion which followed the publication of the telegrams.

In regard to the circumstances, under which transmitting occurred, the facts showed that the department had not acted with the caution and care which the delicate position of the country required as a commanding duty.

The committee also remarks upon the communiqué from the foreign office published on Sept. 10 of last year. It says that the difference between the transmitting of American and German telegrams was that in the first case the Swedish diplomats had the possibility of control.

That the analogy, in spite of this, was made in the communiqué, shows that within the department there was not the lucidity on the general situation which one could have the right to suppose, and which was extremely necessary for the settling of a question with regard to the dignity of Sweden; in other words, the foreign office was not fitted for the tasks placed before it. The responsibility for this at that time lay with the acting Foreign Minister, Lindman.

Finally the committee remarks upon the fact that the Luxburg affair was handled solely by the Foreign Minister, though it ought to have been discussed at the Cabinet meeting because of its delicate (and for Sweden's relations to foreign powers, important) character.

JERSEY JEWS START FUND.

Will Raise $400,000 for Relief in War-Stricken Europe.

Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, was the guest of honor yesterday afternoon at a luncheon given at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, by Mr. and Mrs. Felix Fuld to 150 prominent Jews from all parts of New Jersey, to create interest in the 1918 campaign for funds for relief of Jews in the war-stricken countries of Europe. Mr. Morgenthau, Dr. Boris Bogen of the Joint Distribution Committee of the Jewish War Relief Funds; Jacob Billikopf, Executive Chairman of the American Jewish Relief Fund, and Rabbi Nathan Krass of New York, were the chief speakers.

No contributions were asked, but Sigmund Eisner of Red Bank announced he would give $10,000 if other Jews of Monmouth County would give $90,000. Mr. Fuld announced he had received an anonymous pledge of $10,000 for the Newark fund. The State quota will be $400,000, double the 1917 quota, and of this sum Newark will be called on for $100,000. Representatives of all sections of the State pledged that double and triple the amount raised last year would be raised this year.

Dr. Bogen told of his experiences abroad. "Of 60,000 children in Warsaw," he said, "only 20,000 can go to school. The others have no clothes and are too weak too walk. The children there don't cry any more, they don't laugh or play. They have lost the ability to eat." Mr. Billikopf said the National Committee already had $4,000,000 in pledges from forty-five communities. The national fund this year will be $15,000,000 for war relief, and $2,000,000 for work in camps and cantonments.

Ambassador Morgenthau said that the quota for New York City for the last campaign had been set at $4,000,000, but a printer made a mistake and the stationery of the committee read $5,000,000. "Knowing Jacob Schiff's objection to waste, Mr. Billikopf asked him what should be done about the matter," Mr. Morgenthau said. "Mr. Schiff looked at the mistake, shrugged his shoulders, and said: 'Well, I guess we had better raise $5,000,000 and make good.'"

OPEN HEALTH CAMPAIGN.

Pastors Admonish Cleanliness in Drive Against Disease.

In connection with Health Drive Week, which began yesterday by clergymen adresing their congregations on the subject of cleanliness as the principal factor in the prevention of disease, Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland in a statement to the public says: "The Department of Health proposes a drive for health. It wishes to rid New York City of the readily discoverable causes of disease. It is intended during this week to call attention to the necessity of removing rubbish, unnecessary accumulations of useless articles, which, collecting dirt, become insanitary and are a menace to health. It is here that lurk the germs of serious and often fatal diseases."

Dr. Copeland recommends these health rules:

"Be clean and keep things clean about you; wash face and hands on arrival at home after the day's work. Eat good plain food regularly. Chew it well and if possible take a brief rest before and after each meal. Drink water freely. A morning dip or shower makes for good health. Sleep seven to eight hours daily. Repose renews energy. Exercise is essential. Walk in the open air every day. Develop mental contentment. Avoid undue mental and physical haste."

Today is School Day, and teachers have been asked to co-operate with the Health Department in urging upon school children the necessity for cleanliness of personal habits and cleanliness in the home. Tomorow will be Transportation Day. Traction and transportation managers will request their employes to see that rubbish is not allowed to remain in cars and other common carriers.

SECOND DRAFT TAKES 1,700

Units from Three Boroughs Leave for Cantonment Camps.

More than 1,700 New York City selective draft men, from districts in Manhattan, the Bronx, and Brooklyn, left for cantonments in New Jersey and the South yesterday morning. These were the second units called to the colors by the order issued two weeks ago, when about 18,500 men from this city were directed to mobilize for service.

Among the men who went from District 151 of Manhattan were James H. Seligman, a member of the well-known family of that name; Frederick Maklyn, the actor; Ly Tung, a young Chinaman, who said it was the proudest moment of his life when he joined the National Army, and William McM. Palmieri, who is a veteran of the Canadian service and who only recently recovered from wounds received in action in France. The third contingent of about 2,000 men will leave New York today.

Forty families were driven from their homes in Brooklyn yesterday morning by a fire in the four-story frame storehouse of the Mutual Fur Dressing Corporation at 45 Kosciusko Street. The interior of the building was damaged to the amount of $100,000.

HORNADAY PICTURES FOE.

Describes Germany and Its People in Book Entitled "Awake America."

An official of the American Defense Society announced yesterday that the society would issue a new patriotic appeal today under the title of "Awake America," written by Dr. William T. Hornaday, in which will be presented warnings to Americans "of the poison of German propaganda" and of the "dangers from the 'leper of Potsdam'" together with a review of pacifists and "blind guide" organizations, and the dangers of an inconclusive peace. In the notice of the contents of the volume Dr. Hornaday is quoted as follows:

"Inasmuch as Germany is now the bitterest and most dangerous enemy that ever hated the United States, it becomes highly important that every American should have an exact and luminous measure of that land and its people. For forty years and more the Huns of Germany went masquerading under cloaks and dominos of 'Kultur' that deceived the whole world. They diligently exploited camouflages of German art, science, music, and literature, successfully distracted attention from the gross and the material side of German character, and everywhere set up idols made in Germany with feet of clay.

"And the new Hun of Germany—what of him? With his mask and his cloak now contemptuously thrown aside, his misshapen and ugly form now nakedly stands forth, a horrible surprise to the civilized world. His former friends and admirers, and many of his relatives also, now regard this new gorilla with horror and aversion. His mentality and his moral principles are even more warped and twisted than his physique."

Dr. Hornaday, who has been active since the war as a leader in the preparedness movement, gives a list of those citizens whom he terms "blind guides," some of whom appeared before the Committee of Military Affairs at Washington in January, 1917, to oppose any preparation for national defense. Dr. Hornaday has dedicated his new volume to the late Major Augustus Peabody Gardner.

TO ENTERTAIN JEWISH UNITS

Philadelphia and Baltimore units of the Jewish Legion, recruited by the British in this country for service in Palestine, will arrive at the Pennsylvania Terminal at 3 o'clock this afternoon to join the fifth contingent of the legion, which will leave for Canada in a few days. Many local organizations affiliated with the work of the British Recruiting Mission and a band of Scottish pipers will meet them and escort them to headquarters of the Jewish Palestine Legion Committee, 199 East Broadway.

Together with the local unit, they will parade later in the day through east side streets to Beethoven Hall, where a banquet will be tendered by the Jewish Actors' Club at 8 o'clock. Among the 500 guests will be men of prominence in Jewish affairs, as well as members of the British Recruiting Mission of this city, headed by Major C. Brooman White. Speeches will be made by Nathan Straus and Adolph Lewisohn.

ANNA HELD HEARS LAST CURTAIN RUNG

"It Is to Die—That Is Easy! How Much More Difficult to Live!" Message to Friends.

LEARNS THAT END IS NEAR

Borne Up by Example of Joan of Arc and French Soldiers Dying Bravely for Their Ideal.

The life of Anna Held, whose plays and career on the stage have always been marked by "frivolity and gayety, and wit as light as a flower," turned yesterday to a tragedy, lightened only by the survival of an old philosophy that she asserted once was "an unquenchable comedy spirit that would laugh even at death." When her physician, Dr. Donald McCaskey, told her that the rare disease that has been attacking her bones for weeks might cause her death at any hour and that she would never leave her room in the Hotel Savoy again, she replied: "It is the last curtain. I have lived, and I will hold out to the last—it is the spirit of Joan of Arc and the spirit of my parentage—the indomitable French."

Although physicians have known for four weeks that she was suffering from a disease that few constitutions, however strong, have been able to conquer, they allowed her to fight on in her belief that recovery was only a few days or weeks away. Soon after they began to emphasize the fatality of multiple myoloma, a disease that causes the disintegration of the bones, they began to tell Miss Held's friends, one by one, as they came to the Hotel Savoy to inquire about her condition, that the fight she was making for life, though brave, was useless, except to show the quality of her spirit and courage and her philosophy—for she has talked often of her philosophy of life.

Upon the insistence of admirers of the old comedy spirit of the Anna Held stage philosophy, that had pictured even death as an adventure, her physicians told her that there was no remedy for her malady and that all that medical science could do would be to stave off an unconquerable disease for perhaps a few hours more. In telling of her spirit the physicians said that she smiled when she heard this judgment and said:

"It is to die—that is easy! How much more difficult to live! A few days ago you saw in this room the little playlet given by my friends, where the heroism of France's beloved Joan of Arc was depicted. With the memory of the traditions of that life and that death and the heroic sacrifice of our poilus in giving their lives in pain for the defense of France I cannot shrink from death where so many have gone fearlessly in support of their ideals and of France. I will hold out to the last. It has been my effort to cheer and encourage in all my work, and this spirit shall not break now."

Tells Friends of Her Fate.

Then she took up the telephone that is constantly at her bedside and told a few of her friends what they already knew of the desperation of her fight for life. Then she asked her physician to thank all her friends and admirers for their expressions of sympathy in her illness and to tell all those who were inclined to sorrow about her passing that she wished them all to know that she had gone calmly. Particularly she asked again that her thanks be extended to the party of friends who called at her apartment last week with scenery and costumes and gave over again for her her favorite playlet "The Maid of Honor," based upon the life of Joan of Arc.

And she added that in her death she would be the light-hearted Mimi of the old comedy "Higgledy-Piggledy," and not the tragic Mimi of "La Bohème," who died miserably in a garret.

In the formal statement upon the condition of his patient Dr. McCaskey emphasized her spirit and courage.

"Mentally her condition is clear as a bell," he said. "Her philosophy and courage are wonderful. She has asked me to thank everybody who has written, telephoned or asked about her, with offers of kindly advice on the effort to better health. She talks by telephone herself and still can sit up for brief periods in her invalid's chair. She listens to music and enjoys the brief visits of her friends. She is carrying on with the true courage of her idolized Joan of Arc."

Speaking of the technical side of her case, the statement said that her blood condition continued to be good after the transfusion of twenty-five ounces on May 3. It added:

"The patient's bones still disintegrate and her malignant disease, which is called multiple myeloma and is very rare, continues to attack her entire skeleton in spite of better blood, thoroughly assimilated food, muscle exercises, constant nursing and medication. After three weeks' battle it is clear that the malignant destructive force that has been insidiously wrecking her bone marrow and bones is stronger than all the constructive forces we can rally to her support.

Slowly Slipping.

"Every available ounce of energy and latent vitality has been mustered to the fight, but the regenerative chemical forces within her body and mind are not pulling their own weight. She is slipping backward slowly and steadily and surely to the end. She gained in muscle, strength, and vitality until the fracture of her vertebra occurred a few days ago. Since this bone collapse spinal anesthesia and motor paralysis symptoms have set in as a result of the pressure and disturbance of her spinal cord.

"The metastatic process has also invaded her left temporal bone, affecting the hearing of the left ear. Miss Held realizes the situation and is helping us to make her as comfortable as possible. The disease was discovered by Dr. Kahler in 1889. Two hundred and four cases have been reported in medical literature and Miss Held's case is the two hundred and fifth, and most of the cases caused death."

Anna Held is 45 years old, having been born in Paris in 1873. Her mother was Polish, and her father was French. After the death of her father the family moved to London, where Anna appeared first on the stage after she had sung in the streets for two years. In 1890 she returned to Paris after a short tour of Holland and other countries with a comedy company, and after that appeared in all the European capitals in light comedies. She came to New York in 1896, and then for more than ten years she was in a musical comedy on the American stage almost every year. She played with Weber and Fields, and while she was the wife of Florenz Ziegfeld she was one of the stars in his "Follies." As a star in light comedy she is known throughout the United States, because many of her plays were put on tour after successes here.

Would Never Grow Old.

One story of her popularity was that any one who had seen Anna Held on the stage would return to see her or would never forget seeing her in that one play. A visitor to a small army post on the Mexican border a few years ago saw a picture of Anna Held on the wall in a Captain's room. In reply to a question from the visitor, who had just come from New York, the Captain, whose hair was gray, added:

"That's Anna Held. She must be playing in New York yet, because I don't think she will ever grow old. I saw her about 1896, shortly after I left West Point, in 'Won't You Come and Play Wiz Me?' or something like that, and after the play we bought Anna's picture and promised one another to see her again when we returned to New York. Since then I've been with Lawton in the Philippines, in China, and in Mexico, and I've never got back to see Anna, but I've kept that picture. It has on it the rain and dust of three continents. She must be playing in New York now, and I'm going to see her again." The Captain is in France now; he embarked from New York while Anna Held was ill.

M'CORMACK RAISES $36,250 FOR ORPHANS

Cardinal Farley Attends Benefit Given by the Tenor for Catholic Asylum.

Cardinal Farley's appeal for funds for the children of the Roman Catholic Asylum at Kingsbridge was responded to by a large audience at the benefit concert at the Hippodrome last night, which had been arranged by John McCormack, who sang a dozen or more of his favorite selections. The Cardinal expressed his appreciation in a public letter he caused to be printed in the program, which read:

> I am deeply grateful to this audience for its presence here tonight, because, besides manifesting a due and proper appreciation of the great kindness and generosity of Mr. McCormack in giving this evening's concert, it indicates also on the part of every one present a substantial and practical interest in our orphan asylum.
> By being here you are not only enjoying the pleasure and benefit of an entertainment which only the peerless talent and whole-souled service of Mr. McCormack could produce, but you are also bringing tangible effective help to the asylum which needs it so much.
> Him and you I thank most cordially and I assure you of the lasting gratitude of the little wards of the archdiocese.

When the Cardinal was escorted to an orchestra box the first to greet him there was Cyril McCormack, son of the singer, who hastened from the stage and presented him with a program. Later young McCormack and De Wolf Hopper auctioned a number of McCormack's records and a copy of the program autographed by the Cardinal and Mr. McCormack, which added very materially to the fund. Cardinal Farley's party included Mgr. Mooney, the Rev. A. J. Donlon, S. J., President of Georgetown University, and James Butler.

Among Mr. McCormack's selections was a new song, said to have been written in the trenches by Lieutenant Gitz Rice, a member of the "Princess Pat's" Regiment of Canada, entitled "Dear Old Pal of Mine," and which was sung for the first time. Lieutenant Donald MacBeath, a member of the Royal Flying Corps of Canada, gave several violin solos.

This is the first public benefit held for the orphans since the institution was removed seventeen years ago from Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. It was intended to raise $25,000 and when the final announcement was made that this amount had been exceeded by $11,000 the audience joined in an ovation to Mr. McCormack, De Wolf Hopper, and Lieutenant MacBeath.

De Wolf Hopper, assisted by Cyril McCormack, obtained a total of $10,250 by disposing of twelve records of McCormack's, or an average of nearly $1,000 each. The first record offered was "The Star-Spangled Banner," which was bought for $1,000 by Dr. Peter J. Gibbons. Others who paid similar amounts were John D. Ryan, "Mother Machree"; Mrs. Warren Kinney, "A Lullaby," and Jack Dunstan, "I Hear You Calling Me." The total receipts were $36,250.

HONOR ALEICHEM'S MEMORY

Friends of the Jewish Mark Twain Gather at Festival.

Every seat in the Manhattan Opera House was sold last night at the Sholom Aleichem Memorial musical and dramatic festival, held under the auspices of the Schnorer Association. The audience was composed of those that appreciated the works of Aleichem, the Jewish Mark Twain, who died two years ago, and came to carry out the humorist's request that once a year people should gather together and laugh and never mourn his death. The proceeds, about $1,500, will go toward publishing the books of the man who wished to be remembered as "a plain Jew who wrote Yiddish."

Those that took part in the musical program were M. Molovaky, cantor of Bath Beach, and H. Wohll, chorus master, who sang "Thou Shalt Not Covet" and a "Cradle Song." Misha Levitzky played two selections from Chopin and one of Rubinstein's. Sasha Jacobson, the violinist, gave five varied compositions. The dramatic entertainment was furnished by Bertha Kalish, who gave the sketch, "A Weary Night," and A. Tenholtz, reading "Hanucha Gift," by Sholom Aleichem. S. Goldberg read "Cider," another of Sholom Aleichem's sketches, and Ossip Dymov gave a reading, "If I Were Rothschild."

Stagehands Play 'Seven Days Leave.'

"Seven Days' Leave" last night took on values which it had never before possessed, when it was played by the stage hands of the Park Theatre for the benefit of the Stage Women's War Relief, the performance netting about $500. Some dissension was created at the last moment by a decision of the Musical Mutual Protective Union not to permit its members to give their services without charge, although the members of the Park Theatre Orchestra had expressed a willingness to play. Lawrence Anhalt, manager of the theatre, made an address between the acts last night in which he attacked the union for its action.

"Tailor-Made Man" for Army Men.

An audience of soldiers and sailors which filled even the aisles of the Cohan & Harris Theatre saw a performance of "A Tailor-Made Man" at that playhouse last night. The performance was one of the series of free Sunday night shows which the New York War Community Service and the Stage Women's War Relief have arranged for uniformed men. Next Sunday night a performance of "Seventeen" will be given at the Booth.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Copperhead," at the Shubert Theatre, will end its New York engagement this week.

The Greenwich Village Theatre will close for the season next Saturday night and announcement is made that it will reopen early in October.

The chorus which will take part in the War Savings Concert at the Polo Grounds on June 2 had its first ensemble rehearsal yesterday afternoon at the Hippodrome. There are more than 12,000 persons in the chorus.

The Entente Players, a group of amateur and professional performers who have entertained American soldiers in the trenches, will give a performance tonight at the Hotel Plaza in aid of the Motor Corps of the National League for Woman's Service. Three one-act plays will be on the program.

"The Little Teacher" ended its run at the Playhouse on Saturday night.

"Der Zigeunerbaron," an operetta by Johann Strauss, will be produced at the German Irving Place Theatre tonight, and will continue throughout the week. Otto Goritz will head the cast.

A benefit performance will be given at the Astor Theatre next Sunday night under the auspices of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense, the proceeds of which will be used for the outdoor canteen fund. The program will include Jerome Kern and several members of the "Rock-a-Bye Baby" company.

FANNIE WARD GIVES 'THE YELLOW TICKET'

MADGE KENNEDY AT STRAND

"The Yellow Ticket," with Fannie Ward, at the Rialto, a well-done melodrama without much relation to life, even in the Russia that was.

"More Trouble," with Frank Keenan, at the Rivoli, comedy of situation, lacking in substance, but laugh-provoking.

"The Fair Pretender," with Madge Kennedy, at the Strand, an amusing farce that succeeds as such but fails when it tries to be something else.

One may take one's choice of the three and be reasonably assured of good entertainment without experiencing any extreme of thrill or merriment.

"The Yellow Ticket" is effectively staged, giving the impression of the foreign atmosphere in which its action is supposed to have occurred, and the acting, on the whole, is creditable, especially that done by Miss Ward as Anna Mirrel, Warner Oland as Baron Andrey, Anna Lehr as Mary Varenka, and Dan Mason as Isaac Mirrel. The story centres around Anna Mirrel, a Russian Jewess, who accepts the yellow ticket as the only obtainable passport by which she can reach her dying father in St. Petersburg from her home in the country. In the eyes of the world possession of the yellow ticket by a woman means that she is one of the underworld, so, as might be expected, Anna's path is not easy. But, except for a few scenes that are not developed to their full possibilities, the girl's difficulties have to be imagined by the spectators without much aid from what they see, for in seeking, apparently, to avoid giving offense to any taste, the play is weak where it should be strong. If it is better not to offend any taste, why should a play that must offend some or fail in its biggest opportunities be chosen for public entertainment?

New Pictures from France.

The Rialto's program this week begins with Verdi's "Sicilian Vespers," played by the orchestra. The piece was so continuously applauded at yesterday afternoon's performance that all of the members of the orchestra rose to acknowledge the demonstration. It is one of the best things Mr. Riesenfeld's musicians have done recently.

"Winter Scenes in Southern France," a scenic film released by the Beacon Films, Inc., gives glimpses of life in the Pyrenees that are a delight to stay-at-homes. The war seems very far away from the rural scenes and country folk brought here by the camera.

"Wild Women and Tame Lions," a Fox comedy, wins a few reluctant laughs that come between the play's long stretches of incomprehensible stupidity and witless vulgarity.

The explanation that straightens out all of the complications and misunderstandings upon which "More Trouble" at the Rivoli depends for its amusement is obvious almost from the beginning, and the play, therefore, loses most of the effect it might have. But the acting, especially by Frank Keenan as Lemuel Deering and a woman who takes the part of a servant, but whose name is not on the program, is excellent and funny things do occur, so one laughs off and on throughout the entire piece, even if interest in the story is not sustained.

"Mexico Today," released by the Educational Films Corporation, is a scenic film of merit, giving views of the country and its chief city, about which many have heard so much and seen so little.

Miss Kennedy in New Play.

"The Fair Pretender" might have been a thoroughly delightful farce, for the story has possibilities, and Madge Kennedy, in light rôles, is one of the most pleasing actresses on the screen. She takes the part of a stenographer who poses as the widow of a Captain Brown, who, she says, has been killed in the war. A wealthy family assumes that her husband was a Captain Brown of their acquaintance reported dead, and they take her into their midst. She has a wonderful time until word comes that Captain Brown is not dead and is in the vicinity. He visits the house, but does not expose the girl, permitting her to slip away, which she does, and her marriage to another faker whom she met at the wealthy home but who also returns to his normal life is implied. Here's material for an amusing story, but the film play has more than this. It introduces a German spy whose activities do everything possible to destroy the good humor of the piece without bringing any advantage that could not have been obtained otherwise. As a result, the play drags on until its length is tiring and it frequently sags dismally in interest.

The fifth installment of the Outing-Chester pictures, showing scenes along the Potaro River and life in Patamona, maintain the high standard set by the previous installments and form one of the best bits of the Strand's program. Rivalling them are pictures of Bob Bakker capturing a wild mountain lion with the aid only of dogs and a rope. These pictures must have been extremely difficult to take, but Mr. Bakker provided thrills in compensation. The hunter appears at the Strand in person, and his description of his adventures adds much to the pictures.

CHEMICAL REPORTS STOLEN

Reports dealing with the research work of chemists on explosions in chemical plants, information gathered at the expense of thousands of dollars and having a bearing upon several inventions to prevent the explosions of gases, have been stolen from the office of Julian M. Wilson, a patent attorney at 87 Liberty Street. Mr. Wilson yesterday sent an advertisement to THE NEW YORK TIMES offering a reward of $300 for the return of the papers.

The theft was committed on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Wilson had been using the leather brief case containing the chemists' reports. He decided to go to the Chemists' Building at 50 East Forty-first Street, and decided to take with him only a few papers having to do with the conference to which he was going. The remainder he left in the brief case, which he put in a wire basket on top of his desk.

Mr. Wilson left his office at 1:30 o'clock. He returned after 5 o'clock, and found the office force had departed for the day and the case and papers gone. He reported the loss to the Superintendent of the building. His impression was that the case had been mislaid, but he found his mistake when the early mail on Thursday brought him all the papers that had been contained in the case except those dealing with the inventions. They had been mailed in five envelopes bearing his name and business address in one corner. The letters had not been otherwise addressed and had not been stamped. The envelopes had been mailed from the Branch Post Office at Twelfth Street and Fourth Avenue at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon.

The theft was reported to the police and the detectives are working on the theory that the reports were stolen by an emissary of some chemical company, which desired to make use of the valuable information they contained. Mr. Wilson said that the theft could not be the work of an alien enemy, as there would be no incentive for such an act.

Fortunately Mr. Wilson kept copies of the stolen reports, and since the case was stolen he has been at work completing the papers necessary for filing in the Patent Office to protect the inventions. He would not give the name of his client, but said that while the reports represented an expenditure of thousands of dollars, that money was as nothing to the value that may attach to the inventions for which patents are sought.

Mr. Wilson said that he did not believe the thief, or those for whom the theft was committed could beat him into the Patent Office as he had long been at work on the case and had the papers nearly ready for filing when the brief case disappeared.

Suspicion, it is said, has been directed toward a man whose name those interested in the case would not divulge.

TO GIVE METAL FOR STAMPS.

New Exchange Opens Today in War Savings Campaign.

The process of turning bridge prizes, golf trophies, silverware and jewelry into War Savings Stamps will be started today by the New York War Savings Stamp Committee, which opens a "metal exchange" in the Winfield Building, Fifth Avenue and Fortieth Street. The opening of the exchange will mark a week's intensive drive for the Thrift Stamps, which will culminate on Sunday at the Polo Grounds when Lieutenant John Philip Sousa will lead a chorus of 10,000 in Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah."

Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, wife of the Governor, is expected to be present at the exchange this morning. She will bring a piece of silver to be exchanged for War Savings Stamps after an expert appraiser has determined its current market value. Invitations have been sent to several thousand other prominent women to surrender their bridge prizes and duplicate wedding presents in order that they may be melted into bullion for the Government.

The exchange will be open daily except Sunday from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M., and appraisers will be there to decide how many stamps shall be traded for the heirlooms turned in. Members of the committee in charge include Mrs. Joseph Griswold Deane, Chairman; Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, Vice Chairman; Mrs. Charlotte Delafield, Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont, Mrs. Charles C. Goodrich, Mrs. Alfred Hess, Mrs. E. P. Morgan, Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, and Mrs. Ogden Reid.

$755,520 FOR EDUCATION.

Rockefeller General Board Announces Gifts to Colleges.

> Wake Forest College, Wake Forest, N. C., $100,000 toward a fund of $300,000.
> Meredith College, Raleigh, N. C., $75,000 toward a fund of $300,000.

The board appropriated also $30,250 to maintain professors of secondary education in the Southern State universities, $58,270 to support State rural school agents, $41,000 for farm demonstration work in Maine and New Hampshire, and $195,000 for the support of State agents for negro rural schools and for annual maintenance of different schools for negroes in the Southern States.

Siamese Prince Arrives Here.

Prince Traidos Prabandh, Siamese Minister to Denmark, arrived yesterday in New York on his way home to Bangkok for a vacation after being abroad for six years, two of which were spent in Berlin. The Minister was accompanied by the Princess Pien Prabandh and their three sons, Pantip, Deavatai, and Chantarat Prabandh, and their two daughters, Towdeva and Devakula Prabandh. They were met here by the Siamese Minister from Washington and the Consul General. Prince Prabandh wore European clothing, and in good English said that he hoped to see something of the sights of the country before leaving for the East.

BRITISH CELEBRATE EMPIRE DAY HERE

NEW RELIEF FUND STARTED

Official Moving Pictures of Gen. Allenby's Entrance Into Jerusalem Shown for First Time.

A great assembly of British subjects resident in New York, and Americans who honor Great Britain as an ally in the war, gathered in Carnegie Hall last night to celebrate Empire Day. This memorial to Queen Victoria is celebrated annually on May 24 throughout the British Empire. The celebration in this city was postponed from last Friday because that was also the anniversary of Italy's entrance into the great war, and the Britishers and Colonials, eager to join in the nationwide tribute to Italy, postponed their own celebration until last night.

Carnegie Hall was packed by 8 o'clock, and hundreds of persons had to be turned away. The splendid Garde Republicaine Band of France was the musical feature of the evening, and the soldier musicians, most of them men who wear the chevrons of honor which indicate the man who has been wounded in action, were accorded a great ovation. The evening was also made notable by the exhibition, for the first time in either America or Europe, of the British official moving pictures of the capture of Jerusalem.

There were three short speeches, one by James M. Beck, another by Brig. Gen. William A. White, head of the British-Canadian Recruiting Commission in the United States, and the third and shortest of all by Clive Bayley, British Consul General in New York. Mme. Alda sang the "Marseillaise," Miss Alice Brady, "The Star-Spangled Banner," and Miss Anna Fitziu, "God Save the King," while Mme. Regina Victorina sang the national anthem of Italy. On the stage were giant flags of the United States, Great Britain, and Belgium. From the balconies the flags of all the allied nations were displayed.

While the meeting was primarily a celebration of Great Britain's national day, it was also to help in raising a fund in this country to be applied to the support of dependents here of resident British subjects, who are fighting in the British and Canadian Armies. The amount needed, Mr. Bayley pointed out, is $40,000 a month.

General White said that until this war Britons the world over had never realized what the British Empire meant to them. If the war had done nothing else for Great Britain, it had at least brought Britons into a bond the like of which never before existed. He told of the prompt response of the colonies when the mother country entered the war.

"If I could but take you to the front over there," said General White, "you would realize what it means and you would realize why those men of England and Canada and Australia and all the other commonwealths and colonies are giving their lives. They are not only dying for the Empire, but also in order that their children may live as they have a right to live in their own countries, and to live the life they desire to live."

Mr. Beck said that a decade ago such a meeting as that of last night would not have been thought of in New York. He doubted if such a meeting could have been held even two years ago.

"England," said Mr. Beck, "has won her case at the bar of public opinion. I rejoice in the fact that, without reference to the outcome of the great battle now being fought on the plains of Picardy, the irrevocable verdict of mankind favors Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, and the United States, and that it is on the brow of Germany that the brand of Cain rests.

"Twenty-five years ago England was a nation without a single loyal, wholehearted friend in the world. The attitude of some nations toward her was one of indifference, with others it was a case of jealous admiration, and on the part of the remainder positive enmity. But today all this has changed, and, with the exception of two or three nations, which I do not think it necessary to name, we find England not only respected but loved by the civilized nations of the world. The chapter that the British Government wrote on Aug. 3, 1914, is the most glorious in British history."

The Jerusalem pictures show the entry of General Sir Edmund Allenby and his conference with priests and rabbis and tribal chieftains. The interpreters reading the proclamations which General Allenby issued, guaranteeing all the rights of the people and pledging the Allies to maintain those rights, are also shown.

Edward H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe recited several patriotic poems in the course of the evening, while the Scotch Pipers appeared for ten minutes and caused a noisy demonstration when they played the "Marseillaise" as a compliment to the soldier musicians of the Garde Republicaine Band.

Hebrew Asylum 40 Years Old.

An elaborate program marked the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum yesterday, in the asylum building at 373 Ralph Avenue. They consisted largely of musical recitals by the children of the institution. Children with exceptional records for the past year received prizes. Addresses were made by Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Charities, and Mrs. Louis L. Firuski, President of the institution.

FIGHT IN HOTEL APARTMENT

Fitzpatrick Says He Was Lured to Grenoble Room to Meet a Friend.

As the result of a fight in an apartment in the Hotel Grenoble, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, last night, three men, William E. Fitzpatrick of 128 West Forty-ninth Street, who is suffering from wounds in the scalp; Frank Wilson of San Francisco, and John Welte of Reading, Penn., are held by the police on charges of felonious assault. Fitzpatrick, who brought about the arrests by smashing a window and calling for help, told the police that he had been enticed into the apartment to see a friend from California. When he entered the apartment, Fitzpatrick said, he was attacked in the dark by three men. Defending himself as best he could, he rushed to the window to call for aid.

When twelve policemen stationed in front of Carnegie Hall entered the hotel they met Welte running down the stairs in his shirtsleeves, which were covered with blood. Upon arriving at the apartment, which was on the second floor, they had to break down the door. In the meantime a guest of the hotel told them that one man had rushed upstairs. Wilson was caught hiding in a room on the fourth floor. Fitzpatrick was found lying unconscious on the floor in the room from which he had called. Two loaded revolvers were found in the room. The apartment was occupied by a man who had registered as John D. Jordan of Los Angeles. Jordan could not be found last night. It is believed by the police that he was the third man mentioned by Fitzpatrick.

CONDEMNS RIVET CONTESTS

British Labor Chief Believes They Tend to Demoralize Workmen.

LONDON, May 26.—Whether riveting competitions, to which much attention has been given of late, will be allowed to continue seems doubtful in view of action taken by the Boilermakers' Society. Secretary Hill of the society sent yesterday to all branches of the organization a long circular letter in which he said:

"Riveting never has been a sport, and in these times our members never have been in more deadly earnest. We shall not allow our members to be turned into gladiators to provide sport for the idle rich—a sport which already is having adverse effects and reducing the total output, besides undermining the good results which we established for the co-operation and unification of our efforts in the national cause."

"Judging by the great enthusiasm of the workers at Barrow when Moses made his fine record I should say that Hill does not voice the opinions of the workers," said Minister of Pensions Hodge when informed of the boilermakers' circular letter. "I think these riveting contests are a very good idea. We are a sporting people, and if you introduce the sporting element into work it is all the better."

BRITISH INCREASE PENSIONS

LONDON, April 29, (Associated Press.)—Pension increases, just announced, benefit chiefly widows and children.

Pensions to widows are raised from one-half to two-thirds of the pension that the husband might have received had he lived and remained incapable of earning his living. If he was earning 50 shillings a week before the war, the widow now may claim 33 shillings 4 pence a week.

Children are provided for as follows: First child, 6 shillings 8 pence; second child, 5 shillings; each other child, 4 shillings 2 pence; illegitimate child, 6 shillings 8 pence.

Parents are now entitled to a pension if they are incapable of self-support owing to age or infirmity and are in need.

Soldiers discharged as physically unfit are to receive 27 shillings 6 pence a week, with full children's allowances, until their pensions are fixed.

"Disablement or minimum pensions," it is announced, "are based solely on the degree of physical disability, and are not affected by the actual earnings of the man." But if disability becomes worse the man's pension may be increased.

UNCUTTABLE WIRE SOUGHT.

Hardware Manufacturers Meet to Put Industry on War Footing.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 26.—American wire plants are now hard at work to duplicate and, if possible, to improve upon "uncuttable" barbed wire used by the Germans. This wire confronted the allied forces immediately after the Germans intrenched themselves after failing in their drive on the western front, according to leading hardware manufacturers of the country arriving here today for a conference which opens tomorrow at the Traymore.

That American ingenuity has already created wire cutters that will snip the latest Teutonic protecting device was the report of officers at a preliminary meeting tonight of the Hardware Manufacturers' and Southern Hardware Jobbers' Association. Chaotic conditions brought about by the war have seriously affected all branches of the industry, and the best method of conforming with the "win the war" program under war conditions will be outlined at a conference tomorrow.

NO KITCHIN TAX BILL THIS TIME.

The Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee talks as though he were the House of Representatives. Also, he talks as though he wished to punish the entire country for the defects of the legislation which he was allowed to impose upon it. Furthermore, he talks like a contortionist who walks ahead and looks backward. On Thursday he was sure that there would be no difficulty about passing a tax bill between the holidays and the 4th of March. On Friday he is sure that no tax bill ever has been or can be passed in less than half a year. What he may have said on Saturday, or may say hereafter, is not yet known, but it is sure that there will be no such tax bill as he talks about.

It is hardly possible to suppose that he will be allowed to re-enact his monstrosity of legislation, with its double set of taxes, and complications of calculation, and phrases which cannot be taken as they read, but must be interpreted into intelligibility. It is not possible to suppose that he will be allowed to impose taxes so disproportionate to all fiscal experience and the possibility of endurance of business as he proposes. The unexpected productiveness of his entirely original manner of taxing so as to produce most distress and least proportionate proceeds points to the certainty of laying taxes so as to produce even the large sums he speaks of without the annoyances of his first attempt. No one should complain of taxes on luxuries, which France has just found so productive. If any complaints were heard from those who paid taxes for the luxuries, those not able to enjoy them would drown the complaints with their approval. Stamp taxes are a recourse to which there has been too little resort. Consumption taxes would not be popular, but they would result in the consumption of such necessities as food and sugar on something like a pre-war basis, and thus produce more abundant supplies in the place of riot of expenditure by those whose wages have been raised beyond their fondest hope, and who have spent the increase without a thought of frugality.

It would be interesting to know what produced the overnight change in Mr. KITCHIN'S talk about immediate legislation. The conference with Mr. MCADOO conveys no suggestion that the Treasury has a bill which will be forthcoming unless the House of Representatives produces one, but that would explain many things. The Treasury and the taxpayers know between them where the shoe pinches, and the Treasury would come nearer to suiting the taxpayers than the Chairman who breathes threatening toward those who disagree with him, and slaughter toward the geese whom he plucks so unskilfully.

Could anything be more incompatible than the proposal of an unlimited army with a limited budget, if there is any document worthy the name? Is there a man so unskilful with paper and pencil as to imagine that billions can be spent on ships and airplanes with the present method of taxation—which Mr. KITCHIN wishes to prolong—or who would wish to limit the expenditure to another measure of the same sort, but twice as bad because twice as large? Mr. KITCHIN is unctuous as he boasts his ability to produce the biggest tax bill since creation. It is an idle boast, because the figures that nobody but he dares to use are below the proportion of taxation to either wealth or taxation in several nations. The figures he uses are large because this is a hundred million man country as well as a billion dollar country. It would be a greater source of pride to Mr. KITCHIN and to his countrymen if he could boast of the best tax bill ever passed, such a bill, for example, as Canada's, where it was said for months, and may still be true, that there had not been a single complaint under it.

At least this may be said for Mr. KITCHIN, he has interested his victims in taxation as never before, and he has antagonized the officials who have had to manage troublesome finances with the handicap of his crudities. A friendly word to Mr. KITCHIN—taxation must originate in the House of Representatives, but it need not be any sort of taxation that the Ways and Means Committee may take into its head to pass. An Administration tax bill might be offered from the floor of either house, and there would be no presumption in favor of repetition of Mr. KITCHIN'S experiment. Even after the House has approved his proposal the Senate might send back the bill with such a change as has come over many tariffs. Mr. KITCHIN holds the centre of the stage, and he has fair opportunity to redeem himself from the reproach visited upon him from all directions. But he must walk warily in proportion that the eyes of his countrymen are fastened upon him. And the fire which has visibly been burning beneath his lagging feet for the last day or two will burn hotter and hotter until he not only moves, but moves in the right direction.

THE WOMEN'S ENROLLMENT.

That less than 50 per cent. of the qualified women enrolled as prospective participants in the primaries proves nothing except that the woman voter does not take any more serious view of her obligations than the man voter. It is possible that in the long run the women may show to better advantage than the men. Experience has taught us to expect that when the primaries are held only about a third or a fourth of the men will turn out, except on rare occasions. Now, if half the women took the trouble to enroll at a time when no election or other interesting event was at hand to stimulate them, it is arguable that they must have done so with a real intention of voting in the primaries, and that therefore when September comes we shall find a third or a fourth of the men and nearly half the women going to the polls. In point of fact, we have no such expectation; all the probabilities are that men and women alike will shirk that duty as disgracefully next September as the men have every year since the direct primary was instituted.

Yet if voters do this, what earthly right have they to complain of the quality of the candidates nominated? The nominations are absolutely in their hands if they choose to exert their power. They do not, they never have, either in this State or any other. Their excuse in old days for not taking part in nominations was that it was no use, the cards were stacked against them. The direct primary swept away that excuse, and still they will take no steps to exercise their power. Instead, they have allowed the bosses to control the primaries far more completely than ever they controlled the conventions; the direct primary today is the boss's perfect instrument, and he must wonder why he fought against its institution.

This bad record has been established by men. The new voters, the women, are behaving no worse. Only incorrigible optimists and rainbow chasers expected them to behave any better.

DR. MASARYK.

Eyewitnesses of the impressive parade of Czech, Slovak, Jugoslav, Polish, and Russian societies which passed in review on Saturday night before the balcony where stood THOMAS G. MASARYK, head of the Provisional Government of the Czechoslovak revolution, might have perceived that the distinguished statesman and scholar who is now visiting the men and women of his race in this country was something more than the leader of a single nationality. Those who from the galleries of Carnegie Hall shouted "Long live our first President!" expressed what is rather more than a probability, if the defeat of the Central Powers is as sweeping as is hoped; but in the demonstrations of half a dozen Slav races for the leader of one it was possible to recognize MASARYK as the emblem of the new Slavic spirit.

The old Pan Slavism, which, despite the collaboration of many honorable and sincere men of liberal tendencies, served in effect little but the interests of the Romanoff dynasty and imperialistic Russia, died with the passing of that dynasty and the collapse of that Russia. Yet these times which see Russia fallen from her high estate have seen also the coming together of the westernmost Slav nations, the Czechoslovaks, the Jugoslavs, and the Poles, who have found a basis for alliance not only in kindred blood and kindred culture, but in their identical demands for national unity and freedom from Hapsburg and Hohenzollern. The western Slav nations, those who have been most affected by Latin culture, who have had to maintain their national individuality by hard struggle against heavy odds, have based their democracy in education and in the cultivation of an intelligent patriotism. So while Russia, endowed suddenly with a complete liberty for which her people were unprepared, stumbles and falls in the clutch of the German, the western Slavs are only the more determined, the more bitterly opposed to alien domination, the more firmly resolved to end German rule by complete victory in this war. And Russia, trying hard to be democratic, is looking to the westward to get new inspiration from the spirit of the Slav races who are fighting for freedom and who know what to do with it.

It is this sort of Slavic consciousness, a Pan Slavism, if it be that, which has no imperialistic ambitions, no desire to interfere with other nations, that is represented by MASARYK; for Bohemia has led the other nations in the fight against the Germans, and MASARYK is the leader of Bohemia. Dr. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER compared him, not without reason, to MAZZINI and VENIZELOS; and the message which he gave to New York might have been spoken by either of them. "Democracy is political truth"—this is the utterance of a man whose faith is democracy and who is seeing it work out in practice among his people. His demand for liberty was not for the Czechoslovaks alone, but for all the multitude of peoples in Eastern Europe who have been given over to the Germans by Russia's downfall.

In the face of this position of the westernmost and most cultured Slav nations, now taking the lead of their race from fallen Russia, what becomes of the Slav peril which was such a terror to the Germans at the beginning of the war? The only peril left, from the German point of view, is this—that the Slavs may win the right to rule themselves instead of being ruled by Germans.

THE REACTIONARY.

Attorney General LEWIS says he's in the race for the Republican nomination for Governor "to a finish." This must look unusually impudent to all but the reactionaries—few, no doubt, and unfit—who hold Mr. LEWIS'S regrettable views, want the State Convention restored, kick against the ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment.

Mr. LEWIS seems to have been infected with that almost obsolete malady, political convictions. Perhaps a dose of primary elections will cure him.

THE DUAL SUBWAY DEADLOCK.

The Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate are much interested in the question which of them is to blame for delay in the completion of the work on the subways. The public cares little which is to blame, and is willing to believe that there is little to choose between them. What interests the public more is the completion of the $30,000,000 worth of work necessary to bring into operation $80,000,000 worth of addition to the original subway. On behalf of the Board of Estimate the Controller says that the Interborough is to blame, because the work could not be used if done, on account of the Interborough's delay with conduits and cables which ought to have been finished last October. If they had been finished then, they would have been useless without the connections of the tracks at Times Square and in Brooklyn. The work ought to go forward as a whole, the premature completion of any fraction being useless.

The question of blame and the delay of the conduits are together small in comparison with the completion of the contracts for construction under the Lockwood law. Five thousand men are liable to stop work unless their demand for a wage settlement is answered before June 1, and if they should seek other employment they can hardly be got together for subway work again. The danger is real, for the men can find work any day, and all they ask is payment of the Federal scale. The contractors cannot pay them the increase necessitated by war conditions. Many of the contracts were let before the war began, and all of them were let before the United States entered the war.

The contractors have carried on until they can go no further without assistance. They have no hope of profit, and will be glad to escape without bankruptcy. Their appeal to the city for assistance is based on a special statute enacted according to the familiar exception in most contracts releasing the contractors in case of strikes, war, or force majeure. Whereupon the Board of Estimate raises questions about a $300,000 contract, and begins a wrangle about official responsibility which will outlast the completion of the subways. The interest charges on the uncompleted work run at the rate of $20,000 a day, and soon will reach totals exceeding what the city must pay if it is to get the use of the completed portions. The subway riders will lose the use of the entire system, and the tax values of the real estate of the districts reached by the subways will suffer.

It is too much to expect that the wrangling boards will settle their quarrel, but common sense suggests that they should find some way of letting the work go on while they dispute about it. The city might well carry the load until the accounts are finally settled, with a reservation of the right to debit the proper party as the case shall finally appear. Anything, even the city's assumption of an unjust share of the cost, is better than the postponement of the completion of the subways for a year or two. The city's heart is set on getting the fullest use of the entire system at the earliest moment, and it has been given reason to expect a large installment on June 15. The Public Service Commission is forward with its offers of co-operation with the Board of Estimate. The Board of Estimate alone raises obstructions and irrelevant questions. The public moves the previous question, the main question, and would like to see progress made with that, without prejudice to the question of who is to blame for details.

POLITICAL PEACE.

Mr. WILL H. HAYS, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, talks like a man of sense, a sound patriot and American. "All political issues," he says, "must be subordinated to that one uppermost cause, "that of winning the war." To win the war we must have "absolute political peace at home, industrial peace as well"; "the world must "know that we are united in our "purpose of winning the war."

Political peace means, or should mean, that, while the Republicans will vote for Republicans that support the war heartily and Democrats for Democrats that support the war heartily, every candidate whose loyalty is doubtful or lukewarm will be rejected by his party at the polls; that, as against such a candidate, Republicans will vote for a war Democrat, Democrats for a war Republican; that, wherever the Socialists are strong, Democrats and Republicans will unite on the war candidate, Democrat or Republican, who is the strongest.

That is what THE TIMES conceives to be Mr. HAYS'S idea. In any case, that is the duty of both parties. Democrats and Republicans stand by Mr. WILSON for peace with victory. Old-fashioned, "red-hot" "straight Democratic" talk such as Mr. CHAMP CLARK, for example, sometimes permits himself to indulge in, falls on deaf ears. Differ as they may on unessentials, the two parties are one, they form a union party on the sole essential duty of beating Germany. By such a union on substantials, by a peace or truce of the old trivial political warfare, the American part in bringing about victorious peace will best be furthered. There should be no whacking of party tom-toms. The one party now is the United States.

SUPPLIES FOR THE NEUTRALS.

When the three convoyed ships with cargoes of grain for Switzerland arrived at a French port the other day other vessels carrying supplies for European neutrals were crossing the Atlantic. So far as can be learned, none of these were guarded by a warship, and all were exposed to attack. Seven were going to Sweden with loads of wheat, fertilizer, oil, and other commodities released here by the terms of a new trade compact. Our Government's agreement with Norway, signed on the 4th, permits the shipment of much wheat, fodder, meat, and oil. It may be assumed that carriers have taken up this work, and also that the Relief Commission is exporting to Belgium a part of the 3,000,000 bushels of wheat which Mr. HOOVER said a few weeks ago the people there must have without delay. Germany's threats may have prevented the shipment of supplies to Holland. It was reported on the 10th that the Berlin Government had granted safe conduct for three cargoes which were to leave our ports on the 11th, and for three ships in exchange, which would sail from Holland for the United States on the same day. But dispatches from Amsterdam a week later said that Germany's consent had not been obtained.

Under what conditions affecting their safety do ships with supplies for the northern neutrals now approach their home ports? Those going to Sweden are in danger because the trade agreement gives us the use of 100,000 tons of Swedish shipping. Sweden was officially informed three weeks ago that Germany's prize rules had been amended to provide that the vessels of a neutral nation making such an agreement should be regarded "as working in the interest of the enemy's warfare." This meant that they would be sunk if submarines could reach them. But it was a superfluous formality, for the pirates already had destroyed more than 150 Swedish vessels. The amendment also applies to Norway, as 400,000 tons of Norwegian shipping have been chartered to our Government, but the long list of 756 ships of that neutral nation sunk by Germany tends to prove that food supply vessels are in no greater danger now than they were before the agreement with Norway was signed. Recent attacks upon fishing boats along the coast may show that new orders have been sent to the submarine commanders.

There can be no assurance of safety for ships carrying grain to Holland, or for those leaving Dutch ports to take their places here, so long as Germany withholds approval of such an exchange. All are in danger unless they have warship protection, which saved the three cargoes for Switzerland. The Belgian Relief Commission knows that this also may be said about its food carriers, even if they have on board the Berlin Government's written guarantee of immunity. It may be that all the supply ships for Northern Europe now at sea will avoid the torpedoes. If some of them are not so fortunate, the neutral nations must see in the cargoes and the risk taken fresh proof that our Government desires to help them, and that the only restraining influence is that of Germany.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Well Begun, But More Is Undone.

Excellent as were the arguments against the teaching of German in the New York intermediate and high schools that were presented before the Board of Superintendents, and adequate justification as they were for the action taken, it is impossible not to regret that none of the speakers, and not even Mr. ROOT in his letter, went really to the bottom of the question. There is, of course, a special reason at this time for freeing the public schools from all German influences, but there are at all times two reasons, among others, that are, in peace as in war, sufficient for dropping all foreign languages from the curriculums of those schools.

The first of these reasons is that the schools are yet far from having attained enough efficiency in giving to young Americans knowledge of kinds far more important than would be even real facility in the use of another language than English to warrant the diversion of teaching ability in that direction. The second reason is that language teaching in the public schools is, and of necessity must be, little better than a farce. Only in exceptional cases not numerous enough to be worth considering can even an approach to a working knowledge of a foreign language be given to a child in the few "periods" each week for a few terms that anybody would dream of giving to it in public schools. Not languages, but next to worthless smatterings, are thus acquired.

As a matter of fact, the demand for putting foreign languages in the list of school studies is a product of racial vanity, and it comes almost exclusively from parents who are themselves competent to give their children vastly better instruction in the one language that interests them than can possibly be obtained in school. To know a language in addition to one's own is always desirable, and this is true of any of the greater tongues, but it is far from essential to either the prosperity or happiness of any American citizen, and not to one in 10,000 of them will it ever be more than a pleasant accomplishment. It is, therefore, well to banish German from the public schools, but the banishment should not stop there—the other foreign languages should go with it.

One Reason Why Milk Costs Much.

Milk bottles and the breakage thereof may seem a rather inconsequential subject for earnest consideration in these days, when more momentous matters so insistently demand attention. It is not as unimportant as at first thought it appears to be, however; for, as one among many economic wastes that result from the present inept method of milk distribution, there is a surprisingly large daily destruction of these containers, and the cost of replacing them is put—with the addition for good measure that is invariable in such cases—directly on every individual consumer of milk. That means on everybody, including the more than occasional baby who dies because the price of this food is appreciably higher than it would be if the milk companies all got back the bottles they distribute.

After a brief and superficial investigation of this matter that was started after the recent activities of "Clean-up Day" in a nearby suburban town, it was discovered that in that small city alone the two distributing companies lost on the average 800 bottles a week, and each costs them about 7 cents. Some of the bottles are broken, but a far greater number are simply thrown away or kept for private uses. Except for a few recovered from the garbage dumps by payment of 1½ cents each, this is all clear waste, for neither the buyers of the milk nor the drivers of the milk wagons are held to any real responsibility for the return of the bottles they receive.

If this is the loss in a small and notably well-ordered community, one can imagine what it is in a city like New York and what it amounts to all over the country. Officials of the distributing companies when questioned admitted and lamented the evil, but declared themselves unable to abate it. They would lose trade, they said, if they required a deposit from customers to insure the return of bottles taken, and their drivers would strike or quit if required to bring in as many bottles as they took out. These sound like very poor excuses for inaction, for other dealers in bottled goods have solved the same difficulty easily enough by one or the other of the two methods just mentioned, and nobody complains.

Perhaps the immediate and practical remedy for this utterly needless waste lies in action by the State authorities. Their power over foods is limitless and rebellion against them is unknown.

American Prisoners in Germany.

Reports that the Germans are subjecting their American prisoners to cruel and brutal treatment are coming in rapidly, and, as they coincide in form and substance with the experiences of other nationals in like case, there is no reason or excuse for doubting their accuracy. It is easy to believe that the lot of the American prisoner would be an especially hard one, not only because they are the objects of a peculiarly bitter animosity, but because the men themselves are more than likely to be notably indocile under humiliating treatment.

As the Germans well know, unfortunately, they can do about what they please to prisoners, with practically no danger of reprisals in kind, how or even when the Day of the Great Reckoning arrives. That is an advantage they have over antagonists whose temperament and culture are different from their own, and they have utilized it constantly from the very beginning of the war, just as they have the other advantage they possess over civilized people in the fact that not a few of the atrocities committed by the German soldiers and officers are of a kind that can hardly be whispered among men and never can be published in any book or paper intended for general circulation.

Our hope is to negotiate an exchange of prisoners as soon as possible and on almost any terms Germany may demand. This our Government is already doing through the good offices of Holland as an intermediary. One difficulty in the way of effecting an exchange, and perhaps the greatest, is the old notion that the private soldier has no "honor" to back his oath, and that therefore his parole to fight no more cannot be accepted. And Germany has the best of reasons for clinging to that antiquated idea, for she can have no doubt about the amount of binding force the plighted word has for her own subjects, and naturally she cannot trust anybody else.

FOR A RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In today's TIMES you have published two remarkable letters clearly showing why, how, when, and by whom Russia should be saved. It may be assumed, then, that from the academical standpoint the Russian question is quite satisfactorily settled. And since our President has declared before the world that America will fight for Russia as well as for France, which means that both in France and in Russia there are our own vital interests, it is high time to pass from words to deeds.

Who shall fight for us in Russia? First of all, we ourselves, because it is our business. Then there are in our country thousands of Russian volunteers, soldiers and officers, willing, nay anxious, to go to Russia or Siberia to fight for liberty of their country, side by side with our boys and even under our flag, since there is a serious doubt as to what the present flag of Russia should be. Then there is a strong Japanese army ready to move on from Vladivostok as soon as the rest of the Allies express their confidence in the loyalty of our Japanese partners. And any hesitation in this case on our part only gladdens the heart of the Bolsheviki and the Germans.

There should be sent to Russia some contingents of the English and French army or navy.

Our Russian campaign should be opened at once; that is, as soon as the allied Governments exchange their wireless messages. It appears that both in Vladivostok and in Murmansk, the "two doors to Russia," there are already some armed representatives of the Allies. And they should be instructed at once as to the decision of the Allies.

It is urgently advisable that the Allies send to the Russian people a solemn proclamation to the effect that the Allies find it necessary to save Russia from German domination; that all loyal Russians are welcome to fight side by side with the allied regiments against Russia's enemies; that Germany utterly disregards the Brest-Litovsk treaty, and that the Bolshevist authorities are unable or unwilling to stop further German invasion into Russia; that it is the Allies' cherished plan to help the Russian people to call a Constituent Assembly as soon as their country is freed from the German and Austrian armies.

It is extremely important to send to Russia, simultaneously with our army, a strong American Red Cross unit to operate jointly with the Russian Red Cross. Our Red Cross would be able to render to the Russian people not only a humanitarian but also educational service, showing them who are their true friends and who are their bitter enemies.

It is well to notice and remember that the Bolsheviki always talk of defending their revolution and never of their country. They are too internationalistic for that. PETER J. POPOFF.

Poetry and News for Victory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Beatrice Barry's pathetic poetical appeal to Irish hearts to forget Irish hates impels me to express appreciation of the daily poems printed on your editorial page. How stirring they are! Americans can never be untrue to the higher ideals of liberty and humanity while there are among them so many interpreters of the nobler sentiments of our inmost hearts—sentiments which can only be fully expressed by poets.

Let me also say that the most complete news service since the origin of newspapers—not only the news, but the news verbatim—which THE TIMES is furnishing to its readers in this world crisis is the firmest of the foundations of our faith in the triumph of the ideals which make for Americanism. Whatever our political leanings may be, we find in THE TIMES all the news, unadulterated and of absolute authenticity.

Effect of German Cruelty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The cowardly bombing of the hospital base in France, recently, assures us again as never before of the unsportsmanlike qualities of the Germans and their vindictiveness on those who cannot retaliate. However, it is a tragic truth that these acts of wanton cruelty serve to cement the cause of the allied nations as nothing else could do. The writer has seen several families with distinct leanings toward the German side become strong converts to the allied cause after reading of those cowardly and unsportsmanlike acts by the Germans that have prevailed so often of late. One well-nigh questions the sanity (or is it just pigheadedness?) of a nation that will so desperately hurt its own cause, however unjust and contemptible that cause may be, by such useless acts of cruelty on the maimed and weak. Mrs. Skeffington Wants to Go Back.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I observe from your issue of May 25 that Mr. Gerard has expressed himself as anxious that I be shipped home to Ireland as a dangerous "agitator." May I point out to him through your columns that I am detained here at present by Great Britain? Some time ago I obtained passports home for myself and my son only to find them suddenly canceled by orders from London on the eve of our departure, no reason being assigned for the cancellation. If, therefore, Mr. Gerard would use his influence with the British Government to have my passport given me to return to Ireland, he would be doing me a service. Perhaps he could have the embargo lifted.

Mr. Gibbs's Poetry.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your Philip Gibbs is a great deal of a poet. He adds to his splendid war reports a distinctly literary flavor, and a grace in description which is notable and enjoyable. Amid the horrors which he so graphically paints he makes us feel the beauty of the country outside of the zone of devastation, the character of the patient heroism of the people, of the valor of the fighters of the Entente, the devotion of the Red Cross, and other elements of beneficence, of whose labors we may justly be proud.

The Bolsheviki.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WALTHAM, Mass., May 26.—Your editorial, "Too Late," in today's TIMES, is truthful, timely, and to the point. You have had the correct measurement of the Bolsheviki from the start. It seems to me that allied leaders should realize by this time that the Lenine-Trotzky outfit is nothing but a paid agent of Germany. Your aim is true; keep on firing. PRYOR FULTON.

UNITED THEY STAND—FOR ONCE

We've fought each other, tooth and nail,
For many a generation;
We've argued loud, and long, and late—
A much divided nation.

But now, thanks be, we've come to terms;
Each Irishman's a brother,
Whether he names himself Sinn Fein
Or answers to some other.

We won't be drafted! There, that's flat!
On this there's no disputing
And rather than be killed in war
We'll die in revoluting!

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

FOR AN INTERALLIED AIR BOARD.

Unity of Control and the Use of Experts as the Next Step in the War Program.

By GUTZON BORGLUM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Frederick Upham Adams, in the second of his admirable articles in THE NEW YORK TIMES—with hardly a single exception the best that have been published on the aircraft situation—calls attention to the need and lack of trained men in the aircraft, and he closes his interesting statements by saying that the membership of the aircraft should be largely composed of men who have had long experience in the designing and manufacturing of airplanes, and if these cannot be found in the United States send abroad and get them.

In these half dozen lines lie the text of all our future activity. We face a situation which demands creative and constructive thought, and genius if we possess it, coupled with production. We face a foe who employs all these, in the measure he possesses, with consummate skill. We face a situation which can be met only with like ability, bettered as better minds can better the imitating Teuton. He follows but does not invent; but, unlike the American followers, he follows so quickly that he almost thinks as soon.

Thought and action must somehow get into the same nation, into the same State, into the same city, or even into the same factory. Would it be too much to ask that they get into the same committee and the allied aero-dynamic genius of Italy, France, England and America join and confront the Hun at an art he leads in and yet did not invent?

In my report to the President of date Jan. 21 I recommended the following:

First—"That a thorough inquiry be instituted at once on what appears to be the trouble with our aeronautic department." This is assured.

Second—"The segregation of the Signal Corps from the production department of airplanes and suggested legislation necessary." This has been done.

Third—"I recommended single-headed control." That, too, has been followed.

But I also recommended the "seizure of the large factories, placing them under Government surveyance to correct their demoralized conditions, and that the main ones become the centre of great factory districts, each factory district to be used for the building of a separate design, with designers in full authority, in full control."

But I based my main criticisms upon the great fact Mr. Adams points so clearly—the need of a board of trained aviators and airplane builders—and at the request of Mr. Coffin, prompted, I believe, by the then Acting Secretary of War, I drew the following recommendations:

That a "Department of Approved Design" be created at once.

The function of this small department should be to approve designs, specifications, and inspection; test machines and propellers, and place the seal of this department upon every machine.

This department should secure, retain, and become the custodian of all data directly related to the art of flying and the difficulties of aviation; should be in closest touch with the battlefront and abreast with foreign products and improvements; should provide all data necessary for the making of machines approved as designed, and inspect, approve, and test all completed products.

The chief should have a seat on the Aircraft Board. He should keep a man or men capable of meeting and correcting any difficulties at each factory with ability and authority to finally settle any questions relating to the building of the machines in hand.

I was informed at the time that the department was very anxious for suggestions upon this point, but no indication of the adoption of aeronautical judgment or advice is yet apparent.

Again as Mr. Adams aptly says:

Not a man closely familiar with the science or practice of aviation or of aircraft production was appointed to either of these boards, and up to the present date not a man recognized as an aviation expert has been called by the War Department to duty in either of these official bodies or given any authority in directing its policy and in expediting the speedy production of aircraft fit to meet the up-to-date and highly efficient German air fleet.

The needs of the war are becoming so large and imperative, situations changing so rapidly, that I now feel my first suggestions hardly sufficient. I believe the time is ripe, and in the change which is now taking place, while we are in the act of reconstruction, and the President has the fullest authority necessary, that an agreement should be entered upon at once with the Allies, that we should unite upon a plan that would create an International Board with representatives at the front who would, in conference with the Generals, fix the strategy and the purpose of the air army; who would determine upon the character, service, quantity, speed, personnel of the air army, and who would have the authority to design, create, purchase, and levy materials, and build engines and planes as the needs dictate. There should be one "Air Lord" over the whole for production; there should be a Board of Designers for creation and the development of the craft. This should be one allied aeronautic department in which should be vested authority covering and controlling the entire aeronautic production for the allied armies.

I believe the time has come to incorporate such a plan in our war activities. GUTZON BORGLUM.

PRISONERS FOR WAR DUTY.

Adolph Lewisohn Suggests Ways to Profit by Their Use.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think the time is opportune to make preparations for the employment of the inmates of our prisons and reformatories in connection with the conduct of the war. Man power is certainly needed, and it seems to me absolute waste to have our prisons and reformatories all over the country filled with a large number of men and boys practically idle or generally occupied in useless or non-productive occupations, getting perhaps worse instead of better by their stay in prison, consuming a large quantity of food, clothing, and other material, and producing practically nothing, few of them self-sustaining, drawing upon the resources of the State and the cities, requiring a large number of keepers, guards, and attendants of all kinds, and using considerable space and facilities in institutions which could be put to much better use for hospitals and other purposes, particularly during the war. It also seems to be unreasonable to exempt the prisoners from all war service, while those outside of prisons are subject to draft into the army, navy, and aviation service and other responsible and often arduous occupations.

Now, the question is whether it could be arranged that a large number of the inmates of prisons and reformatories could be made useful for service in the war or for service generally for the benefit of the public, and indirectly for their own benefit, by bringing them back into natural conditions and surroundings, and at the same time thereby release the attendants and others occupied in taking care of the prisons and their inmates for outside service, where they are so greatly needed, and also release the prisons' and reformatories themselves for use to the public or for war purposes, such as hospitals, &c.

I understand, of course, that there are great difficulties in the way, but most reforms and improvements are confronted by difficulties before they are installed and before people get used to them. There are two main difficulties which have to be considered:

First, the danger of deteriorating the quality of the army and navy. I do not think this is as bad as it may appear, and with proper management this difficulty could be overcome. A large percentage of the prisoners could be used behind the lines to do some of the hard work outside of actual army and navy service. The plan as outlined later in this letter does not contemplate the indiscriminate placing of all prisoners in the army and navy, or even in work directly pertaining to same, but it is to be decided upon careful investigation by competent boards which prisoners it would be safe to thus withdraw from prisons and put into Government service, such boards to determine what particular part of the service they are fit for and should be used for.

The second difficulty is that in putting prisoners into mines, factories, and other industrial work they should not interfere with the regular labor, but that matters should be so adjusted that labor is protected and the whole thing handled to the satisfaction of labor and the labor unions. The services of the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor, of which I am President and Samuel Gompers Vice President, would be at the disposal of the Government, if desired, to work out this latter problem.

As I said before, high-grade boards should be appointed, either by the President or the persons whom he would designate, such boards perhaps to consist of the Warden or the head of each prison or reformatory, one or more of the Judges who committed the prisoners, or any other Judges of the higher courts, and, say, three other men—or, in some cases, partly women—to whom this important function could be intrusted because of both their undoubted standing and ability. Such boards could decide which of the prisoners it would be safe to release for these purposes, and in what capacity they should serve the Government, whether in the army, navy, aviation service, or for work behind the lines, or, in the mines, munition factories, or other industrial service, and particularly also in farming work. If such arrangement is carried out, the best-equipped penal institutions could be released for Government hospitals and similar uses. As an instance, I believe Great Meadows Prison would be very suitable for that purpose, and, even if the cells themselves cannot be utilized for the treatment of patients, other parts of the prison could be easily made available, and without great difficulty temporary portable buildings such as are used at the Columbia Base Hospital could be added, where some of the patients could be placed, and the general facilities of the institution, which are in good condition, would be very useful to take care of a large number of patients.

Beans as a War Food.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to the letter in last Saturday's TIMES, comparing sheep with beans, I feel that the writer has allowed her prejudice to form her judgment.

There are two very good reasons why beans should be raised in larger quantities. The first one is that beans are greatly needed by the fighting men and rather highly approved by the Government dietitians. I freely admit that many people of sedentary habits are unable to digest beans, but it is also true that some people are unable to eat strawberries, while others find asparagus a deadly poison. Most men in active life not only like beans but are able to perform the hardest kind of labor upon them without injury.

An acre of beans may be reasonably expected to produce 20 bushels weighing 60 pounds per bushel, or 1,200 pounds of solid dry food, readily cooked and easily transported. An acre of equally good land would support not more than four sheep, which might raise during the season four lambs, weighing not more than 250 pounds.

The dietary standards put out by the United States Government show that a pound of mutton has rather less food value than a pound of dry beans, however much more appetizing the former may be.

We have, therefore, a comparison of 1,200 pounds of beans or 220 pounds of mutton, which has not only a large proportion of waste but also requires a considerable outlay to preserve and transport it to places where it can be used.

The Long Island Food Reserve Battalion is making every effort to encourage the growing of staple crops by growing beans, by giving free expert advice, and distributing seed beans at cost. H. F. BUTTON,

No Occupation, Indeed!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Do you want to know the cause for the growth of feminism? I can tell you. Having just returned from political enrollment, my eyes are opened and I know. It came over me in a wave of indignation when, in answer to the query "What occupation?" some of us answered "Housewives." There was a contemptuous smile and the record read, "Occupation, none." Ask yourselves what would happen if a new form of strike should take place, the strike of the housewives for recognition of services. People would go hungry, unclothed, untended when ill, homes would be dirty, and children would die of neglect. Most women of "no occupation" put in a hard day's work every day, Sundays included, and it is no eight-hour day either. This "housewife" spent seven years of unending work and care to save the life of a new vigorous Captain of Field Artillery just sailing to serve his country. Have I not thereby served my country, also? "No occupation," indeed! Isn't it about time that "Housewifery" with a big H should take its place as the honorable and necessary occupation which it is? ONE OF THEM.

CALLS PRESIDENT 'GOD-SENT LEADER'

Father Mulry Tells 10,000 at Field Mass Every American Should Be Proud of Him.

LASHES WILSON'S CRITICS

Says Christ's Mission Awaits America's Soldiers When They Get to France.

At the sixteenth annual military field mass for the nation's soldiers, sailors, and marines, who have died in the service of their country, which was sung on the grounds of the United States Naval Hospital in Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, the Rev. Father Joseph A. Mulry, S. J., President of Fordham University, who delivered the sermon, in the course of a glowing eulogy of President Wilson, referred to the President as a man anointed of God, in whose leadership "every true American" has reason to be proud.

The mass was attended by about 10,000 persons and was perhaps the most impressive since it was first inaugurated in the United States sixteen years ago by the late Father William H. I. Reaney, U. S. N., who was Dewey's Chaplain at the battle of Manila Bay. The celebrant was Monsignor John P. Chidwick, who was Chaplain of the old battleship Maine when that vessel was blown up in Havana Harbor in 1898.

The mass was held under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus and the Gloucester Camp of Spanish War Veterans. Hundreds of soldiers and sailors from cantonments near New York and battleships and other vessels now in New York waters attended. They were seated in front of the altar and addressing himself to them Father Mulry, holding aloft the crucifix, said:

"It will be God's glorious work that you men are to do over there. Christ died that men might be free, and a mission such as was His awaits you over there."

Following a reference to the mission of America in this war, a mission that Father Mulry said was holy, he paid his tribute to President Wilson.

"President Wilson," said Father Mulry, "is the God-sent leader of the American people. He has been delegated by God to be the means of spreading the principles of democracy, principles of Christian origin, to the Governments of Europe. The President is a man of wonderful vision, a man of superb intellectual acumen, of utter unselfishness. He is a leader to be proud of as well as to follow. What man knows but that the end of this war will see America the first nation of the world, with her great and honored President the leader of a world's democracy.

"There are, I am sorry to say, some men who for reasons of political ambition are wont to stir up doubt and distrust of those in authority in our country, through unjust criticism of our President. And they do these things at a time when the President is face to face with issues, which require a superhuman mind to understand, and a superhuman courage to grapple with. It would, indeed, be a miracle if no mistakes were made. It should be sufficient for him to have to deal with international complications and he should not be hampered in the carrying out of his great mission by the banterings of mischief-makers at home. If there ever was a time in our history when America needed unity that day is now.

"Patriotism is a wonderful and noble thing, but there must be behind our emotional patriotism an intellectual patriotism to back it up in this great crisis in our history. The principles back of the men whose memories we commemorate today was the principle of God in government, for after all Presidents and kings are but the agents of God in the direction of His people. This is the principle that is back of the Catholics of America in the war we wage today. Though we Catholics honor our President and look upon him as one of God's anointed, and at his call rushed eagerly to arms, still fundamentally the motive of Catholic patriotism is the voice of God speaking through the President.

"In the light of this principle a Catholic slacker is inconceivable, for to be a slacker would mean that he is disobedient to the voice of his Church and of his honor, and hence he would not be a practical Catholic. I have no sympathy for the general run of so-called conscientious objectors, for it is unfortunately a fact that in cases that are numberless their professions of conscientious objection are merely used as a cloak to hide a cowardice that is real.

"Not only are we as Catholics bound to send our boys to war, but we are also bound to aid in every way we can our Government in its prosecution of this war. Thousands of our boys will lie in unknown graves over there, but let us always keep in mind that those brave lads will not be unknown to our God."

Father Mulry closed with a plea for the Red Cross, and pointed out that Catholics should support it and all other deserving war organizations with the same enthusiasm that they support the great Catholic organization, the Knights of Columbus.

Father Mulry referred to the hundreds of thousands of Catholic young men who are in France or at home training for the overseas service. Fordham University alone has more than 800 of her young alumni in the army and navy, and of them Father Mulry said about 400 were already at the front.

Next Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock a second solemn high memorial field mass will be celebrated in Battery Park in honor of the soldier and sailor dead of the United States. The celebrant on that occasion will be Chaplain John J. Waring of the army, and the sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, Auxiliary Bishop of New York.

Judge Morgan J. O'Brien is Chairman of the Committee on Invitation, and the arrangements and decorations are in charge of a committee of women, of which Mrs. George Leary is the Chairman. Other members of this committee are Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mrs. De Lancey Kane, Mrs. Frederic R. Coudert, Mrs. John G. Agar, the Duchess de Richelieu, Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, and Mrs. Conde Nast.

means skin comfort for men, and skin comfort means better health and consequently greater efficiency in work or play. Hence at $5 to $6 the two-piece suit it is more economical than *under*wear at half the price.

What men wear over or next the skin is worthy of far greater consideration than most men give it. An AMHO garment is Body Clothing, and this phrase expresses the difference between mere underwear and a garment in which a man demonstrates his belief in body efficiency.

FRENCH HONOR FOR WILSON.

To be Elected to Academy of Moral and Political Science.

PARIS, May 26.—President Wilson and Cardinal Mercier, the Primate of Belgium, probably will be elected foreign members of the Academy of Moral and Political Science next month, according to the Echo de Paris. The election takes place on June 15.

The newspaper says that it is expected that both candidates will accept election.

Sons of Israel Cheer Wilson.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 26.—Pleas for a unity of purpose in affairs of organization and patriotic endeavor were made today by Grand Master Solan J. Liebskind of New York at the opening session of the triennial convention of the Grand Lodge of the United States of the Independent Order of the Free Sons of Israel. Delegates from all sections of the nation stood and cheered the name of Woodrow Wilson when the Grand Master mentioned him in his address. Dues and premiums of men in the service, or who enter into the war later, will be suspended for the duration of the war.

AUSTRIAN LEADERS DRIFTING

Political Muddles Reflected in Vienna Newspaper Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Between the lines of editorial comment in Vienna newspapers on the political situation in the Austrian Empire, received by the Government here and made public tonight, may be read the story of internal difficulties confronting political leaders in the Dual Monarchy.

Commenting on the fact that the Government had adjourned the Reichsrath, the Arbeiter Zeitung of May 4 says that this means that the "Government cannot master the difficulties facing it and runs away from them."

"It will learn," continues this newspaper, "sooner than is imaginable even in Austria, that the days of absolutism are past. What Seidler said in the conference of party leaders is the most stupid muttering that the Government ever pronounced. In any case adjournment is a death sentence to the Seidler Government. From today it is completely impossible."

The Arbeiter Zeitung made this comment on the Hungarian situation:

"While the Prussian Minister President declares that he will stand or fall with universal suffrage, the Hungarian Suffrage bill has become the object of revolting bargaining. Treason to suffrage ideals hides itself under the name of conciliation, conciliation with Tisza, the hater of democratic progress and universal suffrage reform. Wekerle is to consummate the conciliation.

"A character like his is only found in Hungary. A few years ago he allied himself with Andrassy and Apponyi. As long as a fight lasts he remains in the background. When the spoils are to be divided he comes forth."

Miss Sturges to Wed June 8.

The wedding of Miss Mary Cady Sturges, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Sturges of New York, and Captain James H. Frier, Jr., U. S. A., a son of Captain James Henry Frier, U. S. A., will take place on June 8 at the residence of the bride's parents, 116 East Thirty-sixth Street. Captain Frier was graduated from the United States Military Academy last year, and is stationed at Camp Merritt.

Miss Mary Groome Constable of Elkton, Md., and William Howard May of New York are to be married on June 8. Miss Constable is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Constable and a sister of Judge Albert Constable of Maryland. Mr. May, who was at one time General G. W. Goethals's private secretary, was later for three years United States Marshal in the Panama Canal Zone.

Miss Matilda Dodd to Wed June 1.

ORANGE, N. J., May 26.—Miss Matilda Elizabeth Dodd, daughter of Mrs. David Asa Dodd of Dodd Street, East Orange, will be married on Saturday evening at the home of her mother, to William Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark of Arlington. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. David O. Irving, pastor of Bethel Presbyterian Church, East Orange, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Stewart, pastor of the North Reformed Church of Newark.

Lethbridge-Cole.

ORANGE, N. J., May 26.—Announcement has been made of the wedding at Camp Dix on Thursday of Sergeant Edgar E. Lethbridge, son of ex-Assemblyman and Mrs. Edgar E. Lethbridge of Glenside Road, South Orange, to Miss Alice Vinal Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lee Cole of Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed by the chaplain, the Rev. James N. King.

Tipping-Shepard.

Ensign Robert Story Tipping, U. S. N. R., and Miss Helen Elizabeth Shepard, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Shepard of Highwood, Englewood, N. J., were married on Saturday noon in Grace Church Chantry, this city, by the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery.

Engagements.

The engagement is announced of Miss Elsie Flindell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Flindell of Summit, N. J., to Glenn A. Dowling of the aviation section of the United States Army, stationed at Ithaca, N. Y. Mr. Dowling was formerly the physical director of the Summit Y. M. C. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cole Smith of Bellows Falls, Vt., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Dunham Smith, to Lieutenant William L. Raymond, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson E. Raymond of Montclair, N. J. Lieutenant Raymond is stationed at Camp Gordon, Ga.

PARKHURST CHURCH CLOSES ITS DOORS

SEES MERGER A NECESSITY

The last service, under its present auspices, was held in the Madison Square Presbyterian Church yesterday morning, and the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst preached his last sermon as its pastor. The congregation has agreed upon a union with the University Place and Old First Presbyterian Churches, the united congregation to worship in the First Church edifice at Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street; and the pastors of the three bodies are to retire. The merger will formally be concluded during the Summer, but Dr. Parkhurst is leaving this week for his Summer home on Lake Placid, and yesterday's service was the last of the season. It has not yet been decided what disposition is to be made of the building.

Dr. Parkhurst's last sermon dealt not with the accomplishments of the old church, but with the task before the new—particularly with the responsibility which the amalgamated body assumes in staying with downtown districts which churches in recent years have tended to forsake.

"The general disposition of Presbyterians," he said, "has been to retreat from the lower sections of the city and to drift northward on the current of culture and wealth. But it is disloyalty to those who will by and by be resident in the territory extending from Thirty-fourth Street down to Washington Square not to anticipate the altering of conditions and to prepossess the ground by the establishment of a Christian stronghold so firmly established that the waves of a heterogeneous population shall be unable to wrest it from its foundations.

"There is one lesson taught by the example of Christ to the import of which the church has been to some extent singularly blind, and that is that the successful promotion of civilization is not to be secured by special efforts at Christianizing the refined and affluent classes. Christ's efforts were given to the people, the common people, for they are the basis of society. They compose the great bulk of our population; and in a democracy, especially, if we cannot deliver the great bulk we are lost.

"And the Gospel is the only expedient yet discovered capable of doing radical work. There are other appliances that will polish. The children of the lower districts go to school, most of them, which teaches them to be keen, and qualifies them to plot mischief, to break the laws without detection, to set loose restless ideas, and to talk revolution; all of that, if their characters are not anchored to some fixed underlying principles of thought and action. It is the revolt and the anarchy lurking on the inside of a man's soul that materializes in I. W. W.'s and Bolsheviki. And that situation is not to be met by schools, by legislation, or by State prisons.

"It is then with a view not so much to the immediate present as to what is certain to come in this lower part of the city that this merger of the three churches has been organized and a local habitat fixed for it at Twelfth Street. In its sphere the edifice will be like old Trinity at the head of Wall Street, which silently addresses the millionaires and the brokers in the words of our Lord, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness.'

Under Draft to Conquer Enemy.

"The enterprise will win out if there is sufficient intelligent, co-operative, consecrated Christian purpose and effort applied to its execution. The members of these three churches, including the ex-pastors, ought to consider themselves as under draft for the conquest of enemy territory.

"We would like to put into the pulpit of the Twelfth Street church a man who can preach like Chrysostom, Bourdaloue, or even Gabriel, and put into the choir-loft or chancel a choir that can sing like the angels. But it is not in that that the power of a church resides. It resides primarily in the souls of the men and women who occupy the pews. There is nothing to be gained by all this painful upsetting of present arrangements, unless by this means there is going to be created there an institution so alive with the power of God that it shall put an irresistible spiritual stamp upon the community in the midst of which it is placed; and that is to be done not by your amalgamated pastor as your representative and proxy, but by you who will be inherent constituents in the body of that church.

"The ex-pastors, all of them, I am confident, will want to be with you in it in just such capacity as the new pastor may prescribe, coming into it on the same level with yourselves; so that, while parting with one another so far as the pastoral relation is concerned, I shall be heart and soul with you."

Dr. Parkhurst took as his text Philippians, 1., 5—"Fellowship in the gospel." He said that man was naturally contentious and that fellowship had to be achieved by religion, and explained the episode of the Tower of Babel, in modern times, as meaning that "the ambitious people of Shinar undertook to build a city that in point of proportions should eclipse all contemporary cities, but that in the execution of the project individual ambitions or individual incompatibilities got the better of the corporate interest, issuing naturally in mutual enmities that dissolved the copartnership.

"It is a dreadfully sad story," he said later, "when we conceive what the world might today have become if all who bear the Christian name had been willing to stand close by one another, had each been spiritually competent to realize themselves as vitally knit with every other brother in the meshes of a single compact body, which is the church.

Must Get Together.

"The demand is get together, keep together, work together. Disintegrated church life operates to the disadvantage of the individual church in much the way that a member of the body would have its efficiency impaired by being separated from the body, and from the touch of the body's persuasive vitality.

"The sacrifice of our local identity as a church because of the merger now consummated must be viewed under that aspect. The sacrifice costs almost inexpressible pain, but instead of its working our extinction or diminution we enter more largely into the totality of church life. Maintained under proper conditions, the life of the amalgamated church will do more for its members than would be done for them while living in threefold isolation.

"All of this will result if the enterprise is entered into as an opportunity, not a cold necessity. The local church is at its best, but a mere fragment; and the more it is expanded, other things being equal, the more adequate becomes its experience of church reality and church efficiency. That is why denominational distinctions are bad; they frame the universal church of God into compartments, some of them airtight. Amalgamation stands for something, therefore; something precious, something near the heart of Christ. For it means looking upon holy matters and relations in a larger way; moving from a spot—a very dear and beautiful spot—but moving from a spot into an area; putting the emphasis on limitations that are less limited, drawing into a wider and more richly peopled Christian environment.

"Successfully achieved, there are other instances of closely localized piety that will follow our example, or ought to. What is well done here is proof that it can be well done elsewhere, at least under similar conditions. But in order that it may be well done here it must be done at the impulse of a unanimous spirit of devout co-operation, and motived by the clear assurance of its being a pronounced step toward the realization of the church ideal."

DOWNED 24 AUSTRIANS.

British Airmen in Italy Uniformly Victorious Since May 18.

LONDON, May 26. — Twenty-four enemy airplanes have been destroyed by the British in air fighting on the Italian front since May 18, it was officially announced today in a summary of recent operations by the British forces in Italy. Not a British machine was lost in this period.

"The situation generally is quiet," the statement says. "We successfully raided enemy outposts both day and night. The hostile artillery occasionally has been slightly more active.

"Since May 18 the Royal Air Force has carried out numerous reconnaissances far behind the enemy lines and collected much useful information. Many bombs were dropped on enemy hutments and dumps. In the air fighting since May 18 twenty-four airplanes were destroyed, and one enemy observation balloon burned. During this period we have not lost a single machine."

YALE MEN OFFER DAMAGES.

Council Would Pay for Paraders' Outbreak in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 26.—A resolution adopted by the Student Council of the academic department at Yale, expressing a desire to maintain friendly relations between the college and city, and to pay for any property damage resulting from the riotous outbreak of undergraduates on the night of May 20, was made public tonight by the Student Council. It is understood that similar action will be taken shortly by the Student Council of the Sheffield Scientific School. The resolution reads:

"Whereas, It is the earnest desire of the students of Yale College to preserve and increase the friendly relationship between the college and citizens of New Haven, be it

"Resolved, That a sum of money, contributed by the participants in the parade of Monday, May 20, be given to the officials of New Haven to cover any damage of property that resulted from action of the paraders. It is further desired that any balance after such payment be donated to the Red Cross."

FETE IN GRAMERCY PARK.

The old-fashioned garden party to be held tomorrow afternoon and evening in Gramercy Park for the benefit of the 307th Regimental Family Unit not only marks the opening for the first time in its long history of that private park to the public, but it also opens the Players' and the National Arts Club houses, and tea and dancing indoors will be added to the outdoor attractions. Colonel De Witt Clinton Falls of the new 7th Regiment has detailed twenty-five soldiers to patrol the park, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Military Band will play, and the Glee Club is to sing. There are to be drills in the afternoon by the Junior Police and Captain Boyce's Tigers. Electric lights will be strung over the park in the evening, so it will be brilliantly lighted.

E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff, Robert Underwood Johnson, Edwin Markham, and others are to recite or read, and the Lambs Club is to give an impromptu entertainment, George Howell being the master of ceremonies. The Players will be represented by Dr. Norman Guthrie, Henry E. Dixey, C. Clifford Walker and others.

Tables laden with old-time home-made cakes made with honey, molasses, or brown sugar, and candies and flowers will be among the things on sale.

Among those interested in the entertainment are Miss Grace Bigelow, Mrs. Henry Bartol, Mrs. Robert G. Ingersoll, Mrs. C. W. Cooper, Mrs. E. R. Hewitt, Mrs. J. A. O'Green, Mrs. George Zabriskie, Mrs. Walston Hill Brown, Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff, Mrs. S. P. Blagden, Mrs. Dudley Davis, Mrs. Isaac Erwin, Mrs. G. W. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, who are touring, arrived at the Red Lion Inn.

PLAN BOYS' CAMP FOR JULY.

Commission Will Select 1,300 for Training Under Welsh Act.

ALBANY, May 26.—A training camp for boys to be conducted during July under the Slater-Welsh Compulsory Military Training law was announced today by the State Military Training Commission. The camp will be somewhat similar to the training camp conducted by the commission last Summer at Peekskill. This year it will be conducted at the former State rifle range at Blauvelt, Rockland County, in Palisades Interstate Park. It will be known as Camp Bluefields.

The camp will be opened to 1,300 boys, 16, 17, and 18 years of age, during July, of whom 100 will compose the band and field music detachment. The 1,300 boys will be selected from all parts of the State. It is planned to accept at least one cadet from each group of employed boys who have been drilling during the last year, and not to exceed ten boys from the unorganized territory of each of the six military training zones of the State. There will be no expense to the boys in getting to and from the camp or while at camp.

OPEN GREENBRIER COTTAGES

Summer Visitors Are Expected Earlier Than Usual.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 26.—Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo and her family will arrive tomorrow to open Hawley Cottage for the Summer. Many cottagers are opening their Summer homes early this season, because of the wave of warm weather.

Henry Gennert of New York has come to visit Seth Sprague and Dr. John Freeland, who were recently in Louisville to attend the Derby. Motion pictures of the races were shown in the ballroom last evening.

Mrs. Ernest E. Smathers of New York, who was here earlier in the season, arrived this morning with her daughter, Miss Virginia Smathers, who has just finished her third course at Miss Spence's School. Miss Lilly Croeger came to be with Mrs. Philip Lehman. Mr. Lehman starts tonight for New York, having curtailed his vacation because of the war.

William A. Dickey of Kansas City came to be with Mrs. Dickey and Miss Madeline Dickey. A. Lee Robinson is here from Louisville. Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Campbell of Crofton, Penn.; Edward S. Buckley, 3d., of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Slade of Chicago; Mrs. G. B. Heinerman of Wausau, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Rosenthal of Chicago are other arrivals here today.

Miss Ethel Dupont Barksdale of Wilmington, who rides daily, went along Greenbrier River this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schlessinger took a party to Organ Cave. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Winterbotham of Chicago drove to Elmhurst Farm.

NOTES OF NEWPORT SOCIETY

NEWPORT, R. I., May 26.—The Red Cross Committee has received $70,000, which is $15,000 more than the Newport quota. An effort is being made to reach $100,000 by noon tomorrow. Dime day at Newport Beach in charge of Miss Helen Weaver, netted $900 yesterday.

Lieutenant Guy Norman, U. S. N., formerly Rhode Island State Senator, who has been on important sea service since the war, went to Boston today, accompanied by Mrs. Norman, and will undergo an operation tomorrow at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The birthday anniversary of the late Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," was observed at the Art Association today. A reunion of Mrs. Howe's children—Dr. Henry M. Howe, Mrs. Henry Richards, Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, and Mrs. David Prescott Hall—at Oak Glen preceded the largely attended services.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Laurens Van Alen will arrive at Wakehurst tomorrow, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. C. Taylor of New York are expected later in the week.

Killed Under Taxi in Garage.

Matthew Kenny, 40 years old, of 106 Franklin Street, Astoria, employed by the Cadillac Taxicab Company as a chauffeur, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when he and his cab plunged down the elevator shaft from the fifth floor of the company's garage, 142 East Thirty-first Street. The elevator was at the sixth floor at the time, and Kenny drove the car to the elevator shaft with the intention of stopping, but it is believed that he misjudged the distance.

BAD MEAT SALES CHARGED BY ARMY

It is understood that one consignment of meats in question totaled about 11,000 pounds and that this was only part of the total amount which was involved.

None of the meat, it is said, was offered or received by the army mess. The first action toward condemning meat, it is said, was taken by two officers stationed at Camp Travis, and involved the officers' mess.

The question of the available storage facilities at Camp Travis has come up in the course of the investigations.

MORRIS BLAMES RAILROADS.

Head of Wilson & Co. Declares Charges Malicious.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Officials of Morris & Co. and Wilson & Co. refused to accept responsibility for the sale of tainted meat and other products to an army cantonment in Texas, as charged by the Federal Trade Commission, today. Each firm declared that its products were carefully examined by inspectors from the Army and Navy Departments immediately before shipping, and that if any food was allowed to spoil it is due to the railroads.

"Because of the general upset condition of the railroads," said Edward Morris, Jr., President of Morris & Co., "we are not receiving proper freight treatment. They cannot give us enough refrigerator cars, and those they do give are improperly iced. Complaints like this, frequent of late, we can only refer to the transportation system."

Thomas E. Wilson, President of Wilson & Co., said:

"The accusations made in the statement attributed to the Federal Trade Commission are vague, but their vagueness gives them an aspect which will mislead the public—and that is evidently the object. This being Sunday, I have only been able to make a rapid investigation, but this time has been sufficient to show that there are not the slightest grounds for such charges against Wilson & Co.

"When this whole matter is sifted down it will be found that there is an impulse of malice behind it upon the public mind.

"I certainly must condemn the malicious intent veiled in such reckless charges at this time, against this part of an industry which is doing everything it can, day and night, to serve the people and the army and the whole country—and is praised for its work every day. The Government officials having charge of the purchase and distribution of these foods for the army will bear me out in what I have said."

MAITLAND ARMSTRONG, ARTIST, DIES AT 82

Maitland Armstrong, one of the best known of the older generation of American artists, died yesterday at his home, 58 West Tenth Street, in his eighty-third year from complications due to his advanced age. One of the men whose ideas gave the city the Metropolitan Museum of Art, a pioneer member of the Century Club, and a contemporary of John La Farge and Stanford White Mr. Armstrong was widely known for his work in and encouragement of American stained glass.

Born in Newburg, N. Y., he was graduated from Trinity College, which, in 1858, awarded him the degree of Master of Arts. Mr. Armstrong was admitted to the bar, but, after a few years of practice, he went to Rome to improve a natural bent toward painting. A period of study in Rome was followed by a course under Luc Olivier Merson in Paris. Acquaintances he formed while in Paris caused him to become interested in diplomacy, and when he returned to this country he found that friends had obtained the Consul Generalship at Rome for him. He held that post four years.

When the formation of the Paris Exposition of 1878 was begun Mr. Armstrong was appointed Director of the American Department. For his efforts he was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. He was one of the first to support the idea which later developed into the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893.

The future of stained glass next engaged his attention and, it was said yesterday, that it was due largely to Mr. Armstrong's inventions that American glass, of the opalescent variety, became practical as well as artistic. Among the notable glass works he designed were the series in the chapel at Biltmore, George Vanderbilt's North Carolina estate; the windows in the Columbia University chapel, and the medieval series in the home of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

In 1866 Mr. Armstrong married Miss Helen Neilson, niece of the late Hamilton Fish. A year ago last Fall they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Besides his widow he is survived by three daughters and two sons. They are the Misses Margaret and Helen Armstrong, Mrs. Alfred Edey, wife of the broker; Noel Maitland Armstrong, and Lieutenant Hamilton Fish Armstrong, U. S. A.

DANIEL BUTLER FEARING DROPS DEAD IN NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., May 26.—As he was giving final directions for a Red Cross concert by a battalion of sailors from the Naval Training Station at Newport Beach this afternoon, ex-Mayor Daniel Butler Fearing of Newport dropped dead. Mrs. Fearing was standing near him when he collapsed. Several thousand persons were at the beach, and when his death was announced the singing festival was called off and the audience dismissed.

Mr. Fearing had done much to promote the welfare of this place as a resort, and was as well known in New York, where he was a member of a number of clubs. His late home in Annandale Road is one of the finest residences in Newport. In it Mr. Fearing kept his famous collection of books on angling.

He was born in Newport, Aug. 14, 1859, a son of Henry Seymour and Serena Mason Jones Fearing. He attended St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass., and was graduated from Harvard in 1882, receiving an honorary degree of Master of Arts in 1911. His father, who had been a leading New York banker, left his entire estate to his son upon his death. In 1910 he was appointed to the Inland Fisheries Commission. He became Vice President of the commission in 1912, and at the time of his death was President.

Mr. Fearing was Vice President of the American Fisheries Society, a member of the Fly Fishers' Club of London and the Somerset Club of Odd Volumes. He was a member of the New York Yacht Club, the American Museum of Natural History, the Asiatic Society of Japan, the Miantonomi Club of Newport and the Knickerbocker, Union, Grolier, Manhattan, Players and Lambs of New York. He was a Mason.

Mr. Fearing married a Miss Woodhull of New York in 1887. She died April 16, 1906. On June 22, 1912, Mr. Fearing married Miss Charlotte Strong of New York, a relative of his first wife. He had no children.

DR. JOHANNES KAEMPF DEAD

Speaker of Reichstag Was Advocate of Ruthless Submarine Warfare.

AMSTERDAM, May 26.—Dr. Johannes Kaempf, Speaker of the German Reichstag, died on Saturday, it is announced in a Berlin telegram today.

Dr. Kaempf, who was 76 years old, was Speaker of the Reichstag at the beginning of the European war in 1914, having been elected to that office two years previously, and continued to hold it up to the time of his death. At the beginning of the ruthless submarine warfare, in February, 1917, he declared in a speech at the opening of the Reichstag that Germany was justified in using her submarine weapon unrestrictedly and that she should not lay it down until her war aims were accomplished.

WITH SIXTEEN HITS YANKS CLINCH GAME

BAKER HAS PERFECT DAY

Gets Four Singles in as Many Chances, and Leads Team to One-Sided Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, May 26.—The New York Yankees piled up a flock of runs in the fourth and fifth innings here this afternoon, establishing a lead the Cleveland Indians never could overcome, and the Yankees won the game, 9 to 3. It was not a 24-carat exhibition of the national pastime.

The New Yorkers landed hard and often on the offerings of Enzmann, Groom, and Coumbe, making sixteen hits altogether. No member of the New York outfit went hitless and they were led by Frank Baker, who had four hits in his four times at the bat.

Enzmann did not look good from the start, and Manager Fohl had to yank him in the fourth. The Yanks started right off with two hits in the first inning, but were kept runless, a snappy double play cutting off any chance to tally.

In the fourth came the trouble. Baker singled and so did Pratt. Pipp hit to Enzmann, who got Baker at third. Bodie forced Pipp by his grounder to Chapman, but when Chapman threw wildly to the plate, Pratt scored, Bodie going to second. Pipp stole third. Elmer singled, scoring Bodie. Walters doubled to right, scoring Miller. Then Groom replaced Enzmann. Caldwell singled, scoring Walters. Gilhooley grounded out to Ed Miller. The inning was over, with five hits sending in four runs.

There was more in the fifth. Peckinpaugh made his third single. Baker singled. Pratt sacrificed, Ed Miller to Wambsganss. Wamby then threw out Peck at the plate, when Pipp grounded to the Cleveland second baseman. Bodie singled, scoring Baker. Elmer Miller sent a fly almost straight up in the air. It should have been an easy out, but Chapman let it go right through his fingers, Pipp and Bodie scoring. Then Wamby threw out Walters, but New York had made three more runs, this time on three hits and an error.

Coumbe replaced Groom in the seventh, and the Yanks landed on him in the ninth, when they did not need the runs. Baker singled, Pratt walked; Pipp singled, scoring Baker; Bodie sacrificed and Pratt scored. Elmer Miller lined to Ed Miller, and Walter hit into a double play, and there were two more runs across for a grand total of nine for New York.

A glaring error by Elmer Miller gave Cleveland the chance to score its first run. Speaker and Roth had flied out when Wamby doubled to centre. Joe Wood lifted a high fly to Elmer Miller. It was an easy one, but Miller muffed it and Wamby scored. Then Hall flied to Bodie. In the seventh Wamby walked. So did Wood. Hall doubled to right, scoring Wamby. Baker took O'Neill's grounder, and threw Wood out at the plate. Williams batted for Groom, and flied to Baker. Ed Miller singled to left, but Bodie got Hall at the plate on a nice throw.

The third Cleveland run was presented to Cleveland in the ninth. Hall singled. Caldwell let him steal second and third. Pratt threw out O'Neill. Coumbe flied to Peckinpaugh. Ed Miller singled, scoring Hall. Caldwell let Ed Miller steal second, and was letting him steal third when Chapman grounded out to Pratt and the game was over.

GIANTS BOW BEFORE VAUGHN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The baffling curves of the mammoth Jim Vaughn caused the downfall of the Giants in the second game of the series today, the Cubs slamming their way to a 5 to 1 victory over McGraw's team. Harry Sallee was on the hill for New York, but it was plainly not the Slim Sheriff's day. He yielded thirteen hits, issued two passes to first, and cut loose a wild pitch that figured in the scoring of one of the Cubs' runs. Twenty-five thousand fans filled the stands and draped themselves around the field, making ground rules necessary.

Two of the Giants' four hits were garnered in the first inning, and these, mixed with an infield out, resulted in their lone run. Young cracked the first ball pitched to centre for a single, and Kauff's out on a grounder to Zeider put Young on second. Burns expired on strikes, but Zimmerman belted a single to centre, scoring Young. Thereafter the Giants were powerless before the big southpaw.

The Cubs tied the score in the third inning. Vaughn, who made three hits during the afternoon, smashed a hot drive through Zimmerman for a base and moved around to the far corner on Flack's double into the crowd along the right field wall. Hollocher's single to centre scored Vaughn.

The big blow-off came in the fifth, in which inning Sallee was reached for four hits, which, with a base on balls, gave the Cubs three runs. Killifer began the bombardment with a double down the left field foul line and Vaughn singled to centre, putting Killifer on third. Flack was thrown out by Fletcher, who lost a chance for a double play by fumbling the ball momentarily, Killifer holding third. Hollocher singled to right, scoring Killifer, and Vaughn raced in when Young fumbled the ball. Hollocher stole second, and Mann worked Sallee for a pass. Merkle hit to Zimmerman, who stepped on third, forcing Hollocher, but Paskert doubled into the crowd in right field, scoring Mann.

AMES'S HIT BEATS DODGERS

Veteran Pitcher Gets Timely Single in Contest.

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—The veteran Leon Ames inserted one of his rare safe drives into the game between the Cardinals and Dodgers at a most opportune time here today and helped thereby to bring victory to the home contingent by the close margin of 2 to 1. It was in the sixth inning of the contest, and with the score tied, that Ames decided that it was about time he solved the raging batting question. Marty Kavanagh was on third, following his single and a safe drive by Gonzales when Ames shattered the hopes of Dan Griner, the Brooklyn pitcher, by hammering the ball to uninhabited territory.

Brooklyn fought an uphill battle all the way as the Cardinals registered a run in the second inning. The Dodgers tied it in the third when Daubert made the tour of the bases following his single. Ames, however, never gave the visitors another chance to register, notwithstanding that Zach Wheat tripled. Griner was in lots of trouble during the game, but managed to weather each storm until Ames became uproarious in the sixth.

The defeat gave Brooklyn undisputed possession of last place and shoved the Cardinals one notch ahead.

RAY FISHER AGAIN SHINES ON MOUND

Ray Fisher, heretofore well known as a Yankee pitcher, but now a soldier in training at Fort Slocum, made a triumphal return to the Polo Grounds yesterday after an extended absence. Fisher led the Fort Slocum baseball nine, composed of minor league players principally, in a brilliant victory against the 349th Field Artillery baseball battalion from Camp Dix. The final score favored Fort Slocum by 5 to 0, and from start to finish of the game Fisher's work awakened memories of those days when he was heaving them over the plate for the Yankees.

The baseball contest was the leading attraction of an afternoon that was just chock-a-block with interesting happenings. The performances were arranged by authorities of Camp Dix, Fort Slocum, and the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. to replenish the athletic activities funds of the three organizations. The crowd was not up to expectations, despite the fact that about 8,000 were on hand, but, nevertheless, it is understood the financial returns were encouraging.

Track and field events and amateur boxing bouts were added to the baseball game to make up the afternoon's program, and the sport captivated the crowd from beginning to end. Prominent A. A. U. athletes gave of their efforts, and champion boxers did likewise.

The greatest interest centred in the reappearance of Fisher, still as a baseball player, but primarily as one of the nation's defenders. He looked the same as ever and his pitching ability has not suffered through his training as a soldier. This fact he implanted in the minds of the colored players from Camp Dix without any unnecessary waste of time. In that 5 to 0 victory for Fisher and his soldier players there was plenty of evidence of the former Yankee star's ability. He got off to a bad start, walking two men in the first inning, but he ended the inning by fanning two others, and thereafter there was never any danger of an assault of serious proportions.

Fisher's rival on the mound was one Abrams, who went sailing through the first frame, but in the second struck a snag. The ambitious Abrams was thumped to various parts of the field for five hits and these, with judicious base running, two passes, and a sprinkling of errors, caused the banishment of Abrams to left field, while Hubbard came in from this position to pitch.

Thereafter Hubbard twirled an excellent game, fanning fourteen Fort Slocum players and preventing a single hit being made off his delivery. Fisher allowed only four hits and fanned seven. Two brilliant plays were registered by Fort Slocum men, one, a catch of a hard hit fly, in the seventh, which Brandt caught off the bat of Franklin, and the other, a good stop of a bad grounder by Sturquel, off Allen's bat, in the eighth.

The leading athletic performance was returned by Charley Pores of Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, former senior metropolitan cross-country champion, in winning the two-mile handicap run from scratch. A field of forty distancers started in this event against Pores, and Eddie Mayo of Fort Slocum, also on scratch. Pores came through with an excellent race and won in a hard-fought finish with J. McCabe, a fellow sailor, by about one yard, in 9:51 1-5. The little sailor runner went into the lead three laps from the start and set a pace thereafter that forced the majority of the starters to retire. Mayo found the going too hard and retired in the sixth lap.

The outstanding event in the boxing exhibitions was the defeat of Louis Aldrin, New York State champion at 145 pounds, at the hands of Dave Rosenberg, unattached. The boxers were opponents in the 140-pound class, and Rosenberg gained the judges' award in three rounds.

TRIPLE PLAY STOPS REDS.

CINCINNATI, May 26.—A batting rally off Schneider gave Philadelphia today's contest in the eighth inning by 4 to 3. A triple play prevented Cincinnati from tying or winning in the last half of the eighth. Watson relieved Hogg and was hit for a three-bagger by Wingo. He scored on Bressler's single. Groh singled, and with men on first and second, L. Magee lined to Bancroft, who stepped on second, retiring Bressler, and threw to first in time to retire Groh.

SOUTHPAWS UPHOLD YANKS

Thormahlen, Mogridge, and Love Carry Pitching Burden.

Just as the Giants were carried to a pennant last season by southpaw pitching, the Yankees this season are being kept in the American League pennant race by three lefthanders—Thormahlen, Mogridge, and Love. Russell is the only righthander on the Yankee staff, who is shouldering his share of the burden. During the last week the Yanks dropped from second place to fourth and then jumped back into second place again Saturday. For a club whose pitching staff is not up to normal strength the Yanks have been playing great ball to stay up in front in the closest and most exciting pennant race the American League has had for several seasons.

Boston, New York, Cleveland, St. Louis, and Chicago are crowding each other hard. The spurt of the St. Louis Browns was the feature of last week, for they won five games and lost only one. The Yanks deserve a lot of credit for their ability to stay up with the leaders. They broke even on the week, winning two and losing the same number. Cleveland won two out of five, while the champion White Sox had a bad week, losing four out of six games played.

The Yankees will observe Red Cross day at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. All soldiers and sailors will be admitted free, and there will be a parade of Red Cross nurses before the game. Several field events have also been arranged, including fungo hitting and running the bases. Prizes have been offered by Pat Kyne for the winners of these events. President Ruppert of the Yanks is contributing 10 per cent. of the Cleveland series to the Red Cross.

Up to yesterday the Giants' tour of the West could not be regarded as a howling success. They have won five games and lost seven, and their hardest task still confronts them in Chicago. The uncertainty of the game was never more plainly demonstrated than in the complete change in the Giants' possibilities in the last few weeks.

Jess Barnes, who was a much-needed addition to the right-handed branch of the pitching staff, has been called to the colors. Benny Kauff and Rube Benton are pretty sure to go soon, and Larry Doyle is out of the game, no one knows for how long, and McGraw's star hurler, Ferdie Schupp, is still laid up with a bad arm. Even before the general destruction of baseball clubs arrives on July 1, it may come to pass that the Giants will have been toppled out of first place.

The Giants were lucky to get in their three victories and one defeat last week, and two postponements by rain undoubtedly saved them a lot of trouble. Cincinnati is going at a great clip and won four out of six games, while Chicago won three out of five.

The announcement from Washington that all the ball players between the ages of 21 and 30 may be forced to take up some form of war work on July 1 has all the club owners at sea about their plans. While many of them announced at once that it would mean the closing up of the parks, it is not likely that the baseball people will fail to make some effort to get together clubs made up of players under and over the draft age.

While it is doubtful whether there are enough players of this sort available, some of the club owners believe they ought to continue to play anyway to protect their big baseball investments. It is true that it would mean a very inferior standard of major league baseball, but it would keep the gates open. Some of the club owners are already considering the plan of calling back into the game all the veterans who have retired within the last half dozen years. They figure that clubs made up of a combination of old timers and youngsters would solve the problem of preventing the baseball season from becoming a total loss.

RENZ TAKES LONG WALK.

Eddie Renz of the New York A. C., former seven-mile national walking champion, yesterday won the fifteen-mile patriotic walking event held at Macomb's Dam Park under the auspices of the Walkers' Club of America. Renz, against a field of twenty-two local pedestrians, easily proved the best, and covered the finish line more than one lap ahead of his nearest rival in 2:13:51 4-5. Louis Labowitz of the Pastime A. C., a twenty-year-old pedestrian, finished second in 2:15:28 1-5, while William Macfadden, New York A. C., was third.

Of the twenty-two walkers who started, all but two completed the full distance.

Edward Renz, New York A. C., 2:13:51 4-5; Louis Labowitz, Pastime A. C., 2:15:28 1-5; William Macfadden, New York A. C., 2:18:08 3-5; Panos Anthony, Pastime A. C., 2:20:40 3-5; W. C. Redoy, Pastime A. C., 2:30:52 2-5; W. J. Allen, Pastime A. C., 2:31:10 3-5; Alexander Jessup, Walkers' Club of America, 2:32:56 3-5; W. S. Martin, Pennant A. C., 2:36:10 2-5; Gus A. Braunlich, Walkers' Club of America, 2:38:06 1-5; D. Dunne, Walkers' Club of America, 2:40:34; I. E. Coleman, Walkers' Club of America, 2:53:38; Alexander Kehaya, New York Military Academy, 3:13:51 4-5.

SPEEDWAY RACES DECISIVE.

Winners of Harness Events Register Victories in Straight Heats.

Straight heat victories again were the rule at the fourth Spring matinée of the Road Drivers' Association on the Harlem Speedway yesterday. In only one event did the drivers go more than two heats, the other four being won convincingly. The exception came in the 1:10 trotting and pacing class, in which A. Bruno's bay gelding Bruno was successful, after finishing in front in the first and third heats. Bessie Baron, E. Carpenter's brown mare, opposed the Bruno horse, and won the second heat.

NORSE GIRL'S SKILL TURNS THE SCALES

A galaxy of tennis stars competed in the series of special matches at the County Tennis Club of Westchester at Hartsdale yesterday afternoon. One of the most interesting court duels was in the mixed doubles. On one side were Miss Molla Bjurstedt, holder of the women's national championship, and Fredrick B. Alexander, the former internationalist, while opposing them were Mrs. Edward Raymond, former holder of the women's metropolitan championship, and Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh, who is the national junior champion. Miss Bjurstedt and Alexander succeeded in winning in straight sets with the score 6—3, 6—4.

Miss Bjurstedt was in top form and showed a resourcefulness in doubles that indicated a steadily increasing ability in this type of game. There was more crispness than is usually the case, and with Alexander playing with his accustomed dash the rival pair found that there was opposed to them a remarkably efficient team. In view of the manner in which Garland succeeded in defeating Alexander in a match at the West Side Club on Saturday, his play of yesterday was not quite up to the standard expected. He was steady, but lacked that degree of brilliancy in stroking that is usually a striking factor in his work on the courts. The Pittsburgh youth was really the weak link, for Mrs. Raymond's play was clever, and she had many an ace to the credit of her sweeping forehand drives.

Having disposed of Mrs. Raymond and Garland, Miss Bjurstedt and Alexander played against another rival pair of acknowledged strength, Miss Florence Ballin and William T. Tilden, 2d, both expert racquet wielders in mixed doubles. Tilden, in fact, was twice holder of the national mixed doubles championship with Miss Mary Browne. Once again the victory rested with Miss Bjurstedt and Alexander, the score in this instance being 6—3, 6—4. This match was a merry contest from start to finish. The Norse girl and Alexander played more consistently, crowding in at the net whenever the opportunity afforded, and finishing off the points with fine volleys or smashes.

The only three-set match of the day was in the men's doubles. Alexander, after having already played four sets, paired with Tilden in a men's doubles match and scored a victory over the Yale team of Garland and E. Hamill. Tilden actually played through only one set and a part of the second. When the score was 4 all in the second clash he was forced to leave to catch a train, and George Walker, Jr., took his place. The score of the match was 6—0, 4—6, 6—2.

VETERAN VICTOR AT TENNIS.

Beals Wright Triumphs at Singles and Doubles.

Beals Wright, former national singles champion, showed much of his old-time skill on the tennis courts when he competed in two matches at the Kings County Tennis Club yesterday. In singles he defeated Frederick G. Anderson at 6—2, 3—6, 6—3, and, paired with Dr. Morganthaler in doubles, won from Frank Ogilvie and C. Burrows at 6—2, 6—3. In the singles match Wright was at his best. His sharp net game was working effectively when he tackled Anderson, and the latter fell an easy victim in the opening clash. By dint of some pretty passing shots which caught Wright a bit out of position, Anderson succeeded in winning his way through the second set, and then ensued a sharp battle for the honors in the decisive set.

Wright put more sting in his shots and placed so well that he was able to make the run for the net without being caught off guard by the passing shots of his opponent. Once at the barrier, his play was almost invincible. Anderson tried hard to break through to victory, and some sparkling rallies were the result, but always Wright seemed to have the upper hand, and after he had gone into a lead of 5—3, there was little that Anderson could do to halt his progress toward the final honors.

Two other matches were played. Two of the Anderson brothers, Fred and Frank, teamed up as partners with the Donaldson brothers, Gerald, Jr., and Cecil. This junior competition furnished one of the most interesting contests of the day. Fred Anderson and Gerald Donaldson were the ultimate winners, but they were carried along to a score of 11—9 before winning the decision. The score of the entire match was 0—6, 6—1, 11—9.

In a mixed doubles match the former metropolitan mixed doubles title holders, Miss Marie Wagner and Henry Mollenhauer, triumphed over Miss Eleanor Goss and Charles Chambers at 6—4, 6—4. The play of the women was the outstanding feature of the competition, there being some spirited duels between them.

KRAMER DEFEATED IN RACE.

NEWARK, May 26.—Members of the Newark Police Department collected more than $1,200 from the bicycle patrons of the Velodrome today for the American Red Cross fund. While the police band played the officers went through the crowd collecting, led by Captain James A. McRell.

Willie Spencer, a brother of Arthur, who is the national cycling champion, pulled a great surprise by defeating Frank L. Kramer in two straight heats of a one mile match. Spencer was not looked upon to have a chance against Kramer, and the race was only put on when Spencer agreed that the winner should take the entire purse.

In the semi-finals of the Grand Prize of Newark, Kramer, Arthur Spencer, and Bob Spears qualified for the final, which will be decided on Decoration Day. The two-mile Class A invitation, in which the twelve best riders at the track started, was won by Alf Grenda. George Wiley won the half-mile handicap and John Bedell the miss-and-out invitation.

The two-third-mile handicap for amateurs went to Max Halpern of the Century Road Club Association. Gus Lang won the two-mile open for the simon pures.

White Wins War Stamps.

L. E. K. White won the principal prize, two $5 War Savings Stamps, for the best gross score returned in the Red Cross tournament yesterday at the Wheatley Hills Golf Club. White's card showed a 92 for the round. The prize for leading net score, one $5 War Saving Stamp, went to Dr. Joseph H. Holman, whose card showed 98, 28—70.

WILLIAMS BEATS MRS. GAVIN

Even though she played more like herself than she has done so far this season, Mrs. W. A. Gavin, Metropolitan title holder, was unable to win her handicap match with Jack Williams on the links of the Piping Rock Club yesterday. The winner's margin was 6 and 5. The Englishwoman made the round in 93, but Williams, who was steady as a rock, had a 76 to his credit. He made the first nine holes in 36, par figures, but four 5s on the inward journey gave him a 40.

Be it said, however, that the object of the match, which was to raise money for the Red Cross, was attained, as more than $1,000 was collected from the large gallery which followed the players.

The Englishwoman was conceded the usual nine strokes, taking them at the first, fourth, sixth, seventh, and eighth going out, and at the tenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, and eighteenth coming home. As the match ended on the thirteenth green, however, she really used only six of her strokes.

Mrs. Gavin's best hole was probably the seventeenth, one of the bye holes. This is 143 yards long, and her drive got on the green near enough to the cup to enable her to run down her putt for a 2, whereas Williams needed two putts and took a 3.

The professional won the first two holes, and Mrs. Gavin the third, but her opponent made the next four in one over 4s. He also won the ninth, and turned for home 5 up. Aided by her stroke, Mrs. Gavin won the tenth, but Williams won the eleventh and the thirteenth, when the Englishwoman needed three putts and took 7 for the hole.

Williams, out..3 4 4 4 4 5 4 5 3—36
Mrs.Gavin,out.*5 7 3 *8 5 *7 *6 *5 4—48
Williams, in...5 3 5 4 6 5 4 3 5—40—76

REACH OAKLAND GOLF FINAL

Play in two Red Cross tournaments was continued yesterday on the links of the Oakland Golf Club. In the semi-finals of the first of these events R. S. Courtney defeated S. A. Salvage by 1 up in 19 holes, and S. B. Thorne defeated J. B. Taylor 3 up and 2 to play.

The first round at match play was decided in the event in which the qualifying round was played the week previous.

The results follow:

NEW YORK ELEVEN VICTOR.

Having lost to Bethlehem in the cup tie final at Pawtucket on Saturday, the Babcock & Wilcox soccer eleven yesterday took on the team of the New York Football Club at Lenox Oval. New York won by the score of 2 goals to 1. The first half ended without a score on either side.

Fifteen minutes after the restart, a penalty was given against Half Back Clarke of the visiting team, and Hunziker negotiated the net with a shot that turned in after striking the cross bar. Hunziker also headed in the second goal from a well-placed kick by Meyerdirks.

The line-up:

New York. (2.)	Position.	Babcock & W. (1.)
Ferro	G.	Kesson
Vandeweghe	R. B.	Napier
McWilliams	L. B.	Lance
Meyerdirks	R. H.	Aitken

Goals—New York: Hunziker, (2;) Babcock & Wilcox: Holder. Time—Halves of 45 minutes. Referee—G. Caldicott. Linesmen—J. Burroughs and T. Jones.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 26.—The Clan MacDuff soccer team of New York today administered the first defeat sustained by the Bridgeport City eleven in a New York State League game this season, by the score of 2 goals to 1. Bridgeport led at half time, thanks to a well earned goal by Stanton, but McKenna equalized ten minutes after the restart. Salmond, former Yonkers star, shot the winning goal ten minutes later. The league championship will depend upon the return match soon to be played in New York.

Defeating the Fulton F. C. by 3 goals to 1, at Woodside, L. I., the Interborough R. T. soccer eleven gained two points in the State League series. At half time the railroaders had established a lead of 3 to 1.

Paterson retained the lead in the National Football League, two points ahead of Bethlehem, by defeating the Scottish Americans by 4 goals to 3, at Clark's Athletic Field in Newark. Hayes shot three goals and Casey one for Paterson.

Bassford Gains Brooklyn Title.

Abraham Bassford 3d gained the boys' tennis championship of Brooklyn yesterday morning at the Terrace Club when he defeated Cecil Donaldson in straight sets with the score 6—4, 6—4, 6—2.

GOLF PROS MASTER AMATEUR LINKSMEN

Jim Barnes and Tom McNamara had to work hard to finish on the winning side of a four-ball golf match against Jerome Travers and Max Marston at the Greenwich Country Club yesterday. When the eighteen holes had been played the opposing sides were found to be all square, but the "pros" won at the nineteenth. Like all these affairs nowadays, yesterday's match was a Red Cross event. Nearly $5,000 was raised for the fund, E. C. Converse, the club's President, heading the list with a subscription of $1,000.

So fast have Barnes and "Tommy Mack" been traveling of late that some expressed the fear that the amateurs would not be able to give them much of an argument. Yesterday, however, the amateurs might have won had Travers been in his best form. After playing the keen Garden City greens, over which he did so well the day before, Travers could not get up on his approach putts over the luxuriantly covered Greenwich putting surfaces.

On the other hand, Marston rose to the occasion time after time. When his drives did go wandering, he almost invariably recovered in old-time form, and when once on the green, he was as bold as Travers was timid. Nearly every one of Marston's approach putts would overrun the cup all the way from three to six feet, and then, while the gallery held its breath, the Baltusrol golfer would roll in the ball as if it were the easiest thing in the world.

Barnes had never been to Greenwich before, yet the Western open champion brought off his shots with such accuracy that he was easily the best man of the four at the end of the match. He went out in 37 and home in 36, for a 73, only three strokes more than par. McNamara had 75, Marston 78, and Travers, because of a couple of bad holes and several missed putts, took 82.

The professionals turned for home one up, because both amateurs missed putts for threes at the ninth green. No. 10 is also short and there again better putting did the trick for the "pros." Barnes and Travers laid their tee shots about eight feet from the cup, Barnes being a trifle away. He ran his putt in for a 2, but Travers missed. That placed the amateurs 2 down, but they finally got the match level, thanks to a 3 by Travers at the fifteenth and a 4 by Marston at the home hole.

To the extra hole both amateurs drove to trouble, Travers pulling his ball deeply into the woods and the Baltusrol man finding a trap. McNamara was shy of the green on his second, but Barnes lay about twenty feet past the pin on his approach. After McNamara got his 4 and Travers missed his, Barnes tried for a 3 and rimmed the cup. It was then once more up to Marston to save the day. He had fallen short of the green from the trap, and the chip shot left him a putt of about ten feet for a half in 4. He missed by a couple of inches.

Barnes and McNamara—
Out ....4 3 5 5 4 4 4 4 3—36
Travers and Marston—
Out ....4 3 4 5 5 5 4 3 4—37
Barnes and McNamara—

Travers and Marston—

Extra Hole—Barnes and McNamara, 4; Travers and Marston, 5.

McLEAN AND NICHOLLS TIED.

Erstwhile and present professionals of the Great Neck Golf and Country Club met in a thirty-six hole match yesterday, which resulted in a tie. The opponents were George McLean, now at Great Neck, and Gil Nicholls, who left there early in the year. Members of the club, half of whom are partisans of Nicholls, had many wagers on the match.

Nicholls finished the morning round, 4 up, and by the time he reached the third, or twenty-first hole of the match he had increased this advantage to 6 up. McLean, however, played like a streak thereafter, and by the time the turn was reached he had reduced his opponent's lead to 2 up. At the fifteenth they were all even, and as the last three holes were halved, this was the way they finished. Another match will be played next Sunday.

Both players had cards of 75 in the morning, and Nicholls placed a 73 to his credit in the afternoon, while McLean had a 68, 31 out and 37 in, as follows:

Out ....4 3 3 3 4 4 3 3 4—31
In ....4 3 5 5 4 3 6 4 3—37—68

Call for Freight Trade Experts.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Experts are in demand by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, to investigate South American markets for textiles, paints and varnishes, dyestuffs and chemicals, and Far Eastern markets for industrial machinery and construction materials. These investigations are aimed to promote American trade when the war is over. Only fully qualified experts will be considered in the examinations which will be held in the principal cities on June 27. Details can be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington.

The Business Page of The New York Times presents facilities for bringing manufacturers into direct communication with retailers. Time and money saved for both parties.—Advt.

Thirty Buyers from One Advertisement

"Kindly discontinue our advertisement in The New York Times under the Buyers' Want column on the Business Page. We have already obtained greater results than we expected. In three days we had over 30 buyers in our place, and we have already taken on more business than we can possibly turn out."

Quicker Than a Salesman

"A few words in the business columns of The New York Times usually get to the right people and very much quicker than a salesman could reach them. There are so many people to call on in the different trades in New York that it is almost impossible for any single house to cover the entire field."

Getting a Line on Manufacturers

Kutner Goldstein Co., Fresno, Cal.:

"This is to advise you that our advertisement run in The New York Times in Buyers' Wants column was the best thing we ever did for getting a line on manufacturers."

Surprised at the Number of Inquiries

"We were pleased with the results obtained from our recent advertisement on the Business Page of The New York Times. We were not only gratified but genuinely surprised at the number of inquiries received from buyers not only in the city but from various parts of the country."

Excellent Service for Buyers

Denzer & Nathan, 611 Broadway, New York City:

"We wish to compliment you upon the excellent service the Business Page of The New York Times renders to visiting and resident buyers whose time is necessarily limited."

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of EDWARD H. JEWETT, CHARLES H. JEWETT, GEORGE W. JEWETT, ALPHEUS REHBEIN and JAMES G. MARSHALL, individually and as members of the firm of JEWETT BROS., and the firm of JEWETT BROS., Alleged Bankrupts.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 25,377.

On reading and filing the annexed petition of Allen R. Memhard, Receiver herein, from which it appears that the above named alleged bankrupts have made an offer of composition to creditors of the firm of Jewett Brothers and that it is necessary for the proper consideration thereof, and the due and proper administration of the estate of said firm that a determination should be had of the nature and amount of claims asserted by all persons against property in the hands of the Receiver, or to which he may be entitled, and that provision be made for a realization in cash upon the membership in the New York Stock Exchange, constituting one of the assets of said firm, and that the amount of the respective claims of creditors be fixed and determined, it is, on motion of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf and Rosenberg & Ball, attorneys for said Receiver.

Ordered, that the meeting of creditors of the firm of Jewett Bros., alleged bankrupts, called to be held in Room 235, Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, at 2 o'clock P. M. on May 21, 1918, pursuant to order of this Court, dated April 26, 1918, be and the same hereby is adjourned and ordered to be held before the undersigned Judge of this Court in Room 235, Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, at 2 o'clock P. M., on June 3, 1918, for the allowance of claims, examinations of the bankrupts and to consider the offer of composition referred to in said order and for all the other purposes referred to in said order and in this order. At the said adjourned hearing or any adjournment thereof this Court will make such order relative to the sale or other disposition of assets of the alleged bankrupts in the hands of the Receiver, or to which he may be entitled, including the membership in the Stock Exchange in the name of Edward H. Jewett, as may be deemed just and proper.

Further ordered, that each and every creditor, customer, claimant or other person claiming any right, title or interest in or to any property in the possession, custody or control of the Receiver herein, or to which he or any trustee in bankruptcy herein may be entitled, or claiming any rights in respect thereof other than those of a general unsecured creditor of the said firm, shall file written and verified claim thereof or to the proceeds thereof, with the said Allen R. Memhard, Receiver, at his office, No. 120 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on or before June 15, 1918; and it is

Further ordered, that each and every customer, creditor, claimant or other person claiming any right, title or interest in and to any property in the hands of the Receiver, or to which he or any trustee in bankruptcy may be entitled, who shall not file such written and verified claim therefor, or to the proceeds thereof, on or before June 15, 1918, shall be forever barred, if said composition is accepted and confirmed, from making claim or asserting any right, title, interest or ownership therein or thereto or to the proceeds thereof; and it is Further ordered, that a copy of this order shall be published in The New York Times once prior to May 21, 1918, and once during the calendar week beginning May 27th, 1918, and also on June 3, and June 10, 1918, and that the Receiver shall cause a copy of this order to be mailed on or before May 20, 1918, to each and every person appearing in the schedules as a customer or creditor of or claimant against the said firm, or as a creditor of the individual alleged bankrupts, or who shall have filed notice of appearance in this proceeding, and that the Receiver shall also cause to be mailed therewith or attached to or endorsed upon each copy of the order so mailed to the customer creditors of said firm, a notice stating the amount at which his claim has been set forth in the schedules filed herein, and such mailing and publication shall constitute due, timely and sufficient notice to each and every person of all of the matters set forth herein and to each customer, claimant and creditor that if the composition is approved his claim will be allowed as a general unsecured claim at the amount appearing in the schedules filed herein.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

Speculation Limited by More Caution

The stock market was engaged for the most part of last week in digesting the advances which were scored so easily in the previous fortnight, and the process resulted in irregular changes on a considerably reduced volume of business. It was apparent from the beginning of the bull movement that traders were trying to crowd into a few sessions the cumulative effect of many weeks of repressed speculation, and that the movement could not be long continued at that rate. On the whole, the readjustment that came with the slowing down was accomplished with moderate reactions. The news was less favorable, and the proposal to rush through new tax legislation at this session of Congress was itself enough to account for a large amount of selling. The failure of the mission undertaken by copper producers to persuade the War Industries Board that the changes in conditions since the price of 23½ cents was fixed had a depressing influence on the copper issues, and the summary removal by Mr. McAdoo of all of the railway Presidents made for fresh uncertainty among transportation shares. On the other hand, the authorization of new expenditures for railway additions and betterments of nearly a billion dollars gave evidence that the Administration is awake to the necessity for not only keeping the roads up to the present standards but for preparing them for new needs. The war news has prepared people for the beginning of a new German offensive on a scale perhaps as large as that of the movement launched two months ago, and the outcome is being awaited with every sign of confidence both here and in the allied capitals. In the meantime the discouraging accounts of failure of different branches of the Government's war enterprise to which we had become accustomed are giving place to stories of wonderful achievements in the rapid training and overseas transportation of new troops; to the establishment of new records in the rapid construction and launching of vessels, and to the beginning of a great stream of airplanes and Liberty motors, which will quickly erase from memory the unhappy experiences of the first confused months of preparation. The time when the war will be ended is as uncertain as it was three years ago, but the manner of it is becoming so clear that it will not be surprising if Germany follows up the next campaign on the western front with new peace overtures.

There is room for a great improvement in the handling of the finances of the war through the adoption of carefully prepared budgets before Congress attempts to draw up new revenue legislation. The very general estimates of 1918 expenditures which were put forth by the Treasury Department at the end of 1917 were based, evidently, on the maximum amounts which the various departments hoped to be able to spend. They were overestimates by several billion dollars, and it is not plain that any greater pains have been taken to prepare a basis for the new taxes which Representative Kitchin is trying to bring forward for immediate discussion. No one expects anything like an accurate forecast of war expenses, but something approximating the needs for the next twelve months could be arrived at with a little study of the plans of the different departments and the record of their experience in the first year of war.

The question of what constitutes a fair price for copper has not been settled, although the War Industries Board has indicated its intention of continuing to pay 23½ cents a pound for another three months. The Government has not attempted to differentiate between the sellers; as a matter of fact, proposals to pay a high cost producer 30 cents a pound, another operating under somewhat easier conditions 25 cents, and the low cost mines 23½ cents, at once suggest difficulties that appear insurmountable. For one thing, a Government authorization is needed by the commercial user of the metal; would he be charged at the rate paid by the Government, as at present, and, if so, would he get the cheaper or the more expensive metal? Costs vary greatly with bookkeepers, and a very ordinary statistician could make it appear that Kennecott was operating at a loss under the prevailing prices. A system of paying a price based on mining and smelting charges plus a percentage for profit would at once stampede labor. Costs are the result of a combination of a number of elements which are changing with great rapidity. The principal smelting and refining interests assert that they are working today at an actual loss to keep up the necessary supply of the metal. They will demand increases as contracts with the mines expire. It may turn out that the Government will find it advisable to stimulate production by making a material increase in the price, so that all of the producers can operate at a profit, and to trust to the excess profits tax to scale down the earnings of the low-cost companies. In the meantime, the authorities will have to watch production figures carefully lest output go down, while a further experiment is being made with the old price. Government control has saved many millions to the Allies as well as to the United States. An official of one of the leading companies says that the selling price of copper today, had there been no regulation, would be 50 cents per pound.

Hardly a word of criticism was heard in financial circles when Secretary McAdoo dismissed the Presidents of all of the railroads. Some of them will be taken back as Government employes, but some of the ablest men, among them at least two of the foremost transportation experts in the country, will no longer have any voice in the operation of the properties which have grown up under their efficient direction. For those who are not taken into the service there will be employment in most cases in behalf of the security owners. All of the big roads have large investments outside of the physical properties taken over by the Government. The consensus of opinion among Directors is that Mr. McAdoo acted logically in separating the former executives from control over their roads. He is responsible for the successful working out of the transportation problem so long as war lasts, and he could not get the best results through officers paid by the corporations. Decisions will hereafter be made in Washington, and the local managers will only carry out orders. For nearly five months railroad Presidents have been subject to orders from their boards, who had selected them and paid their salaries, and from the Director General, who had taken the transportation facilities out of the corporations' hands. Such a situation was not conducive to complete co-operation designed to be brought about by the President's proclamation. There are not many people closely in touch with the railroads who look to see them returned under the old arrangement when the specified period of eighteen months after the war ends.

PRODUCTION OF GRAIN SHOWS AN INCREASE

The International Institute of Agriculture places the total production of wheat in Denmark, Spain, France, Great Britain and Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, Canada, United States, India, Japan, Algeria, Egypt, Tunis, Argentina, Uruguay, Union of South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand for the year 1917 at 2,242,477,000 bushels, compared with 2,173,162,000 bushels in 1916 and 2,479,519,000 bushels, the average of the three years, 1914-16. The probable consumption of wheat in the same countries during the grain year, Aug. 1, 1917, to July 31, 1918, is estimated at 2,157,682,000 bushels.

The total production of rye in Denmark, Spain, France, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, Canada, and the United States in 1917 was 158,010,000 bushels, compared with 167,778,000 in 1916, and with a three-year average of 172,276,000. The consumption of rye in 1917-1918 is estimated at 146,010,000 bushels.

The total production of barley in the same countries as for wheat, less India, Argentina, Uruguay, and South Africa, in 1917 was 634,853,000 bushels, compared with 611,669,000 in 1916, and a three-year average of 626,981,000. The consumption of barley in 1917-18 in the same countries as for production is estimated at 593,824,000 bushels.

The total production of oats in the same countries as for wheat, less India, Egypt, Uruguay, South Africa, and Australia, in 1917 was 2,663,112,000 bushels, compared with 2,335,442,000 in 1916 and a three-year average of 2,406,611,000. The consumption of oats in 1917-18 in the same countries as for production is estimated at 2,257,457,000 bushels.

The production of corn in France, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, Canada, United States, Japan, South Africa, and New Zealand in 1917 was 3,334,550,000 bushels, compared with 2,739,570,000 in 1916 and a three-year average of 2,943,866,000. The consumption of corn in 1917-18 in these countries is estimated at 2,856,684,000 bushels.

The surplus shown above in the case of wheat is due to the large crops in Argentina, Australia, and India. On account of the great distance of these countries from the centres of consumption and the difficulties of transportation it is still indispensable that production should be intensified and consumpton restricted in the countries of the northern hemisphere.

PUSH CROP FINANCING.

Syndicate Sells $33,000,000 Land Bank Bonds in First Week.

Upward of $33,000,000 of Federal Land Bank 5 per cent. farm loan bonds were sold during the first week of the offering by the syndicate of investment houses which put them on the market, composed of banks and investment dealers throughout the country, headed by Alexander Brown & Sons of Baltimore, Harris, Forbes & Co., Brown Brothers & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., and the National City Company.

The outlook now is that the requirements in the matter of loans of all twelve Federal Land Banks will be provided for up to August or September at least, and this is considered of great importance in assuring adequate care and harvesting of the crops, which in turn form a vital element in the war efficiency of the country.

TO HOLDERS OF
First Mortgage and Collateral Trust Ten Year Sinking Fund Six Per Cent. Gold Bonds, Dated February 1st, 1917.

Notice is hereby given that proposals are invited to be made to Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 140 Broadway, New York City, for the sale to the Sinking Fund provided for in the indenture between the Company and Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, dated February 1st, 1917, of First Mortgage and Collateral Trust Ten Year Sinking Fund Six Per Cent. Gold Bonds of Empire Refining Company, dated February 1st, 1917, and secured by said indenture, at prices not to exceed 104 per cent. of the principal of such bonds flat without interest. On or before August 1st, 1918, this Company will deposit with the Trustee sufficient funds to retire on that date, at a price not in excess of the principal amount thereof, plus a premium of four per cent. of said principal, bonds equal in aggregate face value to $500,000, and said fund is to be applied to the purchase or redemption of bonds of said issue at not to exceed the price above mentioned. All proposals should be securely sealed and marked "Proposals for sale of bonds to Sinking Fund under Indenture of Empire Refining Company, dated February 1st, 1917," must be for all or any part of the bonds offered and must be received by the Trustee at or prior to three o'clock P. M. on June 17th, 1918.

Advices as to bonds accepted will be mailed on or before June 19th, 1918, by the Trustee.

Coupons due August 1st, 1918, should be detached from the accepted bonds and presented in the usual manner at the office or agency of the Company, 60 Wall Street, New York City.

Dated May 27th, 1918.

STEEL MILLS WORK AT 100% CAPACITY

Continued Improvement in Traffic and Other Conditions Help to Attain This Mark.

PLEDGE OUTPUT TO NATION

Doubted Now Whether the Government Will Need the Entire Supply at This Time.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, May 25.—Conditions in the Pittsburgh district as to blast furnace and steel mill operations are in striking contrast with those of last January and February. At that time operations were at 60 per cent. of capacity or less, while with the continued improvement in traffic and other conditions of the last few weeks operations now are at very nearly 100 per cent. of capacity.

For several weeks past the Carnegie Steel Company has been operating its Pittsburgh district plants at very nearly capacity, but operations in the outlying districts were not as good. There has been further improvement in all directions and in the last week the company has been operating its blast furnaces at 94 per cent. of their rated capacity, and its steel mills at 93 per cent. of their ingot ratings. The company has lately blown in an additional blast furnace and is now operating 54 of its 59 stacks, which is close to normal, as some stacks must be out for relining and other repairs.

The iron and steel industry is concerned with the problem of maintaining present operations more than with the problem of increasing them, as they have more to lose than they have to gain. Efforts will be made to curtail the decline in output that usually occurs in the hot weather. As to a repetition of last Winter's troubles, which were due chiefly to inability of the railroads to move coal to coking plants, not much concern is felt.

Pig iron and steel supplies are almost entirely shut off from industries that are not directly helpful toward winning the war, and jobbers are in substantially the same position. The present condition, however, is regarded as largely temporary. As a result of the meeting in New York on April 26, when the Director of Steel Supplies, J. Leonard Replogle, called for a maximum diversion of steel to the filling of war orders, a 100 per cent. war service had been pledged, but it is not definitely known that this 100 per cent. is really required, even for a short period.

Mills May Distribute Supplies.

That question is being worked out by the joint committee representing the Government and the steel manufacturers, appointed on May 17. It will determine, and probably in a very short time, what the steel supplies are going to be and what the requirements of the war activities, month by month, are. What is left will be available, first for the industries that are indirectly helpful toward winning the war, and next to all comers.

How far the supply will extend is the question. When the facts are known a decision will be reached whether the distribution of this remaining steel will be undertaken by the Government or will be handled by the producers themselves. The probabilities are that the mills will do the distributing. They are well acquainted with the operations of their customers and the usefulness of those operations.

The American Iron and Steel Institute Committee on Steel Prices, which submits its regulations to the War Industries Board before announcing them to the public, has promulgated a long set of additional and revised regulations. These relate chiefly to differentials for pig iron of special analysis, also to particular forms of sheet steel and tinplate. Basis prices are not modified in any instance, except that an entirely new price is set on steel bands. There has been much criticism of the base price originally set on steel bands, $2.90, which compared with $2.90 for merchant steel bars and $3.50 for hoops. There is only one gauge difference between the lightest band and the heaviest hoop, but there was a large difference in the price. The institute's solution of the difficulty was to construct an entirely new list of extras, covering all gauges, and then make a basis price of $3.50 for both hoops and bands. The list of extras includes the old extras as to hoops, but sets extras on bands about $4 lower than formerly. The result is an advance on bands.

The lines are being drawn tighter in the matter of steel distribution. The customers get nothing unless it is made clear that the steel furnished will help in the one great direction. The general sequence is that direct orders of the United States Government, for itself and the Allies come first, indirect war orders second, preferred commercial lines, such as agricultural implements and oil developing and transport goods, third, and lastly, those whose business caters to the public good.

In the matter of production of pig iron and steel ingots, the relation between 94 per cent. in pig iron and 93 per cent. in steel ingots is of particular interest, for it indicates that the Carnegie Steel Company is not experiencing any particular shortage of scrap, for with a shortage of this commodity the steel production would be proportionately below the pig iron production. Doubtless, however, shell discard steel is being used as scrap to an extent that would not obtain if the Government were not so insistent for a 100 per cent. performance on war orders. Doubtless it would be more profitable to dispose of more of the shell discard steel in the market.

Fair Supply of Ingots.

The United States Steel Corporation has picked up a fair tonnage of ingots in the open market in the last week, which will be distributed among subsidiaries who can use additional steel to the best advantage. Some of the ingots may be rolled into billets in one plant and shipped as billets to other plants. This is expensive, but everything is being done to increase the output of the finished lines required for Government orders.

By far the major part of the sheet tonnage being made is going out for the filling of Government orders, either direct orders or those that are placed with metal working shops who buy their sheets themselves. Beyond this tonnage there is preference given to certain commercial lines, and the production remains at between 70 and 75 per cent. of capacity. The leading interest is operating somewhat more fully this week than for some time past, as its steel supplies are a trifle better. This is presumably a reflection of the better operations of the Carnegie Steel Company, which, as said above, is operating at nearly 100 per cent. There has been no formal opening of order books in the sheet trade, either for the third quarter or the second half of the year, though there has probably been some little business booked by a few of the mills. With war requirements absorbing nearly all of the shipments, leaving much commercial tonnage still on order, there is no particular occasion to enter additional orders. Allotment of Government business has been lighter in the last few days, after two weeks of heavy buying.

The Connellsville coke production last week was 303,270 tons, or a 2,000-ton increase over the preceding week, making last week the third best of the year and 30 to 40 per cent. gain over the average of the early weeks of the year. It is stated that the Fuel Administration and the Railroad Administration are in sharp rivalry, the one claiming it can produce the coal and coke if cars are furnished, while the latter is endeavoring to furnish more cars than can be loaded.

At the meeting last Monday, when Warren S. Blauvelt addressed the coke men on behalf of the Fuel Administration, a pledge was asked of the operators for every effort to attain full production. Supplies of coke continue to improve. Many operations have had practically a 100 per cent. car supply since the first of last week, skipping a day occasionally. There is some difficulty from labor shortage, but this affects the hand-drawn ovens chiefly, the rectangular push ovens getting along fairly well, and they comprise fully half the total of the Connellsville region ovens now being operated.

Just prior to the fixing of coke prices by the Government, announced on Sept. 24 last, there was some contracting for coke. At that time it was not supposed that these contracts would absorb all the prospective output, or cover all the prospective consumption, but experience in the intervening time showed that nearly all the coke available has gone out under these contracts. A curious feature of the situation was that some contracts were made to begin operating at the first of the year, leaving the business undone for the remainder of last year, so that there was really more contract business in force in January than in December.

There were three classes of contracts. First, those merely calling for a specific monthly tonnage, price to be adjusted to the market; second, contracts on a ratio basis relative to pig iron; third, contract at flat prices. The last-named were all made for the entire calendar year, as far as known. The highest price appears to have been $9, while there were one or two at a shade under $8. The common appraisal is that the average of all such contracts lay between $8.25 and $8.50. Thus it appears on the whole that there will be practically no change in the contract situation July 1, and contract deliveries will be at the same price in the second half of the year as in the first.

With nearly all the merchant furnaces the rate of pig iron production this month has been well ahead of last month, and as the steel interests, with scarcely an exception, are having the same experience, the total production is evidently very high, probably in excess of 42,000,000 tons a year. If weather conditions are favorable next month there will be still heavier production. There is always a decrease in July and August, on account of the high temperature, but several experiments are to be used to minimize this as far as possible. On the whole the rate of pig iron production at this time is decidedly greater than there was any hope of attaining from the viewpoint of last week, when conditions were so bad that it was impossible to imagine their ever becoming really normal again.

TO PROTEST FLOOD BILL.

Whitman Appoints Committee of 12 to Oppose Boundary Control.

ALBANY, May 26.—Governor Whitman announced today that twelve men had accepted his invitation to serve upon the Committee to Represent New York State before a Congressional Committee at Washington in opposition to the passage of the Food bill, designed to provide for Federal control and regulation of the use of the boundary waters of the United States for power and other purposes.

Those who will serve on the committee: Nathan L. Miller, Syracuse, former Judge of the Court of Appeals; William M. Dykman, New York; D. Cady Herrick, Albany; Attorney General Merton E. Lewis; Franklin B. Lord, counsel to the Governor; William Fellowes Morgan, New York; William Nottingham, Syracuse; E. H. Outerbridge, New York; Conservation Commissioner George D. Pratt; Supreme Court Justice Francis M. Scott, New York; Arthur E. Sutherland, Rochester, and Ainsley Wilcox, Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW INCORPORATIONS.

ALBANY, May 25.—Seventeen new corporations, with an aggregate capitalization of $1,415,900, were chartered today. They include:

Criterion Concessions Corp., West Nyack, Rockland County, public amusement park, $75,000; F. G. Grimmer, C. C. Lamm, G. K. Byers, Suffern.

Luna Derby Co., Brooklyn, public shows and amusements, $5,000; H. F. Philbin, S. V. Gardiner, J. C. Ramsay, 220 West 42d St.

Dawson Mfg. Co., Manhattan, general drug and chemical business, $20,000; W. A. Keener, S. A. Tracy, W. B. Willicutt, 40 Wall St.

Day Trading Co., Manhattan, clothing and wearing apparel, $25,000; H. B. Goodstein, M. M. Volt, S. Shaw, 401 East 104th St.

Collins Trading Co., Manhattan, make clothing, $25,000; same as preceding.

The Singer-Bergman Corp., Manhattan, stock and bond brokers, $10,000; M. Singer, M. V. Bergman, J. Melcer, 155 Clinton Av., Brooklyn.

352 West Fourth Street Corp., bonds and mortgages, $50,000; H. A. Manter, M. A. V. Clark, S. Beck, 130 Vernon Av., Brooklyn.

A. B. Ansbacher Co., Manhattan, paints, oil, and acids, $1,000,000; B. P. Hammelburger, L. A. and B. A. Ansbacher, 527 5th Av.

The United States Press, Manhattan, printing and publishing, $5,000; H. Dugan, K. E. and B. F. Waite, 2,242 East 15th St., Brooklyn.

CAPITAL INCREASES.

CHANGE OF NAME.

Birch Paper Corp., Manhattan, to Lynar Const. Corp.

The Nuremberg Mfg. Co., Bronx, to Tiemken & Gunshor.

AUTHORIZATION.

Lincoln Petroleum Products Co., Dela., $100,000; representative, A. E. Fitkin, 141 Broadway.

REVOCATION AND NEW DESIGNATION.

DISSOLUTIONS.

Equitable Cloak & Suit Co., Manhattan.
Steinbock Electric Co., Manhattan.
Northwoods Co., Cold Spring.
Marabou and Ostrich Feather Co., Manhattan.
Presto Cloak & Suit Co., Manhattan.
Tichener-Culver Iron Works, Oneonta.
C. W. Gallie Co., Manhattan.

Delaware Charters.

DOVER, Del., May 25.—Charters filed:

El Credito de las American, to promote commercial and business relations between different countries, $5,000,000; M. Goyenaiga, San Jose, Costa Rica; R. Nanniemata, S. B. Howard, both of New York.

The Washington Sand and Gravel Co., $500,000; C. L. Gray, L. Sisler, G. W. Sisler, Washington, D. C.

The Franklin Oil Co., $500,000; E. Montague, J. Dodd, E. Philip Gustafson, all of Columbus, Ohio.

Liberty Sole and Tire Co., $250,000; K. W. Brier, G. Unverfirth, J. G. Crawford, all of Vincennes, Ind.

Never Rest Mines Co., $100,000; C. L. Rimlinger, M. M. Clancy, F. A. Armstrong of Wilmington.

Artists' Service Corp., $100,000; C. L. Rimlinger, M. M. Clancy, F. A. Armstrong of Wilmington.

INCREASE IN CAPITAL.

The Elwell Mayer & Co. of New York, from $150,000 to $1,000,000.

New Jersey Charters.

TRENTON, May 25.—Charters filed:

Demeese Welding Apparatus Co., Elizabeth, $50,000; Frederick Demeese, Marcel Lucas, Robert Zuber, Newark, N. J.

W. M. Dickinson Co., insurance agents, Trenton, $10,000; W. M. Dickinson, R. O. Dickinson, Vincent P. Bradley, Trenton.

Safe Keeping Service for Security Owners

THE Trust Department of this Company offers a service to owners of securities which relieves them of all routine care, although their holdings are always under their direct control.

The advantages of this service are:

Safety

We are directly responsible for the physical safety of securities deposited with us.

Availability

The owner, whether at home or absent from the city, may direct the sale, deposit or delivery of his securities upon order, with the same ease with which he handles a checking account.

Routine Care

We handle all details of routine care, including such services as the collection and credit (or remittance) of income, and principal when due; the preparation (under power of attorney) of declarations of ownership under the Federal Income Tax Laws; the sale, purchase and delivery of securities upon the client's order.

Information

We report upon the condition of investments, when requested, and endeavor to furnish information as to called bonds; "rights;" extraordinary, increased, reduced, and passed dividends; appointment of receivers, protective and reorganization committees; opportunities to sell bonds to sinking funds.

Our booklet, "The Safe Keeping of Securities," which we shall be pleased to send on request, describes the service in detail.

TO THE HOLDERS OF

Certificates of Deposit for First and Refunding Mortgage Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds

OF

issued by Bankers Trust Company as Depositary of the Bondholders' Committee constituted by the agreement dated May 28, 1917:

Your Committee announces that, after protracted negotiations and after hearings before the United States District Court at which your Committee was represented by counsel, and with the co-operation of the Director General of Railroads and the Receiver, arrangements have been made for the payment of the interest due February 1, 1918, on the bonds above mentioned.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit will receive payment of their interest upon presentation thereof at the office of the Depositary or Sub-Depositaries on or after the 24th day of MAY, 1918, accompanied by proper ownership certificates under the Federal Income Tax law in respect of such interest.

Had it not been for the Committee's ability to act for a large number of bonds, the February coupon would still be in default. The more bonds that are deposited with the Committee, the easier will it be for the Committee to secure payment of the next maturing coupon and the coupons falling due thereafter.

All deposited bonds, whether registered or coupon, must be in negotiable form, and coupon bonds must bear the coupon of August 1, 1918, and all subsequent coupons. Upon such deposit, Certificates of Deposit will be issued as provided in the Deposit Agreement dated May 28, 1917.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained upon application to the Depositary or Sub-Depositaries or to the Secretary of the Committee.

Application will at once be made to list the Certificates of Deposit on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company Seven Per Cent Cumulative Adjustment Mortgage Gold Bonds

The Committee, representing bonds of the above issue, has concluded arrangements enabling the Receiver to provide funds for the payment of the interest which matured on the above bonds on April 1, 1918.

The holders of Certificates of Deposit will be paid the amounts to which they are entitled, as interest on their deposited bonds, upon presentation of their Certificates of Deposit, at the office of The New York Trust Company, 26 Broad Street, New York City, accompanied by proper ownership certificates as required by the Federal Income Tax law in respect of the payment of such interest.

While the holders of undeposited bonds will also be paid their interest on presentation of the coupons for such interest at the office of The New York Trust Company, the Committee, nevertheless, in view of the Receivership of the Company and other existing conditions, deem it of especial importance that bondholders should promptly deposit their bonds with the Committee, in order to obtain the benefits to be gained from concerted action on behalf of the depositing bondholders acting through the Committee.

Undeposited bonds should be promptly deposited with The New York Trust Company, Depositary, or with the First Trust and Savings Bank, Agent of the Depositary, 68 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois, on the deposit of which transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued under the Deposit Agreement dated June 1, 1917.

HOOVER ASKS GREAT FOOD CONSERVATION

Wants Meat Consumption Reduced to Two Pounds Weekly, Wheat to Third of Normal.

MESSAGE READ IN CHURCHES

Urges Economy Also in Use of Sugar, as Ships Are Needed for Our Army and Allies.

Herbert C. Hoover transmitted a special message yesterday to the people of the country through the churches. In it he calls attention to the necessity of being economical in the use of sugar, of cutting down as far as possible the consumption of wheat and wheat products, and suggests the consumption of all meats be reduced as nearly as possible to two pounds per week per person. The message was read from the pulpits of the churches of all denominations throughout the United States. It was as follows:

"The confidence of the United States Food Administration that the people of the country would respond enthusiastically and wholeheartedly, upon a presentation of the facts, to any necessary requests for reduction in the consumption of food has been fully justified. We have demonstrated our ability not only to think together but to act together. This response of the people is the reason for the present appeal.

"Our work is not yet complete. In spite of the encouraging results of our efforts, in spite of the fact that our exports of foodstuffs are constantly increasing and are approaching the minimum requirements abroad, the need for renewed devotion and effort is pressing. While all of the requirements of the Food Administration should be constantly observed, there are certain matters which I desire to stress at this time.

"In the case of meat and meat products the necessities for shipment abroad are very great. Whereas the allied consumption has been reduced to an average of about 1¼ pounds per person per week, we are today enjoying an average of about 3¼ pounds per person per week. This division is inequitable. An understanding of these facts will justify our request that the consumption of all meats, including poultry, as nearly as possible be reduced to 2 pounds per week per person over 4 years of age.

"In the case of sugar we are embarrassed by the necessity of using ships for carrying our soldiers and feeding the Allies, and in consequence we must use sugar with great economy. We must emphasize the importance of canning and preserving on a large scale among our people this Summer, and our available sugar must be conserved for this purpose.

"But the situation with regard to wheat is the most serious in the food supply of the allied world. If we are to satisfy the minimum wheat requirements of our armies and the Allies, and the suffering millions in the allied countries, our consumption of wheat in the United States until the next harvest must be reduced to approximately one-third of normal. It is inconceivable that we should fail in this crisis. For each of us who can personally contribute to the relief of human suffering it is a privilege, not a sacrifice. All elements of our population cannot bear this burden equally. Those engaged in physical labor need a larger bread ration than those in sedentary occupations. Because of the constant daily employment of women and the lack of home baking facilities, many households in large urban centres require a food ration already prepared, such as the bakers' standard Victory bread loaf. Furthermore, we must constantly safeguard the special requirements of children and invalids.

"To meet the situation abroad and to prevent serious suffering at home, it is imperative that all those whose circumstances permit shall abstain from wheat and wheat products in any form until the next harvest. It is realized and deeply appreciated that many organizations and some communities have already agreed to follow this plan.

"It is hoped that you will communicate this to your organization and your community, urging those whose circumstances will permit to join with us and take this stand."

FAVORS TERMINAL MARKET.

Director Beard of Research Bureau Offers Improvement Suggestion.

Charles A. Beard, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, sent a letter yesterday to Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, praising the Commissioner's efforts to reduce living cost through better market facilities and suggesting as an experiment the construction of at least one terminal market with cold storage and dehydrating facilities "for preventing the enormous waste which occurs under our present archaic system in handling food."

"Through such a terminal market," the letter says, "co-operative relations could be worked out with farmers and other producers, guaranteeing to them a square deal in the handling of their shipments at the city end of the line. The importance of this is admitted by all who are familiar with the difficulties which fruit growers and producers of other perishable goods encounter in New York."

Depersonalizing Railroad Control
WHY it was a logical move for McAdoo to make—how it had to follow the steps the Government had already taken in the management of the railroad systems—The Annalist out today fully discusses this most recent phase of Governmental railroad control.
IN addition, there appear a number of special articles; also these weekly features which make The Annalist a ready and authoritative reference for bankers, brokers and business men in general:
"Barometrics"—showing national business activity, prices of basic commodities, the state of credit, etc.
"Open Market"—giving bids and offers of unlisted securities.
Authoritative articles and editorials on matters of importance to business men.
Curve of the cost of living.
Complete record of stock and bond transactions.

SENATOR STIRS HOPE IN BUILDING TRADE

NEW BOARD TO HEAR FACTS

Governor of Federal Reserve to Co-operate to Make Private Building Work Possible.

With New York 20,000 apartments short of even present requirements and vast munition and other war industrial plants bringing in more workers every week, Senator William M. Calder has succeeded in winning new hope for builders the entire country over, not only from the Treasury Department but from William P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, to the end of determining the "steps that should be taken to make private building operations possible."

Private building construction throughout the country normally totals $1,500,000,000 a year. The year 1918 will not develop more than $300,000,000. This has been due to the belief of banking and mortgage lending institutions that it is the wish of the Treasury Department that no loans be made on private building work. After ascertaining that the conditions regarding available housing, storage facilities, and industrial space existing in New York are proportionately existent in many other parts of the country, Senator Calder took the matter up officially at Washington with the result that Secretary McAdoo assured him that any hesitancy on the part of banks and mortgage companies to make loans on projected building operations or improvements has not been due to advice from the Treasury Department against making such loans.

On the contrary, the Treasury Department went on official record advising these banking and mortgage interests that "the attitude of the Treasury Department has been that capital which is needed during the period of the war should not be employed in the construction of unnecessary buildings at this time. But there has never been any suggestion that buildings actually needed for the health and protection of the civil population or for the conduct of essential business of the country should not be constructed during the period of the war. * * * Where it is a question of need—be it on account of sanitary conditions or because without such new construction other operations essential at this time for the welfare of the country would suffer—there is no doubt that the work should be undertaken. This applies equally to construction work in cities, towns, and in farming districts." The foregoing is an extract from an official letter to Senator Calder signed by Secretary McAdoo.

Equal assurances have been given to Senator Calder by Bernard M. Baruch, Director of the War Industries Board, that it was not the intention of his board to issue any order stopping private building work. He then addressed a communication to William P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, stating that "the Government has taken up the matter of meeting the shortage in housing facilities as it applies to people employed directly on Government work, but unless some further relief comes we will face a serious situation next Spring. For that reason I would be glad if the Federal Reserve Board and the War Finance Corporation will take under advisement the question of whether it would not be best to encourage the construction of some new buildings, particularly homes. * * * The situation would change if there was some encouragement from the Federal Reserve Board and the War Finance Corporation."

Mr. Harding's reply was that he was ready to take up this matter at any time and suggest that the new Capital Issues Committee be apprised of the very critical trend of affairs in the national building situation as soon as it meets, which will be in a few days.

The relation between the shortage of housing and other necessary wartime space and the supply of materials and labor with which to construct these buildings is very close.

Investigations made by The Dow Service Daily Building Reports as to conditions of supply of materials available for both Government and private building prove conclusively that once the lending institutions let down the bars on the demand that has been straining at the leash for expression ever since the country went into the war the building material manufacturers would bring their resources into play to see that neither the Government nor private building interests suffered from lack of materials.

The fact is very clear that the minute some form of official encouragement can be issued direct to builders and money lenders that necessary private building construction can proceed to its full part in contributing toward winning the war, just as soon will the manufacturers of building materials bend their backs to the work of turning out the necessary commodities.

Manufacturers believe that the fuel shortage at building material manufacturing zones is due to the same feeling pervading those having charge of distribution that building construction is not an essential factor in winning the war. Therefore fuel is not freely forthcoming, thereby making for very low reserves next Spring when the real crisis of shortage of building will come unless immediate relief is afforded.

The building material manufacturing season averages not more than one-third of a year, and the present season is almost half gone, with no reserve stocks on hand in any industry save that of brick. This condition is almost alone responsible for the constantly increasing price of building materials.

With no reserves on hand, and demand constantly increasing, but retarded because of hesitancy on the part of bankers and mortgage houses, and labor increasingly hard to get, building material prices are bound to advance and stay high long after the era of wartime prosperity passes. The time to meet the building demand is before the law of supply and demand reaches the point of separation, that stage which is fast developing when demand is keen, but building material prices and construction costs are actually prohibitive. The sooner the word of encouragement can come from Washington to building interests to proceed with necessary private construction work the better it will be for workers, for captains of industry, and for the country at war.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A trough of low pressure still extends from Southern Colorado and Northern New Mexico, northeastward into Ontario. The principal centre of depression is over Southern Colorado, and this with high pressure to the northward has caused general rain in the plains States and the Northwest, with very low temperatures for the season. Snow is falling tonight in Southern North Dakota and Western Wyoming.

There will be showers Monday in New York and New England and on Tuesday in the Upper Lake and west Lower Lake regions, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee. Otherwise fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday over the Washington forecast district. It will be cooler Monday in the Lower Lake region and Southern Upper Lake region and the Upper Ohio Valley and somewhat warmer in Southern New England and the north portion of the Middle Atlantic district.

WINDS FOR MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

FORECAST TODAY AND TUESDAY.

North New England.—Local showers Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy.

DENOUNCES GERMAN BLUNDERS IN EAST

Vorwaerts Says That the Policy in Ukraine Repels Old Friedns and Gains No New Ones.

BALTIC PROVINCES A PERIL

COPENHAGEN, May 26.—Germany's policy in the Ukraine is repelling her old friends and gaining her no new ones, declares the Socialist Vorwärts of Berlin in commenting on a letter it publishes from a correspondent in the Ukraine. The Vorwärts also exposes the Government's evasive course regarding the Russian provinces of Livonia and Esthonia during and since the making of peace with Russia, the subject being brought forward by the official announcement, which it reports that the Government had consented to deliver to M. Joffe, the Russian Ambassador, a declaration from representatives of Livonia and Esthonia of the independence of these States.

The correspondent in Ukraine describes the Cabinet formed by the new dictator, General Skoropadsky, as composed of Constitutional Democrats, Octobrists and Russian Monarchists, of whom the first named incline most toward the radical side.

The Constitutional Democrats, he reveals, opposed the separation of the Ukraine from Russia as long as opposition was possible, as was evidenced last July, when they withdrew their representatives from the Rada and sent a delegation to Moscow which denounced the Ukrainians as traitors and arch-enemies of Russia, who were working in Germany's interests. They also requested the Kerensky Government to arrest the members of the Rada, and carried on a violent anti-German agitation up to the moment of the arrival of the German troops.

When the Constitutional Democrats, who compose the left wing of the Ministry, take this Pan-Russian and anti-German attitude, says the Vorwärts's correspondent, it is not difficult to imagine the attitude of the Octobrists and the Russian Monarchists. He cites many evidences of the Pan Russian sentiments held by the new Ukrainian Government, including extracts from the Ukrainian newspapers and the Government's refusal to permit the meeting of the Peasants' Congress which was summoned for May 12, although it did permit, on the other hand, the meeting at Odessa of a Russian Monarchist Congress, the programme of which includes the re-establishment of "a Czarist" Duma.

He also reports that preparations are under way for the summoning of a Pan Russian Zemstvo Congress to consider the reunion of all the Russian lands, while he points out that the important officials of the new Government are for the most part formerly men who held office in Old Russia under the Emperor. The correspondent concludes.

Commenting on the letter, the Vorwärts says:

"The details given destroy the last illusions that those elements, which, with German aid, have now taken over the reins of government in the Ukraine, will go over to Pan Russia with flying banners at the instant the Bolshevist Government at Moscow is replaced by a bourgeois government. It is no wonder that the Ukrainians, who expected help from Germany for the maintenance of their national independence, now feel themselves bitterly disappointed. They conceivably see in what is really only a series of cruel experiments the execution of a Machiavellian programme.

"The German Government's policy appears but recently to have regarded the dismemberment of Russia as its greatest triumph, but it is now on the way to destroy that supposed triumph."

In its comments on the Berlin Government's course regarding Livonia and Esthonia, the Vorwärts takes as a text the doubts expressed on various sides as to the significance of the Government's delivery of the declarations "from the Livonian and Esthonian barons," and points out that the official announcement fails to comment on the Government's attitude.

"The twilight resting over the act," continues the Vorwärts, "is intentional, and it is intended even to intensify it. It is intended to conceal the differences of opinion existing regarding the matter, even in the highest places, and this twilight offers opportunities which clear daylight would destroy."

The Foreign Office, in the period when the Brest-Litovsk treaty was under negotiation, declares the newspaper, took the standpoint that Russia could justly endure the loss of Poland, Lithuania, and Courland, but that the exclusion of Russia from the Baltic altogether would create a situation which would surely be followed by an explosion. Hence Livonia and Esthonia were promised to Russia, although a scratch of the pen could have secured them for Germany.

"The Russian Government," the Vorwärts continues, "has declared itself prepared to acknowledge the right of self-determination of nations, which was to be expressed in free elections after the evacuation of the territories in question. But Russia never made any declaration by which she delivered up Esthonia and Livonia to the German authorities or the hereditary upper class. That is the situation. The German Government must choose between its promise and the treaty. • • •

"Whatever the end may be, the road which has been traveled in the East since Brest-Litovsk is an indication of a lack of intelligent direction of our foreign policy than which no worse could be imagined. The occurrences in the Ukraine, where a variety of Pan Russian strivings is encouraged, complete the picture of this mad huggermugger."

RUSSIAN ROYALIST PLOT.

By JULIUS WEST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 26.—The Russian monarchist movement has its headquarters in Switzerland. I have just interviewed two prominent leaders, both ostensibly pro-Ally. The flat where I met them contained no indication of the impossibility of obtaining remittances from Russia, nor did pecuniary difficulties appear to press as heavily upon them as upon other Russians normally receiving incomes from their native land.

They say the normal course of the revolution demanded a constitutional monarchy, because that meant a stable Government, without which they would not have the wholehearted support of the upper middle classes to stop Germany from cutting the ground away from under their feet by winning over the bourgeoisie to herself.

Then unexpectedly my Royalist friends launched into abuse of President Wilson. That, of course, gave the game away entirely. The Royalist-German combination needs no support from the Allies, but such support is worth fishing for, because supposing one allied power declared in favor of restoration others, especially America, would be bound to protest, and so the German desire to divide the Allies would be realized. And that is what Germany is driving at.

KERENSKY NOT ON BOARD.

Russian Leader Was Expected to Reach America on Danish Ship.

Reports that Alexander F. Kerensky, the Premier of Russia after the revolution, would arrive in the United States on a Danish steamship yesterday proved to be incorrect when the vessel docked at an Atlantic port. A careful examination made of the 400 passengers by customs and immigration inspectors and the Naval Intelligence Department failed to discover any trace of the Russian political leader or that he had ever intended to embark on the steamship for America.

Gerard Maydell, a Russian, one of the passengers from Petrograd, who is interested in a New York shipping firm, became very excited when he was asked if Kerensky was on the ship, and said:

"He certainly is not on this steamship, and it's just as well. I'd hate to have to ride on the same boat with him. All Russia feels that way, too. Kerensky was the curse of Russia. If he comes here ask him and his friends three questions: First, Who issued the order for soldiers not to salute their officers? Second, who suggested that soldiers should have the right to vote whether they fought the enemy or not? And thirdly, Who furnished arms to the Red Guard? I fancy Mr. Kerensky will have some difficulty in answering those questions truthfully and still retain his pose of martyr and hero with which he hopes to impress the American people."

Mrs. Olga Maydell, who accompanied her husband, said that their journey over the snow from Petrograd to Stockholm occupied seventy days, and, after being attacked by bandits, who stole most of their effects, they had to go without food for days at a time. The living conditions in Russia, she said, were terrible for the people, and food of any kind was at a premium.

The officers of the ship said that the voyage from Copenhagen was uneventful. They were stopped twice by German destroyers and allowed to proceed after the ship's papers had been examined by officers sent on board.

LENINE'S CURRENCY SCHEME.

Denial That Immediate Devaluation of the Ruble Is Planned.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, May 22.—Much rubbish appears to have been cabled to America based on Lenine's speech on the subject of forthcoming financial measures. I can definitely say there is no project for the immediate devaluation of the ruble. As to the so-called exchange of new money for old, Lenine's real proposal is that up to a certain amount its possessors should receive new money, the surplus above that amount being opened as an account in the State bank, and that a check book should be given to its possessor. A postal savings bank on the English model is to be introduced.

The Germans in Ukraine are carrying out local devaluation of the ruble, buying Russian rubles at the rate of two Russian for one ruble in the currency of the occupied territory. With these Russian rubles they will then seek to do business with Russia. Lenine's scheme would put a limit to the possibilities of this piece of ingenuity and also to the steady importation of old-time ruble notes forged in Germany.

MASARYK URGES HELP FOR RUSSIA

Would Have Us Assist in Rebuilding Her Economic and Administrative Life.

BUT DEPRECATES FORCE

The Allies can best aid Russia by assistance in the rebuilding of the administrative and economic life of the country, in the opinion of Professor Thomas G. Masaryk, President of the Czechoslovak Revolutionary Government. Dr. Masaryk was in Russia during the Bolshevist revolution and all through the Winter and early Spring.

"Whoever would aid Russia must be on good terms with the Government now in power," said Dr. Masaryk to a TIMES reporter yesterday, "and that Government at present is composed of Bolsheviki. I do not mean necessarily that this Government should be formally recognized; that is not so important. But the recovery of Russia is essential, and the work done to that end must not be frustrated. You can't work against the Government.

"I am very much in doubt as to the value of military intervention. It must be remembered that there are enormous distances in Russia, and that the transportation of a modern army over enormous distances requires very good railroad facilities. Suppose that a powerful army were landed in Vladivostok; to get it across Siberia to the Ural Mountains, a distance of 8,000 miles, would require an enormous effort, and if the army is to be large enough to accomplish anything this would take a great deal of time. The Siberian railroads are at present in a much better condition than those of European Russia, but even so the task would be long and difficult.

"And suppose you had rescued Siberia, what in the meantime would have become of Russia? The Germans would not have been sitting still. They would have said that this intervention was a breach of the treaty of Brest-Litovsk; they would have overrun European Russia and disposed of it as they saw fit; the Bolshevist Government would have been helpless under German pressure.

"I know positively that the Bolsheviki are growing more and more anti-German. The Russians did not know the Germans before this war to any extent, except the German officials from the Baltic provinces. Now they are getting acquainted with the German Army, and one can see that the Germans are more and more disliked. With this spirit, if the Bolsheviki were in a position to form an army, then the situation with regard to military intervention that might be suitable to them would be different. But it takes a long time to organize an army of any value, and so long as Russia has none what could be done against the Germans? I cannot see that military intervention would be of any use in European Russia even if Siberia could be saved.

"There are methods, however, by which Russia might be helped. The Russians at present like America better than any other nation, and the Allies, perhaps, under American leadership, could restore the country by aiding in the administration. The need, first of all, is on the railroads. In Siberia conditions are fairly good, for they still have American rolling stock which was sent over last Fall. But in European Russia the railroads are in very bad condition. Their restoration is the first essential of any military action, for an army cannot be maintained without railroads. The roads in Russia are gone to pieces; a rain of a day or two and there are no roads, consequently no possibility of marching or of the transport of artillery.

"Next after the railroads the telegraph, telephone, and postal services need rebuilding, and then the mines and factories. In all of these American and allied engineers, executives, and business men could do a great work. The Germans are there; and if we do not go in somehow they will be left to influence Russia alone. But if there were in every town of reasonable importance one or more men from the allied countries, helping the nation get itself reorganized and using legitimate means to counteract German propaganda, they could exert a very great influence on public opinion. They could fight the Germans on the spot. But it would be necessary to send men who know Russia, and men who are interested in the work they would be doing.

"The Germans are not neglecting anything. When I came through Siberia I bought at the various stations the small town papers of purely local circulation which were to be found there. In one of these I found a rather well written article on President Wilson, combining all imaginable falsehoods about his character and his attitude toward the war, denouncing him and America, and so cleverly put together that it was evidently done by a competent writer. The whole tone of the article made it evident that it was not Russian; though appearing in a Russian provincial paper, it was made in Germany. Again and again along the line of the Siberian railroad I found this same article coming up in local papers that were read only by the peasants and the inhabitants of one or two small towns. Somehow the Allies must fight that sort of thing.

"I have great hopes that the drawing together of the western Slavs—the Poles, the Czechoslovaks, the Jugoslavs—will have a reflection in Russian sentiment. The Poles have now learned that any German talk of their liberation means that their country must remain divided; that they must leave Posnania to Prussia and Galicia to Austria; that even the districts around Warsaw will remain in effect a German province. As a consequence they are uniting in the demand for independence and in opposition to Germany. Their alliance with the Czechoslovaks and Jugoslavs, both nations demanding complete independence, has promoted general Slavic consciousness and the atmosphere of freedom and democracy, and this will be felt in Russia. But the western Slavs are as yet still in the hands of Germany and Austria, and cannot be of very great service in helping Russia. The Allies and, above all, America are the ones who must do it."

TURKS DODGE BARBED WIRE

Accept Literally a British Slang Term for Nervousness.

LONDON, April 25, (Associated Press.)—"Barbed-wire disease" is British army slang for nervous breakdown. Turkish officials that have heard the expression translate it literally. Wherefore the Turkish Government, in ratifying an agreement with the British for an exchange of prisoners, stipulated that plain wire should be substituted for barbed wire around prison camps for Turks in English territory.

The Turks, it is said, consented to the exchange because there was one important prisoner they wanted to get back. The swap was negotiated on the basis of 1,000 English prisoners for 1,500 Turks.

12,000 ORDNANCE ORDERS.

Purchases of Fighting Material Near $5,000,000,000, Baker Announces.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The War Department today disclosed that the Army Ordnance Department had negotiated approximately 12,000 contracts since this country entered the war on April 6, 1917. The contracts involve within $175,000,000 of the total funds directly available for the department for the present fiscal year—$3,383,288,045. Additional contracts totaling $1,503,703,741 have been entered into under the authority of Congress, pending appropriation of an amount aggregating $1,671,468,750.

The Ordnance Department disbursed recently in a single day more than $25,000,000 on ordinary contract vouchers. Disbursements for April, 1918, ran to $356,884,983, as compared with the $5,059,264 disbursed in April, 1917. The disbursements mentioned were all made at the Ordnance Office in Washington. Amounts disbursed at Government arsenals are not included.

One check recently drawn by the ordnance disbursing officer for certain ordnance material was for $18,750,000. One requisition made recently by this same officer on the Treasury was for $169,000,000. This is the largest single requisition ever made by any United States disbursing officer.

Prior to two months ago, before the Ordnance Department established its eleven district offices, the disbursing officer in Washington signed from 500 to 3,000 checks a day.

SAYS AMERICANS MUST WIN.

Senator Lenroot Assails Socialists Who Will Not Fight.

An address on Americanism and patriotism was delivered yesterday in the Institutional Synagogue, 116th Street and Fifth Avenue, by United States Senator Irvine Luther Lenroot of Wisconsin, who was introduced by Congressman Isaac Siegel. Senator Lenroot said that men born in any country can be good Americans—as good as those whose ancestors fought in the Revolution, and he instanced that the man who led the fight for war legislation in Congress was Julius Kahn of California, who was born in Germany.

"We cannot have peace," he added, "until the German people themselves take such measures as will control their own Government. This war knows for America no race or creed or religion. We are all Americans, and unless we win this war, the freedom of conscience to worship God will be destroyed.

"Some people of alleged high ideals would withdraw our troops and stop the war. They tried to do that in Russia. Any Socialist in the United States who knows this and is not willing to fight this war is not a good American."

ASSAILS HEARST PAPERS.

Mayor of Rahway Asks Citizens to Stop Buying Them.

RAHWAY, N. J., May 26.—At a Red Cross meeting in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church here tonight Mayor David H. Trembly attacked The New York American and The Evening Journal and urged the citizens of Rahway to stop buying or reading them. The Mayor said:

"There is one thing more you can do to help the Red Cross, and that is to stop buying and reading newspapers which would not publish the President's prayer for victory and made it appear that we were suing for peace. That paper is The New York Evening Journal. I call it the Berlin paper. The New York American and The Evening Journal should be read only by pro-Germans. I intend on Decoration Day to issue a proclamation calling on the citizens of Rahway not to read these newspapers. I appeal to you to do all you can to help me in this. I make no demand, but only a request."

In the afternoon Mayor Trembly attended a meeting of the Church Federation in the First Baptist Church and asked for support of the federation in his fight against The American and Journal. The federation passed a resolution and appointed a committee "to take action in regard to stopping the sale of enemy and anti-American newspapers."

START UNIVERSITY FUND.

New York University students and alumni, according to an announcement issued yesterday, have already raised $122,000 by subscriptions among themselves in the campaign which they recently started to obtain a fund of $600,000 to supply pressing war needs of the university. The campaign is confined at present to the alumni of the College of Arts and Pure Science and the School of Applied Science at University Heights and to the general undergraduate body. In a short time the alumni of the Schools of Law, Medicine, Commerce, and Pedagogy; the Graduate School, Washington Square College, and the Veterinary College will enter the movement, and a combined effort will be made to complete the amount which has been set as the goal of the undertaking.

The undergraduates have raised $71,000. The alumni of the schools at University Heights, who have begun their share of the alumni movement, in which $150,000 is the objective, have raised $51,400. A third campaign corps, made up of alumni of the other seven schools of the university, will began a drive early in June to raise $300,000.

OPEN HOSPITALITY HOUSE.

Third Building Now Available for Parents of Soldiers.

The third hospitality house maintained by the Institute of Applied Christianity for visiting parents of soldiers and sailors about to go to the front was opened yesterday afternoon at 52 East Twenty-fifth Street. The other houses are at 24 West 130th Street, which cares for visitors to Camp Merritt, N. J., and at 908 East 156th Street, which is especially for parents of men stationed at Pelham Bay.

At the dedication it was said that already many parents were beginning to come to New York to be near their sons who are convalescing in hospitals from wounds received "over there." It was announced that the hospitality houses would be conducted along the lines of similar establishments in London, Paris, and Rome. A fourth house will soon be opened.

Among the members of the Advisory Council of the institute are the Right Rev. Dr. Charles S. Burch, Suffragan Bishop of New York; Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, the Rev. Charles Carroll Albertson, the Rev. Robert Watson, George Gordon Battle, D. Webster Wylie, and Arthur Butler Graham. A committee of women which will work to secure all possible comforts for mothers who visit the city includes Mrs. L. Hollingsworth Babcock, Mrs. John E. Parsons, Mrs. E. H. Raynolds, Mrs. Glover C. Arnold, Miss Dora C. Fraser, Mrs. Jeannette C. Curtis, Mrs. Douglas Alexander, Mrs. L. M. Taylor, Mrs. Walter M. Kraus, and Mrs. Gertrude E. Camp.

Holiday Readiness—HERE

To some men, Decoration Day means a pleasant "4-days" in the country, which suggests clothes.

Others, who stay at home, are reminded that they are dressing too warm for comfort.

The moral is the same in either case: both have three days to prepare themselves. Also, we're ready for both without further notice.

Particularly, we're strong on fine Blue Serges, so scarce this year; not forgetting White Flannel Trousers, Straw Hats, Golf Suits, nobby Sport Suits, Dixie Weaves; and Topcoats that come in handy when the weather man forgets it's Spring.

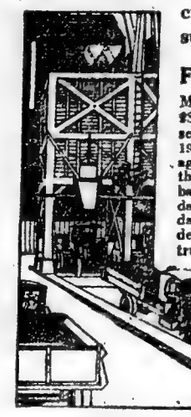
Success depends on knowing how

SINCE the installation of the initial Pierce-Arrow truck, a competent organization has been engaged in gathering data of performance of the trucks in different businesses to assure the success of each truck.

Pierce-Arrows are now operating successfully in 108 different lines of business. Some are more difficult to serve than others, and in these Pierce-Arrows have made notable records.

In the coal business—Pierce-Arrows are serving leading coal concerns in practically every large city. We could quote a notable success in any one of them:



FOR INSTANCE:

Milwaukee Western Fuel Company operates 23 Pierce-Arrow trucks and has just bought seven more. The first truck delivered in June, 1914, has run 65,000 miles since. Again and again in emergencies, the trucks have proved themselves equal to their tasks. In a recent bad storm which blocked streets badly for days, one of the trucks covered 85 miles every day, performing its regular work with little delay. They lose less time than any other truck on the market.

In the contracting business, reliability is essential in a truck. Earnings depend on bonuses for time saved or penalties for time lost. No truck in the contracting business has made so good a record as

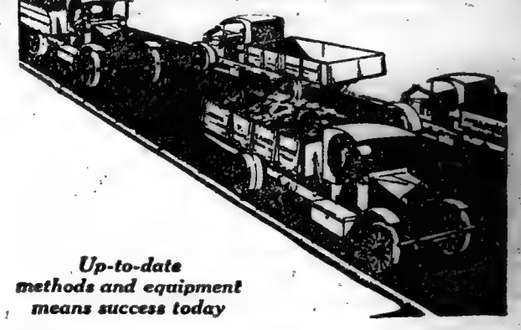
PIERCE-ARROW
Motor Trucks

FOR INSTANCE:

John F. Casey Company of Pittsburgh, operates 8 Pierce-Arrow trucks. They bought the fleet after trying out an initial truck in an exhaustive test covering two years.

The capacity of the fleet was thoroughly tested in excavating and constructing the Cabbage Hill Reservoir. Materials had to be carried up a 7% grade over wretched roads, a total haul of 3¾ miles. The trucks worked over 5 months, hauled 85,000 tons of sand and gravel and 47,000 barrels of cement in addition to 5,000 tons of coal, machinery and miscellaneous freight.

They worked an 11-hour day and averaged 16 trips a day. They did the work faster and much cheaper than any other possible equipment, and finished the job far ahead of contract time.



Up-to-date methods and equipment means success today

We could give concrete instances of notable performances in many businesses, but we would rather quote you the experiences of companies you know well, with whose work you are familiar, if you will ask us.

WILSON URGES NEW TAX BILL ON CONGRESS

Plain Duty to Provide Greater Revenue at This "Very Peak and Crisis of the War."

"POLITICS IS ADJOURNED"

Excess Profits, Incomes, and Luxuries to be Taxed Anew, with Attack on Profiteers.

CONGRESS READY TO ACT

Many Members Still Unconvinced, However, of Necessity of Tax Bill on Eve of Elections.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Appearing today before Senate and House in joint session, President Wilson urged the enactment at the present session of Congress of legislation to raise additional war revenue. He recommended that war profits, incomes, and luxuries be made the chief subjects of increased taxation. His appearance was a complete surprise to leaders of Congress, who believed that the revenue bill was still a matter of discussion. In a speech, forceful and patriotic, that left no doubt as to his purposes and specifically explained the sources of taxation to be realized and the necessity for the legislation, the President settled the controversy as to whether Congress should enact a revenue law before the Congressional elections in November.

Approaching the subject from a highly patriotic standpoint, the President, in his address, waived political considerations and told Congress that its plain duty was to place the nation upon a strong financial basis at this war crisis. After he had delivered his formal address, Mr. Wilson dramatically informed Congress that its duty became plainer because the great German drive on the western front had been resumed.

There was prolonged applause as the President concluded his formal address, which had been punctuated by cheers. He hesitated for a moment, as if to accentuate another point, and then, raising his hand as for silence, said:

"May I add a word, gentlemen? Just as I was leaving the White House I was told that the expected drive on the western front had apparently begun. You can realize how that solemnized my feeling as I came to you, and how it seemed to strengthen the purpose which I have tried to express in these lines.

"I have admired the work of this session. The way in which the two houses of the Congress have co-operated with the Executive has been generous and admirable, and it is not in the spirit of suggesting duty neglected, but only to remind you of the common cause and the common obligation that I have ventured to come to you today."

House Galleries Packed.

While there had been no public announcement of the President's intention to address Congress, the galleries of the House were packed when the President made his appearance at 1 o'clock. Speaker Clark and Senator Martin were informed at 10 o'clock this morning of the President's desire to address Congress, and within a very few minutes thereafter there were telephone calls from all parts of the city for admission tickets to the House galleries. Apparently the purpose of the President to appear before the two houses had been "tipped off" about the time the Vice President and the Speaker were asked to make arrangements for the joint session.

Women in Summer attire predominated in the galleries. Mrs. Wilson, her mother, Mrs. Boling, and the President's daughter, Mrs. McAdoo, were seated in the President's pew in the Executive Gallery. Members of the Cabinet, including Secretaries Baker, Daniels and Wilson and Postmaster General Burleson, were present when the President began speaking. In front of the Speaker's dais were Associate Justices Clarke and Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court.

While it cannot be said that there was entire sympathy among Senators and Representatives with the President's insistence that a new war revenue measure be enacted at the present session, the general disposition of Congress is to comply with his desires. Senators and Representatives showed after listening to the address that what the President had said did not appeal to their judgment, but those who expressed themselves were practically unanimous in saying, in effect: "The President is Commander in Chief, and we will give him whatever he wants." This sentiment appears to insure compliance with the President's program at the present session.

Airmen Raid Belgian Ports and Austrian Naval Base

LONDON, May 27.—An Admiralty statement issued tonight says:

Bombing operations have been carried out against Mariakerke and Zeebrugge, where bombs were observed to fall close to the lock gates of the canal. Nearly three tons also were dropped on the Bruges docks Wednesday night. All our machines returned safely.

In home waters numerous flights by the escort patrol and other anti-submarine duties were carried out. Submarines were sighted and attacked and enemy mines were located on several occasions.

Our seaplanes also carried out long reconnoissances over the North Sea.

On May 20 allied aircraft made a successful bombing attack on the Austrian naval base at Cattaro. A direct hit was obtained on barracks occupied by submarine crews and a fire was seen to break out.

ORDERS BIG RISE IN RAILROAD RATES

CHANGES IN EFFECT IN JUNE

$860,000,000 Annually Added to the Operating Income of the Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Increases in freight and passenger rates which, it is estimated, will add approximately $860,000,000 annually to the operating income of the railroads under Government control were authorized today by William G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads.

The order provides in most cases for a jump of 25 per cent. in interstate freight rates and wipes out all intrastate rates. The passenger rates are to be increased to three cents a mile, and where the present rates are above that level there is to be no decrease.

Mileage books and excursion tickets are to be abolished, with few exceptions, and a heavy increase in parlor car and sleeping car rates is established. Commutation service is treated separately, an increase of 10 per cent. over the present schedules being ordered.

The new passenger rates will become effective on June 10 and the freight rates on June 25.

Action was taken by Mr. McAdoo without lengthy review by the Interstate Commerce Commission and State commissions. In a supplemental statement Mr. McAdoo explained that the war-time conditions demanded immediate action, and that all complaints concerning inequalities would be taken up later and considered. He expressed the hope and belief that substantial reductions might be possible.

Higher Costs Given as Reason.

The mounting cost of operating the railroads due to war conditions, which have advanced the cost of living and the prices of materials, along with the $525,000,000 increase in wages to rail-

ORDER GEN. WOOD TO HOME DUTY ON EVE OF SAILING

DETAILED TO SAN FRANCISCO

To Do Administrative Work as Head of Western Military Department.

GENERAL CONSULTS BAKER

Secretary Declines to Comment on Change of Instructions to Former Chief of Staff.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—On the eve of his expected departure for Europe for active service in the war, Major Gen. Leonard Wood, the highest ranking officer of permanent grade in the regular army, has been relieved of command of the 89th National Army Division and ordered to take charge of the Western Military Department, an administrative position that does not carry with it the command of troops. The headquarters of the Western Department are in San Francisco.

General Wood had been ordered to Europe to assume a command in the field, when he received his new orders to proceed to San Francisco to take over the duties of a purely administrative office. He arrived in Washington today, and it was said that he had come from New York.

The purpose of his visit here was evidently to ascertain, if he could, why he had been taken away from field service in the war. Late this afternoon he saw Secretary Baker at the War Department, but with what result is not known.

Baker Refuses Explanation.

Mr. Baker declined to comment on the report than General Wood had been transferred to San Francisco. He indicated that it was not necessary for him to explain orders to army officers.

When Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, was asked about the order to General Wood he said he knew nothing about it.

The presence of General Wood at the War Department today caused comment, and there were many inquiries as to what he was doing in Washington. When seen at the War Department and asked about his visit to Washington, General Wood answered merely that he was "passing through." War Department officials were reticent, and there was no definite information in regard to the matter until news came from San Francisco late this afternoon that Brig. Gen. Charles G. Treat had been relieved of command of the Western Military Department, and that Major Gen. Wood had been assigned to succeed him.

General Wood was not accessible after the receipt of this bulletin. It is supposed that he had heard of it, and for that reason kept aloof from newspaper men. No information was obtainable as to his whereabouts.

In view of the attitude of Secretary Baker and other officials it has been impossible to obtain any definite informa-

RED CROSS FUND TOPS $143,000,000

CITY'S FIGURE $33,434,702

The total for the nation in the drive for the American Red Cross's second $100,000,000 war mercy fund was estimated at a late hour last night at $143,454,393. New York's total was placed at $33,434,702. These figures were announced at the dinner held at the Waldorf-Astoria to mark the end of the campaign. This total will be considerably augmented, as the figures for New York City and nine national districts are still incomplete.

William C. Breed, Chairman of the local Red Cross Committee, presided at the dinner, and the speakers were Henry P. Davison, National Director of the Red Cross, and Seward Prosser, Chairman of the first drive here.

A feature of the dinner was the auction of a copy of President Wilson's proclamation for the second war fund drive, bearing the President's signature. After lively bidding between William Fox and Cleveland H. Dodge, it was knocked down for $55,000 to Mr. Dodge, who estimated that the document would eventually be worth $1,000,000.

Mr. Breed Introduces Speakers.

Chairman Breed, in his remarks preliminary to introducing the speakers said: "I appreciate that in coming here tonight you have only one thought, and that is to get the results of your labors as quickly as you can, and in that respect I assure you I am as anxious as you are; but it would hardly be proper for me as Chairman to allow this occasion to pass without making some public recognition on behalf of our committee of the service of the thousands of devoted men and women who for the past week and month have been giving their time to the cause of the Red Cross. All honor to them. They have made the name New York a proud name to bear.

"I would also like to call attention to the fact that not only have those services been rendered by a very large proportion of the people, but they have been rendered with a spirit of joy and pride and enthusiasm that seems to have put this campaign on a different plane from any other campaign that New York has ever experienced. I firmly believe that every individual who has given his work during the past week will feel the pleasure and joy of that service during all of his life. In a most emphatic manner also I wish to make public recognition of the way the press, the entire press of New York, has handled the campaign of the Red Cross. When I say the entire press, it is without any exception, so far as I know.

More Than 2,000,000 Contributors.

"I am pleased to announce to you that while during the first campaign there were 43,000 contributors, including those who turned in dividends, reliable reports coming to me tonight make it possible for me to estimate that in the second war fund the people of New York have contributed to that great mercy fund of the Red Cross in numbers of upward of two million people.

"I merely want to add that when the President of the United States appointed to head the Red Cross a man who sits at my right and who is entitled to be called the great General of the Red Cross, the President of the United States made no mistake.

"I wired Mr. Davison asking him if he could not be present here tonight, and he replied that duties in Washington made it impossible. But this morning I received a telephone message, saying he could not resist the temptation of meeting with his old friends in the City of New York on the night of what I hope will be their triumph."

Reply by H. P. Davison.

Mr. Davison in his reply said in part: "Your Chairman reports me correctly in saying that I could not resist the temptation; somehow I wanted to be home tonight. When I was in Europe, and when I came back, I said, 'Certainly the American people cannot ap-

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Monday, May 27, (Evening.)—The attack on the French in Flanders today appears to have been confined to the area between the Ypres Canal and Locre, and I hear that the enemy had very little success. Apparently he got a footing in the French front on a width of about 800 yards south of Dickebusch Lake and tried hard to extend this gain, but was promptly counterattacked and ejected from a portion of the ground. The French had already taken over 100 prisoners.

Fighting continued throughout the day, and although German shock troops endeavored to work northward from Kemmel they were unable to make any headway. The French have the situation well in hand.

No other infantry attacks developed anywhere on the British front, and there was very little artillery activity this afternoon.

Attack Follows Heavy Shelling.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Monday, May 27, (Afternoon.)—As I mentioned in my message of yesterday, the German artillery has been firing with increased violence on several sectors of the French and British front from Flanders to the Somme, and both last night and this morning the heavy fire continued and intensified, as though preparatory to infantry attacks in force.

Warning signals were sent up last evening by some of the British troops near Aveluy Wood, north of Albert, but the Germans did not advance against them. Along several sectors of the line between Arras and Albert the enemy's bombardment has been severe for several hours, but there again infantry attacks have not followed in localities from which up to this time reports are to hand.

At 4:30 this morning, however, there was an assault upon the French lines in Flanders beyond the Hospice at Locre, the object of the enemy being no doubt to recapture the ground gained by the brilliant little action of our allies on May 20, who pushed out their line on a width of 3,000 yards beyond the Hospice and brought back 500 prisoners belonging to garrisons of small fortified positions among the ruins of old farms and inns.

The enemy's bombardment of this last night was of great strength, and just after daybreak today his assault troops are said to have succeeded in advancing slightly here and there over their old positions, heavily engaged by the French infantry and suffering under their defensive fire. The definite results of the German effort are not known as I write this preliminary account, but in any case it is not a battle on a big scale in this sector, and it would be unwise to exaggerate its importance. We must expect several minor attacks of this character, designed perhaps to divert attention from the main blow.

Long Range Guns Renew Bombardment of Paris As the Germans Start Their New Offensive

PARIS, May 27.—After a long interval the Germans again began to bombard Paris with long-range guns at 8.30 o'clock this morning.

Two persons were killed. One was a workman fetching milk for breakfast, and the other was a woman. President Poincaré visited those who were injured and their families soon after the first shells fell.

The resumption of the bombardment was an unwelcome surprise to Parisians, who had not heard the sound of exploding shells from the German "Big Bertha," since May 1. There was no mistaking the peculiar "ping" with which the shells burst, however, and it was immediately recognized that the long-range firing was on again.

The first shell was followed at fairly regular intervals, such as on the occasion of previous bombardments, making it seem probable that more than one gun was in action.

It is significant that the long-range bombardment of Paris, which had been suspended for a considerable interval, has been resumed just as the Germans are renewing their offensive in the west. The original bombardment was opened on Saturday, March 23, almost coincidentally with the start of the great offensive in Picardy.

At least two of the mammoth pieces were destroyed or badly damaged some time ago by the French artillery, which adopted special measures, in conjunction with airplane observation, to reach them in their location just behind the westerly edge of the Aisne front, more than seventy miles from Paris.

Early this month the long-range shelling was suddenly suspended, and on May 16 one of the German newspapers announced that two of the big pieces had been taken to the Krupp plant for repair work. Such huge guns, it was explained, "could not be fired indefinitely without timely repairs."

Berlin Claims Capture of Whole Chemin Des Dames

BERLIN, May 27, (via London.)—The War Office statement today reads:

In the battle regions of Flanders, on the Lys battlefield, and on both sides of the Somme and the Ayre artillery fighting has become more intense.

South of Laon the battle for possession of the Chemin des Dames has been raging since early morning. The troops of the Crown Prince have taken the ridge by storm along the whole of its extension, (extent?) and are now fighting on the Aisne.

LONDON, May 27.—The Germans have resumed their great offensive on the Western front by delivering a terrific blow with massed forces at the Franco-British lines from Vauxaillon (almost directly north of Soissons) to the Brimont region (north of Rheims)—a distance of approximately forty miles.

The allied forces have been forced back a considerable distance at some points, the French War Office bulletin tonight admitting that at the end of the day the enemy had reached the region of Pont-Arcy (on the Aisne River and more than four miles in the rear of the previous French position.)

Further to the eastward the British, which it is now revealed, hold a considerable section of the front in the neighborhood of Berry-au-Bac, have also been forced to give ground.

It is stated, however, that the French and British troops have retired in perfect order, making the Germans pay heavily for their gains.

At the same time with this major operation between Soissons and Rheims the Germans made a drive at the French front between Voormezeele and Locre, (about six miles distance,) in the Kemmel region on the Lys salient. Ground was won by the assailants, only to be lost for the most part in the face of French counterattacks.

The Reuter correspondent at headquarters in France describes the German bombardment on the Aisne as scarcely less violent than that which heralded the German offensive on March 21. Gas shells were employed in great quantities, and the bombardment and infantry attack between Soissons and Rheims were on a more formidable scale than in Flanders.

The Germans, according to this correspondent, employed their familiar formations—dense waves of infantry following closely in the wake of a lifting barrage and fresh troops pushed up with characteristic recklessness.

"Among the signs of a resumption of the grand offensive are that the enemy is heavily shelling our far back areas with high velocity guns, and also his airmen are unusually venturesome," continues the dispatch. "A note of confidence comes in the reports from the battlefront."

Paris Admits Loss of Ground.

The battle continued throughout the day with extreme violence on a

ENEMY LEAVES MANY DEAD

Some Germans Are Captured in the Severe Hand-to-Hand Fighting.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE FRENCH FRONT, May 27, (Associated Press.)—Three German raids were made against the American positions in Picardy between 6 and 9 o'clock this morning and were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy. The Americans took a number of prisoners.

The Germans advanced 50 strong in the centre, 160 on the right, and 120 on the left. They were driven off speedily and left many dead in front of the American trenches.

The assaults were preceded by violent bombardments of the entire American line during which, it is estimated, 10,000 shells, many of them gas shells, were fired by the enemy.

For a time there was fierce hand-to-hand fighting. The Germans took one of the Americans prisoner, but the Americans pursued the enemy and recaptured him.

The American artillery did remarkable work in helping to turn the German raid into a victory for the defenders.

The bravery of the Americans may be illustrated by the case of a private whose arm was blown off. Dazed, he kept on fighting and did not know that he had been injured until a comrade came to his aid.

Pershing's Report of Attacks.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—General Pershing's bulletin, issued tonight by the War Department, makes no mention of a general renewal of the German drive, but says that after violent artillery preparation enemy infantry today penetrated advanced American positions in Picardy at two points, only to be driven out by counterattacks, in which Americans entered the enemy lines. The position in Picardy to which he refers is probably that held by the Americans west of Montdidier, about thirty-five miles west of the Chemin des Dames battlefield.

The statement also tells of the repulse of a strong hostile raiding party in the Woevre sector, of hostile gas shell bombardments in Lorraine, and of the downing of a German airplane by American aviators.

In Picardy, after violent artillery preparation, hostile infantry detachments succeeded in penetrating our advanced positions in two points. Our troops counterattacked, completely expelling the enemy and entering his lines.

In the Woevre a strong hostile raiding party was repulsed [with losses?] in killed and wounded.

CANNON NOT A NEW TYPE?

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 27.—What seems to be a renewal of the big German offensive, this time against the French front, was marked for Paris by the resumption this morning of the shelling of the city by the long-range German gun after a lapse of a month. The bombardment of the Paris district continued through the day. The aim was poor and the damage light.

As before, Paris showed no sign of fright. This statement may seem so astounding as to require proof. Here is the evidence of what happened in one neighborhood, which is typical of the whole city.

One shell explosion seemed so close and definitely located that crowds began to run toward the supposed place to see the damage. It was a wild goose chase up and down streets and through alleys, the ever-increasing crowd laughing at the sport of following the leaders. A butcher boy on a bicycle-propelled pushcart full of meat leaves the bicycle to make better progress through the crowd. A thief steals the meat cart. The butcher boy yells and starts pursuit, whereupon the crowd turns to chase the thief till he is arrested, forgetting all about the big German gun.

"Why has the German gun been silent so long?" The Times correspondent asked one of the leading French artillery experts this morning.

"The reason is very simple," was the reply, "but to enable your readers to realize it I must explain the origin and nature of these long-range guns. The root of the whole matter lies in the fact that in an ordinary heavy gun only about one-third of the propulsive charge of powder has time to explode before the shell leaves the mouth of the gun. The remaining two-thirds of the charge explodes too late to be of use as a propulsive force. Why? Simply because the tube of the gun is too short to enable the whole charge to explode and exert force on the shell while the latter is passing out. It is obvious that if you can prolong the tube of the gun the shell will remain longer in the confined space where the explosion of a greater proportion of the powder can exert force. Consequently the range of the gun will be so much greater. The Germans have merely inserted specially made tubes, thirty or forty feet long, into the barrels of old sixteen-inch naval guns which had been thrown out of service, but which by their

MEXICO CITY, May 27.—The attitude of the Mexican Government on the oil question has brought a protest from the American State Department.

A note sent through Ambassador Fletcher states that the United States cannot permit confiscaion of the private property of American citizens or arbitrary loss of acquired rights, and makes it known that the Mexican Government law of impuestos [taxes] will be considered so. Supporting the position the United States cites the following principle of international law: "Exploitation of property by simple supreme sovereignty without due process of law, amply and equitably administered, always has been considered as a denial of justice."

The note calls attention also to the distinction established in Article 27 of the Federal institution between property in superficial and property in subsoil oil lands. This principle is applied in the law of impuestos without first having made effective the expropriation in accord with constitutional principles because until now there has not been made a legal disposition which explains the form which the verified expropriation takes or the means of discounting the rights of interested parties.

For this reason the United States calls the attention of the Mexican Government to the necessity that might present itself for the United States to protect the property of its citizens in Mexico. In conclusion the United States manifesto says it cannot believe that the Mexican Government will not attend to its obligations toward Americans who have invested capital in Mexico, trusting to the justice and good faith of the Mexican Government and its laws.

The note also contains several questions about the payment of taxes in coin and the conditions of the storage of the oil product.

It adds that the new tax is a heavy burden for the oil industry and its tendency is confiscatory.

front of more than forty kilometres, (twenty-five miles,) from the region of Vauxaillon to the outskirts of Brimont.

Masses of the enemy attacked our troops in the first line and pushed ahead without regard for their losses into the valley of the Aisne. Certain of their elements reached at the end of the day the region of Pont Arcy.

The French and British troops, cooperating magnificently, retired methodically and in perfect liaison, making the enemy pay dearly for his first successes, which were inevitable, and assured that foot-by-foot resistance would prove efficacious.

The activity of the opposing artilleries was maintained on both banks of the Meuse, in the region of St. Mihiel and on the Lorraine front.

The day statement of the French War Office is as follows:

In the latter part of the night the Germans opened a very violent bombardment all along the front between the Forest of Pinon and Rheims. This morning an enemy attack is in progress along a very extended front between these two points.

In the Champagne, on the right bank of the Meuse, (Verdun front,) in Apremont Forest, and in the Woevre, there was active artillery fighting. During the night the Germans delivered several local attacks in the Apremont Forest, but were repulsed after spirited fighting, in which the Germans sustained losses. Two other efforts, in the region of Limey, northeast of Badonviller, were also repulsed. The French took prisoners.

Haig's Story of Day.

Field Marshal Haig's report tonight says:

At 3:30 o'clock this morning the British divisions holding a sector of the French front astride the Aisne at Berry-au-Bac, between Bermericourt and Craonnelle, were heavily attacked.

At the same time hostile attacks in great strength were made against the French troops immediately on the right and French divisions on the left, along the high ground traversed by the Chemin-des-Dames.

In the British sector the enemy's attack was supported by tanks and accompanied by an intense bombardment with gas shells.

On our right, our troops maintained their battle positions and are in close touch with the French. On our left, the enemy succeeded after heavy fighting in pressing our troops back to the second line of prepared positions. Severe fighting has taken place along the front, and is continuing.

On the Lys battlefront strong attacks made by the enemy this morning on the Locre-Voormezeele front have been repulsed by the French troops after fierce fighting, with great loss to the enemy.

In the neighborhood of Dickebusch Lake the enemy succeeded in penetrating for a short distance into the French position. Fighting is still taking place at this point. Other localities in which the enemy penetrated in the first attack, have been regained by counterattacks by the French troops, who secured a number of prisoners.

On the remainder of the British front the situation is unchanged.

The day statement of the British War Office reads:

Strong hostile attacks, preceded by a bombardment of great intensity, developed early this morning on a wide front against the British and French troops on the line between Rheims and Soissons and against French troops between Locre and Voormezeele.

There was considerable hostile artillery activity yesterday and last night on the British front.

Two Amies Used in Aisne Attack.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, May 27, (Associated Press.)—The uncanny silence along the entire French battlefront in the last few days was merely a prelude to a most violent attack today by the Germans along an extended front, stretching from Pinon almost to Rheims. While there are no specific indications, it is most probable that the entire armies of General von Boehm and General Franz von Below, under the supreme control of the Imperial Crown Prince, have been thrown into the engagement.

The Germans are well served with railroads in this region, enabling them to transport quickly large masses of troops from one point to another.

URGES ALL TO GO BAREFOOT

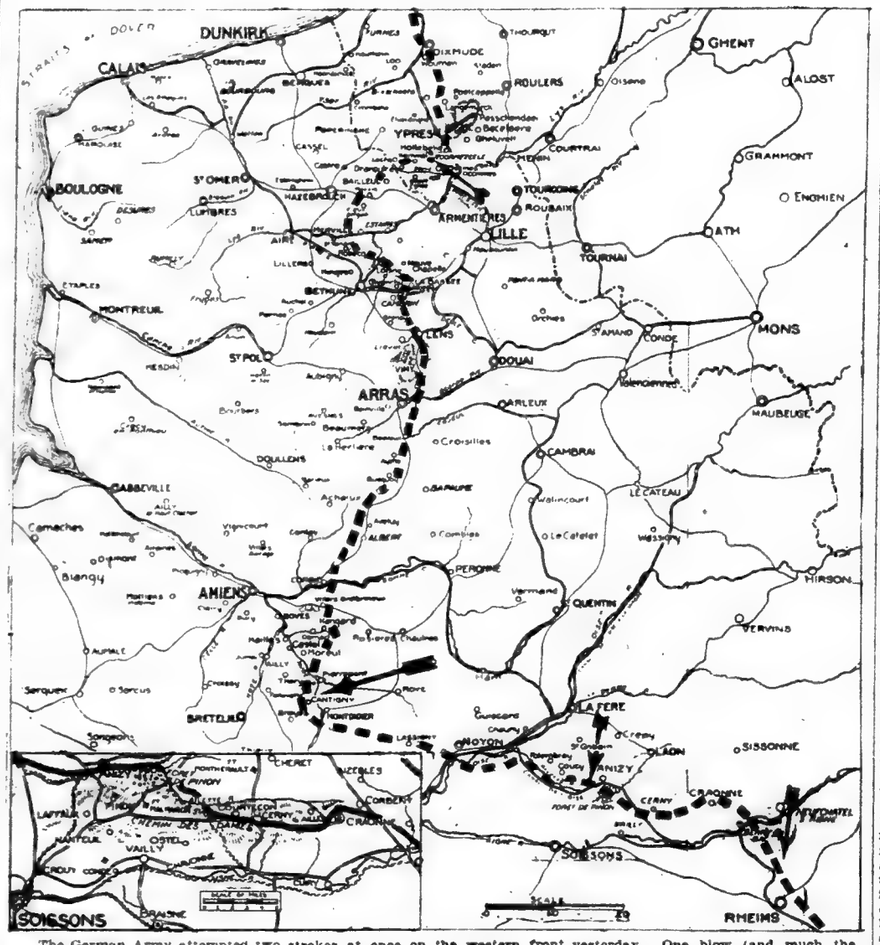
New Means of Helping Fatherland Placarded in Germany.

AMSTERDAM, May 16, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—"Go barefoot this Summer and help the fatherland," is the latest patriotic catchword to be placarded in Germany.

"In view of the alarming scarcity of leather, rich and poor alike should dispense with boots and shoes," says an explanation of the placard in the Rheinische Westfalische Zeitung of Essen. The old are urged to set an example for the young.

"Why not walk on your bare feet this Summer!" says the Zeitung. "Neither old nor young need be ashamed to walk [illegible] at home, in the [illegible] yesterday

Scenes of the New German Assaults



The German Army attempted two strokes at once on the western front yesterday. One blow (and much the minor one) was aimed at the French lines on the northern flank of the Lys salient between Voormezeele, directly south of Ypres, and Locre, west of Kemmel—a distance of about six miles. Early successes of the assailants were negatived by French counterattacks, it would seem, but fighting was still going on late in the afternoon, according to the latest reports.

The larger operation was a drive on a front of approximately forty miles at the allied line from around Vauxaillon, north of Soissons, nearly to Rheims. British troops are with the French in this area, it is now revealed.

The main blow seems to have been directed at the Chemin des Dames sector, which is shown in some detail in the inset map. Berlin insists that the whole ridge has been carried by storm and that German troops are fighting on the Aisne. The latter statement is virtually confirmed by Paris, which admits the enemy has reached the region of Pont-Arcy, which is on the Aisne River, south by southeast of Cerny. This point is about fifty-eight miles from Paris, about five miles further away than the nearest point on the German Picardy front near Montdidier.

The broken line in the larger map and the black line in the insert map indicate the approximate position of the battlefront when the Germans began their attack yesterday morning.

In addition to these two drives of considerable consequence the enemy attacked the American lines in Picardy, presumably in the region west of Montdidier, as indicated by the arrow at the vertex of the salient. They were driven back by our troops, who entered the German trenches.

The War Situation

The German offensive has been renewed, but in a quarter not altogether expected. Two attacks were made simultaneously at widely separated points. One was in Flanders on the front between Locre and Voormezeele. There is no definite report of the fighting here as yet. We have only the statement that the attack was repulsed, but without details. The object of the attack here is the same as that for which all of the fighting here has been marked—the line of hills to the west of Mont Kemmel, the first of which is Scherpenberg.

Unable to take the position from in front as was proved in the fighting which ended on April 29, the Germans are trying again a plan which has also failed—to establish themselves well to the north of Kemmel so that they may get in rear of the Scherpenberg defenses. At the same time there is an accompanying effort to break their way through at Locre so as to get possession of the road which runs between Kemmel and Scherpenberg. In either case, if the attempt is successful the Germans will be well behind the coveted position and will thus be in position to strike against its artillery positions.

The other offensive was along a sector which has been quiet ever since the fighting in which the French acquired control of the Chemin des Dames and passed down into the valley of the Ailette. The front of attack apparently was between a point north of Rheims, near the village of Brimont and Vauxaillon, just southwest of the Forest of Pinon. Between Bermericourt and Craonnelle, the line was held by certain British divisions, this being the first intimation we had received that there were any British troops south of the Avre River or anywhere else in France, other than on the front between Hangard and the North Sea.

The German attack involved the British and the French troops, both on the right and on the left. The French line from Bermericourt eastward appears to have held without loss. There is nothing to indicate any material gain in any of this section. The British right and centre also seem to have held without permitting gain. The British left, however, where it joins with the French, was thrust back nearly four miles from the valley of the Ailette to the Aisne River at Pont Arcy.

Of the action further west we have few details. As the matter stands, then, as far as the reports of the fighting tell us, the Germans have succeeded in driving into the French lines at their eastern juncture with the British a salient about four miles deep, one flank extending northeastward to Craonne and the other northwest toward Vauxaillon, the apex of the salient being at Pont Arcy.

This means that the Germans forced their way across the little Ailette River and thence up the slopes of the Chemin des Dames, which the French took so brilliantly in the Spring of 1917. This was a considerable feat by itself. The general characteristics of this famous road are well known. It runs along the crest of the heights of the Aisne, overlooking the ground on both sides.

While the height of the floor of the valley of the Ailette is only 250 feet above the sea, that of the Chemin des Dames, but a mile to the south, is 600 feet above the sea. This accomplishment of the Germans therefore in the face of the French defense is not to be belittled.

Apparently the German method was very similar to that used in the first days of the battle of Picardy. But little can be said of this, however, or of the exact location of the present lines until more complete information is available. As far as one can judge, the net result is a mere yielding of territory at a point where the Allies can afford to yield, and brings to the Germans no very great military advantage.

It is a curious fact that both the attacks of yesterday came against the French. And it is therefore a matter of interesting speculation as to just why Germany launched her attacks in the particular quarters in which they developed. The principal considerations are these: Having found the salient at Montdidier so narrow that their troops did not have room to manoeuvre, Germany decided to widen it out by an attack in the south. This, however, does not explain the attack at Locre. The latter may have been purely a blind to delay or prevent the transfer of reinforcing troops.

Again, the entire attack may be a great diversion, made for the purpose of inducing General Foch to redistribute his reserves and lessen the resistance on the main Amiens front. This point of view is substantiated somewhat by heavy artillery firing between Arras and Albert, which looks as if an attack might be delivered there. On the other side of the question is the width of front attacked, which would seem to negative the idea of a mere subsidiary attack.

Again, the object may be to destroy the French Army, now that it has been shown that the British cannot be destroyed, and by this means to get to Paris. Finally, there is the possibility that Germany wants to secure good defensive positions on this front by throwing the French behind the Aisne, where Germany will practically be immune from attack, in which case she will be free to carry on operations before Amiens without danger of a flank attack. This, however, hardly seems probable. At any rate we cannot judge with any hope of accuracy just what Germany is attempting until several days have passed.

HOT FIGHTING IN FLANDERS

had to sustain several thrusts by German raiders in force, which they did with most stolid and unyielding courage.

These attacks were against three of their sectors. In that by Nieuport the enemy was able to make a temporary entry into the Belgian front lines between the Passchendaele Canal and St. Georges, but a fierce little counterattack by the Belgian troops hurled them back with many casualties and took 15 prisoners.

In the Dixmude sector the enemy came out with a strength of about sixty raiders and tried to destroy a Belgian patrol. It was a rash enterprise, because the patrol accepted the challenge and dispersed the German raiders, who had to run for their lives, leaving behind a number of wounded.

Further south in the neighborhood of Boesinghe the Germans assembled for attack, but were caught in a barrage of the Belgian gunners who mauled them so badly that their action could not develop. The Belgians are in great fighting spirit, and the enemy is troubled by their constant harassing.

The situation generally remains as except that the enemy is revealing his power more fiercely, and during the last twenty-four hours has spread his shell fire about the battle zone very heavily and over wide areas from Ypres southward.

The weather still remains good, and on both sides there is more than usual activity in the air, so that before nightfall yesterday some of the sky spaces were literally crowded with British fighting planes going eastward in flocks with destructive intent.

Great events of history must be near at hand.

BELGIANS SHELL FOE'S LINES.

Their Airmen Also Active and Successful in Sky Battles.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—This official account of operations on the Belgian front during the week ended May 23 was made public today by the Belgian Legation:

During the last week the artillery has been particularly active in the regions of Nieuport, Merckem, and Boesinghe. We have subjected the enemy's communicating trenches to frequent bombardments. The enemy's long range guns have shelled several of our garages and encampments, namely at Furnes, La Fanne, Forthem, Loo, and Ostivieterer.

In the vincinity of Dixmude and near Aschhoop combats with bombs have occurred. Encounters between patrols are reported from Nieuport, Ramscapelle, and Boesinghe.

Our aviation has new successes to its credit, apart from its regular duties of observing and photographing. Adjutant Domeulemeester has brought down his tenth plane, Lieutenant Oliestagers his sixth, and Adjutant Coppens has destroyed his fourth German balloon.

ADMITTED FAILURE IN APRIL.

German Troops Told It Was Result of Bad Staff Work.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27, (Associated Press.)—In connection with the drive in Flanders it is noteworthy that the Germans considered their attacks on the Lys front in April as a failure, according to prisoners.

It is stated that while some troops were congratulated for the way they fought, they were told that their failure was the result of bad staff work. The General in command of the operations was relieved of his command.

DERNBURG FOR REICHSTAG.

To Run in a Berlin District for Seat Vacated by Kaempf.

AMSTERDAM, May 27.—The German Progressive Party intends to put up Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former Colonial Secretary, as a candidate for the Reichstag in District 1 of Berlin, the Neue Preussische Korrespondenz reports. The election in this district will be held to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Johannes Kaempf, Speaker of the Reichstag.

Dr. Dernburg traveled about the United States for several months in the early period of the war, giving lectures and engaging otherwise in German propaganda. His activities aroused so much opposition that he left the country in June, 1915.

SUSPECT A FEINT IN AISNE ATTACKS

WILSON CONSULTS ADVISERS

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Germany has apparently launched another desperate attempt to smash her way through the allied armies to victory before American troops can reach the battlefields of France and Flanders in great force.

Associated Press reports from the British and French fronts telling of the new assaults, which may mean that the supreme test of power is at hand, were conveyed to President Wilson just as he was leaving the White House for the Capitol to ask Congress for legislation to provide more money for the war. The President emphasized his request by telling the House and Senate, in joint session, that the great enemy offensive had apparently been resumed.

Later Mr. Wilson went to the State, War, and Navy Building for brief conferences with Secretaries Lansing, Baker, and Daniels. It was taken for granted that the primary object of the visit was to seek official news from the battlefront, and while there were reports that the President discussed other phases of the world situation with the department heads, they did not receive the slightest confirmation in official quarters.

No official information had come tonight to supplement press dispatches from the front. General Pershing's daily report told of an enemy infantry thrust after artillery preparation which penetrated the American advanced positions in Picardy, only to be driven back by a counterattack, and of the repulse of a hostile raiding party in the Woevre sector. It made no reference to the strong drives against the British and French, as the Pershing reports deal only with the activities of the American Army.

May be Only Preliminary Action.

Army officials studied the press accounts closely for signs of the German purpose. The fact that one blow was launched at the southern end of the Picardy-Flanders battle theatre and the other at almost the northern extremity of the 200-mile battlefront was taken as direct evidence that today's attacks were only preliminary moves in the German strategic designs.

The extension of the active battlefront to the Aisne sector on the south means the addition of forty or fifty miles to the fighting line at a time when the German Army needs every unit it can get together in centralized positions within the wide salient driven into the allied lines in the first rush. Officials here agree with French critics that the most probable place for the real renewal of the drive to develop would be in the Albert sector of the Amiens front. An advance there would menace both Paris and the Channel ports.

One explanation of the long delay of the Germans in renewing the offensive has been found in the forty-mile stretch of shell-torn roads over which they had to move up guns and munitions before they could resume the pressure upon the Amiens line with massed power. In the Flanders theatre, the original advance was only ten or twelve miles in depth, and it was no great undertaking there to bring up the lines for new assaults.

Aisne Attack Possibly a Feint.

For these reasons many officers thought tonight that extension of the offensive to the Aisne theatre was merely a feint preparatory to a later attack in the Albert region or near Amiens, the point of maximum penetration, where American units now block the road with their British and French comrades. It was pointed out that the long sweep of the French line from Montdidier southeast to Pinon, the northern flank of the new German thrust, had constituted a great menace to the whole German position in the Picardy sector.

Some officers thought the real purpose of the Germans was to crush in that French line by breaking through behind it and forcing a withdrawal. Others contended that the new blow was struck directly at Paris, and that the long-range gun had been brought into action against the city again in order to force General Foch to mass reserves on that side.

From the French point of view the road to Paris must be defended at all costs. The British, of course, attach supreme importance to the Channel ports. The new German thrusts appear to be cunningly planned to exert the greatest possible pressure on the allied leaders to draw their reserve strength to the south and north, gradually weakening the line in the centre. The centre is north of Amiens—probably, from a military point of view, around Albert. Some observers are convinced that if the blows to the north and south prove effective for a few days, compelling reinforcements of both lines, the situation will change over night at the psychological moment, and the real weight of the German fighting force will be hurled at the weakened centre.

CALLED AISNE FRONT STRONG.

Allies Held High Ground Won by Last Fall's Operations.

The new attack by the Germans on the forty-mile front from Soissons to Rheims is an eastward extension of the assault on the southern flank of the Picardy salient launched between March 24 and April 8. This part of the western battlefield, known commonly as the Aisne sector, has been comparatively quiet since last Fall.

For a long time in this district the line of battle was close to the Aisne River. The battle line recently ran along the Ailette River, north of the Aisne, over the larger part of this sector, the French having advanced their line by means of brilliantly executed operations in October and November, 1917, when a total of 7,500 prisoners were captured on the first day, the Germans losing the last fragment of the long disputed ridge of the Chemin-des-Dames.

The front between Soissons and Rheims was thought to offer the Allies excellent facilities for defense. The country is hilly, with a series of strong natural positions to the rear of the allied lines. The Germans have already sustained two severe defeats on this front. Last July they undertook what is usually called the "Crown Prince's offensive," which met with the same fate as other military ventures of the heir to the German throne. He carried on the attack for several weeks and met with a costly failure. It is in this same general district also that Neville made his very costly attempt to smash the German lines a little more than a year ago.

The German offensive, beginning on March 21, has developed two salients, one large one in Picardy with its vertex near the Somme a few miles east of Amiens, and a smaller one in Flanders with its vertex resting on the eastern edge of the Forest of Nieppe, the so-called Lys salient.

Experts have argued that the Germans could not, without danger, seek a greater penetration in Picardy until they had broadened their front by removing the barriers to the Lys salient in the north or by occupying French positions in the Aisne and Ailette valleys and even further east.

BRITISH ALSO HAVE CRUISING SUBMARINES

LONDON, May 27.—The sinking of a German submarine by a British submarine off Cape St. Vincent shows that the British have cruising submarines, and this is only one incident where a submarine has sunk a submarine, says Archibald Hurd in The Daily Telegraph. The Cape St. Vincent incident took place more than 2,000 nautical miles from Plymouth.

"In neutral countries," the naval critic continues, "it has been assumed that only the Germans could build submarines capable of operating far out in the Atlantic. Conclusive evidence is now supplied that we also possess submarines which can cruise far afield, remaining at sea many days without refilling and revictualing.

"It is indeed no secret to the Germans that soon after the outbreak of the war a great number of large submarines were laid down in this country. It is also no secret that for many months past many of these craft were used in submarine hunting.

"Four or five years ago it was claimed in some quarters that a submarine could not fight a submarine, and later on the Germans adopted that theory, only too readily as events have shown. They were wrong.

"The British submarines have been employed in this way with great success. They also have proved useful in convoy work."

AMSTERDAM, May 27.—In reference to the British announcement of Saturday that a large German submarine had been sunk off Cape St. Vincent, a semi-official statement from Berlin says that no news has been received for a long time from one of the German U-boats operating west of Gibraltar. The loss of submarines in the manner claimed by the British, it is added, must be reckoned with.

TALE OF A U-BOAT FIGHT OFF THE VIRGINIA CAPES

British Skipper Said to Have Fired Five Shots at a German Craft.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., May 27.—It was learned here tonight that the master of a British steamer, which came into port last Wednesday, reported that he had fired five shots at a submarine 150 miles off the Virginia Capes.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Navy Department officials said tonight that there was nothing to indicate the presence of enemy submarines on this side of the Atlantic. They thought the British ship which reported at Newport News firing at a submarine 150 miles off the Virginia Capes probably had sighted a bit of wreckage or some other floating object.

BAN ON BOHEMIAN PROTESTS

Stadtholder Threatens to Dissolve Communal Organizations.

AMSTERDAM, May 27.—Another sign of the strained situation in Bohemia is seen in the action of the Stadtholder in threatening to dissolve communal organizations if they repeat their protests against the suspension of the Narodny Listy, the leading Czech newspaper.

A dispatch from Prague to the Lokal-Anzeiger, which gives this news, says that similar warnings have been addressed to various other organizations.

"All the talk we have heard about the Germans manufacturing these long range guns in dozens is all nonsense. It is perfectly well known how many 16-inch naval guns the Germans had at the beginning of the war, and the number discarded since then must inevitably have been very small. A 16-inch gun takes three years to make under the most favorable circumstances, and a fresh one must, of course, be made to replace each thrown out of service. It is obvious, therefore, that the Germans cannot have more than two or three old guns available for conversion into Big Berthas. We have already destroyed those in use when the bombardment of Paris first started, and no shells had fallen on Paris since then because they had no guns ready to fire on us. Personally, I have no doubt that as soon as our airmen get on to the gun which is firing today, the bombardment will again be brought to an end."

DOORKNOBS FOR MUNITIONS

Germans Also Reduced to Melting Monuments and Household Utensils.

PARIS, May 27.—Workmen arriving in Switzerland from Germany, says a dispatch from Berne to the Paris Matin, assert that the Germans are having great difficulty in obtaining raw material for the manufacture of munitions. Several German newspapers daily publish ordinances commandeering material and ordering the melting of monuments and household objects containing metal, even handles on doors and windows being specified.

6,783 RIVETS IN NINE HOURS.

British Record Returns to the Clyde with the New Score.

LONDON, May 27.—The British riveting record has returned to the Clyde, according to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Glasgow.

William Smith of Scotstoun in the yards of John Brown & Co. at Clydebank hammered in 6,783 rivets in nine hours on Saturday. This beats all previous British records and is more than 900 better than the mark set by William Moses at Barrow earlier last week.

Smith's riveting was done on a frame of a ship. His best hour was the sixth, when he put in 888 rivets.

DRIVE AUSTRIANS BACK ON TRENTINO FRONT

ROME, May 27.—The Italians have launched an important attack, capturing several mountain positions, the War Office announces. They have taken 870 prisoners.

The summit of Monte Zigolon, the town of Presena, Monticello Pass, and the mountain spur east of the pass have been wrested from the enemy.

The text of the statement says:

In the Tonale region the Alpini, fighting on terrain rendered most difficult by glaciers and the stubborn resistance of the enemy, have consecrated with victory the dawn of the fourth year of the war. The attack was begun Saturday morning and continued uninterruptedly during Saturday night and yesterday.

Monte Zigolon, with the underlying spur of Marocche, the lake basin, Presena, Monticello Pass, and the spur to the east have been wrested from the enemy and held.

The losses inflicted on the enemy were severe. Our losses were slight. Up to the present 870 prisoners, including fourteen officers, have been taken. Twelve guns, fourteen trench mortars, twenty-five machine guns, several hundred rifles and material of all kinds in great quantity remained in our hands.

In the Val Arsa on the night of May 25 the enemy twice attacked our positions on Monte Corno. Our assailants suffered heavy losses. Later the enemy was driven back by a counter-attack.

Eight hostile airplanes have been brought down.

Our troops showed high spirits.

PARIS, May 27.—Severe losses have been inflicted upon the Austrians in the Tonale district by the Italians, according to special dispatches from Rome. Among the 870 prisoners taken by the Italians are fourteen officers. Twelve cannon and twenty-five machine guns fell into the hands of the Italians.

Vienna Admits Partial Retirement.

VIENNA, May 27, (via London.)—The official report from Austrian Headquarters today says:

The Italians yesterday attacked our positions south of Tonale Pass. A small section of our lines was pressed back. A further enemy advance was frustrated.

The Italian attack is being carried out in a difficult part of the country near the western end of the front. The points mentioned by the Italian War Office are northwest of Trent, near the Austro-Italian frontier.

PARIS RAIDER CAPTURED.

German Aviation Captain Escaped Detection for Four Days.

PARIS, May 27.—The French Army Headquarters announces the capture on Saturday afternoon of Captain Kohl, observer of a German Gotha, shot down during the air raid on Paris on the night of May 21. He escaped at first, when his pilot was made prisoner.

Captain Kohl and the pilot set fire to the wrecked machine on landing, and the former made for the northeast. Kohl was approaching the French lines when he was detected by some artillerymen. He declared that he had requested transfer from sedentary aviation with the General Staff to active flight duty so that he might win the Iron Cross of the first class.

American Railway Man Gets Brigadier's Rank in British Army.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 27.—Henry Worth Thornton, an American, whose appointment as General Manager of the Great Eastern Railway in England caused an international sensation four years ago, has been named a Brigadier General of the British Army.

News of the appointment is contained in a brief letter received from him by Dr. Cheesman A. Herrick, President of Girard College, a classmate at the University of Pennsylvania.

General Thornton was promoted from the rank of colonel, a commission he received shortly after the beginning of the war. According to his letter, he received the appointment following his return from France because the Government appreciated his efficient work as Director of the Channel transports.

SOVIET PUTS DOWN MOSCOW ANARCHISTS

Cannon and Smoke Bombs Used in Assault Upon Various Headquarters.

MANY DEAD AND WOUNDED

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, May 24.—Last night the Soviet Government finally cleaned up the anarchist movement in Moscow. Early this morning, between 3 and 5, strong Soviet forces appeared simultaneously before the twenty-six different anarchist headquarters and demanded the surrender of all weapons within five minutes.

In many cases the anarchists yielded at once. Others offered strong resistance. Where surrender was long delayed the Soviets used four-inch guns. There were strong cavalry patrols in the streets, and order was kept by chains of Soviet soldiers.

In one big house, after the front had been blown to pieces, the anarchists kept up the fight in cellars, and were only dislodged by smoke bombs thrown down.

There were 300 arrests and a number of anarchists were killed and wounded. The Soviet forces lost three killed and a comparatively small number of wounded.

Today I went around to the various palaces and other buildings from which the anarchists were dislodged. Some were badly smashed up, pictures were ruined, there were bullet holes in the walls and statuary lay about on the floor. Whole rooms were looted and packed with valuable things stolen by hooligans who attached themselves to the anarchist groups.

Doubtless the counterrevolutionaries are making use of the anarchists. A number of Russian officers were arrested with the anarchists and also no doubt many German agents. Among the weapons captured was a German machine gun of the latest pattern.

Thus the Soviet has finally shown itself capable of uprooting a movement which all previous Governments had not dared to touch.

GERMANS CONTINUE ATTACKS ON RUSSIANS

LONDON, May 27.—A Russian Government wireless dispatch received here today says:

"M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister, has wired Adolph Joffe, the Russian Ambassador to Berlin, that German attacks on Valuiki are being made with large forces and that Russian inquiries to the German Government have remained unanswered. The offensive is also proceeding on the southern sector of the Don front and a battle has occurred near Bataisk.

"The Finnish Government, headed by Judge Svenhufvud, has not replied to Russian proposals for a negotiation looking to the settlement of relations with Finland.

"M. Tchitcherin also asked M. Joffe to ascertain why Germany is detaining Russian prisoners in Germany and to insist upon the prompt execution of decisions accepted by both parties for the exchange of prisoners.

"The Foreign Minister further notified M. Joffe that the offer of Count von Mirbach, the German Ambassador to Russia, to act as intermediary between the Russian Government and the Transcaucasian Government had been accepted."

MOSCOW, May 21, (Associated Press.)—Count von Mirbach, the German Ambassador, has advised the Soviet Government that Finland announces her willingness to enter into peace negotiations with Russia. A representative of Germany will participate in the discussions.

The peace conference between Russia and the Ukraine is to begin Wednesday. Germany has appointed Baron Mumm von Schwarzenstein, Ambassador to the Ukraine, as its special representative. He will have almost dictatorial authority in disputed questions, especially those involving boundaries.

Apparently for the purpose of terrifying the city, German airships have appeared over Novorossysk and German submarines have entered the harbor. The Trans-Caucasian Government has refused to cede the city to Turkey in accordance with new demands made by Turkey in the peace conference at Batoum, which is now deadlocked.

Novorossysk is 320 miles northwest of Batoum, and these two cities are the most important ports on the Black Sea coast of the Caucasus. Part of the Russian Black Sea fleet was reported to have taken refuge there after the Germans captured Sebastopol.

UKRAINIANS KEPT DOWN BY GERMAN BAYONETS

LONDON, May 27.—Copies of the Berlin Tageblatt containing dispatches from its correspondent, Leo Lederer, from Kiev, have been received here. Herr Lederer writes:

"Unfortunately, the new Ukrainian Government is constantly obliged to appeal to German troops for assistance in maintaining order, and it is very painful to see German troops again and again compelled to disperse meetings and patrol streets with fixed bayonets and make arrests.

"There can be no doubt that in the long run this situation must influence the feelings of the population in a sense very unfavorable to Germany and have harmful effects on Germany's future relations with Southern Russia. Moreover, it is hardly conceivable that this position can be long maintained without increasing friction between the German troops and the population, and in the end between the Ukrainian Government and the German authorities."

The writer says that it is a serious mistake to believe that South Russia can be permanently separated from the rest of Russia, either politically or economically.

Gen. Pershing Reports Only 19 Casualties; The Shortest List Received in Many Days

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The War Department today gave out a list of 19 casualties sustained by the American army in France, the smallest casualty list in many days. It brought the grand total from the beginning to 6,361. The list included 9 killed in action, 4 died of wounds, 2 wounded severely, 3 missing in action, and 1 died of disease. No commissioned officers were named.

BRITISH HONOR AMERICANS.

Award Military Decoration to 15 Officers and Privates.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE AMERICAN TROOPS WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 25, (Associated Press.)—The British Military Cross has been awarded to eleven American officers and the Military Medal to four men.

Most of the officers took part in the defense of the Luce Valley during the great German attack in March, being incorporated in the improvised army of Major Gen. Carey, which held back the Germans for six days after they had broken through the British line in the region of St. Quentin.

The four privates are cited for heroic conduct on the night of Feb. 23. At great risk they removed a burning car of munitions from an ammunition dump and placed it under a standpipe, flooding the car and extinguishing the flames.

TRAINED BY BRITISH OFFICERS.

New American Troops Are Called "Yanks" in Field Schools.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE BRITISH FRONT, May 24, (Associated Press.)—The work of the new American army in France is going on with the greatest vigor in all weathers—under the hot sun and along dusty roads, and in the drenching rain through the French mud, the sticking qualities of which the Americans have quickly learned.

The British officers, commissioned and noncommissioned, who are instructing the troops, are working quite as hard as their pupils, and are finding the new men, the "Yanks," as they generally call them, as keen as were the earlier arrivals.

"They're quite up to it," was the verdict of a kilted Scotch chief instructor regarding the Americans in his class.

The field schools, now largely given over to American pupils, represent the highest perfection in institutions of their class. The trenches, the targets, the tactics, and the methods of instruction are all the latest developments of actual fighting experience.

In every area where the units of the new army are quartered, the men are mingling freely with the "Tommies" and are learning much from the greater experience of the Britishers. The latter, so prone to give a familiar name to everything, were puzzled as to how to deal with the newcomers, but they finally fell back on the appellation "Yank," which threatens, in this zone at least, to be fixed on the Americans whether they like it or not. Thus far there have been no objections raised.

As fast as the new units arrive and get settled, hard training work is taken up. The program differs little from that followed by the first divisions that arrived in France. The men are out on the road every day, while large contingents of the British instructors have been distributed among the British field schools, where the latest points in tactics, trench fighting, grenade operations, musketry, and bayonet practice and machine gun fire are taken up.

The American Army man's pack in this zone will be lighter in his subsequent training. It was found that, with some articles made necessary by close co-operation with the British, the pack had grown beyond practicable dimensions for long marches. All superfluities have now been removed and everything else reduced to a minimum. The effect is observable in the lighter step and greater endurance of the men.

RICHARD MORTIMER KILLED.

Family at Tuxedo Gets News of Aviator's Death in France.

Mrs. Richard Mortimer of Tuxedo, N. Y., received a cablegram from France yesterday saying that her son, Richard, had been killed at the front on May 22 while he was on service with an aviation squadron. Neither Mrs. Mortimer nor other members of the family received details, and Stanley Mortimer and trustees of the Mortimer estates were unable to confirm the report through the War Department.

Mortimer was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the aviation section after training in an American camp and he sailed for France shortly before the death of his father in March. He was graduated from Harvard in 1911 and entered his father's business. He was a member of the Knickerbocker, Racquet and Tennis, and Tuxedo Clubs.

Through his mother, who was Eleanor Jay Chapman, he was descended from the Jay family. On his father's side he was descended from Richard Mortimer, who came to the United States in 1816 to establish mills here.

LIEUT. BAER IS MISSING.

Hope Entertained That the American Ace Is Captured, Not Killed.

PARIS, May 27.—Lieutenant Paul F. Baer of Mobile, Ala., an aviator, is posted as missing since May 22. It is hoped that he has been captured and not killed.

Captain de Ulin, it is announced, has won his twentieth aerial victory. The Captain was a partner of the late Captain Guynemer, the famous French ace.

Lieutenant Baer is a member of the American Flying Corps, and formerly belonged to the famous Lafayette Squadron. He is one of the most brilliant American aviators, and is an ace. He was cited by the French early this month after bringing down his fifth German machine.

BRITAIN TO WAIT ON RUSSIAN EVENTS

DOING ALL THAT'S POSSIBLE

Refrains from Interference in Internal Politics While Showing Every Willingness to Help the Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 27.—The closer the British Government examines the project of allied intervention in Siberia the less inclined it is to enter on this policy, according to information that has reached THE NEW YORK TIMES. A month or two ago officials were not indisposed to the idea, if Washington would assent and Japan was ready to work with her allies; but now, in the absence of any signs of emergence of a settled régime in Russia and the consequent impossibility of procuring an invitation from a representative authority, there is little to induce the Government to embark on a policy the result of which no one could foresee.

The most hopeful sign in the Russian situation is the resolution recently adopted by the Cadet Party refusing to make use of German aid in restoring order. It has always been feared that the industrial and commercial classes, which form the backbone of the Cadets, would, through a desire to save what they could of their property from the general wreck, be more willing than other factions to accept the Germans as liberators from anarchy, and the fact that they have resisted the temptation is regarded here as encouraging. It is understood that it was the Jewish section of the Cadets who insisted on this firm stand and absolutely refused to compromise with the Germans.

At the same time there is no illusion here as to the immediate power of the Cadets. They are far too weak in numbers and have too small a following to influence the situation greatly, and they can only be considered as a nucleus around which sooner or later the forces of order may crystallize.

The result is that the British Government as yet sees no evident steps it can take to assist its ally. It is carrying on informal relations with the Bolsheviki and transacting necessary business with their representatives. It is showing in every way it can its willingness to assist, and is keeping clear from any interference with Russia's internal politics. Further than that for the moment it cannot go, and it is forced by circumstances to adopt an attitude, not unlike that of President Wilson toward Mexico, of watchful waiting.

LITHUANIAN ARMY HOLDING FRONTIER

More Than 100,000 Men, It Is Said, Are Ready to Keep Germans in Check.

The people of Lithuania, despite years of suffering from the war, are determined to establish and maintain themselves as an independent nation, free from the clutches of Germany, and are eagerly awaiting recognition by the United States and the Entente Powers—this is the word brought by Dr. John Szlupas of Scranton, Penn., who has just reached New York from a visit to Lithuania as the representative of the American branch of the Lithuanian Relief Committee.

The country, he said, is strongly anti-German; the people are determined they will never again be a part of Russia or Poland, and an army of more than 100,000 men, recruited from the disorganized Russian forces, under the command of General Kammaitis, is stationed on the frontier of German occupancy, ready to assist in establishing a permanent Government.

Dr. Szlupas also said that the Lithuanians were not acceding to the regulations imposed upon them by Germany. Schools which the Germans established were without pupils, industries were boycotted, and every effort to make the country a German dependency was resisted.

It is proposed that there shall be formed a confederation of Lithuania, the Letts, Ukraine, Finland, and Poland, formerly under Russian domination, with the intention of working in harmony with the Scandinavian States for united resistance against future German aggression. This plan was discussed, Dr. Szlupas added, at conferences which he attended in Stockholm.

DILLON BROTHERS DISAGREE.

William for Accepting Draft—MacNeill Denies Charge.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

DUBLIN, May 27.—John Dillon's brother William, who is now on a Colorado ranch near Denver, disagrees with the Irish leader, it is learned here today. He believes that Ireland is making a great mistake in not accepting conscription and fighting wholeheartedly with the Allies.

Professor John MacNeill, who has taken de Valera's place on the Mansion House conference, and who was mentioned in the Government's charges of plotting with Germany prior to the Easter rebellion, made a flat denial today that he ever made the statement attributed to him by the Royal Commission. He said:

"The whole paragraph quoted is a tissue of falsehoods and no such statement as has been ascribed to me was ever made or could ever have been truly made by me."

Professor MacNeill had charge of the purchasing of arms and ammunition for the volunteers prior to the Easter rebellion. He is a Professor of Ancient and Medieval History at the National University.

DUBLIN, May 27.—The Rev. Malachi MacBranan has given out the following signed statement:

"As a priest and a member of the Sinn Fein Executive for the past year, I give you my word of honor that the Government's official statement that negotiations have been carried on between the Sinn Fein Executive and Germany is a falsehood, and that a German invasion was never discussed by the Sinn Fein Executive Committee."

MUST USE CORN MEAL AS FLOUR SUBSTITUTE

Food Board Instructs Bakers to Employ 10 Per Cent. in All Baked Products.

In order to use the large quantity of corn meal that has been on the market for some time, the Federal Food Board yesterday adopted a rule making it necessary for bakers to use at least 10 per cent. of corn meal in bread, rolls, and other baked products. Hitherto bakers have had to use 25 per cent. of substitutes for wheat in making their products. They might use as little or as much corn meal as they desired. The new ruling makes it compulsory to use 10 per cent. corn meal. The remaining 15 per cent. of substitutes may be any other the bakers desire.

Dealers in flour and substitute cereals are also required to sell at least 10 per cent. of corn meal as a part of the required substitutes. The new ruling will go into effect on June 1.

Claus Spreckels, President of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, was summoned yesterday before Alan Fox, head of the License Bureau, to explain the failure of the Federal Sugar Refining Company to make the monthly reports of its business for the months of November and December, 1917, and January, February, and April of the present year. Mr. Spreckels was unable to explain the delay, but agreed to make an inquiry and report at once to the Federal Food Board. He was given until Friday to make the report.

The firm of Peter Henderson & Co. of 35 Cortlandt Street was summoned before the board yesterday on complaint of customers that they have been charging exorbitant prices for seed potatoes. In order that there may be a full and impartial inquiry into the firm's business, the officers of the firm have been ordered to submit as soon as possible an expert accountant's report. This report will furnish the basis for a formal inquiry, if such is judged necessary.

The Federal Food Board issued an urgent appeal yesterday for people to do without wheat if they could until the next harvest. The following opinion, written by eminent scientists, was made public:

"It is the scientific opinion of the committee that in a mixed diet wheat may be entirely replaced, without harm, by other available cereals, namely, rice, barley, oats, and corn. However, we should not recommend this except as an emergency measure."

SAYS RELIEF WORK MAY SAVE RUSSIA

Czecho-Slovak Leader Urges Us to Send a Rehabilitation Commission.

BEST WAY TO FIGHT BERLIN

Thus, Ven Svarc Says, Insidious German Propaganda Might Be Nullified.

Americans can best aid in the salvation of Russia by relief of suffering and by building up the administrative and industrial life of the country, in the opinion of Ven Svarc, formerly City Solicitor of Cleveland, who spent most of the last year in Russia as a member of the Czecho-Slovak Commission.

"The German propaganda in Russia and Siberia is amazingly wide and intensive," he says, "and it is directed very largely against the United States. We need to fight that by counter-propaganda; but the most potent kind of propaganda is work of relief, which is terribly needed just now throughout Russia. The Germans have no argument that will answer that.

"The work that we do in Russia must be done by people who know something about the country and the Russian character and the language, and who are entirely loyal to the United States. This sounds like a good deal, but it will be easy to find such men. They can be found among naturalized Americans of the Russian—real Russian—race, and among naturalized citizens of the other Slav races—the Czecho-Slovaks, the Jugoslavs, and the Poles.

"It seems to me that the best way for us to proceed with setting Russia on her feet again would be to send into Vladivostok and from there throughout Siberia a civil and industrial commission which will have as its object the distribution of the things most needed in Siberia and Russia—shoes, clothing, plows, and small agricultural tools. With them should go nurses and Red Cross workers with food supplies where needed. This would not only alleviate the sufferings of the people, but would tend to bring life into its normal channels again.

"Of course restoration work of this sort would meet with the opposition of the Germans, and it would probably be necessary at the beginning to provide an armed guard for the protection of the supplies sent over and those distributing them through Siberia. But I am confident that it would not be long before the people themselves, appreciating the difference between their former condition and that brought about by their relief workers and the rebuilders of industrial life, would provide such protection as was needed themselves.

"This armed force, in my opinion, might be composed of American citizens of Russian or other Slavic race. Its slogan, however, should be 'the salvation of Russia for Russians and Slavs.'

"The industrial commission should reorganize the small industries and try to make the people of the various communities self-supporting as they go along. The first thing needed is the rehabilitation of the Trans-Siberian Railroad, and this must begin with the assembling and repair of rolling stock at Vladivostok. This is particularly essential because if there is any ultimate hope of progressing beyond Siberia to relieve economic distress in European Russia we must have rolling stock ready to rush through with supplies. I feel sure that when the people of European Russia, already suffering from hunger and from the lack of shoes and manufactured articles, contrast their situation with that which this relief commission could bring about they will cry out for help in their turn. The situation in the interior of European Russia is already almost intolerable, and it will be more so after this year's crops are harvested; for, according to report, only half the usual area has been sown.

"But it is an essential preliminary to such an enterprise that an agreement should be made public under the signatures of all the allied Governments guaranteeing that the commission had come with only a peaceful intent to relieve the economic distress, aid in the restoration of industrial, agricultural, and commercial life, and, when the task was finished and the people of Siberia were able to proceed along normal lines of their own strength, to withdraw.

"In the meantime every effort should be made to counteract the German propaganda by getting the truth to the people of Russia. The Bolsheviki have terrorized the press as they have terrorized the nation. The papers now being published, if they are not Bolshevist, are afraid to print anything that is contrary to the wishes of the Bolsheviki, and they get all their foreign news—which is very little—from Petrograd. Most of it has a very strong pro-German flavor.

"German agents are evidently all through Siberia, spreading their propaganda, and to counteract it it would be necessary to have a good many Americans, preferably Americans of Slavic blood, who know the Russian language, sent throughout the country. But the problem is largely one of distribution. It is our duty to get the truth to the Russian people if we have to bring our own presses and type. There is nothing to fear from the German propaganda if we can get the facts to the people, for the truth is all on our side.

"As it stands now, it is hard to get newspapers from the city through the country, for the Bolsheviki confiscate most of those which do not present their view of things before they get to the mails. But it doesn't make any difference where you print the facts; you could publish a paper in Vladivostok, and if you had adequate distribution facilities it could be sent all through Siberia and do the work.

Siberians Anxious for the Truth.

"And the people want to know the truth. Last February a village in the interior of Siberia had a public meeting and raised funds to send two of its citizens to Petrograd to find out what was the true state of affairs and report back to the village. The heading on the newspaper story which told of this was 'Commandeered to Go After the Truth.' How little they had been allowed to learn in the interior of Siberia may be seen from the questions which the village representatives were to ask: Whether a government under Kerensky or one under Lenine would be more beneficial (this was three months after the Bolsheviki had seized the power and Kerensky had fled;) who are the real enemies of the people, the Germans or the bourgeoisie; is it true that the Bolsheviki have dispersed the Constituent Assembly, or did it never meet?

"Their intentions were of the best; they wanted to know. Now the Germans provide them with plenty of news, but it is all done in an insidious and apparently innocent manner. None of it appears as German propaganda; it looks like authentic news, and is particularly evident in the labor papers of Siberia, which are almost all Bolshevist. It comes under the guise of revolutionary, socialistic, and labor news of genuine origin.

"The care with which this news is co-ordinated is amazing. For instance, in widely separated parts of Siberia I found labor papers decrying the idea of national patriotism and praising the 'new Socialist Internationale,' wherever it may have been established and whatever it may be; they didn't seem to know, but these articles were for it. The German stamp was evident to the careful reader, but there was nothing on the surface to indicate it.

Efficient German Propaganda.

"One of the most remarkable instances of the efficiency of the German propaganda and information service which I have heard of was one which I ran across in an anarchist publication, Sibirski Anarchist, published in Krasnoyarsk, in the very centre of Siberia. In this paper there was an account of a mass meeting held by the workers in a coal mine in the back country in the neighborhood. These miners, it appeared, had passed resolutions calling for world peace and the 'new Socialist Internationale,' and then had passed another resolution condemning the United States for the conviction of Thomas Mooney, Alexander Berkman, Emma Goldman, and others, and also for the attempt to extradite Alexander Berkman to San Francisco to try him in connection with the Mooney bomb throwing.

"It seemed to me surprising that such a small detail as this should be known by the miners in the rural regions of Central Siberia, with no large towns near at hand, so I checked up on the matter when I came back to San Francisco. And here it appeared even more surprising. For Alexander Berkman was never extradited in connection with the Mooney case. I learned that apparently the prosecution had at one time thought of trying to do so, and then had abandoned it. Now, this fact was never published in California; it was known to only a very few people. And yet I find coal miners in the middle of Siberia discussing what was in effect a secret of the San Francisco District Attorney's office. How did they find it out?

"This same Sibirski anarchist had an article on 'American Democracy and Its Conduct Toward Labor.' This began with the statement that there was not a community in America which did not have its martyrs to the cause of organized labor, and it rehearsed incidents running all the way from the Haymarket riots and the Homestead strike to the comparatively recent events in Bayonne.

Bogey of American Conquest.

"In Harbin I found a Socialist daily called Labor, which featured an article on 'The Far East and the Next War.' This was pure German propaganda and directed against everybody but the Germans. It declared that France and England were hostile to Japan, and that America was trying to filch from Japan her rightful influence in China; and it sought to turn the Russians against all of these nations. It said that at the end of the war America would have the largest mercantile marine; that she would have to utilize it, and that she would do so by sending armies to conquer Siberia in order to extend her commercial and industrial domination. Finally, it pointed out, that the only salvation for the workmen of Siberia and of Japan was to put down the imperialistic designs of their own Governments and join the 'new Socialist Internationale.'

"The Germans not only circulate such things as this, but they are repressing the news about their own actions. The Bolshevist papers carry the only news available, and this is very meager and of a pro-German tint.

"The Russian laboring classes have struck so often that the custom has now extended to the employers. In Vladivostok the Bolsheviki last March tried to carry out the control of all industries by the workers—and of all business by the clerks. But the Vladivostok merchants and manufacturers organized what they called the Executive Committee of Commerce and Industry, in effect an employers' union, and when the demand to turn over the business was made they simply closed up everything except the bakeries, the groceries, the barber shops, and the drug stores. It was a ten days' lockout, and the Bolsheviki did not have the courage to try to break it by force. Finally they organized a Bolshevist parade. I did not see it, but Japanese papers said that there were only 300 people in line, and I know that everybody was surprised to find that they were so few. It appears to be the case everywhere that the Bolsheviki are a minority ruling by terror, but here was a place where they could not terrorize. The workmen and clerks came back to work and the demand for Bolshevist control of industries was dropped.

"When I left Vladivostok there were four cruisers in the harbor—one American, one British, and two Japanese. While I was there the Bolsheviki made a bluff of hostile action toward the cruisers, and mounted guns on the hills above the harbor; but that was all. It was said that there was no ammunition and nobody to serve the guns; for the officers had all been driven away, and the trained gunners had left with them. The landing of marines occurred after I left. The landing party was small and was apparently solely designed to protect the Japanese Consulate. There is still an enormous quantity of supplies in and around the town, but the railroad facilities are inadequate to remove them should such an attempt be made, and I think there is no danger of that with the cruisers in the port."

FIXES ZONE POSTAL RATES.

Postmaster General Issues Regulations for Periodicals.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Regulations establishing the zone system of postal rates for newspapers and magazines have been issued by the Postmaster General. For that part of periodicals devoted to reading matter, after July 1, a rate of 1¼ cents a pound will be fixed for the first year and one of 1½ cents thereafter. For that part of periodicals devoted to advertising matter are assigned zoned rates running from 1¼ cents to 3¼ cents the first year. In 1919 the regulations provide a scale running to 5½ cents, while in the third year the charge will be raised to 7¾ cents in the farthest zone and in the fourth to 10 cents. Intermediate zones take a rate proportionately increasing.

To make effective the discrimination between the weight of reading matter and advertising, the regulations provide that all publishers shall file a copy of every publication marked to show the percentage of each. Publishers are also required to separate publications in mailing in accordance with the zones to which copies are destined.

The zones created are similar to those established for grading parcels post rates. Beginning July 1, in the first and second zones surrounding the place of publication, the rate on advertising sections of publications will be 1¼ cents per pound; in the third, 1½; fourth, 2; fifth, 2¼; sixth, 2½; seventh, 3, and eighth, 3¼.

Between July 1, 1919, and July 1, 1920, the first and second zone rate will be 1¼ cents; third, 2; fourth, 3; fifth, 3½; sixth, 4; seventh, 5, and eighth, 5½.

After July 1, 1920, the scale will run 1¾ in the first and second zones, 2½ in the third, 4 in the fourth, 4¾ in the fifth, 5¾ in the sixth, 7 in the seventh, and 7¾ in the eighth.

The final increase, in 1921, makes the rate in the first and second zones 2 cents, in the third 3, in the fourth 5, in the fifth 6, in the sixth 7, in the seventh 9, and in the eighth 10.

SET FIRE TO WAKE HUSBAND

Building a fire of oil-soaked rags near her husband's bed to get him up for work was the novel method resorted to yesterday by Mrs. Mary Nolan in her home at 106 Raymond Street, Brooklyn. She is now held in the Classon Avenue Police Station, charged with attempted arson, on the complaint of Fire Marshal Brophy.

The woman, surrounded by her five children, told the Fire Marshal that her husband, Patrick, refused to get up and go to work yesterday, although she threatened to pour scalding water upon him. She said she heated some water and threw it upon him, but he remained in bed. Then she went to the Domestic Relations Court, but nothing could be done for her there, so she returned to the house, gathered up some rags, poured on kerosene oil and lighted them.

Patrick got out of bed, and with other occupants of the four-story tenement put out the flames. Fire Marshal Brophy made the complaint upon which she was held. She insisted upon having her youngest child, a two-year-old boy, go with her to the station house.

Austria's Leading Aviator Killed.

PARIS, May 27.—Lieutenant Kiss, reputed to be the leading Austrian aviator, has been killed in an aerial battle, according to a dispatch from Berne.

road employes and the $160,000,000 additional which must be paid this year for coal and fuel oil, were given by Mr. McAdoo as the factors which contributed most toward the situation which made immediate action on his part mandatory.

He expressed the hope that the public, shippers, and railroads would co-operate in accepting the increases as a war measure, and would do all in their power to aid the Government in carrying out its plans for meeting the conditions now faced.

The rate increases which Mr. McAdoo has ordered are considerably in excess of any which were asked by the railroads before they were taken over by the Government. They were made necessary in part by the fact that net earnings dropped to a very low level in the early months of the year—to a point, in fact, where it became evident that the Government would be faced by a large deficit unless radical steps were taken.

None of the increased rates, however, is on account of additions, the purchase of new equipment, or other proposed expenditures approaching $1,000,000,000 on capital account.

The new rates will relieve the Government of the necessity of meeting a huge deficit out of the Treasury, a step which Mr. McAdoo feels would be unwise. On the other hand, attention is called to the fact that none of the money realized by the increased rates will benefit private interests, and that any excess over operating expenses and rentals will go to the Government.

McAdoo Explains Increases.

Director General McAdoo made the following statement:

"The United States has taken over the railroads as a war emergency measure. They must be operated efficiently if the war is to be carried to a successful conclusion, and they must be operated under the high cost conditions the war has created.

"These conditions are strikingly illustrated by the steady increase in the cost of railroad coal, as indicated by the following table:

Year.	Tons.	Price per Ton.	Total.
1915	122,000,000	$1.13	$137,860,000
1916	136,000,000	1.32	179,520,000
1917	154,570,000	2.12	329,000,000
1918	166,000,000	2.95	489,700,000

"The increases in the cost of fuel oil consumed by the railroads and in the cost of other railroad materials and supplies have likewise been enormous.

"These increases have contributed inevitably to the increased cost of living, which in turn has created a demand for increased wages for railroad employes. This subject was exhaustively considered recently by the Railroad Wage Commission, consisting of Messrs. Franklin K. Lane, Charles C. McChord, J. Harry Covington, and William R. Willcox, who have unanimously recommended increases in wages which they estimate will add to railroad operating costs not less than $300,000,000 in the year 1918. The Director General has put the recommendation of the Wage Commission into effect, making at the same time certain additional increases for some classes of employes in order to meet practical necessities which cannot be escaped or postponed.

Heavier Cost of Operation.

"On account of these extraordinary increases in operating costs, which have come about as a consequence of the war, it is estimated that for the same aggregate business as last year, and under the same conditions except as to prices and wages, the operating expenses for the calendar year 1918 will be from $830,000,000 to $880,000,000 more than for the calendar year 1917.

"While these increased operating costs will be subject to readjustments and may be somewhat diminished, yet, on the other hand, because of the abnormal methods by which business must be conducted to serve the needs of the war they may be substantially increased. It seems clear that the railroads should be made self-sustaining and that sufficient revenues should be provided to prevent them from becoming a burden on the Federal Treasury.

"The immediate practical necessity is that, without delay, increases in rates should be made to provide for these increased costs of operation. At best, practically half of the year 1918 must elapse before such increases in rates can be made effective, although increases in operating expenses have been steadily effective since Jan. 1, 1918.

"Therefore, by virtue of the power, during Federal control of the railroads, which act of Congress has conferred upon the President to initiate rates whenever the public interest requires, which power, as provided in that act, the President by proclamation has devolved upon the Director General, the latter has been compelled, for the reasons stated, to initiate substantial increases in freight and passenger rates for practically all transportation services performed by the railroads under Federal control, including, of course, transportation service within the several States as well as transportation service across State lines. These increases are made with the approval of the President and are explained in detail in the copy of order accompanying this announcement.

Increases Effective in June.

"The increases in passenger rates will become effective on the 10th day of June, 1918, and the increases in freight rates will become effective on the 25th day of June, 1918.

"In making the advance effective on the dates specified a simple form of tariff authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission must be used and this will lead to the temporary disregard, to some extent, of established groupings and differentials. But it is the intention to observe such groupings and differentials as far as practicable, and hereafter, with as much dispatch as possible, restore any important relationships which may be for the time being disturbed, and concurrently therewith endeavor to remove any existing discrimination and bring about uniformity of rate adjustment throughout sections where conditions are similar.

"The act of Congress provides that the reasonableness and justness of such rates may be dealt with by the Interstate Commerce Commission, so that no interests affected will be deprived of the opportunity for full hearing and consideration. The act of Congress provides that the commission, in passing upon these questions, shall take into consideration the President's finding and certificate that in order to defray the expenses of Federal control and operation it is necessary to increase the railway operating revenues.

"In this connection, it is important to make clear that no part of the increase in rates now initiated is on account of the making of additions and betterments or the purchase of new equipment or other expenditures chargeable to investment account. The increases initiated are solely on account of increased burdens tending to diminish railway operating income.

"In the nature of things no such far-reaching step can accomplish ideal equalization as between the numerous interests necessarily affected, and doubtless the commission will find it proper to make readjustments to attain a nearer approach to such equalization. While as far as practicable the rates as initiated are designed to avoid unnecessary disturbance of relative rate bases, the Director General will co-operate heartily with the commission in any readjustments needed to accomplish still further the object of avoiding undue preferences which, nevertheless, may develop upon detailed consideration by the commission.

Asks Public Co-operation.

"It is earnestly hoped that all citizens affected directly or indirectly by this increase of rates will support the general principle of such increase as an unavoidable war measure and accept the additional burden in the same spirit of self-sacrifice in which they have accepted other inconveniences and burdens and the grievous personal losses which are parts of the price that the nation is patriotically paying for world liberty.

"In considering these increases one vital distinction which makes them fundamentally different from any rate increases ever proposed or allowed when the railroads were under private control should be understood. This distinction is that there is no way in which the present increases will inure to private profit.

"If they turn out to be more than are needed to meet the grave public exigency, they will promptly be readjusted so as to prevent any unnecessary burden upon the public; but pending such readjustment the excess, if any, will be for the benefit of the people of the United States as a whole and not for the benefit of the private railroad owners or any of them.

"To the extent that savings can be effected and to the extent that reduced prices for the things the railroads must buy can be realized, it will be the purpose of the Director General to make from time to time appropriate reductions."

CLASS RATES, (DOMESTIC.)

"(b) All intrastate class rates shall be increased 25 per cent. where there are no interstate class rates published between the same points, and shall be governed by the classification, viz.: Official Classification, Southern Classification, or Western Classification, exceptions thereto and minimum weights which generally govern the interstate rates in the same territory, except that the Illinois Classification will be used between points in the State of Illinois.

"(c) All intrastate class rates shall be canceled where there are interstate class rates published between the same points and the interstate rates as increased by paragraph (a) shall apply.

"(d) After such increase of 25 per cent. no rates shall be applied on any traffic moving under class rates lower than the amounts in cents per 100 pounds for the respective classes as shown below for the several classifications. Any article on which exceptions to any classification provide a different rating than as shown in the classification to which it is an exception, will be subject to the minimum as provided below for the class provided therefore in the classification proper:

OFFICIAL CLASSIFICATION.

Classes	1	2	3	4	5	6
Rates	25	21½	17	12½	9	7

SOUTHERN CLASSIFICATION.

Classes	1	2	3	4	5	6
Rates	25	21½	19	16	13	11
Classes	A	B	C	D
Rates	9	10	7½	6½

WESTERN CLASSIFICATION.

Classes	1	2	3	4	5
Rates	12½	9	7½	6½	5

ILLINOIS CLASSIFICATION.

Classes	1	2	3	4	5
Rates	25	21	17½	15	11
Classes	6	7	8	9	10
Rates	12½	9	7½	6½	5

COMMODITY RATES (DOMESTIC.)

Sec. 2—(a) Interstate commodity rates on the following articles in carloads shall be increased by the amounts set opposite each:

COMMODITIES—COAL.

Rate per Ton.	Increase Per Net Ton.
3 or higher	50c.

"Where rates have not been increased since June 1, 1917, the increase to be made now shall be determined by first adding to the present rate 15 cents per ton, net or gross, as rated, or if an increase of less than 15 cents per ton, net or gross as rated, has been made since that date, then by first adding to the present rate the difference between the amount of that increase and 15 cents per ton, net or gross as rated; and to the rates so constructed the above increases shall now be added.

"Where rates from producing points or to destinations have been based on fixed differentials in cents per ton, such differentials to be maintained, the increase to be figured on the highest rated point or group.

COKE.

Rate per Ton.	Increase. Net Ton.
3 or higher	75c.

"Where rates have not been increased since June 1, 1917, the increase to be made now shall be determined by first adding to the present rate 15 cents per ton, net or gross as rated, or if an increase of less than 15 cents per ton, net or gross as rated, has been made since that date, then by first adding to the present rate the difference between the amount of that increase and 15 cents per ton, net or gross as rated; and to the rates so constructed the above increases shall now be added.

"Where rates from producing points or to destinations have been based on fixed differentials in cents per ton, such differentials to be maintained, the increase to be figured on the highest rated point or group.

Ores, Lumber and Other Products.

"Ores, iron—30 cents per net ton of 2,000 pounds; except that no increase shall be made in rates on ex-lake ore that has paid one increased rail rate before reaching lake vessel.

"Stone, artificial and natural, building and monumental, except carved, lettered, polished or traced—2 cents per 100 pounds.

"Stone, broken, crushed and ground—1 cent per 100 pounds.

"Sand and gravel—1 cent per 100 pounds.

"Brick, except enameled or glazed—2 cents per 100 pounds.

"Cement, cement plasters and plaster—2 cents per 100 pounds.

"Lime—1½ cents per 100 pounds.

"Lumber and articles taking same rates or arbitraries over lumber rates; also other forest products, rates on which are not higher than on lumber—25 per cent., but not exceeding an increase of 5 cents per 100 pounds.

"Grain, wheat—25 per cent., but not exceeding an increase of 6 cents per 100 pounds.

"Other grain—New wheat rates.

"Flour and other mill products—Twenty-five per cent., but not exceeding an increase of 6 cents per 100 pounds, and increase shall not be less than new rates on wheat.

"Cotton—Fifteen cents per 100 pounds.

"Cotton Linters—New cotton rates.

"Live Stock—Twenty-five per cent., but not exceeding an increase of 7 cents per 100 pounds, where rates are published per 100 pounds, or $15 per standard 36-foot car where rates are published per car.

"Packing House Products and Fresh Meats—Twenty-five per cent., except that the rates from all Missouri River points to Mississippi River territory and east thereof shall be the same as the new rates from St. Joseph, Mo.

"Bullion, base, (Copper or Lead,) Pig or Slab and Other Smelter Products—25 per cent., except:

"(1) That rates from producing points in the States of Arizona, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, and Washington, to New York, N. Y., shall be $16.50 per net ton, with established differentials to other Atlantic seaboard points, and

"(2) Rates from points in Colorado and El Paso, Texas, to Atlantic seaboard points shall be increased $6.50 per net ton. Separately established rates used as factors in making through rates to the Atlantic seaboard shall be increased in amounts sufficient to protect the through rates as above increased.

"Sugar, Including Syrup and Molasses Where Sugar Rates Apply Thereon—25 per cent., except:

"(1) Where the official classification applies, fifth class rates as increased will apply.

"(2) From points east of the Indiana-Illinois State line to points west of the Mississippi River, rates will continue to be made on combination of local rates or of proportional rates if published, to and from the Mississippi River; except that from points on the Atlantic seaboard to the Missouri River, Kansas City, Mo., to Sioux City, Iowa, inclusive, established differentials over the increased rates from New Orleans, La., shall be maintained.

"(3) From points in the States south of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi River, also from points in the States of Louisiana and Texas, rates shall be increased; to Chicago, Ill., 22 cents per 100 pounds; to St. Louis, Mo., 27½ cents per 100 pounds; to other points west of the Indiana-Illinois State line and west of the Mississippi River, except points in Arkansas, Louisiana, and Texas, 22 cents per 100 pounds; to points on and north of the Ohio River and east of the Indiana-Illinois State line rates shall be increased to maintain the former established relation to the rates to such points from producing points on Atlantic seaboard.

"(4) From producing points in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Kansas, and Nebraska to Missouri River territory and points in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Texas and points east thereof, 22 cents per 100 pounds.

"(5) From points in Idaho and Utah to points named in Paragraph 3 rates shall be 15 cents above the rates from Eastern Colorado.

"(6) From points in California to points taking Missouri River rates and points related thereto under the commission's Fourth Section Orders, and to points east of the Missouri River, 22 cents per 100 pounds.

"(b) Interstate commodity rates not included in the foregoing list shall be increased 25 per cent.

Intrastate Rate Increases.

"(c) Intrastate commodity rates shall be increased as shown in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section where there are no interstate commodity rates published on substantially the same commodities between the same points, and shall be subject to the minimum weights applicable on interstate traffic in the same territory.

"(d) Intrastate commodity rates shall be canceled where interstate commodity rates are published on substantially the same commodities between the same points, and the interstate rates as increased by paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section shall apply.

"(e) In applying the increases prescribed in this section the increased class rates applicable to like commodity descriptions and minimum weights between the same points are not to be exceeded, except that the increases in rates on sugar in carloads shall be made as expressly provided in paragraph (a) of this section.

EXPORT AND IMPORT RATES.

"Section 3.—All export and import rates shall be canceled and domestic rates applied to and from the ports.

FILING INTRASTATE TARIFFS WITH INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

"Section 4.—(a) All intrastate rates and all rates for transportation by water, which are to be increased under this order, if not now on file, except rates canceled under paragraph (c) of Section 1 and paragraph (d) of Section 2, shall be immediately filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"(b) All items which are confined in their application to intrastate traffic, but are now carried in tariffs on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, if not canceled under paragraph (c) of Section 1 and paragraph (d) of Section 2, shall be made applicable to all traffic.

MINIMUM CHARGES.

"Section 5.—(a) The minimum charge on less than carload shipments shall be as provided in the classification governing, but in no case shall the charge on a single shipment be less than 50 cents.

"(b) The minimum charge for carload shipments shall be $15 per car; does not apply to charges for switching service.

DISPOSITION OF FRACTIONS.

"Section 6.—In applying rates, fractions shall be disposed of as follows:

"(a) Rates in cents or in dollars and cents per 100 pounds or per package: Fractions of less than ¼, or .25, to be omitted; fractions of ¼, or .25, or greater, but less than ¾, or .75, to be shown as one-half, (½); fractions of ¾, or .75, or greater, to be increased to the next whole figure.

"(b) Rates per ton—Amounts of less than 5 cents to be omitted; amounts of 5 cents, or greater, but less than 10 cents, to be increased to 10 cents.

"(c) Rates per car—Amounts of less than 25 cents to be omitted; amounts of 25 cents or greater, but less than 75 cents, to be shown as 50 cents; amounts of 75 cents or greater, but less than $1, to be increased to $1.

OBSERVANCE OF DIFFERENTIALS.

"Section 7—In establishing the freight rates herein ordered, while established rate groupings and fixed differentials are not required to be used, their use is desirable if found practicable, even though certain rates may result which are lower or higher than would otherwise obtain.

Passenger Fares and Baggage Charges.

"Section 8—This order shall apply to all the passenger fares, both interstate and intrastate, of the railroads under Federal control. No existing fare equal to or in excess of 3 cents per mile shall be reduced. All fares now constructed on a lower basis than 3 cents per mile shall be advanced to the basis of 3 cents per mile. All fares which are on a lower basis than the said existing or advanced fares, as the case may be, such as mileage or excursion tickets shall be discontinued. These requirements are subject to the following exceptions:

"(a) The provisions of Sections 1 and 22 of the Act to Regulate Commerce, which authorize free or reduced fares or transportation, may be observed, except:

"First: That no mileage ticket shall be issued at a rate that will afford a lower fare than the regular one-way tariff fare, and except,

"Second: That excursion tickets may be issued only to the extent and on the terms set forth in paragraphs (b) and (c) below:

"(b) Round trip tourist fares shall be established on a just and reasonable basis bearing proper relation to the one-way fares authorized by this order, and tariffs governing same shall be filed as promptly as possible with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"(c) For the National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and auxiliary and allied organizations at Portland, Ore., in 1918, and for the United Confederate Veterans Reunion, auxiliary and allied organizations at Tulsa, Okla., in 1918, a rate of 1 cent per mile in each direction via direct routes shall be authorized and confined by certificate of identification to the membership of these organizations and members of their immediate families. For the various State meetings of these organizations held during the year 1918, fares shall be authorized under like conditions on basis of 2 cents per mile in each direction and confined to limits of the State in which the meeting is held.

"(d) Where public convenience will be served thereby, subject to the approval of the Director General, fares determined by the short line may be applied over longer practicable routes.

"(e) Officers, enlisted men, and nurses of the United States Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, when traveling in uniform at own expense, shall be granted the privilege of purchasing passage tickets at one-third the regular one-way fare, via route of ticket, applicable in coach, parlor, or sleeping car, as the case may be, when on furlough or official leave of absence, except that this reduced fare shall not be granted on short-term passes from camps or when on liberty from ships or stations to nearby cities. Applicants for such tickets shall be required to submit for inspection of ticket agent military furlough or other official form of leave of absence and to surrender to ticket agent a furlough fare certificate signed by a commanding officer.

"(f) Children under 5 years of age, when accompanied by parent or guardian, shall be carried free; children 5 years and under 12 years of age shall be charged half fare.

Commutation Fares Up 10 Per Cent.

"Section 9—Commutation fares shall be advanced 10 per cent. Commutation fares shall be construed to include all forms of transportation designed for suburban travel and for the use of those who have daily or frequent occasion to travel between their homes and places of employment or educational institutions.

"Section 10—Passengers traveling in standard sleeping cars and parlor cars shall be required to pay an additional passage charge of 16 2-3 per cent. of the normal one-way fare, and passengers traveling in tourist sleeping cars an additional passage charge of 8 1-3 per cent. of the normal one-way fare. The foregoing charges are in addition to those required for the occupancy of berths in sleeping cars or seats in parlor cars.

"Section 11—The following minimum number of tickets of the class good for passage in sleeping or parlor cars shall be required for occupancy of drawing rooms, compartments, or sections in parlor or sleeping cars: Two adult tickets for a drawing room in a sleeping car, two adult tickets for a compartment, one and one-half adult tickets for a section; five adult tickets for exclusive occupancy of drawing room in a parlor car.

"Section 12—Passenger fares or charges for accommodation and transportation of passengers entirely by water, or partly by water and partly by rail, shall be increased proportionately with fares and charges for the transportation of passengers via rail.

"Section 13—The basis for computing charges for excess baggage transported under lawfully effective tariffs shall be 16 2-3 per cent. of the normal one-way passenger fare, with minimum of 15 cents per 100 pounds and minimum collection of 25 cents per shipment.

"Section 14—Tickets purchased prior to June 10, 1918, will not be honored for passage on and after that date, except:

"(a) Passengers en route on June 10, 1918, on one-way tickets will be carried to destination by continuous passage without additional charge.

"(b) Round-trip tickets, portions of which have been used prior to June 10, 1918, or held by passengers en route on June 10, 1918, shall be honored in accordance with original tariff conditions under which sold without additional payment except that they shall be subject to the same requirements as one-way tickets in respect of additional payment for passage in sleeping or parlor cars, as prescribed in Section 10.

"Tickets made invalid for passage by this order will be redeemed from original purchasers as follows:

"Unused tickets will be redeemed at amount paid therefor.

"Partially used one-way tickets will be redeemed by charging tariff fare at time of journey for portion used and refunding difference between such amount and fare at which sold.

"In redemption of mileage, scrip or credential forms the purchaser shall be given the benefit, for the distance traveled, of a net basis proportionate to that which would have applied had the entire book been used according to its contract.

Excursion Tickets Stopped.

"Section 15—All passenger fares, lower than those hereinbefore prescribed, such as mileage, party, second-class, immigrant, convention, excursion and tourist fares shall be discontinued until further notice, except that tourist fares shall be re-established as prescribed in Section 8, paragraph (b) hereof.

"Section 16—Tariff provisions intended to assure the long haul to carriers and which prevent the free interchange of traffic shall be eliminated.

"Section 17—Stopovers on one-way tickets, side trips at free or reduced fares, discounts by use of excess baggage permits or excess money coupon books, and the sale of one-way tickets bearing limit in excess of time necessary to make trip by continuous passage, shall be discontinued.

"Section 18—Optional routes may be used only when specified in tariffs.

"Section 19.—In publishing fares and charges under this order, tariffs may be used which increase the present fares by fixed percentage to bring them to the bases authorized herein, even though the actual fares so constructed may be fractionally more or less than 3 cents per mile.

"Section 20.—Where the Interstate Commerce Commission prior to the date hereof has authorized or prescribed rates, fares, and charges, which have not been published at the date of this order, the rates, fares, or charges initially established hereunder by applying the increases herein prescribed to the existing or published rates, fares, or charges may be subsequently revised by applying the increases prescribed herein to the rates, fares, and charges so authorized or prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Section 21.—All schedules, viz.: tariffs and supplements, published under the provisions of this order shall bear on the title page the following in bold-face type: The *rates made effective by this schedule are initiated by the President of the United States through the Director General, United States railway administration, and apply to both interstate and intra-state traffic. This schedule is published and filed on one day's notice with the Interstate Commerce Commission under general order No. 28 of the Director General, United States railroad administration, dated May 25, 1918.

"*On passenger tariffs use word 'fares.' On baggage tariffs use word 'charges.'"

ASKS STATE BOARDS' HELP.

McAdoo Tells Them Commerce Commission Will Hear Complaints.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—In announcing the new railroad rates Director General McAdoo made public this telegram, sent by him today to the Presidents of all State Railroad Commissions:

"Apparent increases in operating expenses aggregating $830,000,000 to $860,000,000 for the calendar year 1918, as compared with the calendar year 1917, and consisting principally of increases in wages and cost of coal, fuel oil, and other materials and supplies, leave no escape from the conclusion that the public interest requires immediate and substantial increases in the rates for practically all services, passenger and freight, now performed by the railroads under Federal control, and therefore in effect performed by the United States Government itself, and that there is no other reasonable way to defray the expenses of Federal control and operation, since it is clear that those additional burdens should not be forced upon the Federal Treasury at this time, when it is already so heavily taxed by the needs of our own Government for war purposes and the essential demands for credit of the gallant nations associated with us in this great struggle for liberty.

"In these circumstances, it seems clear that the duty which rests upon me by virtue of the act of Congress of March 21, 1918, and by virtue of the President's proclamation, should be performed by the initiation without delay of increased rates to meet the situation.

"In dealing with this supremely important subject I have given much thought to the question as to the practical way of availing myself of the knowledge and co-operation which at all times have been so cordially put at my disposal by the State Commissions. The act of Congress gives me no opportunity to share with the State commissions the responsibility which rests upon the United States Railroad Administration for the financial results of the United States Government of the operation of the railroads. In fact, the Government of the United States has assumed control of the railroads and the undivided responsibility for their operation, and that entire responsibility has been placed upon me.

"I have also felt that the exigencies of the situation are so serious as not to admit of postponement of action until full opportunity could be extended to the commissions in all the States to discuss the important problems involved and to advise me, in advance of official action, as to how my responsibility could best be discharged.

"In these circumstances, it has seemed clear that the responsibility should be promptly met in the manner contemplated by the act of Congress and then, in the inevitable readjustments which always must come in a matter of such far-reaching character, to obtain the advice and suggestions of the State commissions and to take advantage of their views in order that in the final consideration of the subject by the Interstate Commerce Commission, that body may have the benefit of the most intelligent and equitable suggestions as to the readjustments needed to accomplish the largest measure of relative justice, while at the same time obtaining the additional operating revenues which the United States Government must have in order to discharge the responsibilities which it has assumed for railroad operation.

"Acting upon this view, I am initiating substantial increases in practically all rates, passenger and freight, and am arranging to have delivered to you at once a copy of the announcement on this subject. I earnestly hope that the procedure thus adopted, and which is unavoidable, will have your support, and that you will give the Government your full co-operation in perfecting the rates thus initiated.

"I also bespeak your patriotic co-operation in getting the public to support in a patriotic spirit and as a war measure these substantial rate increases, which are the outgrowth of war conditions and which in principle and in substance are indispensable to enable the Federal Government to discharge the transportation functions which are essential to the successful conduct of the war."

STATE COMMISSION TO CONFER.

Increased Railroad Rates Will Be Considered Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 27.—The up-State Public Service Commission will consider the increased freight and passenger rates ordered by Director General McAdoo at an executive session tomorrow afternoon, Chairman Charles B. Hill said tonight.

"The commission received a telegram from Mr. McAdoo this morning," he said. "We have not yet given it consideration, but will do so at the session tomorrow. Until that time I do not care to say what will be done."

TO RENEW EXCURSION RATES.

Summer Resort Fares 20 Per Cent. Higher—Coal to Cost More.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Some comfort for Summer vacationists was derived from assurances by the Railroad Administration tonight that excursion rates would be re-established, though on a higher basis. The Director General's order provided for the discontinuance of existing excursion fares, and many other lower rates and special passenger privileges.

Local excursion fares to Summer resorts will be raised generally about 20 per cent. Long distance excursion rates in the East will be 10 per cent. less than the regular three-cent rate. In the West these fares will be approximately 20 per cent. above the existing rather low rates.

It was reported that commercial travelers' organizations would protest against the three-cent passenger rate. They will ask, it is said, for the sale of mileage books at a lower rate, on the ground that they are wholesale purchasers of mileage.

Railroad administration officials admit that they hope to reduce unnecessary passenger travel by the higher rates, and thus save facilities and labor for freight movement. Estimates of the extent of travel which may be curtailed ranged from 10 to 20 per cent.

Fuel Administrator Garfield explained that the increase in rates on coal would not affect the prices at the mines, recently reduced 10 cents a ton to an average of about $2.40. The increased transportation charges, ranging from 15 to 50 cents a ton, will be reflected, however, in prices to the consumers.

It was said at the offices of the Railroad Administration that Mr. McAdoo believes that no State commission can overrule any of the new rates. Any changes that may be ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission after full investigation will be made promptly and willingly by the Director General.

The additional charges must eventually be absorbed in higher prices of commodities, it was noted today by shippers, and this effect may be observed particularly as to coal, brick, lumber, meats, grain, and materials shipped to market only a short distance. Analysis of the new schedules showed that for hauls of from five to fifty miles, particularly in States which have their own intrastate classifications, rates will be raised by varying amounts ranging from 25 to 150 per cent.

WALL STREET REMAINS CALM.

Increase in Rates Called Post Mortem Vindication of Railroads.

The financial district yesterday took Secretary McAdoo's announcement of both wage and rate increases with entire calmness, apparently considering them, under the present régime, as of no more than academic interest to itself.

Considerable gratification was expressed over the approval of an increase in freight rates greater than the railroads, acting for themselves, have ever been able to obtain from the Interstate Commerce Commission. This, as one Director of several railroads said, was "a post-mortem vindication" of the position of the roads in asking for increases.

The general feeling in Wall Street regarding the whole railroad situation appears to be that, for better or for worse, matters are completely out of the hands of the men who formerly controlled them, and will remain so for a term of years, at the very least, if not permanently. There is a growing feeling that the railroad will never come back to their owners, at least in anything like the form, or to anything like the degree of individual control, that formerly existed.

There is also the feeling that the Director General will find it just as easy, with a mere stroke of the pen, to reduce rates once more, before handing the railroads back to their owners, as he now finds it to raise them; that the increased rates, in fact, may be considered part of the war tax burden.

In this situation the men having the deepest financial interest in railroad properties are taking things philosophically, and the course of prices of railroad securities yesterday, when they sold off a trifle, and then recovered somewhat, with no particularly noticeable permanent effect in any direction, indicated that this is the view taken by the financial community generally. There was, if anything, more talk of the political aspects of the wage increases throughout the country than of the effect of the rate increases.

Railroad Officials Shifted.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 27.—Under orders issued today C. W. Clark, Superintendent of the New England Railroad, is relieved and assigned to other duties, and his place is taken by Harry C. Oviatt, formerly of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, who comes from Hog Island Shipyard, where he was master of transporation. W. H. Foster, General Superintendent of the New Haven lines west of New London and Willimantic, assumes additionally the general superintendency of the Central New England.

ALDUNATE'S BODY REMOVED

Military Honors at Capital for the Late Chilean Ambassador.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The body of the late Chilean Ambassador, Santiago Aldunate, was transferred today to the Washington Navy Yard and placed on board the President's yacht to be taken to an Atlantic port, where it will be placed on an American warship, which will carry it to Chile.

The body was placed on a caisson, which was escorted by eight noncommissioned officers of the navy, a regiment of United States Marines, a troop of United States Cavalry, and the Marine Band. The cortège moved through the Capitol grounds and thence to the navy yard. All the troops stationed at the navy yard were turned out and the body passed through lines of these standing at attention. The Chilean and American flags were displayed at half-mast on the Mayflower. The Chilean anthem was played as the body was taken on board the ship and a salute of twenty-one guns was fired.

Joseph H. Shea, the American Ambassador to Chile, will accompany the body to Chile. The ceremony today was attended by Breckinridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State; Ambassador Shea, Herbert Jordan Stabler, Chief of the Division of Latin American Affairs, Department of State; John Barrett, Director of the Pan American Union, and F. J. Yanes, Secretary of the Pan American Union.

PROTEST TURN SHOE BAN.

Haverhill Manufacturers Want Government to Rescind Order.

HAVERHILL, Mass., May 27.—Mayor Leslie K. Morse and a committee of twenty shoe manufacturers left this city tonight for Washington to protest against the Government's plan to stop the manufacture of turn shoes as being nonessential during the war. Before leaving, the committee pointed out that two-thirds of the shoe factories in this city were devoted to the making of turn shoes, employing 9,000 operatives. In the eighty-four factories involved the payroll amounts to $125,000 a week.

The Government proposes to discontinue the manufacture of this tye of shoe because it requires more leather than other styles.

PREDICTS FIVE-CENT AIR MAIL SERVICE

Second Assistant Postmaster General Praeger Expects Development After War.

FLIGHTS ACROSS CONTINENT

Washington to Chicago in from 7 to 9 Hours—Mail to be Delivered in Sections Not Accessible by Trains.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 27.—Second Assistant Postmaster General Praeger in a statement today to a staff correspondent of The Baltimore American and Star predicted the following developments for the aerial mail service:

Five-cent mail service by airplane.

Flights between Chicago and other Middle West cities and Eastern points, and, finally, transcontinental flights.

Washington to Chicago flights in from seven to nine hours.

Aerial routes where circuitous approaches, due to cañons, lakes, and other natural objects, make ordinary mail delivery unusually slow.

Final interlocking of the entire country after the war with airplane mail service for letters and packages.

"We are training aviators now," he said, "with the intention of using them for the airplane mail service when they return from aviation work in France. By that time we believe that the service will be developed to such an extent that both men and machines will be needed for the work in every part of the United States.

"At present, it seems, the service is somewhat handicapped by being forced to use only one-engine machines."

For this reason, Mr. Praeger said, its real development could scarcely be carried out until after the war, when both aviators and three engine airplanes would be available. Mr. Praeger was not favorably inclined to women aviators for postal aerial work.

Flying a large liberty airplane, Lieutenant Webb arrived at Belmont Park with 200 pounds of aerial mail at 2:43 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He landed just before the first race started, and several thousand persons in the grandstand cheered, although the machine alighted half a mile away. The flier made the trip from Philadelphia in 52 minutes.

Fog, heavy and clinging close to the earth, prevented the mail airplane from leaving Belmont Park yesterday for Philadelphia.

Weather Delays Miss Stinson.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 27.—Katherine Stinson made two test flights today, and was prepared to finish her trip to New York, when she was advised of atmospheric disturbances east of the city. She announced tonight that she will positively start in the morning, probably at 8 o'clock.

TO FIGHT IN PALESTINE.

Jewish Legion of Service Units Dined by Actors' Club.

The Jewish Actors' Club last night gave a dinner for 300 members of the Jewish Legion for Service in Palestine at Beethoven Hall, East Fifth Street, on the eve of their departure for Palestine to augment the 2,000 members of the legion now there. Included in the contingent are 175 members of the organization from Philadelphia and Baltimore. Nathan Straus and Adolph Lewisohn were also guests at the dinner.

After the dinner, Major C. Brooman White of the British Recruiting Mission said:

"The Jewish battalion is getting on extremely well. It was organized for the purpose of affording an opportunity to Jews to fight for the preservation of Palestine. For the first time in history it is possible under British rule for a contingent to choose the sphre in which they will fight. It is a great privilege. And under it the Jews carry through the streets of New York the flag of Zion under which they will fight in Palestine."

The Philadelphia and Baltimore units arrived at the Pennsylvania terminal yesterday afternoon and were met by a committee of the legion. They paraded through the east side to the headquarters of the Palestine Legion Committee, 109 East Broadway.

APPROVES RIVERS BILL.

Merchants' Association Favors Section Protecting Streams.

The Merchants' Association has given its approval to Section 5, of the Rivers and Harbors Appropriation bill which is now before a Conference Committee of Congress. This section forbids the discharge of free acid or acid waste into any navigable water of the United States or any tributary of any navigable water above tidewater.

The action taken by the association was based on a recommendation made by its Committee on Pollution and Sewerage, of which Edward Hatch, Jr., is Chairman, and is in line with former efforts made by the association to abate the pollution of the Hudson River.

The amendment indorsed by the Merchants' Association applied originally to all navigable waters, and was stricken out of the bill in the House. It was restored in the Senate with an addition, making the prohibition inapplicable to tidewaters. The provision was recommended by the army engineers, who pointed out that acid poured into rivers and lakes reduced by one-half the life of iron steamboats and the metal structure of Government locks and other Government works.

ENDS NEW GERMAN CLASSES

Newark Board of Education Will Also Test Teachers' Loyalty.

The Board of Education of Newark voted last night to form no new classes in German in the high schools during the period of the war, but to permit students who are now taking that subject to finish with it. They also voted to put the loyalty of the teachers and other employes of the department to a test. A questionnaire will be sent to all the teachers, and they will be asked to sign it.

Superintendent Cornon said he had received numerous complaints that the loyalty of some of the teachers would not stand a test, but had found the complaints unwarranted. When the Teachers' Guild suggested, however, that its members welcomed a chance to prove their loyalty he decided to submit the questionnaire.

GIRL WANTS $20,850 A YEAR,

Miss Carroll, with $12,500 Income, Tells Court She Owes $3,600.

Miss Lorena Carroll, 19 years old, a pupil at the Ogontz School near Philadelphia, told Surrogate Fowler yesterday that she is unable to live on the $12,500 income allowed her from the estate of her father, Joseph D. Carroll, of Fox, Doerr & Carroll, and asked the Surrogate to increase her allowance to $20,850. She got an increase from $7,500 a year ago. She inherited the bulk of her father's estate in trust.

Miss Carroll told the court that she is $3,600 in debt for the expenses of her maintenance last year. Her proposed budget for the coming year includes $5,000 for the upkeep of a touring car and limousine, $3,000 for wearing apparel, $3,000 for pleasures, $4,000 for household expenses shared with her mother, $850 insurance, $2,000 for education, including French and music, and $1,000 for medical and dental treatment, including medicines. She lives at 580 West End Avenue. The Surrogate will announce a decision later.

SENATE TO GO AHEAD ON AIRCRAFT INQUIRY

Committee to Keep Clear of Criminal Phase Being Handled by Charles E. Hughes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The subcommittee on aircraft of the Senate Military Affairs Committee decided today to go ahead with its inquiry into aircraft production. This decision came after Senator Thomas had told the subcommittee that Charles E. Hughes, special investigator for the Department of Justice, had stated that he was not opposed to an investigation by the Senate Committee so long as it did not interfere with his own investigation.

Senator Thomas quoted Mr. Hughes as saying that unquestionably the subcommittee had a field of inquiry before it in the failure of aircraft production, if it wished to go into that. He only urged that the committee keep clear of the criminal phase of the situation, if any actually existed, so he might go ahead unhampered. This the committee agreed to do.

The Senate committee will leave Washington toward the end of this week on a tour of aircraft factories throughout the country to get intimate data as to production. Later the committee will conduct hearings, some of which will be in secret and others in public.

"The sentiment of the subcommittee is that the people of the country want to be informed as to what has happened to prevent the manufacture of airplanes," said Senator Thomas. "The production, every one knows, has been startlingly small. The facts must come out. If we strike evidence that may better be handled by Mr. Hughes in his criminal investigation, it will be at once turned over to him. The Senate committee is not after any one's scalp. All we want to get is facts, so that the country may know."

RESENT PRESS BAN INQUIRY.

Mount Vernon Councilmen Said to Plan a Counter Investigation.

Sherman Haight and Adrian A. Buck, members of the Mount Vernon City Council, who adopted an ordinance prohibiting the sale of The New York American and The Journal, were questioned at the District Attorney's office yesterday to ascertain if the ordinance was the result of a conspiracy by persons outside of Mount Vernon to induce public bodies within the State to interfere with these newspapers. The Councilmen said they had understood when Councilman William Dawson had introduced the ordinance that the only cause for it was the fact that Mr. Hearst's newspapers, or one of them, had abridged the President's proclamation.

It was said that Dr. R. J. Secor, a Republican member of the Council, one of the three members who did not vote for the ordinance, would be questioned by Assistant District Attorney Dooling today.

A rumor reached the District Attorney's office to the effect that some of the Councilmen and their friends were annoyed by the examination to which the Councilmen had been subjected in this county, and that an effort was being made to have Corporation Counsel Esser of Mount Vernon "investigate the District Attorney's investigator." The grounds for this, it is said, were based on an alleged statement of one of the Councilmen to the effect that his "examination was like being questioned by attorneys for the newspapers."

Another Councilman was reported as saying that he had been asked at the District Attorney's office if he was willing to present a resolution for the rescinding of the ordinance. Mr. Dooling denied that he had put such a question to either of the Councilmen, but said the report had probably originated from the rumor that a member of the City Council had such a resolution in his pocket.

GOOD TEETH VITAL TO ARMY.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 27.—Care of the mouth and throat in the maintenance of the health of troops was emphasized by the speakers at the fortieth annual convention of the American Laryngological Association, which is being held here.

Noted throat specialists, including many with experience with the allied forces, reported one of the most prevalent maladies found, especially among the British, was "Vincent's Angina," or an infected throat condition that caused a tightening of the throat muscles, producing an uncomfortable throttling effect. While the disease yields readily to prompt attention when found in the early stages, neglect often leads to the development of serious conditions. In the majority of cases among men just back from the trenches in the rest camps or on "blighty," it was discovered that improper care of the teeth was one of the principal symptoms.

Medical men stationed at various cantonments in this country reported that outbreaks of a similar nature had been halted within a few days by the use of common remedies, and the instruction of the men in the necessity of regular care of their teeth and throat, and prompt report of sore mouths or throats.

In reporting operations on the face, following serious injury to the nose, mouth, and cheek bones by accident, surgeons commented on the "remarkable facility with which the face will heal," after the most terrible wounds, and leaving but slight trace.

REVEALS I. W. W. PLANS.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Amalgamation with the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota was proposed by the officers of the agricultural branch of the Industrial Workers of the World, according to evidence introduced by the Government today in the trial of 112 I. W. W. leaders for conspiracy to hamper the Government's war plans. The combination, advocated by Forest Edwards, Secretary of the agricultural branch, located at Minneapolis, and other officers, was intended to "give the I. W. W. complete control in the harvest fields of North Dakota."

Under the proposed arrangement the Nonpartisan League members were to hire only members of the I. W. W. After a conference between representatives of the two organizations, according to letters and bulletins from the office of Edwards, the membership was notified late in April of 1917 that prospects for joining hands with the league in North Dakota were bright. A short time later, however, announcement was made that the plans had not materialized.

The files taken from the Minneapolis headquarters by the Government and read into the records today contained letters, reports, and bulletins showing opposition to the war and encouraging violence against industries necessary to prosecution of the war.

Joseph Burdall, a former member of the I. W. W., testified on cross-examination that the "I. W. W.'s were running Milwaukee, or at least trying to," when he was forced to join last year; that at his family's request he had changed his name in order not to bring the "disgrace of the order" into his home.

CLERKS ROBBED IN LIFT.

Thieves, They Tell Police, Grabbed a Bag Containing $20,000.

Detectives from Police Headquarters, under the direction of Inspector Cray, yesterday began a search for two robbers who, according to the story told by two clerks of the Melville Shoe Corporation, stole $20,000 in a satchel which was locked to the wrist of one of the clerks while they were descending in an elevator in the office building at 121 Duane Street.

Francis O'Brien, the messenger who had the bag locked to his wrist, said that he and the guard, William Montgomery, were on the way to the bank with about $20,000 in cash when two men who descended in the elevator with them placed the muzzles of pistols against their bodies and said they would shoot if there was any outcry. He said that after his wrist had been lacerated by the tugging on the bay he released the lock. William Montgomery, the guard, said that he had no time to resist because the men placed their pistols against his body unexpectedly.

Walter McIntyre of 65 West 140th Street, the elevator operator, said that the robbers gave the cable a jerk as they left the car, sending it upward. He said that he stopped at the second floor, but that the messengers said they would run to their own offices on the fifth floor to give the alarm. McIntyre said that the robbers had been riding in the elevator for several days, and that they had told him they were process servers waiting to catch a man in the building. Officials of the Melville Shoe Corporation said a man who had been hired a few days ago disappeared yesterday, and the police have sent out a general alarm for his arrest. A negro who works in a store across the street told the detectives he had seen two men walking away from the building with a satchel.

MORE BOGUS BLAKELOCKS.

Swann Hears "Picture Factory" Frauds on Selling Paintings.

Information tending to show that more spurious Blakelock paintings were in the market or had recently been disposed of to collectors from as yet unidentified sources was carried to District Attorney Swann yesterday by Mrs. Van Rensselaer Adams, one of the friends of Ralph Albert Blakelock, who succeeded in securing his release from the State asylum at Middletown in 1916, where he had been under treatment for fifteen years. As the result of this information two of the suspected imitations were ordered to be sent to the District Attorney's office today, and Mr. Blakelock will be invited to pass his judgment upon them.

For several days Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling has been investigating the report that a "picture factory" has been producing and selling paintings as the genuine work of Blakelock. Harry W. Watrous, Secretary of the National Academy of Design, told Mr. Dooling that he was recently called upon to give an opinion of a supposed Blakelock which had been offered to the Corcoran Art Gallery at Washington, D. C.

It appears that this painting was purchased in good faith by a collector, but when it was presented to the Corcoran Gallery some question arose as to its being a Blakelock. While Blakelock was in the asylum there were many bogus paintings offered as his work, and this is believed to be another of the imitations. Besides the two paintings under suspicion it is learned that at least two other imitations Blakelocks were recently discovered in private galleries on Fifth Avenue.

Although Blakelock is 70 years old, and has not fully recovered his health, he is said to remember all of the individual products of his work before his mental breakdown. Three of Blakelock's paintings are in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

WILSON URGES NEW TAX BILL NOW

and pass a revenue bill, and that until that was performed "Congress did not dare go to the elections," because "these are days when duty stands stark and naked, and even with closed eyes we know it is there"; and the President added: "Excuses are unavailing." After disarming the strong argument advanced by Congressional leaders for postponing revenue legislation until the next session, the President told Congress that a new revenue law should be enacted at this session for these reasons:

1. Additional revenues must be provided for because the $4,000,000,000 now provided for by taxation will not sustain the greatly increased budget.

2. It would be an unsound policy to raise too large a proportion of them by loans, which would be necessary without another revenue bill.

3. The people in fairness should know before the end of 1918 what taxes they will have to pay for that year, so that they may practice the necessary economy to meet them.

4. The Treasury should have time to frame fair and workable regulations for the administration of the law.

5. The present tax laws are marred by inequities which ought to be remedied.

After declaring that the foregoing were "indisputable facts, every one; and we cannot alter or blink them; to state this is argument enough," the President proceeded to enlarge upon his premises and to point out in a general way how the new taxes should be raised.

"We shall naturally turn, therefore, I suppose, to war profits and incomes and luxuries for the additional taxes," the President said in enlarging upon his preliminary statement. "But the war profits and incomes upon which the increased taxes will be levied will be the profits and incomes of the calendar year 1918."

The members had listened in silence thus far, but as the President emphasized that the great bulk of the taxes would come from the war profits and incomes of this year, the Democratic side broke forth in cheers.

"I cannot assure the country of a successful administration of the Treasury in 1918 if the question of further taxation is to be left undecided until 1919," the President asserted, and in doing so clinched his argument for revenue legislation as an imperative war measure.

At the Peak and Crisis of the War.

The galleries appeared to be more sympathetic with the arguments advanced by the President than the Senators and Representatives. Many members had received the address in silence up to this point. But as the President raised his voice and appealed in a more personal manner than when presenting his early argument there was an instant response.

"The consideration that dominates every other now," he said with feeling, "and makes every other seem trivial and negligible, is the winning of the war. We are not only in the midst of the war, we are at the very peak and crisis of it. Hundreds of thousands of our men, carrying our hearts with them and our fortunes, are in the field, and ships are crowding faster and faster to the ports of France and England, with regiment after regiment, thousand after thousand, to join them until the enemy shall be beaten and brought to a reckoning with mankind."

The floor and galleries were brought to their feet when the President finished this sentence. The cheering was prolonged on both sides of the House.

While expressing sympathy with Congressmen because they would be obliged to remain here during the languid Summer months, the President declared that there was only one way to meet the duty before Congress.

"We must meet it without selfishness or fear of consequences," he said. "Politics is adjourned."

This was interpreted as his answer to his critics, who have been urging that the enactment of a revenue bill should be deferred until after the November elections.

"The elections," he added, "will go to those who think least of it. [politics:] to those who go to the constituencies without explanations or excuses, with a plain record of duty faithfully and disinterestedly performed."

That the Administration intends to get the greatest source of its revenues in the new law from war profits was indicated by the President when he intimated that the lobbies of Washington hotels were filled with profiteers, and said that the records of the Treasury furnished an abundance of information with regard to war profits of every sort.

"The profiteering that cannot be got at by the restraints of conscience and love of country can be got at by taxation," he continued. "There is such profiteering now, and the information with regard to it is available and indisputable," added the President, while Senators and Representatives of both parties cheered.

War Profits Mounting.

In this sentence the President touched upon the great sources of taxation—the war profits of the last six months and swollen incomes. He emphasized what has been contended for some time—that the war profits have greatly exceeded popular understanding of them. One reason for enacting another revenue law at this time is to commandeer for the Government some profits which have come indirectly from Government war contracts. As soon as the Ways and Means Committee obtains the information mentioned by the President it will begin hearings and summon the heads of corporations which have obtained the alleged excessive earnings and upon which the great burden of the taxes in the new law will be laid.

Sentiment is made in the country away from Washington, the President intimated. He advised Congress to be influenced by the popular sentiment, away from the lobbies of Washington hotels. In this connection he said:

"And the task to which I invite your immediate consideration will be performed under favorable influences if we will look to what the country is thinking and expecting, and care nothing at all for what is being said and believed in the lobbies of Washington hotels, where the atmosphere seems to make it possible to believe what is believed nowhere else."

The cheering that followed this sally was prolonged.

Again those in the galleries and on the floor stood up and cheered as the President, just before he informed his hearers of the resumption of the German drive, concluded the formal portion of his address with these words:

"I have always been proud to be an American, and was never more proud than now, when all that we have said and all that we have foreseen about our people is coming true."

Kitchin May Give His Views.

Members of Congress disagreeing with the President as to the necessity of passing a revenue bill at this session did not desert their stand after the President had addressed Congress in joint session. Accepting, however, the suggestions of the President, the members intend to get immediately to work and hope to pass a bill before the November elections. There was a general disposition in Congress to agree with the President as to the sources of taxation.

Representative Claude Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, which prepares revenue measures, said he would call the committee into session in a week or ten days. On the floor tomorrow he will outline to the House his general plans for revenue legislation, and some of his friends are expecting him to deliver a sensational address, in which, they say, he will give his personal views of the demand for immediate revenue legislation. For several days Mr. Kitchin has been saying that the demand for a revenue bill originated in selfish considerations and that it was not necessary to raise money for the expenses of the Government until next year.

"The Commander in Chief has spoken," said Mr. Kitchin. "It is our plain duty to do as he asks. We shall at once get to the task. Hearings will begin as soon as we get certain data on war profits now being compiled for us at the Treasury, probably within a week or ten days. We shall not have the bill ready to report before Aug. 1."

The President has told Congress that he wants a revenue bill, and there will be one," said Senator Smoot, one of the leading Republican members of the Finance Committee. "For myself, I fail to see that any will be needed at this session, as I have believed we were amply fortified with finances to run the war. But the President has asked Congress for the revenue bill, and that ends it.

"This does not mean that what the Secretary of the Treasury or any one else happens to demand in the way of a bill is going to be swallowed. The revenue bill that Congress passes, I believe, will be a scientifically constructed one, that won't have the flaws of the one passed at the last session. Taxes will be applied, as the President suggests, chiefly upon excess war profits and incomes that have been swollen by the war. Those two features and a tax upon luxuries will form the backbone of the measure.

"Any one who gives the matter the slightest thought can see that the bulk of the tax must come from the tremendous excess war profits. The Government is entitled to this and is going to get it. The tax will be chiefly applied upon corporations and individuals who have earned fabulous wealth from the war. That is the natural thing to do. In levying consumption taxes, they will be applied more heavily upon the non-essentials, although it is quite likely that the consumption tax will go further than that.

Profits Tax Up to 80 Per Cent.

"The man who can afford to pay a high tax is going to be obliged to do it. That will be the underlying principle of this new revenue bill. I offered an amendment to the last revenue bill to apply a graduated war profits tax of from 15 to 80 per cent. That is the character of tax we must put into this new measure. If necessary, let the Government take even more than 80 per cent. My tax was essentially one of excess war profits—money made out of the war—and that's the sort of tax Congress will now take up.

"The Republicans in the Senate were willing to let the revenue legislation go over until next session, but the President did not want that. We would not permit ourselves to be put in the position of saying whether there should be a revenue bill at this session or not. That was for the Democratic majority to say, and the President has decided it for them.

"It may take clear up to election time to put this bill through. I don't know. But, no matter how long it takes, Congress will stick to the job until it's done."

"The President has given the word, and the revenue bill will be passed," commented Senator Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip. "He has shown Congress its duty in his speech, and we will follow his lead with the speedy enactment of the legislation he asks."

"As usual, the President has handled the situation in a masterly way," said Senator King, Democrat, of Utah. "He has pointed out to Senators suffering from lassitude and a desire to get back home to get politics started that they have a duty here in Congress. They will now stay in Washington and work."

Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee, said he did not believe Congress could expect to finish the revenue bill before election time.

"It will probably take two months for the House to pass it, and then the work will come over to the Senate," said Mr. Simmons. "We shall try to expedite it, but I don't see how it is going to be rushed through inside of four months at the earliest. The Finance Committee will not take any steps for ten days or so looking to any outline of the bill. We shall wait for the House Ways and Means Committee to get started. In fact, there will be little for the Senate Committee to do until the bill comes over from the House.

"Naturally, the heaviest tax will be put upon war profits and incomes. I believe this ought to comprise nearly the whole of the bill. My idea is that the revenue bill ought to raise 35 per cent. of the aggregate of money wanted for the next year, and that the remaining 65 per cent. come from bond issues. I think 35 per cent. is enough, although the Secretary of the Treasury, I believe, favors 40 per cent. All that will be thrashed out later on."

Senator Penrose Mystified.

Senator Penrose, ranking Republican member of the Finance Committee, said: "While I doubt the advisability of revenue bill legislation at this session, the President says we must have it. I want to look very carefully into the matter of the Government's finances, so as to satisfy myself that the bill is really needed. Of course, what the President asks will be given great weight. I do not mean to say that Congress will not pass the bill. But it seems strange that this sudden demand comes up when only a few days ago the Ways and Means Committee, the Finance Committee, and the Secretary of the Treasury all had decided that no bill was needed. Three weeks ago we were told there was enough money in sight to run the war for the fiscal year. Now we are told they need money and we must rush a revenue bill through at this session of Congress."

Representative Nicholas Longworth, Republican, of Ohio, a member of the Ways and Means Committee: "I am sorry that the President feels it necessary to have Congress pass a revenue bill at this session. I do not like the idea of having a great measure like this framed just before election. It should be written when the air is clear. However, he asks it as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, and there is nothing to do but go ahead."

Representative F. H. Gillett, Republican leader of the House: "I am fully in accord with all that the President said, and to me it was one of the soundest messages he has delivered. I am glad he called attention to the danger of inflation that large bond issues are likely to produce. I have no idea that the Republicans will caucus on the bill or attempt any partisan action. I wish I could feel that the Democrats will be as nonpartisan and unsectional as the Republicans will be. Personally, I am sure that we would have a fairer bill if we passed it after election, because inevitably there will be a desire to avoid unpopular taxes, and the action of members will be influenced by the thought of their re-election campaigns."

Representative Cordell Hull, Democrat, of Tennessee, a member of the Ways and Means Committee: "The message is in line with what I have been contending for two months. It is timely and wise. It responds to the rules of sound war finance and to the necessity for dealing with existing economic conditions with respect to inflation of prices by taxation. The keynote of the message was equity and fairness in taxation. I believe that the President's ideas will be followed by Congress."

Representative Treadway, Republican, of Massachusetts, a member of the Ways and Means Committee: "The President's address is a distinctive example of his wonderful power of expressing his ideas in the finest of language. The predominating thought is the need of additional revenue for the great task in hand. As he and the Treasury Department are convinced that this must be secured before the next session, our duty is very plain—obey the Commander in Chief's orders and proceed with the work of legislation to this end."

Will Buckle Down to the Bill.

Representative J. H. Moore, Republican, of Pennsylvania, a member of the Ways and Means Committee: "It was understood on Saturday that the President, the Senate, and the House would come to an understanding to let Congress adjourn without a revenue bill. The President's speech, of course, upsets that program, and Congress will now buckle down to the preparation of a bill. As to the course the Ways and Means Committee will take, that depends upon the majority, although the minority will probably co-operate to hasten the measure. I am not sure but that the tax bill will contain some new features not embodied in the President's message. I also doubt whether it can be presented before July 1, when the new postal rates, for instance, take effect."

Representative John W. Garner, Democrat, of Texas, a member of the Ways and Means Committee: "I would levy the rate of taxation that would produce the greatest amount of revenue. I would not advocate a rate that would destroy a business or industry. Everybody likely to be considered in the legislation might just as well submit his arguments at once, preferably through organizations to which he belongs. No business and no industry need fear laying its cards upon the table. The committee will want the facts and will undertake to frame the very best and fairest and most adequate bill possible."

Representative J. G. Cannon, Republican, of Illinois, ex-Speaker of the House: "There is statesmanship and statesmanship in the world."

Representative W. R. Green, Republican, of Iowa, a member of the Ways and Means Committee: "I agree with the President as to the effects of bond issues on the country and as to methods of raising revenues."

Representative H. T. Rainey, Democrat, of Illinois, ranking member of the Ways and Means Committee: "Everybody knows, and the President expressed it, the principal taxes will be on excess profits, incomes and luxuries. The taxes on these three things will probably go as high as in the other belligerent countries. The framing of the bill should not be a long job. Nobody now being taxed will be let off, but more taxes will be added."

Full Text of President Wilson's Address To the Houses of Congress in Joint Session

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONGRESS:

It is with unaffected reluctance that I come to ask you to prolong your session long enough to provide more adequate resources for the Treasury for the conduct of the war. I have reason to appreciate as fully as you do how arduous the session has been. Your labors have been severe and protracted. You have passed a long series of measures which required the debate of many doubtful questions of judgment and many exceedingly difficult questions of principle, as well as of practice. The Summer is upon us, in which labor and counsel are twice arduous and are constantly apt to be impaired by lassitude and fatigue. The elections are at hand, and we ought as soon as possible to go and render an intimate account of our trusteeship to the people who delegated us to act for them in the weighty and anxious matters that crowd upon us in these days of critical choice and action. But we dare not go to the elections until we have done our duty to the full. These are days when duty stands stark and naked, and even with closed eyes we know it is there. Excuses are unavailing. We have either done our duty or we have not. The fact will be as gross and plain as the duty itself. In such a case lassitude and fatigue seem negligible enough. The facts are tonic and suffice to freshen the labor.

And the facts are these: Additional revenues must manifestly be provided for. It would be a most unsound policy to raise too large a proportion of them by loan, and it is evident that the $4,000,000,000 now provided for by taxation will not of themselves sustain the greatly enlarged budget to which we must immediately look forward. We cannot in fairness wait until the end of the fiscal year is at hand to apprise our people of the taxes they must pay on their earnings of the present calendar year, whose accountings and expenditures will then be closed. We cannot get increased taxes unless the country knows what they are to be and practices the necessary economy to make them available. Definiteness, early definiteness, as to what its tasks are to be is absolutely necessary for the successful administration of the Treasury. It cannot frame fair and workable regulations in haste; and it must frame its regulations in haste if it is not to know its exact task until the very eve of its performance. The present tax laws are marred, moreover, by inequities which ought to be remedied. Indisputable facts, every one; and we cannot alter or blink them. To state them is argument enough.

War Profits, Incomes and Luxuries.

And yet, perhaps, you will permit me to dwell for a moment upon the situation they disclose. Enormous loans freely spent in the stimulation of industry of almost every sort produce inflations and extravagances which presently make the whole economic structure questionable and insecure, and the very basis of credit is cut away. Only fair, equitably distributed taxation of the widest incidence and drawing chiefly from the sources which would be likely to demoralize credit by their very abundance, can prevent inflation and keep our industrial system free of speculation and waste. We shall naturally turn, therefore, I suppose, to war profits and incomes and luxuries for the additional taxes. But the war profits and incomes upon which the increased taxes will be levied will be the profits and incomes of the calendar year 1918. It would be manifestly unfair to wait until the early months of 1919 to say what they are to be. It might be difficult, I should imagine, to run the mill with water that had already gone over the wheel.

Moreover, taxes of that sort will not be paid until June of next year, and the Treasury must anticipate them. It must use the money they are to produce before it is due. It must sell short-time certificates of indebtedness. In the Autumn a much larger sale of long-time bonds must be effected than has yet been attempted. What are the bankers to think of the certificates if they do not certainly know where the money is to come from which is to take them up? And how are investors to approach the purchase of bonds with any sort of confidence or knowledge of their own affairs if they do not know what taxes they are to pay and what economies and adjustments of their business they must effect? I cannot assure the country of a successful administration of the Treasury in 1918 if the question of further taxation is to be left undecided until 1919.

The consideration that dominates every other now, and makes every other seem trivial and negligible, is the winning of the war. We are not only in the midst of the war, we are at the very peak and crisis of it. Hundreds of thousands of our men, carrying our hearts with them and our fortunes, are in the field, and ships are crowding faster and faster to the ports of France and England with regiment after regiment, thousand after thousand, to join them until the enemy shall be beaten and brought to a reckoning with mankind. There can be no pause or intermission. The great enterprise must, on the contrary, be pushed with greater and greater energy. The volume of our might must steadily and rapidly be augmented until there can be no question of resisting it. If that is to be accomplished, gentlemen, money must sustain it to the utmost. Our financial program must no more be left in doubt or suffered to lag than our ordnance program or our ship program or our munition program or our program for making millions of men ready. These others are not programs, indeed, but mere plans upon paper, unless there is to be an unquestionable supply of money.

"Politics Is Adjourned."

That is the situation, and it is the situation which creates the duty; no choice or preference of ours. There is only one way to meet that duty. We must meet it without selfishness or fear of consequences. Politics is adjourned. The elections will go to those who think least of it; to those who go to the constituencies without explanations or excuses, with a plain record of duty faithfully and disinterestedly performed. I, for one, am always confident that the people of this country will give a just verdict upon the service of the men who act for them when the facts are such that no man can disguise or conceal them. There is no danger of deceit now. An intense and pitiless light beats upon every man and every action in this tragic plot of war that is now upon the stage. If lobbyists hurry to Washington to attempt to turn what you do in the matter of taxation to their protection or advantage, the light will beat also upon them. There is abundant fuel for the light in the records of the Treasury with regard to profits of every sort. The profiteering that cannot be got at by the restraints of conscience and love of country can be got at by taxation. There is such profiteering now, and the information with regard to it is available and indisputable.

I am advising you to act upon this matter of taxation now, gentlemen, not because I do not know that you can see and interpret the facts and the duty they impose just as well and with as clear a perception of the obligation involved as I can, but because there is a certain solemn satisfaction in sharing with you the responsibilities of such a time. The world never stood in such a case before. Men never before had so clear and so moving a vision of duty. I know that you will begrudge the work to be done here by us no more than the men begrudge us theirs who lie in the trenches and sally forth to their death. There is a stimulating comradeship knitting us all together. And this task to which I invite your immediate consideration will be performed under favorable influences, if we will look to what the country is thinking and expecting and care nothing at all for what is being said and believed in the lobbies of Washington hotels, where the atmosphere seems to make it possible to believe what is believed nowhere else.

Have you not felt the spirit of the nation rise and its thought become a single and common thought since these eventful days came in which we have been sending our boys to the other side? I think you must read that thought, as I do, to mean this, that the people of this country are not only united in the resolute purpose to win this war, but are ready and willing to bear any burden and undergo any sacrifice that it may be necessary for them to bear in order to win it. We need not be afraid to tax them, if we lay taxes justly. They know that the war must be paid for, that it is they who must pay for it, and, if the burden is justly distributed and the sacrifice made a common sacrifice from which none escapes who can bear it at all, they will carry it cheerfully and with a sort of solemn pride. I have always been proud to be an American, and was never more proud than now, when all that we have said and all that we have foreseen about our people is coming true. The great days have come when the only thing that they ask for or admire is duty, greatly and adequately done; when their only wish for America is that she may share the freedom she enjoys, when a great, compelling sympathy wells up in their hearts for men everywhere who suffer and are oppressed, and when they see at last the high uses for which their wealth has been piled up and their mighty power accumulated, and, counting neither blood nor treasure, now that their final day of opportunity has come, rejoice to spend and to be spent through a long night of suffering and terror in order that they and men everywhere may see the dawn of a day of righteousness and justice and peace. Shall we grow weary when they bid us act?

STOCKS SLUMP ON TAX PLAN.

Wall Street's realization through President Wilson's speech before Congress that a new tax bill would be prepared during the Summer, was accompanied by a sharp break in the prices of stocks. The leading industrial issues declined from 3 to more than 9 points, chiefly in the last half hour of business on the Exchange, after the President's address had been reported in full by the news tickers. At the same time an increased demand for Liberty 3½ per cent. bonds came into evidence, and the quotation of 99.84 shortly before the end of the market session established a new high record for the year. The tax exemption feature of the 3½s increased their popularity when it became clear to the financial community that largely expanded imposts would be made on incomes during the current year.

The President's move to have the war taxation measure put into shape as quickly as possible came in for no criticism in the Wall Street district. On the contrary, bankers and business men were practically unanimous in supporting him in his statement to Congress. The opinion has been held by bankers and manufacturers ever since the need of higher taxes was first discussed in Washington, that business would be better off if it could look ahead to its burdens, rather than have to wait for a glance backward. The output of stocks yesterday did not reflect disappointment over the fact of the pending taxes, but showed apprehension lest the excess profits and war income imposts be so large as to affect dividends adversely.

Baldwin Locomotive was the heaviest sufferer from late selling, showing at the close a net loss of 9⅛ points. The rapid decline wiped out much of the upturn scored in the buying movement of the first three weeks of the month. United States Industrial Alcohol, one of the foremost war stocks, dropped 6 points, and declines of 3 points or so occurred in General Electric, Midvale Steel, Crucible Steel, American Smelting and Refining, and United States Steel. In this table the recession of several of the more prominent issues is set forth:

	High.	Last	Net Loss.
American Locomotive	86	82¾	3
American Smelting & Ref.	77	73¾	3⅛
Atlantic, Gulf & W. I.	108¾	105	4
Baldwin Locomotive	90¾	81½	9⅛
Central Leather	67⅞	65¾	2⅛
Crucible	65¾	62	3¾
Int. Mer. Marine pf.	100⅝	93	4⅝
Midvale Steel	52	48½	3½
New York Central	71	69¼	1¾
Reading	88¼	86⅝	2
Texas Co.	148	144½	4½
United States Steel	107	104¾	2⅛

The railroad stocks fell under the influence of the depression among the industrials after giving a good account of themselves in early trading. The increase of freight rates announced by Mr. McAdoo appeared to stimulate buying of the rails for a time. The day's turnover of close to 1,000,000 shares indicated an active session all the way along.

While the 3½ per cent. Liberty bonds were advancing the others displayed a receding tendency, accompanying stocks downward. A theory advanced to explain the selling of the 4 per cent. and 4¼ per cent. bonds was that holders were liquidating for the purpose of transferring the proceeds to the tax-free 3½s. The second 4s moved off from 94.70 to 94.50, and the 4¼s from 97.44 to 97.32. The 3½s left off at 99.70, compared with the opening quotation of 99. On Jan. 31 last they sold as low as 97.20.

PLEADS FOR WAR PRISONERS

Canadian Soldier Says Their Only Hope Is a Freer Exchange.

At the conclusion of an account of his life in a German prison camp Lieutenant J. Harvey Douglas of the Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles, appealed last night to the Canadian Society of New York at a patriotic dinner in the Hotel Biltmore to work for a freer and more extended exchange of prisoners of war. He said conditions in German camps, though better than in the early part of the war, are still unbearable, and that the only salvation for prisoners was their return to their native lands.

Lieutenant Douglas told of the fight in which all but a few of his company were wiped out, and himself and another comrade seriously wounded, found by the Germans lying helpless in a shell hole. Prisoners, he said, do not get enough to eat, and are obliged to depend for their very life on the parcels that come from their own country.

"One of the first things the Germans want to know is why we, the Canadians, are in the war, and why we are not at home in peace, making money out of the war," he said. "Another thing they want to know is how long the war will last. They got very little satisfaction from the prisoners. We told them that the war would last five or ten years longer, and that we were getting stronger all the time, and would soon have another million men in the field."

The Rev. Charles A. Eaton, who has visited many shipyards to arouse the loyalty of the workers, declared that the workers were 100 per cent. Americans. "We are now delivering ships at the rate of 10,000 tons a day," he said, "and we are going to keep it up, for we are going to send the Hun back to hell where he came from."

Comparing the German military manual with the French, Stephane Lausanne of the French High Commission showed that cruelty and brutality was part of war as Germany fought it, and that it advocated in her soldiers the torture of civilians to obtain military information, or to make them work or to serve as guides.

Among the guests were Sir Frederick William Black of the British mission in America; Lieut. Col. Lord George Wellesley, grandnephew of the Duke of Wellington; Brig. Gen. W. A. Mann, U. S. A.; Brig. Gen. W. A. White of the Canadian Army; John Moffat, director of Allied Relief Fund in the United States, and the Rev. Arthur H. Judge of Canada.

Navy Wants to Buy Sextants.

The navy is in urgent need of sextants, either new or used, and any person having one or more of these instruments is requested to take them to the Branch Hydrographic Office, 78-80 Broad Street, where they will be inspected as to their fitness for use and an appraised value placed on them. Payment will be made to the owners of the instruments accepted.

PRAGER JURY COMPLETED.

Testimony on Murder of Enemy Alien to be Taken Today.

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., May 27.—The jury which is to try eleven defendants for the murder of Robert P. Prager, enemy alien, was selected late today.

The court held eleven sessions, and more than 700 talesmen were interrogated before the jury was completed. Taking of testimony will begin tomorrow.

In his opening statement, State's Attorney Streuber said:

"We have made an effort to keep pro-Germans off the jury, and I believe we have a jury that is 100 per cent. loyal. If Prager was either a pro-German or a Germany spy, there was a remedy at law, and we aim to show that a mob took the law upon itself, which is, in itself, a violation."

James M. Bandy, chief counsel for the defense, declared there was evidence to show Prager's disloyalty.

More than 10 witnesses have been summoned.

TEST BROWNING GUN FOR USE IN AVIATION

Perfect Functioning Reported in Trial Conducted Under Severe Conditions.

HEAVY TYPE TO BE ADOPTED

Proves Value for Firing Between Revolving Blades of the Propeller.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Announcement was made by the War Department today that the Browning machine gun had successfully undergone a test to determine its value for use with aircraft. The statement is made that the gun functioned perfectly and that the model of the weapon to be used with aircraft will be the heavy type with the outer jacket removed.

"This is one of the three types of machine guns," said the official announcement, "with which the rate of fire can be so synchronized with the revolutions of the propeller of a tractor airplane that the gun can be fired by the pilot of a combat plane through the revolving blades. Firing in that fashion, it is necessary to aim the machine gun by steering the plane directly at the target. The direction of the plane gives direction to the fire and the pilot can fire the machine gun while controlling the plane.

"Airplane propellers revolve at from 900 to 2,000 revolutions per minute. The machine gun is connected with the airplane engine by a mechanical or hydraulic device, and impulses from the crank shaft are transmitted to the machine gun. The rate of fire of the machine gun is constant, and its fire is synchronized with the revolving propeller blades by 'wasting' a certain percentage of the impulses it receives from the airplane engine and by having the remaining impulses trip or pull the trigger so that the gun fires just at the fraction of the second when the propeller blades are clear of the line of fire. The pilot operates the gun by means of a lever which controls the circuit and allows the impulses to trip the trigger.

"The test given the Browning gun was severe. A gun was mounted on the frame of an American combat plane and connected with the airplane engine. The test was conducted on the ground and in place of the propeller a metal disk was attached to the crank shaft. The Browning gun was then required to register hits on the metal disk as it revolved at varying speeds from 400 to 2,000 revolutions per minute. The slightest 'hang fire' or delay in action on the part of the gun would have been shown by the failure of the bullets to hit precisely on the spot on the disk representing the centre of the zone of fire. The gun functioned perfectly.

"Besides the Browning, the United States will also employ the Marlin aircraft gun as a synchronized weapon. Several thousand of them have been manufactured and the gun is in quantity production.

"The British and French use the Vickers as a synchronized machine gun.

"The Lewis aircraft machine gun is used by the British, French and American forces, but for a different purpose. In a two-seated combat plane fixed machine guns are mounted forward to be operated by the pilot and flexible guns are mounted to be operated by the observer in the rear seat of the plane. The observer operates Lewis guns on flexible mounts, firing to right or left of the plane.

"It is of vital importance to have absolute reliability of function in a synchronized machine gun on tractor airplanes. Delays in fire or malfunctions due to faulty construction or imperfect ammunition cause bullets to strike the propeller blades. As many as fifteen bullets have been known to strike a propeller blade without causing an airplane to fail, but the danger of such occurrences is nevertheless obvious. For that reason every effort is made to provide the most perfect type of weapon for this work. Only specially selected ammunition is used."

SAYS BROWNING GUN SUPPLY IS DELAYED

Congressman Tilson Asserts Army Will Not Get All It Needs Before Jan. 1 Next.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 27.—Congressman John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, a member of the Military Affairs Committee of the House, told the emergency convention of the Hardware Manufacturers' Council at the Traymore today that it would not be possible completely to equip America's fighting forces in France with Browning machine guns "before the beginning of next year."

"In the meantime American units are dependent for machine guns and such equipment upon what France is able to provide. I shall be glad, indeed," he said, "if at the end of the year it can be said that our present inability to supply a full measure of equipment has not been unfortunate, indeed.

"America is, however, now turning out Browning machine guns at the rate of something like one hundred a day," continued Mr. Tilson, who was a member of the Congressional party which visited the western front last Winter. "This applies to the light type Browning gun. There has been for some reason a slowing up in the production of the heavier type machine gun."

The fact that the army had but 1,077 machine guns, a very miscellaneous collection, at the time of the Mexican trouble, and was in but little better shape when we entered the world war, illustrated, he said, "the difficulty of doing things in a democracy."

The speaker expressed the opinion that the Allies had neglected the fullness of their opportunity to make the most of the man power of Italy. He declared that only Great Britain's necessity, forcing her to cross the Atlantic to contract with American manufacturers for small arms for her troops, saved the United States from the calamity of having to wait two years to procure enough rifles to arm America's fighting men. He added:

"Great Britain literally paid in order that we might be able to arm our men at the critical time. The present war is pre-eminently a war of metal, and that side with the most metal in the best shape for use is going to win the war. We are making bombs up to 500 pounds now and, in my opinion, they will go larger. Our cartridge, we believe, is the most powerful in use today. Our rifles are sighted up to 2,600 yards and they kill at two miles."

Twescore of manufacturers offered their plants when Captain W. J. Oliver, U. S. A., of the Ordnance Department, announced that the Government was in immediate need of a great variety of small hardware and tools and that deliveries must be made in July if the war machine was to hold its pace.

Boston Laborers Threaten Strike.

BOSTON, May 27.—Building operations within the limits of Greater Boston were threatened tonight with a tie-up, leaders of the Laborers' Union announcing that they would call a strike next Saturday unless their demands for increased pay were granted. The men ask for 47½ cents an hour for excavating work and 50 cents an hour for other grades of work, the increases demanded ranging from 5 to 7½ cents an hour.

GIRL 14 A CONDUCTOR.

Told Company She Was 21—Father Has Her Arrested.

Among the witnesses called yesterday by District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn, in his Grand Jury investigation of conditions at the East Forty-ninth Street car barns of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, was Margaret Minn, a fourteen-year-old girl, who lives on Vanderbilt Street, in the Windsor Terrace district. Before she entered the Grand Jury room the girl told the District Attorney that she applied on May 8 for employment as a conductor. She admitted that she declared to the representatives of the railroad company that she was 21 years old.

After three days of instruction she was employed. Several girl friends who saw her working on the cars reported that fact to her father, Gerhardt Minn, and he caused her arrest on the charge of juvenile delinquency. The case against her is still pending in the Children's Court. The District Attorney said that he would make an effort to find out whether the company was liable to prosecution under the child labor law, which prohibits the employment of children under 16 years of age without working papers.

BRITAIN SENDS DELEGATES.

Army to be Represented at American Medical Association Meeting.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Sir Arbuthnot Lane, Sir James Mackenzie, Colonel Herbert Bruce and a representative of the Australian Army yet to be appointed, will represent the British Army at the sixty-ninth annual convention of the American Medical Association to be held in Chicago June 10-14, according to advices to Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., President of the association, from Lord Reading, British Ambassador, today.

M. Justin Godart, Majors Rist, and Locarie will represent the French Army. Belgium and Italy also will be represented. Surg. Gen. William C. Gorgas of the army, Surg. Gen. William C. Braisted of the navy, and Surg. Gen. Rupert Blue of the public health service will head the list of the notable representatives of the United States Government to attend.

DEVENS "BATTLE" RESUMED

76th Division Opens Second Week of Mimic Warfare at Camp.

AYER, Mass., May 27.—The second week of the "Battle of Still River" opened today with officers and men of the 76th division at Camp Devens still in the field. The battle was staged to give practical instruction to officers attending the staff school here. The first week saw the enemy theoretically penetrate the front line only to be driven back by a counterattack. Today preparations were made for an attack in force by the division with the troops advancing behind a creeping barrage, mopping up trenches demolished by the bombardment, and consolidating their gains.

Major Gen. Hodges, commanding the division, and the brigade commanders, were conducted through the first line trenches today by the French and British military attachés, who were acting as instructors. They found the men living in the field and manning the trenches under actual war conditions, wearing steel helmets and having gas masks always available.

Eight hundred more New Englanders arrived today. They include 600 from Vermont and 200 from Massachusetts. The contingents from Maine are expected tomorrow.

PORTUGAL GETS AID.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Appeals from Portugal for assistance, sent to the State Department through the American Minister at Lisbon, have been answered by the American Red Cross to which they were referred by Secretary Lansing. An amount suggested by Minister Birch was promptly voted by the Red Cross and sent forward by the State Department to Lisbon. It will furnish additional hospital facilities for wounded Portuguese soldiers.

The heavy casualties among Portuguese troops in the German drive found Portuguese hospital facilities limited and help was asked to enlarge them. Dispatches from Lisbon indicating the money was sent for the relief of dependents of Portuguese troops was declared by Red Cross officials today to be erroneous. Further aid may be furnished by the Red Cross to the Portuguese.

BREAK WITH MEXICO NOW DENIED BY CUBA

Havana Announcement Adds to the Perplexity of Washington Over Situation.

HAVANA, May 27.—The Cuban State Department today dispatched a circular cablegram to the Cuban diplomats in all foreign countries advising them that diplomatic relations between Cuba and Mexico had not been ruptured.

Dr. Guillermo Patterson, the Cuban Assistant Secretary of State, announced that a cablegram had been received from the Mexican Government asking that the Cuban Chargé d'Affaires at Mexico City, Señor Santamaria, be allowed to remain for the present at the Mexican capital, so as to permit him to participate in negotiations for the settlement of questions pending between Cuba and Mexico.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Official announcements today from the Cuban State Department and the Cuban Legation here that Mexico's withdrawal of her Minister at Havana does not constitute a break in diplomatic relations between the two countries have only added to mystery of officials and diplomats who are looking for Mexico's real motive.

The withdrawal of a Minister is a measure short of a break in diplomatic relations in relatively the same way as the latter is a measure short of war.

So far the American Government's only information is the text of the official statement of the Foreign Office forwarded by Ambassador Fletcher. The Mexican Ambassador in Washington has not communicated with the State Department at all on the subject.

It is admitted that the United States, as being in a large measure responsible for Cuba's foreign relations, is watching the situation very carefully. Meanwhile it was stated officially today that relations between the United States and Mexico were entirely unchanged.

The Cuban Minister here expressed confidence that the affair would prove nothing more than a passing incident. Minister De Ceapedes said:

"The Cuban Government is hopeful that the difficulties will find a satisfactory solution. Cuba is engaged in the stern task of fulfilling her duties, as an ally and as a belligerent, to the great cause defended by the United States and the nations of the Entente.

"While willing to defer to every just claim of friendly nations, and especially to those of any of our sister republics, the Cuban Government cannot depart from the policy of vigilance and certain restrictions made necessary by the state of war without incurring great responsibilities.

"It is with a perfect sense of these, and at the same time time adhering to the principle that nothing is definitive among friends prevailing in the relations among the Pan American republics, that Cuba will act in this case, which I feel confident will prove to be nothing more than a passing incident."

HELD UNDER ESPIONAGE ACT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 27.—After being in the police court here today for offensive conduct toward a young woman soliciting funds for the American Red Cross War Fund, Vincent H. Huck, Assistant District Manager of a local threshing machine company, was arrested by Department of Justice agents on a charge of violating the Espionage act.

Other employes of the company testified at the trial that Huck was regarded by them as pro-German, and that he had refused to allow Liberty Loan and War Savings Stamp literature to be posted in his office.

DENTIST DENIES POISONING.

RICHMOND, Va., May 27.—Counsel for Dr. Lemuel Johnson of Middlesex, N. C., a dentist on trial here charged with poisoning his bride of three months, rested today, and argument before the jury will begin tomorrow. The State may call one or two witnesses in rebuttal when court convenes.

Cross-examination of Johnson was completed today by the State's attorneys. Throughout the ordeal he maintained that he did not poison his wife. The State's theory is that he killed his bride because he loved Miss Ollie White, a music teacher of Zebulon, N. C.

ORDER GEN. WOOD TO HOME DUTY

tion as to the reason for the order taking General Wood away from the command of troops prepared for war service and assigning him to administrative duty in San Francisco. It had been taken for granted that General Wood would be sent to Europe to take his place as one of the commanders of the American Expeditionary Forces.

He had recently undergone a severe examination by a board of high ranking medical officers of the army, one of whom was Major Charles Mayo of the Medical Reserve Corps, the noted surgeon of Rochester, Minn., and the board had found that he was entirely fit for overseas service. His division, the 89th of the National Army, according to all reports, had been trained to a high state of efficiency under General Wood's system of instruction.

On May 22 THE NEW YORK TIMES printed a dispatch from Camp Funston, Kansas, marked "Passed by the Censor" to the effect that the troops at that camp—General Wood's command—"are going 'over there.'" The dispatch said that "where they go from here and when and how they leave, are points of information that cannot be made public." In addition, the dispatch stated that "the 89th, under General Wood, is the only division of National Army men turned out as a unit complete in every way to take its place in the trenches of France." Information of a similar nature was published in Western newspapers.

Went to Europe in Preparation.

Shortly after the United States entered the great war General Wood was detached from command of the Eastern Military Department, with headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y., and transferred to command the Southeastern Department, with headquarters at Charleston, S. C.

Coincident with this announcement it was made known that the Eastern Department had been divided into three parts, one of which was to be the Southeastern. Correspondence made public at the time by the War Department showed that in notifying General Wood of his detachment from command of the Eastern Department, Secretary Baker had informed him that he could take his choice of commanding the Southeastern Department, the Department of the Philippines, or the Department of Hawaii.

Subsequently, however, upon the formation of the National Army, he was assigned to command the 89th Division at Camp Funston, one of the largest divisions in training for overseas service, with a total of more than 40,000 men selected from the draft quotas of Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona.

As commander of a division of troops intended for overseas service General Wood was sent to Europe late last year to observe and inspect military operations on the western front in preparation for his expected service in the theatre of war. While there he was severely injured by the explosion of a bomb, and was in the hospital for several weeks. General Wood returned to the United States shortly before Secretary Baker arrived in Europe on his tour of inspection of the American Expeditionary Forces in March and April, although it was understood that General Wood would remain in France for consultation with Mr. Baker.

Surprise in Washington.

On account of the injuries he had received there was some speculation as to whether General Wood was able to pass the rather severe physical examination for overseas service. The high ranking medical officers of long experience who examined him, however, found that he was in excellent physical trim. After that there appeared to be no obstacle to General Wood's assignment to service in the war area, and the news that he had been detached from overseas duty and ordered to San Francisco, 6,000 miles from the theatre of conflict, created a deep impression in military circles, and, in fact, throughout Washington.

By virtue of seniority Brig. Gen. F. L. Wyan, commanding the 177th Infantry Brigade, becomes commanding officer of the 89th National Army Division. It is supposed, however, that if the orders detaching General Wood are allowed to stand an officer of the rank of Major General will be assigned to General Wood's place.

Colonel C. E. Kilbourne, Chief of Staff of the 89th Division, was also in Washington today. It was said at the War Department that he had not been detached from his position with the division. Colonel Kilbourne accompanied General Wood to Europe and was badly wounded by the explosion of the bomb which injured General Wood. He also passed his examination for overseas service.

General Treat Going to Italy.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—Brig. Gen. Charles G. Treat, who succeeded Major Gen. Arthur Murray here less than a month ago, will go to Italy to replace Major Gen. Eben Swift as a member of the American Mission.

General Treat, it is believed, has overcome the physical disability that caused his demotion and his relief from command of a national army division and will be advanced again to the grade of Major General. It is assumed in San Francisco that he has been found qualified for foreign service.

No word of General Wood's plans has been received here and General Treat could not say today when the transfer of command might take place.

preciate the situation," but I am not so sure that I can say that at the end of this week, for certainly the spirit of the American people has been demonstrated by these contributions to the Red Cross in a way which will not only benefit the people themselves, but will thrill all of Western Europe.

"Of course, in order to accomplish this, the most remarkable feat ever recorded as a voluntary act on the part of a people, it was necessary to develop an organization. We had at the head of that organization a man with notable and able assistants, who has worked in California, in Louisiana, in Michigan, in Maine, in New York, and in all other States. While I have been touring Europe, visiting the crowned heads and getting my name in the paper, he has been doing the real business. I want you all to rise and drink to the health of Nealy Bliss."

"I think it was in December that we asked Mr. Breed to lunch with us and consider taking the Chairmanship of the New York campaign. Well, it was a long luncheon, I think an hour and three-quarters an hour and forty minutes of which was taken up by Mr. Breed not in declining to take the position, but giving to us the reasons why he was not qualified to take the position. Well, ladies and gentlemen, you have the answer. Certainly I am not going to keep you from getting the final returns by telling you of the merits of Mr. Breed, but I want to say this—that looking back at that time, under those circumstances, under those conditions, when at that luncheon we said the most serious undertaking was that of New York, I feel that the performance of Mr. Breed has been nothing less than brilliant. You know very well that it is not possible to give by word credit to every one. I wish I could, but I am sure that each one is conscious of the service he has performed.

Will Work in Name of America.

"Well, now, the week is over. The War Council is going back to Washington to get down to business, and I want you to understand, ladies and gentlemen, that the War Council is appreciative of all that has been done, but far and away above and beyond that, we are conscious of a very great responsibility. I can assure you that not one dollar will be expended which is not expended after careful thought and consideration given to the object of the expenditure by the council. You have demanded of the War Council that nothing should be left undone for the protection and welfare of our own boys, and I can assure you that nothing will be left undone. You have furthermore demanded of the War Council that they shall go on in the name of the American people—for all of this work is done not in the name of the Red Cross where it can be avoided, or at least where the name of the American people can be used, and I love to think it is the American people and no special organization—you have demanded that we go on with the fight, and we are going on with the fight."

Mr. Davison, after referring to the inhuman methods employed by the Germans and of their insidious propaganda, said in closing:

"On our side, we are carrying on the fight with implements which provide and only provide for the welfare, the health, and the moral uplift of humankind, and it is expended by a hand of mercy and of justice, and so long as there is a God in heaven we will win that fight."

Mr. Breed, in introducing Seward Prosser, who was in charge of the first Red Cross drive, told of the hearty assistance given by the bankers in the campaign just ended.

Mr. Prosser Praises Chairman.

Mr. Prosser spoke in praise of the great energy which Mr. Breed had thrown into the work here and concluded:

"This afternoon I happened to meet a man, very active in the Red Cross, apparently—I think he had been indulging too much; and he spoke about Mr. Davison. I always like to hear anything favorable about Mr. Davison, but it rather amused me. He said: 'There is Mr. Davison, he's the greatest mother of them all.'

"But I know that you have got a terribly tired Chairman here, I know you are tired yourselves; but I believe that when he goes home tonight and it is all over, he will say that I have done far better things than I have ever done before.'"

A letter from Mayor Hylan to Charles A. Coffin, Chairman of the industrial campaign here, was read, stating that the Mayor was unable to be present because of pressure of official business. Mr. Hylan called attention to his appointment of a committee for enrolling the officials and employes of the city under the industrial plan. The letter stated that about 100,000 workers were reached by the activities of this committee, and that fifty-two departments and offices of the city and county governments had enrolled 100 per cent. of their employes, numbering 2,924 persons, for a total subscription of $30,155.80. On this basis it was estimated that the contribution of the public servants of the city and its five counties to the Red Cross Fund would be $1,000,000.

At the close of the dinner a loving cup was presented to Mr. Breed in appreciation of his work in leading the drive here.

Brooklyn Near Its Quota.

It was indicated late yesterday afternoon that Brooklyn would pass its quota of $2,000,000. The borough's total late in the afternoon was placed at $1,932,687, almost doubling the sum reported on Saturday. The Brooklyn figures of yesterday afternoon were as follows:

Industrial Division, W. E. Taylor Chairman	$500,000
Teams Division, Darwin R. James, Jr., Chairman	110,000
House Division, Mrs. Edward A. Quin, Chairman	60,000
Women's Division, Mrs. William C. Beecher, Chairman	50,000
Retailers' Division, Prentice Luckey, Chairman	45,000
Previous pledges and subscriptions	$955,000 977,687
Grand total	$1,932,687

The Liederkranz Society has sent three checks to the Red Cross totaling $1,453.50, representing collections among its members. The sum of $3,000 was received by the fund from longshoremen, who were canvassed by Mrs. Frances Haynes and other members of the House-to-house Committee.

It was announced yesterday that the sale of copies of The Stars and Stripes, the official newspaper of General Pershing's men, in the theatres and motion picture houses had netted a total of $18,000.

A crowd of 20,000 persons in the City Hall Park watched Harry H. Gardiner, the "human fly," yesterday noon, as he scaled the twenty-nine-story Park Row Building. The crowd cheered as Gardiner scrambled up the blank wall with the nimbleness and sureness of a lizard on a rock. When the fifth floor was reached the band started to play "The Star-Spangled Banner," and Gardiner righted himself by his finger tips and held himself at attention while the crowd cheered. As he proceeded upward story by story the crowd's attention was suddenly turned to the Federal Building, where a postal clerk smartly made his way up by a smooth pillar from the second to the third story. A scare went through the crowd as he struggled with difficulty to reach the cornice at the third floor, but after a few critical seconds he made it, swung himself over a protruding ledge and into a window.

Police lines had to be drawn to hold in the crowd, which grew as Gardiner moved up story by story until he reached the roof. At 2:10, after an ordeal of an hour and forty minutes, he sat on the top of the flag pole.

The chorus of bells and factory whistles, augmented by the sirens of river boats, will begin at noon today and count up the total in millions which New York City has given to the Red Cross Drive.

RESPONSE OF NATION SHOWN BY DIVISIONS

The Atlantic in the Lead with About $51,550,000 — Pennsylvania's Total of $15,500,000 Second.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The American people answered Germany's renewal of the offensive on the western front today with an outpouring of more than $32,000,000, swelling the American Red Cross second war fund to nearly $144,000,000. Reports still were coming in from some districts at midnight, and the final total of the drive, which ended today, will not be known until tomorrow.

Oklahoma	1,528,851
Missouri	4,906,592
Foreign Division, total	1,900,000

The Foreign Division rolled up the greatest percentage against its quota, reporting four times its $800,000 minimum. The Gul Division continued to lead home divisions in percentage with something over 200. It was the only division to double its quota, but others which nearly did so were the mountain and Northwestern.

$75,000 FOR RED CROSS AT THEATRICAL BENEFIT

Kaiser's Gold Cup, Auctioned for $23,000, Is to be Melted to Buy Bullets.

About $75,000 was realized last night at the gala concert given at the Metropolitan Opera House, under the auspices of the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team, in behalf of the Red Cross. The generosity of the crowd that packed the opera house established what was declared to be a record for benefit performances in this city, the next highest figure being $54,000, which was obtained in 1906 for the San Francisco earthquake sufferers.

A feature of the benefit was the selling of a gold matrice of a phonographic record made by General Pershing, which was auctioned by ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard to a representative of George M. Cohan, the actor, for $2,700. In offering the golden disk for sale Mr. Gerard declared that the owner, Guy Galterman of St. Louis, had stipulated that the purchaser turn the record over to President Wilson to be placed with the other war archives at Washington.

The high mark of the evening, however, went for the Kaiser's cup, auctioned by United States Marshal Thomas McCarthy. This gold cup, which was donated to the Red Cross drive by Wilson Marshall, brought $23,000. Mr. McCarthy said that the cup had originally belonged to the German Kaiser, and that at a regatta before the war Mr. Marshall's yacht Atlantic had won it.

Recently Mr. Marshall's son, an aviator, was killed in France, and the father had then turned the trophy over to the Red Cross to "turn its gold into lead for bullets to kill Germans." Another provision made by Mr. Marshall was that the final purchaser of the cup destroy it.

As soon as the Marshal put the cup on the block, bids of $1,000 each started from all parts of the house, and then Daniel Guggenheim from a box jumped the bid to $5,000. He was followed a second later by Colonel Hartley, U. S. A., who offered $6,000. Elie Nadelman, the sculptor, got the cup for $7,000, whereupon the Marshal invited him to return his purchase to the Red Cross.

"Gladly," called the sculptor from his box and before the applause subsided, Marshal McCarthy said he had reconsidered Colonel Hartley's offer of $8,000 and would reauction the cup, starting at that figure. No bids being forthcoming, the auctioneer announced Colonel Hartley as the owner and invited him to follow Mr. Nadelman's example and return his purchase. The Colonel promptly agreed, and McCarthy, turning with a broad smile to Mr. Guggenheim, said that he accepted his bid of $5,000 and would take other offers—"if any." There weren't any others, but Mr. Guggenheim's $5,000, as the third payment for the cup, brought the trophy's earnings up to $18,000.

Additional bids of $2,000 from a Mr. Keller and $1,000 from State Senator Walker and Joseph J. Hoey brought the total turned into the Red Cross through the auction of the "Kaiser's Cup" to $23,000. Marshal McCarthy, following Mr. Nadelman's request, then toppled the cup over in ruins. Before the cup was smashed, however, a woman in a box suggested that everybody pay $5 each to see the trophy broken, and when this suggestion was offered to the audience practically every one stood up to signify that it was worth it to see anything the Kaiser once owned properly "strafed."

The program of artists, one of the most remarkable ever presented in this city, included Caruso, Sophie Braslau, Ossip Gabrilowitch, Tamika Miura, Harold Baurer, Pasquale Amato, Anna Fitziu, Andreas de Segurola, Adam Didur, Leon Rothier, José Mardones, Frances Alda, Riccardo Stracciari, Antonio Scotti, and the Metropolitan Orchestra under Conductors Hageman, Moranzoni, Bamboschek, and Walter Damrosch.

SOCIETY GIRLS AS 'NEWSIES'

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 27.—Commuters were greeted at the Lackawanna Railroad station this morning by a band of Montclair society young women who sold papers instead of the usual newsboys. The papers had been contributed by Jerry Piccolo, William Rudensey, and Tony Maffucci, who had agreed to give the proceeds of the sale to the Red Cross. The girls sold papers as early as 6:08 and continued on the job until 10:39. The sales netted $270.

Robert A. Drysdale of 147 South Mountain Avenue gave a girl $20 for a copy of THE NEW YORK TIMES. The only New York daily newspaper not sold by the Red Cross girls was The New York American, which the girls would not handle because, they alleged, it was not patriotic in its attitude toward the war. There were some Americans lying on the ground near where the group of girls were conducting the sales, and a man called the attention of one of the salesgirls to their failure to sell the Hearst publication.

"Why don't you sell these?" he asked.

"Why do you want to buy a paper like that?" the girl responded.

Those who sold the papers were Mrs. J. Lester Parsons, Miss Polly Sheldon, Mrs. H. H. Bradley, Mrs. James A. McGraw, Mrs. Russ Van Vleck, Miss Mildred Barry, Mrs. Joseph Z. Batten, Miss Betty Oliver, Miss Helen Van Vleck, Miss Patsy Cross, Miss Brownie Thomas, Mrs. Earl Langstroth, and Mrs. Alden Miller.

Wool Brings $1,000 a Pound.

BOSTON, May 27.—Two pounds of wool, clipped from sheep that graze on the White House lawn, was sold at public auction on Boston Common today for $2,000, for the benefit of the Red Cross. Abraham Koshland, President of the Boston Wool Trade Association, the purchaser, said the price established a world's record.

Acknowledgment.

THE NEW YORK TIMES acknowledges the receipt of $100 from Richard Mally for the Second Red Cross Fund. This money has been turned over to the Red Cross. THE TIMES has also received a check for $100 from the Alpha Omega Dental Fraternity, through Dr. Myron I. Mashkowitz, as a contribution to the Second Red Cross Fund. The check has been forwarded to the Red Cross.

Jewish War Relief Gets $25,000.

Delegates to the thirty-second annual convention of the Independent Order of B'rith Abraham, which began its second day's session yesterday at the New Star Casino, 115 East 107th Street, voted $25,000 for Jewish war relief. This sum will be expended for the comfort of Jewish soldiers in the United States Army and for the support of their families.

COLONEL FOR "KNOCKOUT."

Wants the War Carried to Berlin—One Language for America.

DES MOINES, May 27.—English as the sole language for schools, newspapers, and other usage in this country, was urged by Theodore Roosevelt in an address here tonight, under the direction of the National Security League.

The former President reiterated his contention for universal obligatory military training, and pointed out "our duty to speed up the war and it through," and "so to prepare ourselves that the peace we are to gain shall be a permanent gain for righteousness."

"We have put our hand to the plow," he shouted, "and we will never turn back until we have driven the furrow up to Berlin. Unless we knock out Germany, we will have to fight again probably within the lifetime of men now old, certainly within the time of those now Young."

In voicing his approval of the recent proclamation by Governor Harding, ordering that English be the only medium of instruction in public or private schools in Iowa, Colonel Roosevelt said: "This is a nation—not a polyglot boarding house. There is not room in the country for any fifty-fifty American. There can be but one loyalty—to the Stars and Stripes: one nationality—the American—and therefore only one language—the English language."

16 Soldiers Are Made Citizens.

Sixteen members of the Signal Corps stationed at Fort Wood called at the County Naturalization Bureau yesterday and told County Clerk Schneider that they wanted to become citizens. Among them were four Englishmen, two Serbians, and two Russians. The other eight were representatives of other friendly or neutral countries. When first and second papers had been made out for the men Mr. Schneider directed that they be taken to court at once, and be sworn in under the new law that eliminates the usual delay.

NARCOTIC INQUIRY IN CAMPS

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Thorough investigation of the intimate relations between the narcotic problem and army camp life was suggested to Secretary Baker today by Dr. Charles A. Rosewater of Newark, N. J., who submitted a survey he has made of Southern States for the Alabama and Georgia Boards of Health with reference to the use of narcotic and habit forming drugs.

Conditions warranted Federal control of all narcotic and habit forming drugs, Dr. Rosewater said. The Harrison law, he declared, was inadequate to cope with the illigitimate traffic, and he cited a purchase of 200 ounces of cocaine for export, much of which he believed ultimately reached American soldiers.

The report speaks of the prevalence of drug addition, and says the drug most commonly used is caffeine in combination with certain substances allied to cocaine which is taken in kola drinks. Reckless use of the prescription privilege by physicians, dentists, and veterinarians is commented upon.

Dr. Rosewater also reported a widespread use of alcohol contained in proprietary and home medicines, many of which he said were practically nothing but flavored alcohol.

Your Letters Are You

Dictate like a streak or hesitate over every word—just as you like. That perfect machine, The Dictaphone, takes every word without a falter. Such undisturbed concentration quickly tells. Hot Days Drain Vitality

Now is the time to build vitality and vigor over against the blood-draining, body-exhausting hot days to come. You will need every ounce of strength and stamina you can muster. For, if you are the average man or woman, you must stay in the city and work. At the first sign of a run-down condition, take

Gude's Pepto-Mangan
"The Red Blood Builder"

Gude's Pepto-Mangan helps put new energy and stamina into the entire system because it puts new strength and sturdiness into the red blood cells—the oxygen-carrying element of the blood. Oxygen is the breath of life, and your body lives in proportion as it is kept alive with oxygen. Gude's Pepto-Mangan increases the number and quality of the red blood cells. It is a splendid general tonic and appetizer, easy to digest, exceedingly pleasant to taste, and universally endorsed.

Friendly Warning: There are many imitations of Pepto-Mangan on the market, but you can be sure of getting the genuine if it bears the name "Gude" and is put up in the bottle and sealed package as pictured here. Ask for it by its full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." For sale at all drug stores.

COUNSEL PROTESTS IN VAIN

John J. O'Leary, brother of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, the fugitive Sinn Fein agitator, who was arrested on Sunday night by agents of the Department of Justice, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Samuel W. Hitchcock yesterday morning, charged with having entered into a conspiracy to obstruct the administration of justice. The complaint, signed by Charles W. De Woody, Chief of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation for the New York District, said that on May 3, five days before Jeremiah A. O'Leary disappeared from New York, John J. O'Leary "caused to be prepared a power of attorney to himself from Jeremiah A. O'Leary in order to assume the management and care of the latter's business and personal affairs during his absence."

At the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Earl B. Barnes, who is in charge of the O'Leary case for the Government, bail was fixed in the sum of $100,000, the highest amount called for in this Federal district in years. O'Leary had not been able to obtain bail up to the time the court adjourned yesterday afternoon and was remanded to the Tombs. The complaint in the case does not name the persons with whom John J. O'Leary is alleged to have conspired prior to the flight of his brother Jeremiah.

Objects to High Bail.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder, who also is counsel for Jeremiah A. O'Leary, appeared as counsel for John J. O'Leary and vigorously protested against the high bail asked by the Government.

"I challenge you," said Colonel Felder, addressing himself to Mr. Barnes, "to point out a single instance in the whole history of the United States, from the Revolution down to the present time, when a citizen of this Republic has been required to furnish $100,000 bail in a case involving only two years as a penalty."

Continuing, Colonel Felder said that he had appeared as counsel in the Green and Gaynor case, in which the defendants were charged with the embezzlement of $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, and said that in that case the bail was fixed at $25,000.

"And Greene and Gaynor both jumped their bail, which showed that it was not high enough," replied Mr. Barnes.

"The bail asked in this case by the Government," continued Mr. Barnes, "is not too much to ask. Jeremiah A. O'Leary disappeared when his bail was reduced from $10,000 to $2,500, and this defendant, John J. O'Leary, when found after days by agents of the Government, was at a garage, getting out an automobile. The bail in the circumstances is not unreasonable."

Colonel Felder again protested, but Commissioner Hitchcock announced that he would grant the request of the Government.

"If you regard the bail as excessive," Commissioner Hitchcock said to Colonel Felder, "you may apply to the courts to have it reduced."

"I know my right. I don't have to have a guardian," replied Colonel Felder.

Mrs. O'Leary was in the office of the Commissioner when her husband was arraigned. She had a long conference with her husband before he was taken to the Tombs. She broke down and wept when he was led away.

It will be three weeks tomorrow since Jeremiah O'Leary left New York. He had been gone more than a week before the Federal authorities learned that he was a fugitive.

ALIEN WOMEN REGISTRATION.

Final Instructions Issued—Police in Charge in New York City.

Final instructions for the registration of German alien women were issued by United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy yesterday, following the receipt of the approved regulations from Washington. The Police Department will conduct the registration in New York City. Marshal McCarthy issued general instructions late yesterday afternoon to the registering authorities in Manhattan and the Bronx, Westchester, Dutchess, Orange, and Putnam Counties. The Marshal's communication to the authorities follows:

I have received full instructions from the Department of Justice regarding the registration of German alien females. This will commence at 6 A. M. on Monday, June 17, 1918, and continue on each day successively thereafter except Sunday, June 23, 1918, between the hours of 6 A. M. and 8 P. M., up to and including Wednesday, the 26th day of June, 1918.

All natives, citizens, denizens, or subjects of the German Empire or of the Imperial German Government, being females of the age of fourteen years and upwards, now within the United States and not actually naturalized as American citizens, are required to register as German alien females.

Female natives, citizens, denizens, or subjects of the Austro-Hungarian Empire are not required to register under the President's proclamation of April 19, 1918. There are certain exceptions to this rule, as, for example, when an Austrian female marries an unnaturalized German she loses her nationality and is required to register.

The registration in Manhattan and the Bronx and in other cities in the Southern District of more than 5,000 population, will be conducted by the police, and registrants will report to the station nearest their places of residence. It will be necessary for them to furnish five photographs and fill out four blank forms of registration. The photographs shall be of the shoulders and full face without hat or other head covering. Each photograph must be signed by registrant across the face thereof so as not to obscure the features. In all other communities known as nonurban areas, the registration will take place in the Post Offices.

Each alien female required to be registered shall be required to register her finger prints. The finger printing is a method of identification, and the taking of the finger prints is not to be deemed an imputation that the registrant is not a law-abiding person. This finger printing follows the practice observed in the military and naval services of the United States.

Registrants will be able to obtain blank forms and full instructions a few days before registration begins, in order that they may fill them out carefully at home and have them ready, so as to be sworn in upon reporting again to the police or Postmaster, as the case may be.

Robert Gerth, a German, who completed a few days ago a sentence of two months in the Essex County Jail for failure to register as an enemy, was brought for a second time before the Federal authorities yesterday. He announced that there was not enough power in the United States to compel him to register, and said that he expected to sail for Germany next week. He was sent to Bellevue to be examined by alienists.

Would Remove Huber Executors.

Application was made yesterday to Surrogate Ketcham in Brooklyn for the removal of Mrs. Helen Remmler and Mrs. Helen Walter as executors of the estate of Otto Huber, Jr., the Brooklyn brewer, who died eight years ago. Mrs. Remmler is the widow and Mrs. Walter the daughter of Mr. Huber. Some time after the death of Mr. Huber mother and daughter both married German citizens and have since lived in Berlin, Germany. The petitioners are the remaining executors, Joseph Huber and ex-District Attorney John F. Clarke. They set forth that as Mrs. Remmler and Mrs. Walter are now German citizens, their signatures to papers having to do with the affairs of the estate cannot be obtained.

MEN OF 29 NATIONS IN A DRAFT OF 92

CALL FOR SPECIAL SERVICE

Men of Classes 2 and 3 Ordered to Serve as Gunsmiths, Hostlers, and Boilermakers.

The first call for selective draft men of Classes 2 and 3 was received in New York yesterday. The men called from these classes are all for special service and include gunsmiths, hostlers, locomotive inspectors, boiler makers, bricklayers, boiler inspectors, and veterinarians. By the end of the present week less than a division of Class 1 men will remain uncalled in this city. More than 2,000 men from the Manhattan and Brooklyn draft district were called to the colors yesterday and started for cantonments in this State, New Jersey, and the South, and about 13,000 additional men will leave the city between now and Saturday. It is the expectation that all of the Class 1 men will have been mobilized for duty by the end of next month, and that the first calls for men of the other classes for service in the line regiments will be issued in July.

What is probably the most cosmopolitan group of fighters to be recruited in the country left the city yesterday for a Southern training camp as the first objective on their way to France. The group comprised ninety-two men of Local Board 91 at Henry and Oliver Streets. Twenty-nine nationalities were represented in the ranks, but all Americanized to a man.

An appropriate send off was given them when they gathered early in the day at their headquarters, Public School 1, and marched to Public School 114 in Oak Street, between Oliver and James Streets. Only eight absentees were reported, and Chairman Henry C. Gray announced that they were mostly sailors now at sea and therefore exempted. Principal Griffen of the Oak Street school presided at the farewell ceremonies and gave the men a short talk on discipline. Then Alfred E. Smith, President of the Aldermen, who lives in the district, assured the men that those who remained behind would aid in bearing the burdens of war. He complimented the men on their splendid appearance, and said he was certain they would distinguish themselves.

Justice John J. Freschi of Special Sessions, told of a legion now being formed in the city to offset anti-American propaganda, which, he said, was being carried on among the Italians of the city. Stories, he said, were being circulated among the Italians that Italy was not receiving any of the money of the Liberty Loan, and that no men were being sent to aid the Italian nation. He promised that the Royal Legion would soon stamp out the work of the "scallywags."

Headed by two bands the drafted men then marched from the school to Park Row, past the City Hall, where they were reviewed by Mayor Hylan, and to the Cortlandt Street Ferry. A banner carried by the men bore these sentiments:

Sherman marched through Georgia,
But only to the sea;
We will march to Georgia—
And on to Germany.

Then we were divided,
The North and South were foes;
But today a united country
On to Berlin goes.

As the men crowded on to the ferryboat the band struck up "Good-bye, Broadway; Hello, France." The following announcement relative to the registration of men who have reached the age of 21 years since June 5 of last year was made by Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, Provost Marshal General:

WHO MUST REGISTER—All male persons, (citizens or aliens,) born between June 6, 1896, and June 5, 1897, inclusive, except officers and enlisted men of the Regular Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and the National Guard and Naval Militia while in Federal service, and officers in Officers' Reserve Corps and enlisted men in Enlisted Reserve Corps while in active service.

WHEN—On Wednesday, June 5, 1918, between 7 A. M. and 9 P. M.

WHERE—At office of local board having jurisdiction where the person to be registered permanently resides, or other place designated by that local board.

HOW—Go in person on June 5 to your registration place. If you expect to be absent from home on June 5, go at once to the office of the local board where you happen to be. Have your registration card filled out and certified. Mail it to the local board having jurisdiction where you permanently reside. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your registration card for the return of your registration certificate. Failure to get this certificate may cause you serious inconvenience. You must mail your registration card in time to reach your home local board on June 5. If you are sick on June 5 and unable to present yourself in person send some competent friend. The clerk may deputize him to prepare your card.

INFORMATION—If you are in doubt as to what to do or where to register consult your local board.

PENALTY FOR NOT REGISTERING—Failure to register is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for one year. It may result in loss of valuable rights and privileges and immediate induction into military service.

The Marine Recruiting Service announced yesterday that the corps is now being increased by more than 1,000 recruits a month. The regular army and navy recruiting services have called the attention of men who have attained their majority since June 5, 1917, that they are still permitted to enlist in any of the services, and that they may volunteer up to June 5, on which date they will register for the selective draft.

SWEAR MISS LUSK IS INSANE

Alienists Assert She Was Suffering from Paranoia at Time of Slaying.

WAUKESHA, Wis., May 27.—With all testimony at the trial of Grace Lusk for slaying Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts completed late this afternoon, D. S. Tullar, Special Prosecutor, will begin his argument to the jury at the opening of court tomorrow morning.

Expert testimony regarding Miss Lusk's sanity occupied most of today's session. Five witnesses for the defense swore that, in their opinion, the defendant was suffering from paranoia. Two other experts, called by the prosecution, asserted their belief in her sanity, basing their opinions on testimony to the effect that shortly after the shooting Miss Lusk asked whether Mrs. Roberts was dead, and later declared: "I shot her because she called me such awful names."

Although Miss Lusk had testified that she could not remember the shooting, and the defense had pointed to this statement as supporting its contention that she was suffering from hysterical automatism at the time of the tragedy, the State's questions to its alienists directed attention to testimony introduced to show that four days after the shooting, when asked if she realized what she had done, Miss Lusk replied:

"Yes, I know why I shot her, but I do not understand how I did it so calmly and deliberately."

The testimony of the alienists was interrupted to permit the State to recall Dr. David Roberts to the stand. The veterinarian declared he had never told Miss Lusk that he would get a divorce from his wife, that his relations with Mrs. Roberts were unpleasant, or that he had suggested when his wife was sick that it would be a good solution of the problem "if she were called to angel land."

The case is expected to go to the jury on Wednesday.

A. McDonald. Mr. Fairbanks showed slight improvement yestreday and Saturday over the previous ten days.

RICH WOMAN ADOPTS SON.

Mrs. de Belmont Makes 24-Year-Old Colombian Her Heir.

Mme. Bianca de Belmont, said to be a member of an old and wealthy French family and now living at 51 West Ninety-first Street, got permission yesterday from Surrogate Fowler to adopt Victor M. Gomez Velasquez, now a clerk for an exporting house in New York, who was left motherless at 5 years, joined the Colombian Army when he was 11, became head of an importing house in Colombia when he was 17, and immigrated to this country recently at the age of 24. He will be known as Gomez Belmont.

Mme. de Belmont told the Surrogate that her husband and only son died years ago, and she has no relatives except her sisters and their children in France. She has few friends here and, in consequence, says her interests "have become too self-centred and my life extremely lonely." She met young Velasquez a year ago, and for two months he has lived in her home, during which time their relations have become those of a mother and son.

The Present Telephone Service
What You Can Do About It

AMERICA'S war business has thrown an excessive burden on the nation's telephone systems.

Never before have operators been so hard to get, never before has the traffic been so heavy.

Trouble, slow service, delays in installations are handicapping big business establishments today.

These will continue to take a heavy toll of time, money and efficiency so long as city telephones, which must keep you in touch with your patrons, are also required to handle the great volume of interior calls—over 60 per cent of all traffic, in the average plant.

But you can get good telephone service.

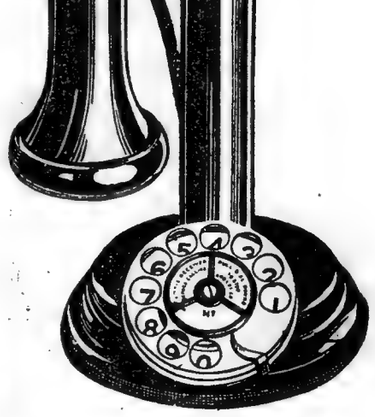
You can keep your city telephones free for city calls. You can release equipment and operators for imperative public use.

You can reduce rentals, speed up service, eliminate errors and do away with annoyances by installing the



P.A.X.
PRIVATE AUTOMATIC EXCHANGE

The Complete and Adequate Interior Telephone System

This is the equipment which the governments of the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy have adopted and are using for their war activities

This is the system that has solved the telephone problems of hundreds of America's most prominent and progressive firms—large and small

Such New York firms as the United Fruit Company, the Texas Company, the American Lithographic Company, the Equitable Trust Company, have installed the P A X

With the P A X all interior calls are made with lightning speed

With it no operators are needed for interior service. No elaborate cables are required, no complicated push buttons are used

With it 24-hour service can be had at no extra cost

Whether you use 20 telephones, 200 or 2,000, the P A X will exactly fit your needs

Service is the chief merit of the P A X, but its economy is such that many firms have arranged to buy the equipment with the money it saves them

Write us today, or call telephone, Murray Hill 3209. Our experts in industrial telephony will study your problem and suggest the solution without obligation to you

WIDENER'S FAST COLT WINS METROPOLITAN

OLD KOENIG IS SECOND

Thoroughbred racing leaped into popular favor at the opening of the Westchester Racing Association meeting at Belmont Park yesterday, 12,000 persons braving the threatening weather to see Joseph E. Widener's imported three-year-old colt Trompe La Mort win the Metropolitan Handicap from a field of eight high-class horses. The Beverwyck Stable's Old Koenig finished second, a length and a half behind the winner, and Commodore J. K. L. Ross's Priscilla Mullens was third, another length further back.

Behind this fleet trio, all of which had been tuned up for the supreme effort by frequent racing, there finished such stars as Omar Khayyam, the sensation of last year's three-year-old racing, and Roamer, the former champion, which has finished first in many a hard-fought race.

Except for the fact that he was pinched off at the start, no excuse could be found for Omar Khayyam. The great horse of a year ago was outrun at every stage of the race and finished in sixth position, with only the Macomber pair, Hank O'Day and Walnut Hall, behind him. On the other hand, Roamer ran in a manner that deserved victory, even though he could not command it. He set a merry pace for the younger blood to follow and only gave way in the stretch when tired under his heavy weight. The time of the race, 1:38 2-5, showed that it needed a fit horse to win, and in this respect Trompe La Mort qualified, as he was thoroughly wound up for the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico, in which he proved a disappointment.

First Imported Horse to Win.

The imported son of Verwood-Marsa made amends yesterday for his early reverses. He is the first imported horse to win the Metropolitan and the first three-year-old to have an undivided claim on first money since the event has been run at Belmont Park. Several of that age captured the Metropolitan when it was run at Morris Park, and on the first running at Belmont, in 1905, Sysonby, then a three-year-old, ran a dead heat with Race King.

Such a victory as that scored by Trompe La Mort places him in line for the three-year-old classics and also calls attention to the fact that his young owner, Joseph E. Widener, must be considered a factor in flat racing in future as he has been in cross-country events hitherto.

It was only on Saturday that Mr. Widener occupied a place in the limelight because of the victory of three of his entries at the Hunts meet, which included one on the flat in which his Kilts II. defeated the Derby winner, Exterminator. Mr. Widener was overwhelmed with congratulations, which were deserved, as it was at no little expense that he secured the winner. Trompe La Mort is one of twelve French horses purchased from the noted French owner, Edmond Blanc, and, according to Trainer Welsh, he is the only one that has raced up to expectations.

There was a representative crowd to welcome the thoroughbreds at the picturesque course, and many old friendships were renewed in the paddock, where the stud of Major E. B. Cassatt was disposed of before the races. Officers in uniform were encountered at every turn, and some of these were noted for heroism at the front. One in Highland garb carried his right arm in a sling, while another to receive attention was the youthful French ace, Lieutenant Soulier, who has a record of fifteen German planes to his credit. He was accompanied by Eliot Cowdin, Jr., who won his spurs in France during the early period of the war.

Major Belmont Attends.

Major August Belmont, who has fostered the sport of racing for a generation, made his first appearance at the races this season and was accompanied by Mrs. Belmont, a leader in the Red Cross movement, which, by the way, was active in the clubhouse and on the lawn. Among others noticed were: John Sanford, F. R. Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, Major and Mrs. E. B. Cassatt, Andrew Miller, E. Cebrian, F. S. von Stade, George Bull, C. K. G. Billings, J. G. Oxnard, W. A. Prime, Frederick Johnston, W. H. Miller, Eugene D. Wood, Joseph E. Davis, R. Lawrence Smith, W. R. Coe, A. F. Hough, F. Ambrose Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, M. L. Schwartz, James Butler, R. T. Wilson, G. W. Left, P. P. Thorne, Paul Brown, R. F. Carman, J. E. Cowdin, Alan Arthur, J. E. Madden, W. O. Parmer, Antonio Scotti, George F. Dobson, Walter J. Salmon, M. M. Corbett, H. O. Talmadge, Harry S. Page, Samuel C. Riddle, and A. K. Macomber.

There was a sensation for the crowd even before the races began, for while the horses were at the post for the first event there was a buzzing noise overhead and the spectators cheered as the airplane with the mail from Washington swooped across the track and came to a solid landing in the centre of the infield. The military aviator watched all the races and left after the running of the last, a two-year-old event, which by the way, brought out a field of twenty-three, the largest ever obtained at Belmont Park.

Omar Khayyam in Trim.

Interest in the paddock before the big race was monopolized by Omar Khayyam. There was no telling from his appearance that he was not wound up for a hard race. The support accorded Roamer and Old Koenig caused Omar to recede in the betting from 6 to 5 to 11 to 5, but he was the public choice when he led the parade, accompanied by a gray pony that conducted him safely to the post on the far side of the track.

There was a delay at the barrier for which Hank O'Day was responsible, but in a few minutes the field sprang into action from a good break. Omar Khayyam had the rail position and failing to get away on his toes was shuffled back by the quick breakers. Before half a dozen strides had been taken, the cardinal and white of Andrew Miller, carried by the gallant old Roamer, was clearly in front of the flying mass, while in another few strides Trompe La Mort and Old Koenig were clearly defined in second and third place.

There were shouts of dismay as Omar Khayyam fell back until nearing the bottom of the back stretch he was absolutely last for a few jumps. Roamer had opened a gap of two lengths meanwhile, but in rounding the turn this was cut down by Trompe La Mort and Old Koenig, both going in easier manner than the leader. Nearing the stretch turn Hendrie drew up to the leaders, but lost his hard-earned ground when he ran wide at the turn.

Roamer still was in the van as he straightened out for the run home, but the old stamina was lacking, for he gave way to Trompe La Mort and Old Koenig as they challenged, running almost abreast. It was a keen, sharp struggle then between this pair with Byrne on Old Koenig working with might and main to keep on even terms with the fresh young three-year-old.

McAtee on Trompe La Mort had a little in reserve and at the eighth pole he called on the imported colt for his best effort. Trompe La Mort responded, and came away with a jump to gain at every stride until he crossed the line a length and a half to the good. Priscilla Mullens by a strong rush in the Old Koenig and half a length in front of Hendrie. Roamer was fifth, a length and a half in front of Omar Khayyam, with the Macomber pair trailing.

Pennsylvania scored also in the New York Steeplechase, a stage that has been won by many great jumpers. The Glen Riddle Farms started Brentwood, which jumped perfectly, and after a sharp tussle on the last turn with Captain Parr's Captain Parr, came away to win by three lengths, with Joseph E. Widener's Doublet third.

THORMAHLEN CASTS SPELL ON INDIANS

An appetizing athletic salad was served up at the Polo Grounds yesterday, one of the ingredients being a baseball game in which the Yanks beat the Cleveland Indians again by a score of 7 to 1. It was another victory for Huggins's young pitching sensation, Bert Thormahlen, who served a brand of southpaw slants which were Greek to the Cleveland batsmen. Cleveland's only run came as a result of some temporary wildness by the Yank pitcher when a pass, a hit batsman, a sacrifice, and a balk saved the Indians from the humiliation of a whitewash.

In the crowd of 10,000 were many soldiers and sailors, who arrived early, and were entertained by the Police Band and the French military band, to say nothing of boxing bouts and a wrestling match. Doc Roller and Tommy Draak mauled each other all over a big mat on the diamond for ten minutes without a fall. Young Corbett boxed three short rounds with Abe Attell. Corbett, except in height, now has all the other qualifications of a heavyweight, and Attell took advantage of his rotundity. Freddy Welsh and Joe Welling, who is now a jack tar, boxed a few rapid rounds.

Joe Humphries auctioned off the bats of Frank Baker and Ping Bodie, and Pat Kyne gave prizes for the longest hit and the best play of the game.

As the infield was soft from the recent rains, foxy Miller Huggins turned a bunting attack loose on Guy Morton, and the bunts had Morton so worried that the Yanks had no trouble in beating him. After Gilhooley singled to right in the first inning, he went to second when Roth fumbled his drive. Peck laid a bunt in the infield which was such a surprise that none of the Cleveland inner works got anywhere near it, Gilhooley going to third. He scored while Baker was forcing Peck at second.

The Yanks continued the bunting game in the third. Hannah walked and Thormahlen laid down a bunt which was juggled so long that all hands were safe. Gilhooley laid down another bunt, Morton trying an impossible play at third, and the bases were filled. Peck shot a sacrifice fly to Wood and scored Hannah. Baker singled, but Pratt brought the fun to an abrupt close by hitting into a double play.

For five innings Cleveland didn't get a hit off Thormahlen. In the fifth, Roth got a pass and Wambsganss was hit by a pitched ball. Wood's sacrifice sent the boys along a station. Alva Williams, batting for Halt, rolled to Thormahlen and Roth was out at the plate. As Williams and Wambsganss started a double steal Thormahlen uncorked a balk and this aided Wamby to steal home. It was the first run scored against the young southpaw in thirty-six innings. Yesterday's victory, by the way, is the fourth straight for Thormahlen.

Tuck Turner, who has been playing baseball for eighteen years, took Halt's place at third for Cleveland and was as lively as a cricket. If they had many players like Turner around it wouldn't matter how many of the young players were taken in the draft.

The Yanks bunched some more bunts on Morton in the sixth. With one out Pratt laid down a nice one toward third and was forced by Pipp. Pipp stole second and scored on Bodie's single to centre. Elmer Miller bunted and Ed Miller fielded the ball to Morton, who covered first. The ball got away from Morton and Bodie scored.

In the seventh Gilhooley walked and Peck bunted. Baker skied to Wamby and Pratt laced a single to left, which scored Gilhooley. Pipp jammed a grounder at Ed Miller, who threw home to shut Peck off, but Peck was there ahead of the ball and was safe. Miller and Hannah singled in the eighth and advanced on Thormahlen's out at first. Miller counted when Gilhooley was being dispensed with at first.

CUBS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF SERIES

Giants Drop Third Successive Game to Chief Rivals, Ending Western Trip.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Suffering their third successive defeat at the hands of their chief rivals, the Giants wound up their first Western invasion here today in anything but a blaze of glory. As in the two other games contested at Charles Weeghman's North Side Park, the pitchers of the New York team failed miserably to carry the burden, the Cubs winning easily by 7 to 3.

Pol Perritt started the proceedings for McGraw, but was chased to cover in the third inning, when a fusillade of hits gave Chicago three runs. Fred Anderson and Causey attempted to stay the onrush of the Cubs thereafter, but neither succeeded with any degree of satisfaction. Claude Hendrix did the honors for the Cubs, and outside of a poor beginning, in which the Giants got three runs in the first two innings, he was invincible.

The Giants began the game with a two-run lead which appeared big at the start, since Perritt opened with a well-offered speed ball, which set aside any efforts of the Cubs in their first inning. However, that was as far as the success of the Giants lasted, for from the first inning on the Cubs were hammering away at everything thrown their way, and at the end were easy victors. The triumph of the local team put the Cubs within one game of the Giants in the pennant chase.

Young began the game with a double, a habit he has had of late, and Kauff spanked the ball past Zeider for another double, scoring Young. Burns sacrificed Kauff to third and Benny completed the circuit on Zimmerman's sacrifice fly to Paskert. The Giants got their third and last run in the second inning, when Niehoff singled. With McCarty out, Perritt bunted safely, and Young beat out a bunt in front of the plate, on which Niehoff tallied.

Perritt showed signs of distress in the second inning. Paskert singled. Deal fanned. Zeider singled and Paskert raced to third, from where he scored on Killifer's sacrifice fly to Burns.

The Cubs tied it up in the third, and Perritt went to the clubhouse at the same time. Flack began by beating out a slow roller to Zimmerman. On Hollocher's out Flack got to second. Mann drove the ball to centre and Flack scored. Mann got to second when Kauff made a desperate attempt to cut off the run. Zimmerman got Merkle's grounder and tagged Mann out trying for third. In this simple operation Zimmerman must have thought Mann was unnecessarily rough, for he hurled Mann to the ground. Cooler heads intervened and prevented a fist fight. Neither player was sent from the field.

Merkle, who had reached second while Zimmerman was bouncing Mann around the turf, ambled the rest of the way in when Paskert doubled. That was enough for Perritt, who retired in favor of Anderson. Anderson stopped the run getting for the time being.

The next Chicago run was coined in the fifth, when Mann walked and raced the rest of the way on Merkle's double.

Two more runs were made in the sixth. Killifer singled, Hendrix sacrificed. Flack beat out a hit to Niehoff, Killifer reaching third. Hollocher singled, scoring Killifer, and putting Flack on third, from where he tallied on Merkle's single.

Causey pitched in the seventh and escaped unscathed, but was not so fortunate in the eighth, when Hollocher made the tour of the circuit on his single, Mann's safe bunt, and Zimmerman's muff of Paskert's pop fly.

GRIMES LETS CARDS HAVE NINE CIPHERS

Brooklyn Pitcher Has Better of Mound Duel and Dodgers Triumph by 1 to 0.

ST. LOUIS, May 27.—Burleigh Grimes downed the Cardinals' newest pitching star, Sherdell, in a pitchers' battle here this afternoon, the Dodgers winning by a score of 1 to 0. Grimes pitched air-tight ball, holding St. Louis to two hits. Baird and Paulette were the only Cards to reach the Dodger flinger safely.

Jimmy Hickman broke up the game in the eighth inning. Olson was hit by a pitched ball, and O'Mara's sacrifice coaxed him down to second. Olson then stole third and raced home with the victory when Hickman poled a single to right field. Wheat cracked a hot liner at Hornsby which was nabbed by the shortstop, and Hickman was doubled off first.

The Cards threatened to rally in their half of that same inning. With two out Paulette bounced a hit over O'Mara's head. He stole second and continued on to third on Miller's low throw to Doolan. Marty Kavanaugh had a fine chance to tie the score, but he raised a high fly to Myers.

HORSES BRING LOW PRICES.

Sale of Chesterbrook Stud Before Races at Belmont Park.

There was a sale of Major E. B. Cassatt's Chesterbrook Stud before the races at Belmont Park yesterday, but there was no very great desire on the part of the turfmen to purchase the horses, mainly of the get of Aeronaut. Buckboard, a four-year-old brother to Springboard and Trap, was knocked down to N. L. Byer for $1,600, and S. A. Clopton paid $1,700 for Daedalus, a three-year-old half-brother to Trial by Jury. These were the highest prices.

The reserve bids on Aeronaut, Flying Fairy and other good horses were not exceeded and they will remain in Major Cassatt's barn.

Since every straw in our stock is brand new this season, we haven't a single hat from last year to submit for actual comparison. Still, the fact remains that quality for quality, the hats we offer to-day are equally as good as the qualities offered a year ago—and prices the same!

Wish prices were the same for everything else, but for once straws fail to show which way the wind blows!

Everything men and boys wear, including a Blue or Gray serge for Decoration Day.

Germans Busy Getting Dutch Trade and Spreading Hatred Over Seizure of Shipping.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 5.—Holland is suffering from a real food shortage, and, unless America and Great Britain agree to send the necessary supplies in the immediate future, the Dutch will have starvation staring them in the face. In England and France the people imagine that they are suffering from lack of food, but so far the submarine warfare has only affected what may be classed as luxuries.

There is an impression in America and in England that, because the Hollanders say "yah" for "yes" they may well be regarded as Germans. This is not the case by any means, and even now, with all the acute feeling over the seizure of their ships by the Allies, the majority of the people are favorable to the cause of the Entente. The Government itself, and a portion of the military officials, are pro-German in their views on the war, but they are all pro-gulder and pro-Holland above everything.

Germany is rapidly acquiring Holland commercially because of the embargo placed by the Allies on exports of manufactured goods. In Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague, Maastricht, Delft, and other cities that I have just visited I found German goods on sale in all the shops. Before the war, for example, American and British kodak films had a ready market all over Holland and now their goods have disappeared completely from the windows of the shops. German films and cameras have replaced them and can be had everywhere. The same thing applies to shirts, collars, gloves, cravats, and fancy goods of every description which came previously from England, and machinery of all kinds, shoes and other goods from America. Proprietors of important dry goods stores in Amsterdam and The Hague told me that they could give and had offered absolute guarantees that these goods would only be sold to private customers and not a single article would cross the frontier into Germany. A porcelain and chinaware firm at The Hague, which has imported Wedgwood ware for nearly half a century, said that when the imports ceased from England and they could not get orders filled for their regular customers they were compelled to get German goods.

Using German Asphalt.

This means that although the embargo has now been lifted this firm will have to carry a stock of German ware to supply odd pieces to their customers who have purchased sets. An Englishman at Amsterdam, who has important contracts from various Dutch city governments for paving roads, &c., has been unable to get the necessary asphalt through from Trinidad via England. Large consignments of asphalt have been offered from Germany at prices far lower than he could get the material from England; but as a patriot he cannot trade with the enemy. The paving has to be done. This means that he will have to cancel his contracts with the municipal authorities and they will be given to Dutch contractors who will use the German asphalt.

German commercial travelers are to be met all over Holland taking orders for machine parts, iron goods, agricultural implements, glassware, boiler piping and even cement, in spite of the recent campaign in England on the cement question. German firms are depriving their own people of goods in order to supply the Dutch with almost anything they ask and skillfully mix their propaganda with trade. It is useless to tell the Dutch that Germany has nothing, when Germany sends something all the time and American and British goods cannot be imported. Recently a large film corporation in Berlin with a capital of 5,000,000 marks and a reserve of a like amount was incorporated to corner the motion picture industry in Holland. Already the country has been flooded with films and blank material parts for lanterns, which are only supplied on agreement to take so much film. All their propaganda films, including war pictures of the present offensive, arrive in Holland quickly. The Dutch moving picture proprietors have been begging for months for films from America and England, but so far they have all been held up. Occasionally a film wanders through from New York accidentally about nine months to a year old when all interest in the picture has evaporated. In addition, the Germans are investing money in all kinds of industrial concerns in Holland which will give them the controlling power after the war. This is the case with many of the shipyards, which have been idle since the beginning of the war through lack of steel and necessary material to carry on ship construction. Germany is now exporting the steel to Holland for this purpose under the agreement that they will have a certain percentage of the new shipping when normal conditions are restored.

In the opinion of American and British Consular officials with whom I conversed on the subject, it will be very difficult, if not impossible, to break Germany's commercial strangle hold on the Dutch trade after the war unless immediate steps are taken to lift the embargo to a certain extent on imports by sea into Holland.

Strict Rationing in Force.

With regard to the food problem: every article of diet is now strictly rationed except sugar, which is manufactured from beets in Holland and of which there is a plentiful supply. The bread ration consists of 200 grams daily, which means four small slices. No bread is allowed to be served in restaurants with a hot meal. The Dutch working classes formerly ate quantities of bread and potatoes, butter, and cheese, and the reduction of these staples is a great hardship. The climate of Holland is very depressing, because of the quantity of water and the lowness of the land. This means, according to medical authorities, that the people must eat larger quantities of fat than any other European nation. Thus the absolute lack of fatty foodstuffs, especially for the working classes, is a national calamity. The women have become so weak and anemic that they cannot nurse their children, and the infant mortality is increasing by leaps and bounds. The terrifying increase in tuberculosis all over the country is also directly due to the lack of nourishing food.

Motormen, who are underpaid in Holland, have fainted on their cars in Utrecht, The Hague, Amsterdam, and other cities during the last month from lack of food. Lightermen poling their heavy barges have been dragged overboard into the canals by the weight of their sweeps and poles and have been drowned, their weakness the direct result of lack of food.

Horses fall exhausted from hunger in the streets, while dogs, reduced to skin and bone, beg piteously for scraps from the restaurant tables. It is said that horses, cats, and dogs are being used for food.

Food riots have occurred in The Hague, Rotterdam, and other cities. Numbers of men and women were killed and wounded by the soldiers when they hemmed the crowds in, fired on them, and rode them down with their horses.

When Queen Wilhelmina appeared on the balcony of the Royal Palace at Amsterdam less than a month ago and addressed the crowd which packed the great dam or square in front of the royal residence, calling them "My good people," they hooted and would not listen to her. The men and women shouted madly, "Hunger! hunger! hunger! Give us bread!" and she retired precipitously. Soon afterward she packed up and returned to the country.

Queues are formed in the streets for the purchase of the Government-manufactured cheese, which is hard and tasteless. There are also queues for coffee, half an ounce a week; margarine, and other commodities. There are no fresh eggs and very few of the preserved variety, which have been imported in small quantities from Austria. There is no meat to be had, and the butcher shops have been closed for more than a month. A year ago the cattle had to be killed because there was no fodder, and therefore there is no existing beef supply. During the early part of April the Government ordered all the bull calves to be killed two days after birth, and the butchers' shops were supplied for two or three days with veal, which was tasteless and contained no nutriment. That was the last meat of any kind that the Dutch have had. There is no tea in the country and the cocoa supply is rapidly coming to an end.

Fish Also Scarce.

Fish in Holland is scarce and dear because of the number of fishing vessels which have been either sunk by the floating mines in the North Sea or seized by the Germans and taken into their ports. Thousands of people stand in line all day about the markets in Rotterdam and other cities, waiting for the Government supply of fish, which is sold at cheap prices, but is not sufficient to go around. A Dutch liner arrived two weeks ago in Rotterdam from New York with 7,500 tons of rice. This is about two and a quarter pounds for every inhabitant. It is to be held in reserve by the Government, because the most serious food shortage is expected about the end of May, when the crop of old potatoes will have been exhausted. The new crop will not be edible for weeks at best.

Posthuma, the Minister of Agriculture, is universally believed to favor Germany and to be doing everything in his power to play her game. While he canceled the order for the daily supply of food for the British ships, whose crews are all on Dutch rations when in port, he permitted 200 big salmon to be exported to Germany. When there has been an absolute shortage of fish in Holland, a fine big salmon has been sent each moring to Berlin for the imperial table.

Trueb, the Minister of Finance, is reported in diplomatic circles at The Hague to be the only friend the Allies have in the present Government. It was through his exertions that several British steamships were able to leave Rotterdam a few days ago after being delayed over a week, through Posthuma's machinations.

German agents in Holland, aided by newspapers from all over Germany, which are sold at all news kiosks in the various cities, have taken every possible advantage of the food situation to impress upon the Dutch that their hunger is absolutely due to the allied seizure of their ships and the embargo on imports from their colonies in the East Indies.

President Wilson is far more unpopular than the Kaiser, the Dutch holding that in his speeches he professed lofty ideals of liberty and freedom for all nations alike while at the same time he was conferring with England over the seizure of the Dutch ships and the food embargo which means starvation to them.

TYLER'S SURVIVORS HERE.

U-Boat Torpedo Killed 11 of Her Crew When She Was Sunk May 2.

Forty-six survivors of the crew of the American steamship Tyler, which was torpedoed on May 2 off the Balearic Islands, in the Mediterranean, arrived here yesterday and went to the United States Shipping Commissioner's office at the Battery to be paid off.

The Tyler had left an Italian port and was bound for the United States in a convoy of twenty-three vessels when she was attacked by a U-boat.

Louis Le Planche, a Quartermaster, said:

"We were struck twice by torpedoes. The first one came just before midnight on May 1 and glanced off the port bow without exploding. I suppose it was fired at close range by the submarine, and the explosion distance had not been reached. We kept a sharp lookout after that, believe me, but nothing occurred until 2:15 A. M., when the lookout man in the upper crowsnest shouted out that a torpedo had passed the bow and struck the British steamship Franklin of 8,000 tons, sinking her in ten minutes.

"At 2:25 another torpedo struck the Tyler on the starboard quarter and tore the stern off the ship, killing five of the gun crew who were standing by the stern gun and six other sailors. Not content with this, the U-boat slammed another torpedo which struck us amidships, and the Tyler filled with water and sank so rapidly that only No. 1 lifeboat got clear of the side. Those who could not get into her jumped over the side with lifebelts on and were picked up by the other ships in the convoy.

"The attack by the submarines—we think there were at least three of them—caused great excitement, and in their efforts to escape one steamship rammed another and sank her. Fifteen minutes later another torpedo struck a steamship about a quarter of a mile away, and down she went to join the other three.

"Several shots were fired and depth charges dropped by the patrol boats escorting the convoy, but there were no signs that a submarine had been hit."

CITY BREVITIES.

Colonel William H. Chapin, the Chief Supervising Officer for the Military Training Commission, last night reviewed the Thirty-first Regiment of New York Cadets in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. The unit is composed of boys between 16 and 19, who are required to take military drill under the Slater law.

Bishop William R. Stearly, Coadjutor of Newark, delivered the baccalaureate sermon last night to the graduating class of the General Theological Seminary at Chelsea Square, Twenty-first Street and Ninth Avenue.

It was announced at The Players last night that, while members will participate in the garden party for the benefit of the 307th Regiment Family Unit in Gramercy Park this afternoon and evening, the clubhouse will not be open for visitors.

ACTORS APPEAL TO WILSON FOR EQUITY

CALL THEM "UNPATRIOTIC"

Cite Government's Adoption of Contract and Stage's Services in War—President to Consult Creel.

Charges that a majority of theatrical managers are not living up to the agreement entered into with the Actors Equity Association last October regarding the use of a standard contract were made yesterday afternoon at the annual meeting of the association at the Hotel Astor. The adoption of the standard contract by the Government's Commitee on Training Camp Activities, in its dealings with performers on the cantonment circuit, had encouraged the association, it was announced, to lay its grievance before President Wilson.

In the appeal to the President, which was made last week by Francis Wilson, head of the Actors Equity, the managers were characterized as "sordid and unpatriotic employers." The response made by the acting profession to patriotic appeals of all sorts was cited, and the President was asked for a public expression of opinion on the situation as a means of keeping up the morale of the actor.

"In its engagement of actors for cantonment theatres," ran the letter to the President, "the Government has employed actors by what is called the standard contract, an agreement arrived at between the Actors Equity Association and the United Managers Protective Association, and duly ratified by both parties Oct. 2, 1917, after which date no other form of contract was to be issued.

"Before this contract came into existence, Mr. President, the emotional, non-businesslike actor had been at the mercy of the financial and very businesslike manager, who exploited the actor on terms that for a quarter of a century had been disgracefully inequitable, the actor having no heart and less money to pursue the manager into court, where stays and delays worked all in favor of the non-traveling manager.

"The agreement, therefore, between the manager and the actor, after five years of hard and humiliating struggle on the part of the Actors Equity Association, was hailed by everybody concerned, especially by the press, as being a great victory by which the actor's bill of rights, his Magna Charta, his Declaration of Independence, had been achieved.

"But, Mr. President, a majority of the managerial interest is refusing to use the standard contract as agreed, and thereby relapsing into the former buccaneer methods of exploitation, and so our profession comes to you with an appeal.

"Just as our profession is doing its generous utmost to sustain the morale of our soldiers, so we ask you to sustain the morale of our profession by word or intimation that all managers cannot do less than use the exceedingly just and liberal contract by which today the great Government of the United States engages its players, who thus come into the Government's employ as soldiers of the Republic.

"We believe, Sir, that in this trying hour of the nation, this trying hour of the world, the actor is playing a patriotic part, and that he should not be discriminated against by sordid and unpatriotic employers. Such an intimation or expression of opinion from you, Sir, would instantly right a wrong of very long standing."

A reply from the President, received yesterday, stated that the matter would be taken up with George Creel.

The managers, the actors claim, have in most cases insisted upon the striking out of certain clauses from the contract, clauses whose deletion practically nullified the contract. Another practice, it is charged, is to delay giving the performer a contract until rehearsals have been under way several weeks. As the maximum period of rehearsal dates from the signing of the contract, it has been possible in that way to compel a player to rehearse for a longer time than was agreed upon.

Anna Held Restless.

Dr. Donald McCaskey, who is attending Miss Anna Held, said last night that the actress's condition remained unchanged, but that because she was restless it had been necessary to give her an opiate. Miss Held rested comfortably on Sunday night, said the physician, and ate a substantial breakfast yesterday seated by her window in the Hotel Savoy. Throughout the day Miss Held was apparently happy and cheerful, despite the prognosis in her case, Dr. McCaskey asserted.

Gerald Du Maurier an Officer.

Word was received yesterday from London that Gerald Du Maurier, the English actor-manager, has received a commission in the Irish Guards and will join his regiment on July 1. Du Maurier is a son of George Du Maurier, author of "Trilby" and "Peter Ibbetson." He is at present acting in London at Wyndham's Theatre in the new Barrie play, "Dear Brutus."

Playlets in Aid of Welfare Work.

A program of one-act plays will be given this evening at the Waldorf-Astoria by a group of young women for the benefit of the Y. W. C. A. welfare work among French girls working in munition factories. The playlets have been presented at the various camps for the Y. W. C. A. Christie MacDonald is to sing "The Marseillaise." Mrs. Lee Keedick will be the hostess for the evening.

BROWN CHARGES PREPARED.

Health Commissioner Says Suspended Official Can Set Date for Trial.

Specific charges of alleged negligence and inefficiency will be served today on Lucius P. Brown, Director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs of the Health Department. The charges were in the hands of Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland late yesterday afternoon, and they will be made public today. The charges, Dr. Copeland said, contain no accusation of graft.

Commissioner Copeland said he would permit Mr. Brown to set the date for the trial. Mr. Brown will probably ask ten days or two weeks in which to prepare his case. He was suspended three weeks ago on accusations made by James E. MacBride, Chairman of the Civil Service Commission, who obtained the alleged testimony at secret hearings.

The "Health Drive Week" made good progress yesterday when every available inspector of the Department of Health visited the public schools to inspect the condition of the buildings in order to study the general conditions under which the pupils study, and to give short addresses to the classes. The teachers and the inspectors impressed the children with the importance of cleanliness, not only in school but also in their homes.

Today is "Transportation Day," and the department will campaign against all forms of uncleanliness in the subways, elevated lines, surface cars, buses, ferries, and other public conveyances. Superintendents have been urged to give special instructions to their employes on personal cleanliness and methodical cleaning of cars and stations.

Commissioner Copeland said he especially condemns disregard of sanitary conditions in public comfort stations on the subway and elevated lines, as well as accumulations of dirt on the subway tracks and on platforms and stairways. He urged that department heads insist on increased vigilance in dealing with existing conditions.

A committee consisting of Dr. Samuel Brown of the Academy of Medicine, Dr. E. E. Smith, President of the Academy of Sciences, and Dr. C. H. Herty, Chairman of the local section of the American Chemical Society, called on Commissioner Copeland yesterday and asked that he grant Mr. Brown an open trial. They called to his attention the high regard of the scientific world for Mr. Brown and his work.

FASHIONS AT THE PALACE.

The changing season, with its accompanying change in feminine fashions, brought Lady Duff-Gordon and her gorgeously clad models back to the Palace Theatre yesterday afternoon. A generally good program also includes a melodramatic war bit by Richard Madden, called "Where Things Happen." Its effectiveness arises less from its story, which is simple, than from the method of presentation. A black curtain, a shaft of light, and a single piece of furniture—these suggest the stage setting. The method is not new to vaudeville, and is immeasurably superior to the average "realistic" scenic effects.

Johnny Dooley is also present, but taking care to be not quite as funny as he can—the fault of the weather, presumably. There are also Sophie Tucker and her ragtime; the two Arnauts, adding one or two new stunts to their familiar répertoire, and Charles De Haven and Fred Nice, dancers.

RAGTIME AND "SPIRITUALS."

Music School Settlement for Colored People Gives Enjoyable Concert.

The Music School Settlement for Colored People gave a benefit concert in Aeolian Hall last evening for its work during wartime.

"We like to think the negro is doing his bit for American music," said J. Rosamon Johnson, the leader, who played and sang his own ragtime songs, in addition to the old folk-tunes and camp-meeting "spirituals."

Several dozen singers in chorus and groups of banjo players, some gray-haired men and women, assisted in the program, which paid all expenses of the concert and about $600 over for the work up in Harlem. In the audience were distinguished artists who have used the old Southern airs, among them Kitty Cheatham and the American violinist, Maud Powell.

Woman's Forum Entertainment.

A number of war charities will be financially benefited by the annual Woman's Forum entertainment which takes place at the Rivoli this morning, beginning at 10 o'clock. The feature of the bill will be a sketch called "The Wives and Near Wives of Henry," written by Miss Helen Varick Boswell, President of the forum. The part of Henry VIII. will be played by Miss Florence Guernsey, and the cast will be made up entirely of club women. S. L. Rothapfel, director of the theatre, acted as stage manager for the piece. Other numbers on the program will be several selections by the Rivoli orchestra, "Three for Jack," sung by Greek Evans, and the Rivoli Animated Pictorial.

Vassar Unit to Sail in July.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 27.—The Vassar unit for service abroad, under the American Red Cross, will sail for France in July, according to plans announced tonight. It will consist of ten or twelve members, and the organization will include a business head, one or two trained nurses, a dietitian, a doctor, a Secretary, and several social workers.

NOVEL TEAM MATCH WON BY LOCAL CLUB

New York Tennis Players Display Prowess in Varied Program of Events.

FAMILY LINES ARE DRAWN

Father and Son and Husband and Wife Doubles Enliven Tourney at N. Y. L. T. C. Courts.

Probably the most unusual tennis team match that has been played hereabouts in many a day was that contested between the representatives of the New York Lawn Tennis Club and the Mount Pleasant Tennis Club of Pleasantville on the courts of the former yesterday. Every style of tennis play was on the program. The event started with a long series of men's singles, and then followed women's singles, men's doubles, father and son doubles, husband and wife doubles, mixed doubles and women's doubles. A more varied program would be hard to find unless it included mother and daughter doubles, and just why such an event was not added to the list of competitions has yet to be explained. When the frays were over the New York team was the victor by a score of 14 to 3.

The visiting tennis players had to be content with the laurels in two singles matches and in one of the doubles. Henry Bassford of Mount Pleasant defeated Ingo Hartman at 6—4, 6—4, J. May defeated Benjamin Letson at 7—5, 6—2, and in the men's doubles Henry Bassford and J. May triumphed over Ingo Hartman and W. Toulssaint at 6—4, 6—3. Aside from these matches the New York Club players stood to the forefront, although in several instances there was a keen struggle that carried some of the matches to three sets.

The father and son event was won by Fred and Ben Letson from F. Osgood and W. Osgood of Mount Pleasant, at 8—6, 6—2, 6—3. In the husband and wife tournament Mr. and Mrs. Ingo Hartman triumphed over Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bassford with the score 6—2, 7—5. Mrs. Hartman achieved several victories during the course of the day. She won in the women's singles by defeating Miss L. Hobbs at 6—2, 7—5, and with Miss Margaret Grove in the women's doubles defeated Mrs. Henry Bassford and Miss L. Hobbs at 6—2, 6—4.

The summaries:

Men's Singles.—J. H. Steinkampf, New York, defeated W. Osgood, Mount Pleasant, 1—6, 6—2, 6—2; E. B. Stair, New York, defeated H. Young, Mount Pleasant, 6—1, 7—5; J. May, Mount Pleasant, defeated Benjamin Letson, New York, 7—5, 6—2; G. Hastings, New York, defeated F. Osgood, Mount Pleasant, 6—1, 6—3; E. Pianisani, New York, defeated L. Hill, Mount Pleasant, 6—2, 8—6; Henry Bassford, Mount Pleasant, defeated Ingo Hartman, New York, 6—4, 6—4; Fred Letson, New York, defeated F. Osgood, Jr., Mount Pleasant, 2—6, 6—2, 10—8; E. Solambier, New York, defeated F. Oberbach, Mount Pleasant, 6—1, 6—0; W. Toulssaint, New York, defeated G. Codeshall, Mount Pleasant, 6—1, 6—2.

Women's Singles.—Mrs. Ingo Hartman, New York, defeated Miss L. Hobbs, Mount Pleasant, 6—2, 7—5; Miss Margaret Grove, New York, defeated Mrs. Henry Bassford, Mount Pleasant, 6—2, 6—3.

Men's Doubles.—J. H. Steinkampf and E. B. Stair, New York, defeated Henry Bassford and J. May, Mount Pleasant, 6—3, 7—5; W. Osgood and H. Young, Mount Pleasant, defeated Ingo Hartman and W. Toulssaint, New York, 6—4, 6—3.

Father and Son Doubles.—Fred Letson and Benjamin Letson, New York, defeated F. Osgood and W. Osgood, Mount Pleasant, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3.

Husband and Wife Doubles.—Mr. and Mrs. Ingo Hartman, New York, defeated Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bassford, Mount Pleasant, 6—2, 7—5.

Mixed Doubles.—Miss Margaret Grove and E. Salambier, New York, defeated Miss M. Hill and J. May, Mount Pleasant, 6—3, 6—4.

Women's Doubles.—Mrs. Ingo Hartman and Miss Margaret Grove, New York, defeated Mrs. Henry Bassford and Miss L. Hobbs, Mount Pleasant, 6—2, 6—4.

HANDICAP TENNIS HALTED.

Rain Prevents Full Play After Alexander is Beaten.

A heavy thunder shower which came out of the West about 5 o'clock last night put to rout the majority of the players who were to compete in the Metropolitan Handicap singles tennis tournament at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. This is the first of the handicap events to be scheduled in this section, following out the recommendation for such tournaments from the U. S. N. L. T. A. More than thirty players are entered, but yesterday's play brought only four results, and one of those was an advance by a default.

Frederick B. Alexander, the star player of the tournament, handicapped at minus 50, dropped out of the tournament in the second round after an extended match with N. Johnson, who was playing from scratch. The former internationalist won the first set at 6—3 and defaulted before the second set was played to a conclusion. Johnson was leading at 5—4 when Alexander retired. Winning five points before he could actually count one to his credit proved to be a heartbreaking task.

The summaries:

Second Round—R. G. Cook won from G. A. L. Dionne by default; G. Emerson, minus 15, defeated L. H. Rogers, scratch, 6—0, 6—4; N. Johnson, scratch, defeated F. B. Alexander, minus 50, 3—6, 5—4, default.

PILOTS TEST THEIR AUTOS.

Sheepshead Bay Speedway presented a lively spectacle yesterday when about twenty of the drivers who will compete in the $30,000 Harkness Handicap on Thursday afternoon were out on the track at the same time, putting on the finishing touches for the race. The fastest lap, at the rate of 115 miles an hour, was made by Louis Chevrolet, speedway champion of 1917, who will be the only scratch man in the 100-mile classic.

AVIATORS TO BE IN MEET.

N. Y. A. C. Arranges Triangular Event at Mineola Thursday.

Matt Halpin, Chairman of the Committee on Athletics of the New York A. C., last night announced that the Winged Foot organization had arranged a triangular track and field meet between members of the army's Aviation Section, Fields 1 and 2, and the soldiers of Camp Mills, to be held at Mineola, L. I., on the morning of Decoration Day.

WANT LINKS IMPROVED.

Golfers Wait on Park Commissioner Hennessy of the Bronx.

A delegation representing various golf clubs and associations waited on Park Commissioner Joseph P. Hennessy of the Bronx yesterday to urge added improvements to the golf courses in Van Cortlandt, Mosholu, and Pelham Bay Parks. The golfers' demands are based on the fact that the golf courses in the Bronx, comprising 250 acres, are now self-supporting, since Commissioner Hennessy raised the season golf permits from $1 to $5.

The revenue for this season thus far is $15,910, as against $5,146 for the year 1917. Commissioner Hennessy pointed out to the golfers that he was compelled to increase the rates for golf permits because the golf courses in the Bronx, he said, showed a deficit last year of $17,000, due to maintenance, labor, and materials in the upkeep of the grounds. The Commissioner told his audience that the matter of improvements would receive due and timely consideration by the proper city authorities.

Cohen Pitches Morris to Fore.

The sturdy pitching of Phil Cohen brought Morris High School victory at baseball over the High School of Commerce yesterday, 5 to 2. Cohen allowed only three hits. Thompson of the winners had a single and double in two trips to the plate.

Car Rowdies Sent to Workhouse.

Magistrate Corrigan in the Morrisania Police Court yesterday sentenced four men to the workhouse for ten days after he had found them guilty of charges of disorderly conduct for annoying passengers in trolley cars on the Clason Point line and making indecent remarks to women who passed in the streets. Policemen said that the men had climbed over the seats, jostled the passengers, and that one man had climbed to the roof of the car. The men were brought into the court a few minutes after the Magistrate had sentenced eight men to serve five days in the workhouse or pay fines of $5 for the same offense on the same line.

Sues Her Husband for $12,000.

The fact that William Gentry Shelton of the Shelton Electric Company of 30 East Forty-second Street and Mrs. Lillian Cobb Shelton have been living apart under a separation agreement since 1913 was made known in the Supreme Court yesterday when Mrs. Shelton filed suit to compel her husband to repay $12,000 she has spent for her own support since March, 1916, because of his failure to provide for her as agreed. Mr. and Mrs. Shelton were living in Garden City, L. I., when they separated.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Ethel Barrymore's season at the Empire Theatre will be brought to a close on Saturday night. Her present vehicle, "Belinda," is the third of the series of plays in which she has been seen at the Empire this season.

Hubert Osborne's one-act play, "The Good Men Do," has been dropped from the program of the Actors' and Authors' Theatre, at the Fulton. The long play, "Her Honor, the Mayor," continues.

Katherine Palmer has been added to the cast of the "Follies," which will open in Atlantic City next Monday night.

An autographed photograph of President Wilson will be auctioned off by Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey at the professional matinee of the Pelham naval show, "Biff! Bang!" at the Century next Monday. At this performance, also, the anthems of the Allies will be sung by Mme. Alda, Mme. Marcia Van Dresser, Mme. Matzenauer, and Maggie Teyte.

Ada Meade will be in the cast of "Madame and Her Godson," the musical comedy which Klaw & Erlanger are now preparing for the use of Donald Brian next season.

British and Canadian officers' night will be celebrated tonight at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre, where "The Man Who Stayed at Home" is playing.

A son was born in Mabel Taliaferro, the actress, at Flower Hospital on Sunday night. Miss Taliaferro's husband, Thomas J. Corrigan, who recently played in "The Copperhead," is now in the United States Navy. In 1912 Miss Taliaferro was divorced from Frederic Thompson, the producer.

SOUSA TO DRILL CHORUS.

Bandmaster Begins Rehearsals Today for Thrift Festival.

Under the direction of John Philip Sousa 14,000 singers will begin rehearsals today for the Thrift Festival to be given at the Polo Grounds on Sunday by the New York War Savings Committee. The chorus is to sing "Elijah." Lieutenant Sousa will eliminate 4,000 of the singers, selecting finally a chorus of 10,000 voices.

Workmen began yesterday to build the stands to hold the chorus and the band. They are working under difficulty because the Polo Grounds will be used for a baseball game on Saturday afternoon, and the stands must be built in sections small enough to be put together quickly. The chorus is to be on the level field. Lieutenant Sousa, with the band and the chief singers, will sit on a huge conical stand near second base. The score of "Elijah" is being revised for the band of 200 pieces. Lieutenant Sousa will drill half of the chorus finally selected tomorrow night and half on Thursday night, and on Friday night he will go over the score with Mme. Schumann-Heink, Marie Sundelius, Oscar Seagle, Charles Harrison, and the other principals.

Tickets for the festival are to be $1.25 and 50 cents. They will be on sale at the Metropolitan Opera House, the Hippodrome, and all other theatres and ticket agencies. A thrift stamp is given with every ticket.

Germans Sing "The Gypsy Baron."

A performance of Johann Strauss's operetta, "Der Zigeunerbaron," ("The Gypsy Baron,") was given at the German Irving Place Theatre last night with Otto Goritz in the comedy rôle of Zsupan. Ludwig Eybisch sang the title rôle, and the other principal parts were taken by Kathryn Lynbrook, Hariet Behnee, and Richard Feist. Many erstwhile members of the Metropolitan chorus were also in the company. "Der Zigeunerbaron" will be played at the Irving Place all week.

Why Kangaroo For A Gentleman's Shoe?
GENUINE Australian Kangaroo is the lightest, firmest and most flexible skin that grows on an animal's back. It is as soft as Kid—wears like Calfskin—takes a polish like Patent Leather.
In buying Edwin Clapp Shoes a certain amount of confidence is aroused by the fact that the makers of this shoe have been building fine shoes exclusively since 1853.
We have a complete variety of styles in other leathers for every purpose, from Boardwalk to Battlefield, but we specialize in the Finest Quality Australian Kangaroo for City Wear.

FUNDS FOR THE WAR, AND HOPE FOR BUSINESS.

At the "very peak and crisis" of the war our country has found a man equal to the occasion. The war is being waged over here as well as over there. American finance is carrying the world's hope even more truly than American troops are useful along with the others. It would be difficult to find a substitute for our man power, but it would be impossible to find a substitute for American money power. Whatever the military result, and more truly in proportion that the military result is unsatisfactory, the solvency of the world depends upon American resources. If and when American tax and credit capacity is insufficient to the burdens upon it, a bottomless abyss of finance threatens the impoverished world. At this peak and crisis of affairs there were men capable of urging their personal and political convenience as reasons for not giving our Administration all the money it needs, and for compelling men of business to conduct their affairs in blindness regarding the laws affecting their income and profits. They might have remained solvent, but they would not be assisted in their great task of increasing production of consumable goods beyond any dream of any captain of industry.

The President comes to their relief with eloquent and unanswerable advice. It is hardly too much to say that, if any man is in doubt about what the occasion calls for after reading the President's words to Congress, he will keep his doubts to himself. No man after yesterday will publicly use the arguments, which had threatened to prevail, against levying war taxes before the beginning of the year in which the taxes will be spent. To pass such a law after the close of the year in which the business subject to tax is done is a proposal so monstrous as to seem malicious. No argument in its favor has been advanced which it is not a reproach to repeat. The idea is dead.

The President puts the proposal for immediate tax legislation upon a plane as elevated as the other proposal was abased. He summons our Congress to a universal duty in language never before used in a tax speech. It is invidious to quote detached sentences from an utterance so momentous, but perhaps the last and extemporaneous words are the most appealing, at least to those whose thoughts are not absorbed in figures:

> The great days have come * * * when a great, compelling sympathy wells up in their hearts for men everywhere who suffer and are oppressed, and when they see at last the high uses for which their wealth has been piled up and their mighty power accumulated, and, counting neither blood nor treasure, now that their final day of opportunity has come, rejoice to spend and to be spent through a long night of suffering and terror, in order that they and men everywhere may see the dawn of a day of righteousness and justice and peace. Shall we grow weary when they bid us act?

We mistake the sentiment of Americans if that is not the spirit in which they wish their taxes to be levied, and in which they will be paid eagerly, almost regardless of billions. The President truly says: "We need not be "afraid to tax them if we levy taxes "justly." That is all there is to it. Who has heard complaints of the amount of taxes either levied or expected to be levied? Who has not heard bitter complaints of what the President calls the "inequities" of taxes levied and threatened? It was beneath the President to mention also the crudities and follies perpetrated and in danger of repetition, but there can be little doubt that the President was as much afraid of another tax bill like the last as he was of not having the resources he needs.

That danger is past. The President cannot have spoken as he did without knowing the sort of bill he wants, and which he will get. If the Ways and Means Committee does not see its way to provide it, the Treasury can make a suggestion which Congress can adopt—and then find fault with the encroachment of the Executive. It does indeed take a long time to produce a bill like the last, or like some tariffs. When the proposal is to enact social reforms, to punish and redistribute wealth, to find a way to tax some and exempt others, or to make customs schedules which enrich capitalists and delude labor with a promise of standards of living, then it is a matter of months and endless hearings. But when it is only a question of laying just taxes upon those eager to pay them weeks will suffice instead of months, and there is no need of many hearings, perhaps not of any. The President touches this point deftly in his warning to lobbyists. There is no need of them where there is neither partisan nor financial politics, and both sorts are "adjourned," as the President says. It is comparatively easy and simple to pass taxes of the President's sort. Congressmen can, if they wish, have ample time to fix their fences after they have done the duty to which the President summons them.

Already there are signs of misunderstanding or misinterpreting the President. Congressmen spoke of his recommendation of "excess profit" taxes. His words suggesting the form the new taxes should take were "war profits, and incomes, and luxuries." There is a distinction with a difference between war profits and excess profits. One of the fundamental faults of the old tax bill was that it undertook to fix a rate of profit beyond which there should be punishment, regardless of whether the profits were war profits or peace profits. That appears from the fact that there was a special tax on all who earned above $6,000, with no regard to whether they earned that before the war or on account of the war. There is no objection to a substantial income tax, but there is no excuse for discrimination upon incomes from work rather than from capital. There are two normal taxes, and surtaxes without number and of unbelievable and unnecessary complexity. The President will not take another bill like that. Mr. KITCHIN must feel the heat beneath his feet. He will do better this time, or he will be confronted with other proposals which the country will welcome.

REVIVAL OF THE DUAL ALLIANCE.

It is futile to look at the old, unhappy, far-off things, the seeds and sources of the estrangement of those good friends and good fellows, THEODORE ROOSEVELT and WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT. It may be said incidentally, however, that the fetching and the carrying of gossip not always of a malicious kind by particular friends and henchmen of each statesman had no small part in fostering the quarrel. People never or seldom repeat anything straight. Then, Mr. TAFT naturally wished to follow his independent course, and Mr. ROOSEVELT was perhaps not always satisfied with the treatment of his special friends by Mr. TAFT.

The latter, generous of spirit and crystalline of intellect, hardly got from his fairy godmother the gift of tact. With a hundred fine impulses and attractive qualities, with a sufficient sense of humor, Mr. ROOSEVELT is sometimes suspicious and quick to strike; and he doesn't always put the brake on his flaming chariot of speech. Impetuous and subtle, multicolored, multinatured, he was admirably accompanied and set off by such a friend as Mr. TAFT, simple and constant and strong, calm externally if with sufficient capabilities of choler, patient, sagacious, sound of judgment, sincere. The men were complementary to one another by their resemblances and their dissimilarities. They admired one another. Until the incorrigible meannesses of politics began to part them they were good comrades.

If Mr. ROOSEVELT ladled out no milky phrases in 1912 and afterward, if Mr. TAFT himself, eirenic and magnanimous as he was, is not a gentleman who cares to turn his cheek to the smiter, let us forget these old troubles and bickerings. With no formal or politic reconciliation, the two have come together. Mr. ROOSEVELT's illness called forth Mr. TAFT's expressions of sympathy, received as heartily as they were meant; and now, at the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago, a house famous in the Republican-Progressive feud, we see the old friends friends once more. What is the use of eating one's heart with grudges? Are old friends so common as we grow older that we can spare them? The Progressives are back in the Republican Party. Mr. ROOSEVELT is back in the Republican Club that once cast him out. Now, and for no political ends, but because both have bowels of compassion, because both, doubtless, have regretted the better days, the Judge and the Colonel have their feet under the same table again.

Mr. TAFT is urbane and placable. Mr. ROOSEVELT, if at times somewhat Indian and careless with the tomahawk, can forgive cheerfully, especially if he has done an injury to the forgiven. What friends they have been, what friends to be proud of they have had and have! Mr. ROOSEVELT is an elemental force, "irregular, but great," an eclectic and a magical collector of friends and foes. Mr. TAFT has that engaging smile, that even, gracious temperament, that depth of character that we all know. Gentle and strong, he has friends multitudinous and scarce an enemy. Mr. ROOSEVELT is the more complex, and sometimes, if we must say it, for all his brilliant, full-orbed composition, he is not a little "pesky."

At this time when the union of all Americans in the sole will and purpose of gaining a democratic peace is indispensable, it is good to see this reunion of Mr. TAFT and Mr. ROOSEVELT, each in his way contributing his best strength to the country. Moreover, as a domestic and private incident, if "staged in a hotel dining room," the reunion pleases. There should be at least comity among our ex-Presidents. This reintegration of friendship pleases a friendly, if you like—it is a high compliment—a "sentimental" people. These two honored chiefs of the State are also two big, hearty "human boys." They have shaken hands and "made up," as we humbler folks do or don't and should do. Somehow one wonders if the Judge and the Colonel didn't quote to each other Dr. HOLMES's "Joe and Bill."

IRELAND IN AMERICA.

Mr. JOHN DILLON, Chairman of the Irish Nationalists, sees and says with truth that "the Sinn Fein is not only "alienating Americans but our own "Irish people in America." Outside of the persons in this country who have been contributing to the Sinn Fein, there are few Americans, of whatever descent, who are not weary of and disgusted with the Sinn Fein folly or madness. At this time, Ireland should understand that Americans have just one thing in mind, to beat Germany. Whoso helps us or our allies is our friend. Whoso opposes us or our allies or any of them is our foe.

The Sinn Feiners seem to stand apart from the world. They are cursing England, while Americans, none more gallantly or in greater proportional numbers than "our own Irish people in America," are fighting, side by side, with Englishmen, with Irishmen of Ireland, Great Britain, and Canada, and Australia. The cause of the Allies is one. Who is not for us is against us.

Mr. JOSEPH DEVLIN, a Nationalist leader, shows that a Nationalist, too, can stand apart from the allied world, be utterly ignorant of the feeling and determination of the Allies. He talks at Belfast of "a peace by understanding," cites that noble pacific letter writer, the Marquess of LANSDOWNE, says that if "the Irish race takes up "the question [of peace] it can help "it forward as no other race can." That is, he wants a genuine German peace, he wants to move for such a peace when the Allies are agreed on a victorious peace.

"The Irish race," here and everywhere, except among the Sinn Feiners, will negotiate peace with guns and airplanes, by vigorous and successful war.

PRINCIPLES IN HUNGARY.

Dr. WEKERLE, once more Premier of Hungary, presented his new Cabinet to Parliament with the observation that agreement must be reached on the question of electoral reform, but without prejudicing the principles of the bill. A study of recent Hungarian press comment and observations by statesmen of all parties conveys the impression that Dr. WEKERLE is right. Whatever internal dissensions there may be among the Magyars, they are all one when it comes to the grand and immutable principle that things must be so arranged that whatever happens a minority of Magyars will continue to rule over a majority of Slavs and Latins.

Count TISZA's followers, for reasons best known to themselves, have now and then protested that the bill does not go far enough. Deputy KOZMA, one of his followers, in a sub-committee lately demanded a severe Magyar administration, a strict Magyar police, and a separate Magyar army, "otherwise," he observed candidly, "the "Magyars will have to retire in disgrace to their actual ethnographical "frontiers in their own country." This would be a sad relapse from the happy conditions of the last fifty years, and no doubt TISZA is trying to make assurance doubly sure.

But those whom his partisans condemn as moderates are sure enough. Count ANDRASSY's paper, in laying the new plans before the public, made the comment: "The new project guar-"antees the natural supremacy of "the Magyars." Deputy ZOLTAN, of KAROLYI's party, says in Parliament: "We wish a democratic and free Hun-"gary, but a Hungary which we will "keep only for Magyars." There is the noble ideal—as democratic and free as you please, so long as we can keep everybody else out of the manger.

Minister VAZSONYI came forward in Parliament in March to reassure those who thought that there might be something really democratic and reformative in this project of democratic reform, and pointed to the denunciations by the leaders of the nationalities and the protests of Austro-German Socialists as the surest sign that the new measures would not really give the subject races any power. "I am an optimist," he observed, "and I believe "that with a Magyar policy we shall "succeed in making Magyars of the "Ukrainians in ten years. With re-"gard to Rumanians the situation is "much more favorable than it was be-"fore the war, for foreign policy will "no longer fetter internal policy."

Magyarization of schools, expropriation of Slovaks and Rumanians, and the colonization of the frontier districts with selected Magyars—this is Magyar policy. But the Minister will not stop here. "We must have the audacity "to reorganize the electoral districts "in such a way as to strengthen the "Magyars."

And, indeed, it appears that unheard-of finesses in gerrymander are being perpetrated in support of the new measure. But this is not the only bulwark of democracy among the Magyars; besides half a dozen lesser safeguards, the electoral bill contains—or did contain at last reports—the provision that the vote shall be withheld from all persons politically unreliable. So long as this principle of restricting the franchise to those whom the clique in power considers reliable remains unprejudiced, Dr. WEKERLE is likely to have little trouble.

FORREST.

No one, not even NAPOLEON, ever put the military art more completely than did General NATHAN BEDFORD FORREST when, in answer to a woman who asked him the secret of his success, he replied, "Ma'am, I got there first with the most men." General MAURICE now quotes this trenchant epigram, on which, though NAPOLEON did not utter it, he always acted. It pains us to find The New York Tribune rebuking General MAURICE for misquotation, and alleging that what General FORREST said was, "I got there firstest with the mostest men."

We are aware that this impossible form is the one in which FORREST's great epigram is generally quoted, the explanation accompanying it being the one The Tribune now gives, that FORREST was an uneducated man. No uneducated man would think of such an intricate and complicated phrase. Nor is it Southern dialect. It is not dialect, but "baby talk." The truth is that somebody who was trying to make FORREST talk what he imagined to be Southern dialect evolved that incredible phraseology, and has been followed slavishly ever since. What FORREST said undoubtedly was, "Ma'am, I got thar fust with the most men."

FORREST was a genius whom the Confederacy discovered too late. After the war JOSEPH E. JOHNSTON pronounced him "the greatest soldier the civil war produced." General BEAUREGARD said that "FORREST's capacity "for war seemed to be limited only by "the opportunities for its display." General SHERMAN called him "the "most remarkable man our civil war "produced on either side." At FORREST's funeral Governor PORTER of Tennessee remarked to JEFFERSON DAVIS that history had "named him as "one of the half dozen greatest sol-"diers of the country," to which Mr. DAVIS replied:

> I agree with you. The trouble was that the Generals commanding in the Southwest never appreciated FORREST until it was too late. Their judgment was that he was a bold and enterprising partisan raider and rider. I was misled by them, and I never knew how to measure him until I read his reports of his campaign across the Tennessee River in 1864. This induced a study of his earlier reports, and after that I was prepared to adopt what you are pleased to name as the judgment of history.

If The Tribune wishes to know how General FORREST really talked, here is a sample quoted by his friend General OATES, in his "War Between the Union and the Confederacy." FORREST is describing a hand-to-hand fight at the battle of Fort Donelson:

> I thought that I could kill a man by strikin' him over the head with my sabre, but I found that while I could knock him off his horse, he would jump up and run away. I then tried the p'int on one, and when he fell he lay thar. I looked up and down the line, and saw that the boys were mixing with them. I tried to think of the command "Right thrust" to give them, but could not, and instead yelled aloud, "Punch them, boys; damn them, punch 'em!" They understood and obeyed that command.

PUNISHMENT BY BOYCOTT.

In Norway's Parliament members have been complaining because German submarines attacked fishing boats along the Norwegian coast a few days ago, sinking five and killing fishermen who were striving to reach the shore in lifeboats. And the Foreign Minister has asked the Berlin Government for an explanation, hoping to get a German promise that the shelling of men in such boats shall not occur again. All this is a waste of time and effort. It is an old story, the sinking of fishing boats in those waters, and the murder of men at work on them. Such boats were torpedoed and shelled there last year. Those whose lives were taken then had been catching fish for Germany. Last week's victims were working to supply the same foreign market. Since the beginning of the war Norway has been selling fish to the Germans, and our new trade agreement permits her to export 48,000 tons a year, with the understanding that Germany will receive nearly all of this quantity. Norway sent complaints and protests to Berlin last year, but they came to nothing. If promises were made, they have been broken.

Nearly 2,000 Norwegian sailors have been killed, a majority of them by submarine gunfire. The Scandinavian Seamen's Union has protested against these murders, but without effect. Norway's fishermen and sailors should consider the expediency of ordering such a boycott as the British union, by means of its Merchant Seamen's League, has determined to enforce against Germany after the war. In this way the submarines might be restrained. Some time ago we spoke of this boycott, which was suggested by the killing of defenceless sailors. Its term, originally two years beyond the coming of peace, has been prolonged to five years and a half by adding one month for each new offense. There are now some additional reports about this project. Members are added to the league every day, and the number now exceeds 10,000. At the next election it will oppose any candidate for Parliament who withholds his approval. During the boycott's term no member will work on ships or for companies that serve German interests in any way. The movement will affect labor at British coaling stations in many parts of the world and at colonial ports. Officers of the league are informed that its plans are already regarded with some anxiety by German commercial interests. Neutral Norway has had more provocation than belligerent Great Britain for such a boycott.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Relation of Economies to Business.

Soundness and wisdom marked every word of the statement as to the real object and effect of wartime saving that has been issued by JULIUS ROSENWALD as member of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense. Unlike a good many, and too many, other business men, Mr. ROSENWALD realizes that money is not, as the old phrase has it, "the sinews of war." That war has uses for money, and in vast amounts, is only too well known to us all, in these days, but it is not with money that war, in the last analysis, is fought, but with materials and labor. Therein lies not only the justification of that reduced expenditure against which the unenlightened business man protests, but the explanation of its absolute necessity if the Allies are to win the present conflict.

The manufacturer or merchant who proclaims that unless he can make his accustomed profits by doing his accustomed business he will not be able to buy bonds or pay big taxes overlooks, as Mr. ROSENWALD pointed out, the possibility of a radical change in his activities, and that a great savings campaign among the individual purchasers of the country might, and indeed would, mean not less business and no profits, but more business, and in the aggregate more profits.

Every purchase of anything not really needed for the war diverts both labor and material from utilization in winning the war, and it is only at such cost that "business as usual" can continue. The wool that goes into a superfluous suit of clothes for a civilian deprives a soldier of a new uniform to replace the tattered one he brings out of the trenches, every too heavily laden table cuts down the soldier's ration. The amount of available labor, as well as the amount of the available material of all kinds, is more strictly limited throughout the world now than ever before. All there is of both, utilized in the most economical way, will not be too much for the successful conduct of the war, and he or she who wastes—who uses unnecessarily, that is—is guilty of a grave offense.

This is true of those with large financial resources, not less than of those in moderate circumstances and of "the poor." An equal obligation to save rests on us all, and no rigor of saving will be injurious either to traders or to workers.

A Dubious Method of Appeal.

Reluctant as everybody is and should be to find even the mildest of fault with any activity that adds to the resources of the Red Cross, there is a widespread feeling that—well, that for no other object would the employment in public places of young girls as collectors be regarded as permissible, and that even for this purpose it is doubtful if the amount thus raised counterbalances the obvious dangers and anxieties incidental to the carrying out of the plan.

In the first place, the possibilities of wrongful diversion of the money given are unpleasantly numerous. In the second place, the young women thus employed are subjected to influences that are good or bad according to the character of those to whom their appeals are addressed, and it would be absurd to deny that even in these times there are men capable of misusing the facilities for approach and conversation which this form of collection creates. Of course, neither of these perils can be counted as very large, but they exist, in spite of all precautions that can be taken.

That these pretty girls have been able to get money that otherwise would not have been secured is probable. It is not unquestionably true, however, and it may be that the same or a larger amount could be obtained in other ways. If so, it should be done.

In fairness let it be stated that only in cases so rare as perhaps to be negligible have the girls reported experiences even slightly unpleasant. The behavior of the general public toward them has been admirable, they all declare—a credit to American men of all stations—and the little complaint the girls make is not of discourtesy. It is of the strange excuses or reasons some people offered for not giving. For instance, one of the young collectors bitterly contrasts two women in automobiles to whom she spoke. The first was in mourning, and said: "Why, yes, my dear, I have just had news that my two sons in France are dead, and I am glad to give!" And she did, generously. The other was in a particularly large and expensive car, but her reply was: "I have nobody in the war. Why should I give anything?" And she impatiently ordered her chauffeur to go on.

To know that there is in the United States even one woman capable of saying that is probably worse for a young girl than would be anything a "masher" would dare to say to one thus employed.

Hardly a Safe Confession.

There is difficulty in understanding just why the best-known representative of Sinn Fein ideas in this country thinks it sufficient to deny that he has had any dealings with the Germans since the United States entered the war. By clear implication, and almost in explicit terms, he admits that he did engage in such transactions in the period between the beginning of the war and our abandonment of neutrality.

Does he really think that thus he saves himself from criticism or even from prosecution? If so, he is sadly mistaken, for it did not require our declaration of belligerency to make it a serious crime for anybody here to plot against a country, like Great Britain, with which we were then as now on terms of amity. That was permitted by our laws neither to our citizens nor to foreigners resident on our territory, and, as it is a fair presumption that our Federal officials in and out of our Department of Justice are wide awake to the obligations of their positions, they may already be preparing trouble for the maker of this surprising confession of guilt.

Confessions, however, are not always true, and before now claims to such guilt as the agitator in question admits have been made by men who would not be trusted by real plotters with knowledge of real plots. That may explain why instant action was not taken in this case.

NO TALCUM POWDER SOLDIER

A Former Chattanoogan Prefers the Fighting Ranks and Tells Why.

From The Chattanooga Times.

The following communication is from a former Chattanoogan, who tells in good round English why he declined a desk job at Washington. He prefers "gunpowder" to "talcum" and is going with the boys in France to aid in "kicking hell out of the Kaiser":

Washington City, May 18, 1918.

To The Chattanooga Times:

I have refused three commissions in the noncombatant branches of the army, and am going to enlist in the army as a private of infantry and work my way up to a commission from the ranks. I came here all prepared to take a commission in a certain staff department, a commission as Major. After seeing the enormous number of incompetent staff officers here in Washington, I decided that a desk job is no place for a real soldier, and my place was in the honest-to-God branch of the army, where the fighting is going on. The doors are closed to civilians seeking appointment, so the only way to get in the line is to enlist and kick your way up. This I have decided to do, and by the time this reaches you I shall be on my way to Camp Meade, where I shall "take on" with the 316th Infantry.

I did not attend the training camps, so missed the opportunity for getting a commission in the line. If I had not come to Washington I might have been content to be a "Bevo officer," but after seeing the crop, I do not care to be a staff officer.

I am a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, served several years as Captain in the Tennessee National Guard, was Major and commandant of cadets at Sewanee, am the author of military publications used extensively in the army, and have had, you might say, twenty years' study and experience in army and military matters.

I don't know whether I shall ever be an officer or not, but I do know that we are going to the other side pretty soon, and, instead of specializing on talcum powder around the fashionable hotels in Washington, I expect to be among those who come into intimate contact with gunpowder. We are going to kick hell out of the Kaiser, and I am going to be there at the kicking.

Sincerely yours, X. Y. Z.

An Early Warning Against Germany

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following extract from a letter written by Hubert Languet to Philip Sidney from Frankfort, Dec. 26, 1577, has more than mere antiquarian or scholarly interest:

> As I have at present no other subject to write upon, I am going to trifle with you as my custom is, and to write freely about the affairs of Germany. Be assured that not only the Spaniards and the French desire the overthrow of the party in Belgium which is in arms for the maintenance of their liberty, but some, too, of the leading Princes of Germany are of the same mind, and are ready to profit by any opportunity that may occur. I can easily believe that you English are attentive enough to the plans of the French and Spaniards, and will take very good care that they shall do you no great harm. If, besides this, you bestowed some thought on the Germans, you would be doing a thing not unworthy of your greatness as a nation, and would obtain thereby no little addition to your influence.

Some of the conditions here presented have changed with time, but English indifference to German policy seems to have remained a national trait. DAVID KLEIN.

To Save Russia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just been reading the editorial article in this morning's TIMES headed "Too Late!" Lloyd George's statement of two and a half years ago about the movements of the Allies did not include the United States, but how perilously near we came to being "too late" in entering the war and in getting our armies into the field the recent events of battle have shown. Just how far the United States is responsible for the failure of the Allies to take effective steps to help Russia and to prevent the complete absorption of the immense Russian resources by imperial Germany I don't know, nor do I claim to know just what ought to be done, whether we should do it, or Japan, or both, but it is evident that somebody ought to decide to do something and go at it. Nothing that anybody could do would escape misinterpretation by the Bolshevist leaders, who exist only for purposes of exploitation by Germans. EDMUND PLATT, Congressman Twenty-sixth New York District.

Washington, May 26, 1918.

From J. G. Phelps Stokes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I shall be glad if you will permit me to state that I stand and always have stood absolutely and unqualifiedly back of President Wilson and this Government in the prosecution of this war. Mrs. Stokes also stands absolutely back of President Wilson in this war, notwithstanding widely published misrepresentations to the contrary, and she desires, as I do, that the war be pushed with all possible vigor until the foundations of democracy are effectually secured. J. G. PHELPS STOKES.

CRITICS OF THE ADMINISTRATION.

They stand one side and pick unnumbered flaws
In that great labor that is being done—
The greatest work that ever a day's sun
Beheld on earth—and with their wagging jaws
Demand a reason, explanation, cause
For this or that, which seems to them to be
A bit remiss. One day a laggard ship,
A plan gone wrong, an error or a slip,
An accident which no one could foresee
That has produced a temporary pause
In some direction. Never once their brains
Thrill with the wonder of the enterprise.
They do not count achievement, progress, gains,
Nor can they see them with their jaundiced eyes!

They stand one side and say, "He should do that!
He should do this! Why doesn't he do so?"
And never think that what they do not know
May be the reason why some plans fall flat
Or are revised by sages who have sat
Within war's shadow, seeing day by day
The thousand changes of our enemy.
Nor do the critics ever think to say
That faults, of which they talk so volubly,
May have been things none living could combat
In war's first stages. No, they stand one side,
Scorn-filled and voicing only discontent!
Give all the carper in their natures vent!

BLOW TO AMERICANS' MINES.

Mexico Doubles Amount of Bullion to be Reimported.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The Mexican Government has notified American mining companies operating in Mexico of its intention to double the amount of bullion they are required to reimport against the ore exported. Under the present arrangement, which was approved by the United States, the companies sent back to Mexico in bullion 25 per cent. of the value of gold and silver contained in the ores they ship.

The corporations upon whom the notice was served notified the Treasury Department, through which export licenses for shipment of bullion must be obtained. They were informed that no increase would be permitted in the amounts now being shipped.

At the State Department it was said that the matter had been brought to the notice of the department. This Government has not yet assented to the increase, according to official information, and it was believed that President Carranza would postpone the operation of his new order until opportunity has been given for further consideration.

While there is no belief here that the new development will have such effect, representatives of the American companies have pointed out that, in case Mexico insists on the new arrangement, they will be obliged to shut down properties now producing an important proportion of raw metals used in the war activities of this country.

ROBINSON LEWIS'S MANAGER

ALBANY, May 27.—State Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson of Herkimer, nephew of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, and former Chairman of the State Committee of the Progressive Party, will manage the campaign of Attorney General Merton E. Lewis for the Republican nomination for Governor as an opponent of Governor Whitman. Senator Robinson announced his acceptance of the post today, after a conference with Mr. Lewis.

Senator Robinson said that Colonel Roosevelt knew he was to manage the Attorney General's primary campaign.

"Does the Colonel approve of the candidacy of Mr. Lewis?" he was asked.

"You'll have to ask the Colonel how he feels," was the reply.

In a formal statement announcing his acceptance of the managership, Senator Robinson said:

"In accepting this position I in no war represent any one but myself, and no other construction should be placed upon my acceptance."

The Senator will not be able to assume active charge of the campaign until about June 15, as he expects to go to a New York hospital on Sunday for treatment for water on the knee. Lewis headquarters will be opened in New York tomorrow or Wednesday, however. Until Mr. Robinson's assumption of activities they well be in charge of Clarence P. Shuster of Rochester. The headquarters will be at the Murray Hill Hotel.

ATTACKS FRENCH CENSOR.

Socialist Leader Protests Against Excision of L'Humanite Articles.

PARIS, May 27.—Pierre Renaudel, leader of the Socialist Party and director of its official organ L'Humanité, protests strongly in L'Humanité this morning against the censorship which deleted several paragraphs from articles dealing with army cantonments and Italian celebrations on the anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war, published in yesterday's issue of the newspaper. M. Renaudel writes:

"We do not and shall not accept—from M. Clemenceau less than from any other—orders which abolish all right to think * * * which would place us in a state of political servitude, of which we feel there is greater danger today than there was yesterday, and of which the risks will be greater tomorrow than they are today."

PRINCETON NAVAL COURSE.

Plans Completed for Training Similar to That at Annapolis.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 27.—Plans have been completed for the establishment at Princeton University of an extensive course in naval training. This course will include seamanship, ordnance, gunnery, and navigation, and will be similar to that in operation at Annapolis.

Arrangements have been made with the Fourth Naval District at Philadelphia which will permit students of the university to enlist in the Naval Reserve, and after a practical course at sea during the Summer return to their studies in the Fall. The theoretical training, which will start at the opening of the next collegiate season, will be under the direction of Lieutenant Commander Starr of the Fourth District.

DECORATES MISS HOLT.

French Government Recognizes Her Services for the Blind.

The Committee for Men Blinded in Battle, 111 East Fifty-ninth Street, of which Bishop Greer is the Chairman and President Wilson a patron, announced yesterday that the French Government had decorated Miss Winifred Holt in recognition of her work in behalf of French soldiers who have lost their sight in the war. Miss Holt has established three institutions in France for the training of blind soldiers.

In a letter written by Miss Holt to the committee she tells of the bombardment of Paris and of the plans made for the rescue of the blind in the event the bombardment assumes more serious proportions.

Twins Enlist at 18 in the Army.

NEW ROCHELLE, May 27.—Enlisting on their eighteenth birthday, William and Terrence Lewis, twins, from Dutchess County, were among the arrivals today at Fort Slocum. The brothers, who enlisted in the regular army as soon as they were old enough to be accepted, are sons of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lewis of Poughkeepsie. Terrence joined the field artillery and William the medical corps. Their enlistment now separates them for the first time.

Knights of Columbus at Saratoga.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., May 27.—Delegates from all parts of the State began gathering here today for the twenty-third annual convention of the State Council, Knights of Columbus. The third degree was conferred on a class of 134 candidates from Eastern New York at a special session tonight. The ceremony was followed by a women's reception at the Casino.

First Women Graduates of Fordham.

Fourteen women were among the fifteen graduates who received diplomas last night at the first commencement of the Fordham University School of Sociology and Social Service held in the school's lecture hall in the Woolworth Building. They are the first women to graduate from Fordham University. The guest of honor was Bishop John J. Collins, S. J., of Jamaica, West Indies.

House Passes Deficiency Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The Urgent Deficiency bill, carrying direct appropriations of $90,674,906.25, and contract authorizations of $33,000,000, was passed by the House today without amendment and now goes to the Senate. The chief item carried in the bill is $60,000,000 for the housing of war workers, $10,000,000 of which is to be spent to relieve congestion in the City of Washington.

PACKERS DENY SALE OF BAD MEAT TO ARMY

Characterize Trade Commission's Charges as Unjust and Threaten to Appeal to Wilson.

EXPLAIN CAMP TRAVIS CASE

Assert That Deteriorated Supply at San Antonio Was Never Offered to the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Emphatic denials were made today by Morris & Co. and Wilson & Co. of the charges made by the Federal Trade Commission that they had sold meat "unfit for human consumption" to the United States Army, particularly at Camp Travis in Texas, where 10,000 pounds of meat had been condemned by the Food Administration and destroyed. The bad condition of the meat was laid to freight congestion and shortage of refrigerator cars.

Thomas E. Wilson of Wilson & Co. said the report did his company a gross injustice, and threatened to appeal to President Wilson for justice. He issued this statement:

"A gross injustice has been done to our company by the statement given out yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission. Even the manner of its issuance adds to its utter maliciousness. It was given to the press on Sunday afternoon, a day and time when our offices were closed, and it naturally would be hard for the newspapers to locate our own officials.

"I want to say to the public that our company is clean in this matter, that the charges in that statement are without foundation, and that we shall insist upon being set right before the public. We have been immeasurably hurt, and we shall insist that the Trade Commission make reparation. We will not only take it up with the Federal Trade Commission, but with the Food Administration, and, if necessary, we will appeal to the President of the United States to see that an immediate investigation is held and our company justly treated.

"The reference to an indictment in Texas is brought in a way which gives the impression that we were indicted for selling spoiled beef. The absurdity of this, and the deliberate malice involved, are shown when the facts are given.

"We had a barrel of beef hearts and a box of kidneys in the public cold storage warehouse at San Antonio. These hearts and kidneys were not offered for sale to the Government, nor to any one else, but were overlooked by our own people and by the Municipal Cold Storage officials in San Antonio. A purely technical indictment was returned, alleging hoarding of food. Upon proper investigation this indictment was promptly quashed. The whole thing was trivial.

"As to the beef and chicken parts of the statement: we have had no fresh beef contracts at Camp Travis and have sold no fresh beef there. Nor have we sold any dressed poultry there. There simply is no truth in the statement, so far as Wilson & Co. is concerned.

"We have sold, and are selling, large quantities of meats and food products to the Government for our own forces and those of our allies. I personally instructed every plant and branch of Wilson & Co. to redouble their care and watchfulness during this war period, for I wanted every man in our institution to realize our heavy responsibilities. It is my business to know that my instructions are carried out, and I know they have been.

"There is nothing our company has done that is not open to the light of day."

Edward Morris, Jr., President of Morris & Co., gave out a statement today concerning the Federal Trade Commissions charges, in which he said:

"Morris & Co. has not sold a single pound of food for the American soldiers at Camp Travis or any other place that was unfit for human consumption. In fact, at the time in question, we did not have any contract whatever for any camp in the San Antonio district.

"As I understand it, these charges arise from the fact that we had a small quantity of food products in public cold storage at San Antonio. These goods were shipped to San Antonio in perfect condition, and were shipped in carload lots, in order to save the consumers the higher prices they would have to pay if they had been shipped in small lots by express. The warehouse did not have proper facilities and the goods deteriorated.

"The first knowledge which Morris & Co. had that these goods were not in first-class condition was when they were condemned by local and Federal inspectors about Dec. 22, 1917, but not a pound of these goods was offered or sold to the United States soldiers or any one else.

"It is needless to say that a large business such as Morris & Co., handling perishable products, will necessarily have occasional experiences of this sort, which in this case was caused entirely by matters beyond our control."

LABOR MISSION'S APPEAL.

Urges Greater Food Saving That Allies May Be Fed.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Greater food conservation so that the allied peoples and armies may be fed is urged upon the American Nation in a statement by the American Labor Mission, appointed by President Wilson to make a comprehensive study of conditions in England and France. The statement, which was cabled to the Food Administration and announced tonight, was made just before the mission started back to America.

"Since landing in England," the mission said, "the members of the committee visited a number of cities and interviewed a large number of people regarding the food situation as well as other matters arising from the war, and we feel it is our duty to impress upon the American people the fact that they should endeavor to conserve food in a larger measure that we may supply the people of the allied countries with the things necessary to their subsistence.

"There is no doubt that the people of Great Britain and of the allied countries are making untold sacrifices—more than America realizes. Notwithstanding these sacrifices, no member of the mission has heard from them a single word of complaint."

SCOTS IMPRESS PREMIER.

LONDON, May 27.—Before returning to London from Scotland, Premier Lloyd George, in a statement to The Glasgow Herald, said he was much impressed by the determination of the Scotch people to see the war through. The message Scotland had given him was to stand fast.

"Scotland is as firm as her mountains," the Premier continued. "If there is any change between last year and this year it is an even deeper note of reserve, of absolute unity and quiet determination and the subordination of everything to the prosecution of the war.

"The people of Scotland have their minds fixed upon defeating the terrible menace threatening the world. They decline to consider anything else until this is done. And they are absolutely right."

SON OF BERNSTORFF IN COURT OVER WIFE

Libel Action of Baron von Radeck, Her Former Husband, Begins in Berlin.

LAWYER TELLS OF DIVORCE

Courtship in Baron's Absence and Subsequent Attack on Count Are Rehearsed.

AMSTERDAM, May 27.—The libel suit of Baron Walter von Radeck against Count Christian Gunther von Bernstorff, son of the former German Ambassador to the United States; von Bernstorff's wife, and others, was begun in a Berlin court Saturday. Von Radeck is a son of a Prussian General and his former wife is now the wife of Count von Bernstorff. She was Mrs. Marguerite Vivian Burton Thomason of Burlington, N. J.

Sixteen persons prominent in German official and social life and the defendants were in court. Among the number was Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, brother of the reigning Duke.

Counsel for Baron von Radeck charged that von Bernstorff made love to the Baroness while von Radeck was in the trenches. This resulted in a divorce. Count von Bernstorff also was accused of circulating stories that von Radeck was a spy.

After hearing the attorney's statement, the Judge adjourned the case, saying he considered that certain judicial points were not clear.

The plaintiff's counsel in his statement asserted that von Radeck, who had married Marguerite Thomason in 1912, had received, while serving in the trenches, a letter from her saying that she wanted to be free. Von Radeck returned to Berlin, the attorney continued, and when he saw his wife enter Count von Bernstorff's home he knocked at the door and heard his wife say to the Count: "Put your revolver in your pocket."

Von Radeck entered, slapped von Bernstorff, tore off one of his epaulets, and took his revolver from him. He communicated the affair to a military court of honor, as he expected a duel, counsel said, but instead von Bernstorff went to von Radeck two days later suggesting a divorce so that von Bernstorff could marry von Radeck's wife, and asked von Radeck to settle the court of honor affair by going to the then Chief of the General Staff, General von Moltke. The General said he could do nothing.

Von Radeck, continued the attorney, then challenged von Bernstorff, at the same time requesting an inquiry into the charge of espionage against him, which had been circulated. The Baroness meanwhile had applied for a divorce, which was granted in the husband's favor, the accusation made by von Bernstorff against von Radeck, counsel said, being contradicted by witnesses in the divorce action.

The attorney continued that von Radeck wrote to Ambassador von Bernstorff, then stationed at Constantinople, asking him to advise his son to give up acquaintance with von Radeck's former wife, but received no answer. The alleged libels complained of had been subsequently circulated, counsel said. He charged that von Bernstorff had used his father's position to support the espionage charge against the plaintiff.

Early this year Baron von Radeck and Count von Bernstorff had a physical encounter as a result of the Count's marriage to the Baron's divorced wife. Von Radeck was forced to leave the army, and von Bernstorff was punished by a military court.

The Baron then entered a libel suit against the Count and fourteen others, charging that they had caused his divorce and dismissal from the army by the circulation of untruthful reports.

Miss Louise A. Crockett Betrothed.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stevens Crockett of 680 Madison Avenue announced yesterday the engagement of their daughter, Louise Anderson Crockett, to First Lieutenant Charles A. Coryell of the 306th Field Artillery, who is attending the School of Fire at Fort Sill, Okla. No date for the wedding has been set.

Will Wed Captain Burrage Saturday

Miss Helen McChesney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Disbrow McChesney of East Orange, N. J., will be married Saturday evening at the home of her parents to Captain Percy Fraser Burrage of the 316th Infantry at Camp Meade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Burrage of West Orange.

Miss Winifred Notman Wed in Paris

Word has been received from Paris of the marriage there on May 14 of Miss Winifred Notman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Notman of Brooklyn, and Lieutenant David Chandler Prince, U. S. A., of the Ordnance Department. The bride was graduated from Smith College and afterward took up the study of law.

BOARD HEARS WAGE PLEAS.

CHICAGO, May 27.—The twelve members of the National Labor War Board, named to adjust wage disputes and prevent strikes, heard statements today from the street car employes and the car companies of Detroit and Cleveland. The board announced after listening to preliminary arguments that it probably would name examiners to take further testimony before reaching a decision.

The Cleveland employes ask an increase in pay from 35 to 60 cents an hour and a ten-hour minimum work day. The Detroit carmen ask an increase from 40 to 60 cents an hour, a ten-hour day and a revised working schedule.

William D. Mahon, President of the Amalgamated Street and Electrical Railway Employes Association, said that the men would not strike, but would be compelled to quit their jobs and seek others in view of the increased cost of living, and "let the public walk."

Bernard Weadock, attorney for the Detroit United Railways, in presenting the case of the company, said the increases demanded would necessitate the employment of additional men and increase the payroll by a large sum. This, he said, could not be met without increase in the rate of fare, which would require a new franchise and a referendum vote by the city. He said his company would not consider the employment of women until every effort to secure the required number of men had failed.

Fielder Sanders, City Commissioner of Public Utilities, and others presented arguments for the Cleveland Company, stating that they admitted the demand of the men for higher wages was just, but that it could not be granted without raising the rate of fare, requiring a new franchise and a referendum vote. The present franchise, they said, was intended to furnish service at cost plus 6 per cent. to stockholders on actual money invested. At present under this plan there was a deficit of $2,500,000, which would be increased by any additional expense.

CONDUCTOR OWNS AUTO.

Maspeth Man Uses Car to Drive to Work Daily.

Long Island City has a trolley car conductor that rides to work in his own automobile, leaves it at the car barns and after his day's work is over, rides home in state. His name is Joseph Jarkousky and he lives at 27 Remsen Place, Maspeth. He is employed by the New York and Queens County Railway Company. All went well with this routine until some one stole the automobile.

Jarkousky appeared before Magistrate Conway in the Long Island City Court yesterday and charged his neighbor, Peter Cybulski, with taking the machine. Jarkousky says Cybulski asked for a ride and he took him from Maspeth to the car barns at Long Island City. Then he parked his automobile and went to work on his trolley car. Cybulski decided to take another ride, it is alleged, so he got into the automobile and started off. He had not much experience and was making such a poor job of steering it, that Patrolman Mohrman, who saw the machine making a zigzag course along Jackson Avenue, stopped it at Fifteenth Avenue and placed its driver under arrest for reckless driving. Then he added a charge of not having a license. Jarkousky very soon appeared and made a charge of larceny.

Magistrate Conway adjourned the three charges until tomorrow and held Cybulski in bail of $1,000 until that time.

CORSET TURNS BULLET.

Harrison Girl Shot by a Discarded Sweetheart.

HARRISON, N. J., May 27.—A corset stay saved the life of Miss Elizabeth Gustos, 17 years old, of 62 Van Buren Street, Newark, when she was shot, it is alleged, by eGorge Petros of 40 High Street, Newark, a discarded sweetheart. The shooting occurred today in the Worthington Pump Works here.

Petros, it is charged, fired three shots. The first struck the girl in the neck, inflicting a dangerous wound. The second, traveling on a line with her heart, struck a stay in the back of her corset and caused a skin abrasion. The third went wild. In St. Michael's Hospital it was said Miss Gustos would recover.

Threatening pursuers with his revolver, according to the police, Patros backed out of the plant, ran across near by meadows to the Lackawanna Railroad tracks. There he was disarmed by Peter Trapper, a railroad policeman, who turned him over to the Harrison police.

Preferred Jail to War.

Soon after he had boasted that he would go to jail rather than go to war, according to the police, Alfred Kielwasser of 27 Custer Stree, Newark, kicked Charles Wickoff, an aged negro, in the presence of a policeman and then waited to be arrested. Kielwasser was called to go to Camp Dix yesterday, and he will go notwithstanding his arrest. Judge D'Aloia sentenced him to thirty days in jail, providing that the minute the military authorities want him he is to be taken to camp. Jerry Luciano, who was with Kielwasser, was sentenced to thirty days, but will be released on June 5 to register.

General Bell's Cousin Wounded.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., May 27.—Major Samuel M. Wilson, who was reported in General Pershing's casualty list today as having been severely wounded, was for some time Assistant Judge Advocate of the Metropolitan Division at this cantonment from Lexington, Ky., where he was a lawyer and Supreme Court Justice. He went to the first Plattsburg training camp and graduated from the Ninth Company. He is a cousin of Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell.

Scalded Child Unable to Appear.

The case against Mrs. Mary Grant, held in $1,000 bail on a charge of throwing boiling water upon her niece, Helen Mullen, was adjourned until May 29 in the Bridge Plaza Court, this morning. Detective Sweeney told Magistrate Steers that the child was still at the Greenpoint Hospital and would be unable to appear in court today.

GERMANS CRITICAL OF U-BOAT POLICY

Point Out Failure of the Admiralty to Live Up to Its Promises.

NOT BUILDING FAST ENOUGH

Full Capacity of the German Yards Not Used in Turning Out U-Boats, It Is Charged.

Copies of German newspapers just received here show that on April 23, five days after the heated debate in the Main Committee of the Reichstag over the effectiveness of the unrestricted submarine warfare as outlined by Admiral von Capelle, Minister of Marine, before that body, the semi-official Wolff Telegraph Bureau sent out the following report:

"During the month of March there was destroyed all together 689,000 gross register tons of the merchant cargo room useful to our enemies. Therefore, the world merchant cargo room at the disposal of our enemies has been reduced by war measures alone by approximately 16,469,000 tons since the beginning of the war.

According to the official German statement for February, the allied and neutral merchant shipping sunk during that month by the war measures of the Central Powers totaled 680,000 gross tons. In its comment upon the March figures the Wolff Bureau asks how Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the British Admiralty, had the assurance to refer on March 5 to the falling curve of the British shipping losses and to put, in his White Book the total world merchant tonnage loss from the beginning of the war to the end of 1917 at only 11,800,000 gross registered tons, when the German Admiral's Staff had "incontrovertably" shown it to have been about 5,000,000 tons more. The Wolff Bureau then proceeds to answer its own question by asserting that the British Admiralty arrives at its figures by not including in the merchant shipping losses such steamers as are in military service, even though they be guard ships, hospital ships, auxiliary cruisers, and "probably" transports and munition ships.

As was pointed out in the cabled reports of the debate in the Main Committee of the Reichstag on April 18, practically all factions, with the exception of the Independent Socialists, united in criticising the German Admiralty for its failure to have carried out its various promises of winning the war through ruthless submarine warfare and in demanding more action and less talk. Among the editorial comments in the German press regarding this debate, that of the Frankfurter Zeitung is one of the lengthiest and most caustic. It begins by remarking that, if the debate attracted little attention, in spite of the "astonishing" character of the speeches, this was due partly to the preoccupation of public opinion with the western offensive, the war loan, the new taxation proposals, and the retirement of Count Czernin, and partly to the censorship which made the published reports of the debate hardly intelligible. After condemning the Government's policy of concealment the Frankfurter Zeitung, as translated by The London Times, proceeds:

"Serious matters are at stake. Otherwise so calm a critic as Herr Gothein (the Radical spokesman) would not have said: 'We cannot trust the Naval Administration.' And even Herr Stresemann (the National Liberal spokesman) feels 'slight doubts.'

"What is the cause of all this? The criticism is directed against what are described as false and misleading calculations of the Admiralty about the effect of the submarine war, and—a much more serious point—against the construction policy of Herr von Capelle. * * * A number of Deputies of the Left made grave charges against the Admiralty, because it was induced only by contrary experience to abandon the rosy miscalculations in which not only the Admiralty itself believed, but which were made the foundation of an almost unlimited propaganda throughout Germany.

"Professors, officers, engineers, and other connoisseurs reckoned out exactly the day upon which the fleet which provides England with food would of necessity be used up. They did this even after the famous six months had expired, and they appealed to their special technical knowledge and to their good relations with the German Admiralty. For example, the chief engineer of an important building yard prophesied not long ago that there would be nothing left on Feb. 1, 1918. That was a private calculation. But to revert to Herr von Capelle, Herr Erzberger has said, with regard to the point of view of the Secretary af Marine: 'The goal was to be reached on Jan. 1, 1918. This calculation was the answer given last August to the July debates.' Be one's opinion about Herr Erzberger what it may, the fact that he can without contradiction establish such facts deserves general attention.

"We need not, however, devote too much time to criticism of the past. The German Admiralty, or at least Herr von Capelle, has now recognized the large reserves of world tonnage which—in spite of Herr Helfferich—are still at the disposal of our enemies, and the Secretary of Marine, in spite of all justified optimism, now takes the point of view that all calculations depend upon numerous uncertain factors, and so are at best calculations of probabilities. Away with them, and let us await the actual results! That, even for Herr von Capelle, would have been a still better point of view to adopt. The true state of the submarine war, the degree of want in England, the grave economic injury for the future which is caused by the loss of ships, and the psychological pressure for peace—all this can and should be impressed upon every German. But more than that is injurious. It is impossible to carry on war without optimism, but prophecies which go wrong provoke mistrust."

The Frankfurter Zeitung criticises the German official figures and the false statements and prevarications about "world tonnage." It says that it is not surprising that some of the Reichstag Deputies are still dissatisfied with the official arithmetic. It then deals as follows with the question of submarine construction:

"More serious are the charges which have been made against the construction policy of the Admiralty. The question of submarine war stirred the German people to a quite extraordinary state of excitement, and the propaganda in favor of an immediate—or premature—commencement of intensified submarine war was something quite unparalleled in Germany. Everybody would have supposed that the naval authorities would have done, and would still be doing, everything conceivable in order to have the largest possible number of submarines in the shortest possible time. * * * During the first two years of war Herr von Tirpitz organized the submarine propaganda, but, according to the judgment of experts, he neglected to employ the full capacity of the German yards for the construction of submarines. In the new debate the Reichstag committee has concerned itself with the omissions of the Admiralty under Herr von Capelle. * * *

"Herr Gothien said definitely that owing to the fault of the Admiralty we even now possess considerably fewer submarines than could have been built by the yards. There can be no doubt that Herr Gothein possesses convincing evidence. One of the questions is whether the Admiralty gave out orders according to its own estimate of the capacity of the yards, or whether it let the yards build as many submarines as could possibly be squeezed out of them with the utmost effort. If the latter course—which seems perfectly obvious to any impartial critic—has been adopted, when was it adopted? It is impossible for us to discuss details, but the want of confidence in the Admiralty is doubtless due to the opinion that our submarine commanders work splendidly, but that the construction policy of the authorities has not supported them as energetically as was possible and necessary.

"Painful though the idea in itself may be, it is a comfort to hear that the Admiralty, whose former chief prophesied that the English would quickly be brought to their knees, is now preparing 'for a long war' and is selecting the types of submarines accordingly. But the commanders of our submarines can be adequately supported in the psychological process which the submarine war is intended to effect only if the number of submarines is increased as quickly as possible to the highest possible figure. That, as we understand it, is the meaning of the anxiety and the criticism of the Reichstag Deputies. They want victory in this struggle, just as every German who is still in possession of his senses wants it. But they do not confine themselves to saying piously 'Amen' to everything that is done."

PLEA FOR SHORT LINES.

Southern Commissions Ask for Government Control During War.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 27.—Government control and operation of all short line railroads of the country for the period of the war is asked in resolutions of Southern State Railroad Commissions, which are to be presented to Director General McAdoo within a few days.

Announcement of the adoption of the resolutions by the commissions meeting at Atlanta last week and the appointment of a committee to present them to Mr. McAdoo was made here today by the South Carolina Commission. Should the Director General decide that the plan is not practicable the committee will present a program to put the short lines on a new basis under private management.

ROUND UP OF I. W. W.'S.

Federal Officials in Boston Charge Six with Treasonable Conspiracy.

BOSTON, May 27.—Five men and a woman, members of the Industrial Workers of the World, were brought to the Federal Building under arrest today, charged under the Espionage act with wilfully and knowingly conspiring against the United States. A quantity of literature in the Finnish language and some revolvers and cartridges were seized by the officers who made the arrest.

Three of the men, Arthur Koski of Fitchburg, Otto Leono, and Paul Majanaski of Maynard, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes and held in $2,500 each for a hearing June 10. They were unable to obtain bonds.

John Ranta, Lauri Luono, and Mrs. Thelma E. Cullen, all of Fitchburg, will be arraigned tomorrow morning. These three were arrested in Chester yesterday and were brought here in Mrs. Cullen's automobile today. The machine bore a Connecticut license number, and Mrs. Cullen said she formerly lived in Hartford. She was born in this country, she said, and virtually all her life had been connected with I. W. W.

84TH DIVISION TO MOVE.

25,000 Men Will Be Shifted from Zachary Taylor to Sherman.

LOUISVILLE, May 27.—Announcement was made here late today by Major Gen. Harry C. Hale, commanding the 84th Division, National Army, of the receipt of orders for the removal of the entire division, excepting only the artillery regiments, from Camp Zachary Taylor to Camp Sherman, at Chillicothe, Ohio.

About 25,000 men will be affected by the order for removal, for which no time has been seta.

TO PERMIT SUNDAY SPORTS.

Ordinance in Effect in Baltimore After Years of Agitation.

BALTIMORE, May 27.—An ordinance, permitting baseball and other sports on Sunday in Baltimore, was signed today by Mayor Preston, and becomes effective at once.

There is no prohibition of professional games, but there must no charges for admission to games.

The ordinance permits baseball, golf, lawn tennis, croquet, basket ball, football, lacrosse, quoits, soccer, and field exercises t obe played in public parks, private parks, and open lots between the hours of 2 and 7 o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

The ordinance is the result of years of agitation in favor of Sunday ball, and was the fourth to be presented to the city council since 1911.

PRAISE FOR SHIPBUILDERS.

President Congratulates Men Who Agree to Extra Hours of Labor.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Congratulations were telegraphed by President Wilson and the Shipping Board today to the Shipwrights and Joiners Union of Seattle upon receipts of notice from the union that its members would waive the customary Saturday half holiday during June, July, and August, and also waive double pay for those hours, in order to speed the work of shipbuilding.

Meeting on Water Power Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 27.—Nathan L. Miller, Chairman of the committee appointed by Governor Whitman to oppose passage in Congress of the Flood Water Power bill, has called a meeting of the committee at the Bar Association rooms in New York on June 3. A hearing on the bill will be held before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs on June 4. R. A. C. Smith, former Dock Commissioner of New York City, has been appointed as an additional member of the committee.

Fire Destroys a Sayville Hotel.

SAYVILLE, L. I., May 27.—The Summer hotel here, known as Holborn Hall and one of the most popular resorts on Long Island, was destroyed by fire today. The loss is estimated at $40,000. The hotel was owned by Mrs. Philip T. Williams, widow of Tax Collector Williams of Brooklyn. It was partly insured.

Bar Governorship Candidate.

DULUTH, Minn., May 27.—Charles A. Lindbergh, nonpartisan candidate for Governor of Minnesota, was unable to engage a hall in which to hold a rally planned for tonight. A week ago, his agents rented an auditorium, but those in control of the building today canceled the agreement. There was some talk of a street meeting, but the idea was abandoned.

Auditorium Completed at Upton.

CAMP UPTON, Yaphank, L. I., May 27.—The "Buffalo" auditorium, the largest cantonment building of its kind in the country, which was constructed by the 367th negro infantry, has been turned over to the War Department by Colonel James A. Moss. It will be under the direction of George H. Miller of the Liberty Theatre here. Orlando Rouland, the artist, brought to camp today a life-size portrait of Colonel Moss which he painted as a gift to the auditorium in recognition of Colonel Moss's work in obtaining funds for the $40,000 structure.

GREENHUT BUILDING LEASED FOR HOSPITAL

Government Will Take Former Department Store for Care of Wounded from France.

The Greenhut Building in Sixth Avenue, at Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets, is to be made a clearing hospital for wounded soldiers, having been leased, according to an announcement made yesterday at the office of Joseph P. Day, real estate broker, to the Medical Department of the United States Army for the duration of the war and for a year thereafter. No figures were given. The Government will begin the work of turning the one-time department store into a modern hospital with 4,000 beds within a week after the building is cleared.

The Sixth Avenue hospital will be in the centre of a new military section which is destined to grow up in that part of the city. The Quartermaster's Department has leased several buildings in that vicinity, and it is reported that the old St. Denis Hotel, at Broadway and Eleventh Street, which closed its doors some months ago, is to be taken as an army barracks.

The Greenhut store contains, in six stories, an estimated floor space of about 1,000,000 square feet. There are approximately twenty-three acres of space under the roof, and these will be devoted to the care of soldiers, most of whom will have been returned from France. The wounded will be landed at the base hospital on Ellis Island, and will be brought up on launches to a pier in the Chelsea section, and from there taken to the new clearing hospital. According to report, the Sixth Avenue hospital will be devoted almost entirely to medical cases, the surgical cases being sent to more elaborately equipped hospitals near by.

NEW YORK "GIFT" TO NATION

Whitman Says State Has Sent 235,000 Boys to War.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 27.—Governor Whitman spent the afternoon and evening here today. In the afternoon, with Mayor Edgerton, he reviewed four Rochester companies of boys being trained under the Stivers Military Training act. In the evening he was the guest of honor at a meeting held in observance of the golden jubilee of the Knights of Pythias in New York State, when he made an address. His address deals largely with the accomplishments of New York State in supporting the war.

"Our State has made its gift," he said. "Two hundred and thirty-five thousands boys have gone from this State. If present plans are carried out before next January 200,000 of our men will be taking part in this fight for the great cause of human freedom."

State Senator Henry W. Hill, Grand Vice Chancellor of the order, spoke at the evening meeting.

DIFFER ON OIL LANDS BILL.

Senate Rejects House Amendment to Leasing Measure.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The Senate today refused to accept amendments to the Walsh-Pittman Coal and Oil Land Leasing bill, which were adopted by the House Saturday, and the measure now goes to conference. Senators Pittman, Shafroth, Phelan, Smoot, and Fall were named as conferees.

One House amendment would permit the leasing of oil land in the naval reserves in California, leaving the settlement of claims against the land to the courts. This section of the bill was stricken out by the Senate as being special legislation for opening the naval reserves.

CALLS FOR MORE NURSES.

BOSTON, May 27.—An urgent request for 1,000 trained nurses for service at home and abroad, to be enrolled and on duty by the middle of June has been received by the American Red Cross, the New England Headquarters announced tonight. As soon as this quota is filled 24,000 more must be enrolled by the end of the year.

This State is expected to furnish 387 of the first 1,000 and 1,580 of the next 24,000.

Albany's Big War Chest.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 27.—More than 51,000 residents of this city, or nearly one-half of the population, subscribed to the war chest, a fund raised to cover all war charities, in the campaign which ends tonight. Campaign workers claimed that the number of subscribers established a record for cities where similar funds have been raised. The amount sought, $1,000,000, was considerably oversubscribed.

Military Funeral for Lieut. Polk.

The funeral of Second Lieutenant Latham Polk, who was killed in an airplane accident on May 21 at the aviation school, Gerstner Field, Lake Charles, La., was held yesterday at the home of his father, Charles S. Polk, 18 West Sixty-fourth Street. The services were conducted by the Rev. Edward B. Smith, chaplain at Governors Island. The burial was in St. Michael's Cemetery, Astoria, where a detail of soldiers from Fort Totten fired a salute. Lieutenant Polk lost his life in a collision 3,000 feet in the air with a machine piloted by Lieutenant Spencer Williams, who was also killed.

Brig. Gen. James Nichols Allison.

Brig. Gen. James Nichols Allison, who served fifty-five years in the United States Army, beginning during the civil war as a drummer boy, died recently in Portland, Ore., according to word received here yesterday. General Allison was born in Kentucky in 1849. At the age of 13 he was mustered into the Union forces as a drummer boy, attaining the rank of Sergeant Major before the close of the war. Then he was admitted to West Point, from which he was graduated. He fought in several Indian engagements. He was at Governors Island when he retired, becoming editor of The Military Service Journal.

Frederick H. Siegfried.

Frederick H. Siegfried, founder and first President of the Siegfried Company, advertising agents of this city, died on Sunday morning at Redlands, Cal., in his forty-third year. Mr. Siegfried was one of the charter members of the New York Advertising Agents' Association, and served as its first Secretary and Treasurer. He was born in Louisville, Ky. For several years he was a member of the staff of The Boston Herald and later of The New York Herald.

MID-WEEK PICTORIAL

STILL TIME TO PLANT.

Now is the time for the war gardener who was wise enough to leave some unplanted space when the fury of early Spring planting was upon him to fill that space with useful things. There is still time before the sultry, dry weather of midsummer to mature a row of Spring radishes. Sweet corn planted now will be ready to supplement the first plantings, and if he has filled all his corn space it might not be amiss even to dig up a few hills and replant them. If lima beans were planted in that first bright, warm spell in May, a few hills put in late will give several meals of beans after the first vines have run their course. Salamander lettuce, or Romaine, sown now will give good returns in midsummer, when lettuce is especially desirable. Most of the shallow rooting lettuces will halt to seed as soon as the hot weather strikes them, but the deep rooting sorts are comparatively safe. Some experienced gardeners, who are fond of lettuce, have found that a shade set up at an angle on the south side of a lettuce plant will keep away enough sunshine to bring it to edible maturity no matter how hot the weather. Such shades are easily made by tacking waterproofed paper, table oilcloth or muslin a foot square to stakes, the ends of which may be pushed into the ground at an angle of 45 degrees a few inches from the plant on the south side and leaning to the north. This gives the plant the full force of the morning and evening sun, but keeps it shaded during the heat of the day. At the same time it gets free circulation of air and the benefit of any dew that may fall. If this shaded lettuce is grown in a part of the garden where the sprinkling pot or hose may be played upon it without too much labor and the gardener does not forget to water it two or three times a week, he will be almost sure to get a crop.

Now is the time to sow onion seeds for a late crop of scallions. The green onions from sets planted in early Spring will have been eaten by midsummer, or, if any are left, they will be nearly ripe and have taken on the pungency of mature onions. Nearly everybody likes scallions, and they are a welcome addition to the late season menu. Seed planted now and not thinned in the row will produce scallions succulent and the size of a lead pencil long before Summer wanes. Another thing about young onions that many persons do not know is that fried, boiled, or incorporated with stew, soup, meat dish, or omelet, scallions give a flavor more piquant and less rank than mature onions. They may be canned for Winter or dried for soup flavoring. An enemy alien dish that may be relished, if one is not too patriotic, is scallion pie. The crust is the same as ordinary pastry, and the filling is made up of creamed scallions, cut fine and sweetened slightly.

If there is a bit of low, damp ground in the garden where moisture lies long after a rain, particularly if it is shaded, a good late crop of peas may be had by planting now, but it will hardly be worth while to sow peas where the sun and drought can get at them.

There is still time to plant a few of the large growing Winter radishes, some of which come to weigh pounds. Sliced and dressed with oil and vinegar, they make excellent salad, and the French make very tasty sandwiches with them. They keep nearly all Winter, and boiled and dressed with butter they produce a more delicate dish than turnips or rutabagas.

Okra or gumbo grows in a short season, and may be planted after some early crops have been cleared out.

Green beans, of course, may be planted clear up to Aug. 1, though late plantings of early varieties may be nipped by early frost. Still, it is worth while to put in the seed and hope for a late Autumn.

Of course, those who like cucumbers have saved room for a hill or two to plant late. Cucumbers are supposed to go on bearing till frost, no matter when planted, but experience shows that late fruit from old vines is inferior, and that after vines have borne for a few weeks they become blighted and weak, no matter how freely sprayed with Bordeaux.

Late cabbage, Brussels sprouts, kale, root celery, and cauliflower should soon be in their seed beds, ready to transplant in time to mature before growing weather ends. And the term "growing weather" is elastic. Last year there was no frost till unusually late, but there was little growing weather after Labor Day. Cool weather, especially cold nights, and sunless days, even though there be no touch of frost, stop the growth of all but cold climate vegetation, and it is well for the gardener to have his garden calendar so ordered that his crops will not depend heavily upon maturing in September and October.

GREENE-CANANEA REPORT.

Income for 1917 Is $9,393,074, Decrease of $8,143,292.

The Greene-Cananea Copper Company reports a gross income of $9,396,074 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1917, chiefly from sales of copper, silver, and gold. In comparison with the preceding year's result, the income, disclosed in the annual report yesterday, showed a decline of $8,143,292, but political troubles in Mexico in 1917 forced the mines to close down for six months.

The company had a surplus of $2,-497,[illegible] after meeting all expenses, paying heavy Mexican mining and American income taxes, and setting aside $300,000 for depreciation. This was equal to $4.99 per share of stock. As $3,864,[illegible] was distributed in dividends, the year brought a deficit of $1,456,327.

W. D. Thornton, President, said in the annual statement that the properties were operated from Jan. 1 to June 22, and then had to be closed because of "intolerable conditions brought about by the Mexican Federal and States Governments," and all American employes were withdrawn from the country. The plants and mines were not reopened until Dec. 10. At the present time, said the report, they are all in operation, and current production from the Greene-Cananea's own mines is running between 4,000,000 and 4,500,000 pounds of copper per month.

No Discount on Taxes.

Inasmuch as importers of bay rum do not receive anything off for cash on the Government revenue tax of $2.50 a gallon, several of the leading houses in this trade have adopted the practice of giving cash discounts to their customers only on the actual price of the bay rum minus the revenue tax. Thus, with bay rum selling at $3.65 a gallon, the cash discount, usually of 1 per cent., is figured on $1.15, which is the cost of the bay rum with the $2.50 revenue tax deducted. It is said that buyers see the justice of this action and do not complain after the reason for it is explained to them.

Delivery Costs Still Advanced.

Notwithstanding that, one way or another, a certain store reduced its deliveries by 66 2-3 per cent., its present cost for this service is higher than it was a year ago at this time. This is attributed in part to the fact that it was impossible to reduce the delivery equipment in proportion to the lessened number of packages sent out, but more largely than this to the greatly increased cost of labor, wrapping, and tissue papers, pasteboard boxes, tape, twine, and the numerous other things that properly can be charged against deliveries.

Hem Knit Top Hose Liked.

Hem knit top half hose for men is said to be gaining favor very rapidly wherever it is shown. Though this type of top for men's socks when first shown was more or less objected to, it seems since to have gained quite a strong following. When it was found that the better types of hem knit tops were just as flexible as the older type of top, the chief objection to them was overcome. They have gained most popularity in silk lines, and are taken in black, white, and tan. Some of the bright colors are also selling, but they are not as generally sought as the more subdued shades.

Demand for Glass Containers.

The demand for glass jars, heavy glass containers, and heavy tumblers is continuing on a large scale, according to reports from the trade in this city. Factories turning out these products have been unable thus far to catch up with their orders in spite of the most strenuous efforts. Production has been maintained at top notch for the past six or eight months, and orders now on hand are said to be sufficient in the majority of cases to keep the factories going at the same rate for a similar period into the future. Early deliveries have long since become a thing of the past and from four to eight months, depending on the mill, is the best promise which can now be obtained.

Offers Some Novel Sports Hats.

Some unusual novelties in sports hats for women are being marketed by a local wholesale milliner. They are developed in a well-known trademarked silk, both in solid colors and in artistic designs known as "faconné" effects. The shapes show little difference from those told of from time to time in this column, but the crowns are novel. The trimmings consist of crocheted wool bands, tassels, and balls to match, and designs painted on the crown or brim. Butterflies made of silk and tinsel in the natural butterfly colors are often placed around the crown or brim. Sashes of silk are also used, they having small buckles of imitation silver drawn through them to give a sport effect. The colors of these hats are natural khaki, tan combined with turquoise blue, and other light colors in solid and two-tone effects.

Rags Pay Nice Profits.

Manufacturers of men's and women's outer garments—principally the former, because they use a larger proportion of woolens—are getting considerable unearned increment nowadays through selling the odds and ends of fabrics that fall from their cutting tables. One of these men, who manufactures a line of medium-priced garments, told yesterday of having sold between $6,000 and $7,000 worth of woolen rags in the last four months, the prices running as high as 60 cents a pound on fine stock and averaging around 25 cents a pound. While rags have always been sold, it is said that they have never before brought prices like the present ones.

Broad Foot Models Come Slowly.

In spite of the talk there has been in the shoe trade of late, the predicted change in men's styles from the so-called English narrow toe last to the "broad foot" model will not become effective this year. While the retailers have been asking about the new type of shoes, they have done very little in the way of buying them for Fall. Well-posted shoe men believe that the change from one type to the other is coming, but they contend that there will not be a really general demand for "broad foot" models until after the war. Then, it is said, they will be sought by many thousands of soldiers who have worn army shoes for various lengths of time and who will not want to return to the narrow-toed footwear they knew as civilians.

Making Cheaper Lines Now.

Partly because of the high cost of men's wear fabrics and partly because of requests of the retail trade, quite a few of the more important manufacturers of men's clothing are making cheaper lines for Fall than they would in normal times. The retailers want these concerns to do this because, in many cases, the cheaper things are made by the smaller producers, many of whom are said to be unable to give the delivery guarantees which most of the retailers demand. Even the lines in question are not cheap now, as compared with former standards. Men's suits that once wholesaled at $3.75 and $5 now command $11 and $13.50, respectively, and the respective retail prices have gone up to around $18 and $20. It is said that the new season's advances are relatively much smaller on suits that retail at $28 and up than on those selling below that figure.

Fur Shortage Worries Hatters.

The shortage of furs, of the sort suitable for felt hats for men, is causing a great deal of worry to local manufacturers of these hats. There are some, of course, whose surplus stock is sufficient to carry them through another season, but the idea of cutting into these stocks with no prospects of replenishing them is not particularly comforting. Prices, on the other hand, are mounting to unheard of figures, even the very poorest grades of furs bringing prices which would have been high for the best grades in normal times.

Gray Goods Market Quiet.

Prices continued firm in the local market for gray goods yesterday, but there was no great amount of buying done. While sateens and twills sold in a fair way at full prices for delivery in the next sixty days or so, there was little buying of sheetings, due principally to their scarcity for nearby months. Neither in them nor in printcloths did buyers and sellers seem willing to talk business regarding contracts. The bulk of the printcloths sold yesterday were wanted for June delivery, and the sales included 39-inch 72-76s at 22½c, 39-inch 56-44s at 15c, 38½-inch 64-60s at 19c, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 16¼ cents. Printcloth prices closed this way:

COOK'S Imperial Extra Dry Champagne

It takes a certain peculiar soil to grow grapes which are best fitted for making a champagne whose savor has body and whose bouquet is full. The excellence of Cook's Imperial is largely due to the fact that the fine grapes of which it is made are grown on just this kind of soil. For its purity, savor, bouquet and life—order Cook's Imperial, Extra Dry.

Building a Reserve

The wise investor is regularly investing his surplus above war taxes and Government Bonds in short term securities of industries essential to our nation at war.

He thus secures a fairly liquid and high interest bearing investment that will provide a strong reserve should there be a business depression following the war.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Industrials in Sudden Slump—Rails Unresponsive to Rate Increase.

A very large part of the heavy losses sustained by the stock market yesterday occurred in the final hour, from which fact there was a disposition in some quarters to ascribe the selling to the postscript added by President Wilson to his address to Congress in which he stated that he just learned of the beginning of the long-awaited German drive. Such an explanation loses some of its force from the fact that the Street was informed soon after the opening of the preliminaries indicating a resumption of the huge offensive. The market displayed a fair degree of firmness throughout the early hours, and there were signs of a rally following the receipt of the President's recommendations in the matter of new taxation. There was some selling of stocks by professionals in the morning, which was so well taken that it was thought that the market was going to accept definite confirmation of the news that the Administration would insist upon another consideration of the new revenue legislation without much liquidation. The selling that came in the afternoon was real, and was aggravated by the reaching of successive stop-loss orders. This was particularly true in the case of Baldwin Locomotive, which tumbled so rapidly as to bring about a good deal of selling for the protection of margins. The list closed with the declines under full headway and left nearly every issue with losses running from a fraction to 9½ points, the latter being Baldwin's contribution. There was almost no short-covering to combat the decline.

The market displayed little buoyancy on the abrupt announcement of an unprecedented increase in railway rates. While it had been indicated that the recommendation for an advance of 25 per cent. in freight tariffs and for passenger fares to an average of 3 cents a mile had been well received by Director General McAdoo, few security holders, mindful of the difficulty of getting previous applications for much smaller measures of relief through the Interstate Commerce Commission, could credit the report that such a substantial addition to revenues would be effected. Mr. McAdoo, knowing that the increased wages granted employes will add $300,000,000 to operating costs, higher fuel and other items perhaps $500,000,000 more, was confronted with the alternative of passing the increases on to the consumers as an indirect war tax, or of making up a very heavy deficit from funds raised through other sources. His method insures a more even distribution of the burden.

The statement by Representative Kitchin that the Government should provide to an extent of 40 per cent. for its war bills through taxation, and the indisputable fact that the schedules adopted last year must be revised with heavy additions at once raised the question of the ability of corporations to continue the payment of dividends at their present rate, even with the generous margin which they have shown the last year over requirements. United States Steel is now paying $17 per share per annum, but its market price plainly indicates investors' lack of confidence in the ability of the corporation to maintain the full amount of the extra dividends. With $4.25 to be subtracted from the price on Friday, Steel closed last night at exactly par, figuring 4¼ points as the accumulative dividend.

A plain indication of the way the market regards the probable effect of new taxes was furnished by the quotation on Liberty bonds. The 3½s, which are entirely exempt, moved up nearly a full point yesterday, closing within one-fifth of a point of their issue price. On the other hand, the 4s and 4¼s moved downward, the latter again making a new low record at 97.26. Call money was firmer, nearly all loans being made at 6 per cent.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Developments in France Are Awaited by Traders.

LONDON, May 27.—The stock market was quietly firm today awaiting developments in France. Giltedged securities and shipping and oil shares were good, and Portuguese bonds advanced on an improvement in exchange. Speculative issues were quiet.

Money was temporarily scarce, owing to preparations for the payment of war loan dividends. Discount rates were quiet.

The banks have commenced the reduction of the high fixed deposit rates in order to divert funds into national war bonds. The banks are also receiving orders from customers to reinvest June dividends in war bonds.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 27.—Trading on the Bourse was calm today. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 60 francs, exchange on London 27 francs 16 centimes; 5 per cent. loan 87 francs 85 centimes.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Most of the Day's Call Loans Made at 6%—Time Rates 6%.

Practically all of the demand and time loans made yesterday were put through at 6 per cent. It was estimated that about $20,000,000 was placed on call, of which only a very small portion was at 5¾ per cent. Most of the call loans secured by industrial collateral were made at 6½ per cent. The so-called "money pool" did not operate, bankers finding no need for assistance.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Baldwin's Precipitate Fall.

The rapid melting down of Baldwin Locomotive shares yesterday afternoon indicated, apparently, the elimination of some weakly margined holders as well as selling promoted by the uncovering of stop loss orders. In view of the weakness among industrial stocks generally, Baldwin's break of 9½ points after the recent headlong upward swing, was not altogether surprising. The Street heard no more talk about a possible merger between Baldwin and the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, nor were there indications at any time that accumulation was going on. The day's business was the other way.

Steel Corporation's Earnings.

The Steel Corporation's balance of earnings available for dividends in the first quarter was at the annual rate of slightly more than 28 per cent. on the common stock. As January and February brought unfavorable operating results because of Winter conditions, it is reasonable to expect that the current quarter will show an improvement of net income. That is, considering the income probabilities in the light of the existing taxation schedules. The signs point definitely, however, toward a revision of the revenue law upward as affecting corporation incomes, and it is hardly likely that the management will know definitely when the next quarterly report appears what proportion of earnings must be reserved for the tax.

Two Bearish Factors.

Despite the broad decline of both industrial and railroad stocks in afternoon dealings, a confirmed optimist might have found a basis for arguing that they had not acted altogether in an upsetting fashion, considering the unfavorable news developments. The renewal of the German offensive, although expected, was a matter of itself to affect security prices unfavorably, and following hard upon the heels of this news came first-hand confirmation from President Wilson of the reports that Congress would be asked to settle taxation matters for 1918 before adjourning.

Copper Smelter Output in 1917.

The output of copper at the country's smelters in 1917, as computed by the United States Geological Survey, reflects the inroads upon production caused by strikes in the second half of the year. The total was 1,886,000,000 pounds, a decline of 42,000,000 pounds, or 2.18 per cent., from the aggregate of the preceding year.

New Director of Bank of England.

Sir Charles Stewart Addis, joint manager of the Hongkong-Shanghai Bank, will be elected a Director of the Bank of England tomorrow. Sir Charles will succeed Albert Sandeman.

Silver to the Orient.

The New York Assay Office, on behalf of the Treasury, shipped recently $2,500,000 in silver to the Orient. It is understood that the silver bars were obtained by melting down silver dollars which have been called in in accordance with the Pittman act.

Certificates Mature Today.

An issue of $500,000,000 of 4½ per cent. Treasury certificates will mature today. Some of the certificates will be turned in to the Reserve Banks in payment of the 20 per cent. installment on the Third Liberty Loan. For the New York District, where loan subscriptions amounted to $1,114,930,700, today's payments will amount to at least $63,671,750, the same being equivalent to 20 per cent. on $318,358,750 of the bonds which have not been full paid, but the expectation is that the payments will be considerably in excess of that amount for the reason that many subscribers will desire to complete their payments instead of waiting for the other installment dates.

Reception of President's Address.

President Wilson's address on tax legislation was well received in Wall Street, where bankers expressed the view that it would be much better to have Congress adopt a new revenue bill at the current session than to postpone action until November or December. It was felt that inasmuch as higher taxation was inevitable it was desirable to have legislation out of the way as early a date as possible. It was pointed out that corporations and individuals would be in a position to arrange their affairs more satisfactorily if they knew in advance what rates of taxes they would have to pay on this year's income. It was suggested in several influential banking quarters that Congress should not merely devote itself to raising rates of taxation, but should so revise the law as to make its provisions more intelligible to taxpayers.

For Building the Ship.

President Marvin A. Neeland of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation received yesterday from the Board of Directors a silver loving-cup as a souvenir of his part in the building of the record ship Tuckahoe, which was launched twenty-seven days, delivered thirty-seven days, and sailed with her first cargo forty days after her keel was laid. The cup bears the inscription, "To the leader of the men who built the Tuckahoe and showed in a time of national need what American shipbuilders could do for their country."

England Raises Charter Rates.

Cable dispatches yesterday confirming reports that the British Ministry of Shipping is going to raise the "Blue Book Rates," corresponding to the United States Shipping Board requisition charter rates, under which all British requisitioned steamers are being operated, were read by local shipping men with much interest. It has been the feeling of all shipping men for some time that the Blue Book rates were too low, and to that extent a handicap on the efficient mobilization of tonnage, but the new schedule is yet to be studied to make sure that the situation has been materially bettered.

Puzzles of Control.

Some recent announcements by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company have excited the curiosity of other railroad men regarding their meaning. It was announced last week that the Board of Directors had effected a change in the operating organization of the road, reconstituting the Manhattan Division. Yesterday it was announced that the company had leased, for a period of 999 years, all the property of the Delaware River Railroad and Bridge Company, all of whose stock is owned by the Pennsylvania," in accordance with the policy of unifying the Pennsylvania System and simplifying accounting." But both these operations, according to other railroad men's ideas, would now be within Mr. McAdoo's province, and entirely outside that of the Directors. Mr. McAdoo only last week issued an order dividing the Pennsylvania System into two separate operating units. Apparently there are many things about Government control which even railroad men themselves do not understand.

Waiting for Their Contracts.

The annual meeting of the Erie was again postponed for two weeks yesterday, because the Government contract, which the meeting is to ratify, is not yet ready to be submitted to them. Meanwhile the St. Paul Directors meet again this week, apparently with no better basis for taking the long-deferred action on their dividends than they had at the last monthly meeting.

Spot Cotton Sales.

No less than 2,100 bales of spot cotton changed hands on the New York market last Saturday, after the close of regular business on the floor, and in the South yesterday 3,128 bales were sold at Galveston at 29 cents; 1,166 at New Orleans at 28.75 cents; 1,250 bales at Memphis at 30 cents; 2,907 bales at Houston at 29 cents, and the New York futures market still hangs fairly steady below the 25-cent level. Explanations? There are nearly as many as there are cotton brokers. The trouble is they don't explain.

SERVICE BOARD ACTS TO FINISH SUBWAYS

Adopts Resolution Providing That Contractors May Complete Work on a Cost Basis.

GOES TO ESTIMATE BOARD

Commission Outlines a Program of Construction, Giving Lines Which It Says Should Be Finished Quickly.

The Public Service Commission adopted a resolution yesterday providing that the subway work be finished under an agreement providing that the contractors do the work on a cost basis, and that the advance in wages demanded by the workmen, numbering about 5,500 be granted from May 15. This resolution, together with a list of the rapid transit lines remaining to be completed, and other information in much detail, was forwarded to the Board of Estimate, which meets today.

The suggested modifications of the pending contracts permitted by the Lockwood law were considered by the commission as the best solution of the problem which confronted the contractors because of the increased costs due to the war, which threatened them with bankruptcy. A resolution recently passed by the representatives of the men employed in the work was to the effect that they would quit on June 1, unless the increases in pay asked for were granted. It was conceded by both the contractors and the commission that if the men went out that it would be very difficult, if not impossible, to fill their places because of the large demand for workmen of this class.

If the suggestion of the commission is accepted by the Board of Estimate the men will keep on with the work and the details of the plan may be worked out at leisure. No figures are yet obtainable as to what the increase in the cost of the work will be. Mayor Hylan thought it would amount to something like $10,000,000, and it is known that the commission is not inclined to dispute this estimate.

Commission Urges Prompt Action.

The resolution says that the commission is of the opinion that the Board of Estimate ought promptly to utilize the privileges granted by the Lockwood law to modify the contracts, and explains the difficulties caused by the war which threaten "to postpone indefinitely the making available of the transportation facilities whose operation depends on work now in progress." Then the resolution says:

For the purpose of enabling the present labor emergency to be met in time, and for the development of a policy and the procedure acceptable to the Board of Estimate and the Commission, the Commission hereby announces that if the Board of Estimate at this time approve of such a general policy with respect to the lines and work, the Commission will proceed on the assumption that, in proper form and on suitable terms, to be determined by the Board and the Commission jointly, there shall be offered to each contractor now engaged on rapid transit railroad construction under a contract entered into with the City of New York prior to April 6, 1917, a opportunity to enter into an agreement for the completion of the work remaining thereunder, on a basis of actual and necessary cost and no profit, pursuant to such an agreement and stipulation as is contemplated by and provided for in the Lockwood Law; that the Commission will offer such further adjustments, pursuant to Section 5 of the said act, as the emergency may seem to warrant and as the said Board of Estimate will approve; but that irrespective of agreement as to matters prior to this date, the policy will be to give to each contractor, on such terms as the Board of Estimate and the Commission may jointly determine and approve, an opportunity of providing for future work on an actual cost basis.

In a letter accompanying the resolution the commission explained to the Board of Estimate that the resolution was not designed to express with much definiteness the course of the co-operative action by the commission and the board in order to get the new lines in operation at the earliest possible moment. The commission suggests that if the board should disagree with the program proposed in the resolution, that "time and public expense will be saved if any points of divergence of policy are now made clear, to the end that efforts may be concentrated to the carrying out of the work," so that an agreement between them may be reached quickly. Then the letter says:

The commission understands that if, by the joint action of the commission and the Board of Estimate, prompt assurance of procedure along these lines is given to the contractors, the contractors will put in force, as of May 15, the scale of increased wages recently filed by the labor representative with the Board of Estimate and the commission.

The commission believes that all of the rapid transit construction now in progress ought to be completed as expeditiously as practicable. Energies ought to be concentrated upon the completion of the work and lines of the greatest importance, but the commission does not believe that any of the present work should be abandoned or indefinitely postponed, if that can be avoided. A little more than $30,000,000 worth of work remains to be done on outstanding contracts.

Commissions Program of Work.

The following lines the commission thinks ought to be completed as quickly as possible, the list including all of those now under contract except the Culver line and the Nostrand Avenue and Livonia Avenue extension of the Eastern Parkway line in Brooklyn, which are deemed "desirable," but of less importance than the others:

The Broadway line from Times Square to a point above Forty-sixth Street. This would enable the clearing up of the street surfaces in this vicinity. If possible the line should also be finished through to the Sixtieth Street tunnel to Queens, where a connection would be had with the Astoria and Corona lines.

The Willoughby, Montague, and Whitehall Streets subway and tunnel connecting the four tracks in Broadway, which would double the capacity of the Fourth Avenue subway.

The connection joining the Brighton Beach line with the Fourth Avenue system.

The Fourteenth Street-Eastern District line. This line will greatly relieve the present congestion on the Williamsburg Bridge during rush hours.

The Old Slip-Clark Street tunnel of the Fulton Street connection. This line is necessary to enable the two trunk lines in this borough to carry passengers to the limit of their capacity. These trunk lines to be operated through Seventh and Lexington Avenues are eliminated from consideration because they ar nearly ready for operation.

In all thirty-four contracts will be affected by any new arrangement which may be made.

At yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate the report of the Public Service Commission in relation to the request for an appropriation of $300,000 to complete connections at Times Square and in Brooklyn was considered. Controller Craig said that it was his understanding that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which was to do the work, was in default, and that he thought the report of the commission should contain a clause in the modified agreement which would protect the city in the matter of any of its rights.

Mayor Hylan remarked that the longer the work was delayed the greater would be the profit to the Interborough. After discussion it was resolved to withhold action until the suggested clause should be put in the agreement. As soon as this word reached the commission the agreement was amended as requested, and it will come again before the board at today's meeting.

THE COTTON MARKET

The local cotton market yesterday appeared to be the concrete result of a struggle between two opposing forces, which while always present are not always so evident to the eye of the observer as they were yesterday. On the one side there was the settled belief of nearly all local traders in a much larger carry-over of this year's crop than is needed to justify present prices, combined with expectation of continued drastic cuts in exports, and with all this a very much larger crop this Fall than last. On the other side was the plain fact that it is impossible to get cotton on the spot anywhere in the country at anything comparable to the price of future contracts, and that the men who have cotton show no anxiety whatever to sell. Between the two the market, after some fluctuations, wound up very much as it had closed last Saturday. New crop deliveries were slightly cheaper, and old crop deliveries dearer, the range being from 27 points higher on June to 19 points lower on March.

At the opening prices were off from 11 to 37 points, and the market looked rather weak, largely in consequence of news from England regarding the tightening of consumption restrictions, combined with several favorable crop reports from private sources of good standing and reliability. However, it was noticed that some houses with Liverpool connections were selling new crop deliveries and buying July, and domestic trade representatives not only picked up a little July cotton, but also took in a fair proportion of the October offerings near the bottom. It was reported that low grades were still in demand in the South to an unexpected extent, and as prices steadied some local buying "on the feel of the market" made its appearance, together with some short covering. The resulting advance was not sustained, however, and the close showed a reaction of several points under realizing.

SALVATIONISTS' FUND CLIMBS TO $2,257,334

Workers Celebrate Going Far Over Million Mark—New York City Gave $285,000.

The Salvation Army last night celebrated the success of its War Fund Drive with a victory meeting in headquarters, 122 West Fourteenth Street, at which it was announced the fund had netted $2,257,334 nationally, while New York City had overshot its mark of $250,000 by $35,000, with prospects of reaching $300,000 by tonight. The drive, which was for $1,000,000, lasted two weeks, ending a week ago Saturday.

In a statement of gratitude to those who worked in and supported the drive, Commander Evangeline Booth said:

"You have proved your patriotism, your Christian spirit, and your confidence in the work of the Salvation Army in extending succor and relief to humanity wherever possible by a most substantial service.

"In cordial recognition of all you have done, and in sincere gratitude therefor, I cherish the hope, as Commander in Chief of the Salvation Army in America, that when the needs of our defenders in France may again call for sacrifice of time and comfort in organizing another war fund, you will be able to reflect with gratification and pride upon this first effort, whereupon we may be honored and favored with your very valuable help in emergencies to come."

During the time the drive was on, the Salvation Army fund workers also helped in collecting funds for the Catholic drive, and during the past week the army workers have been enlisted to a great extent in Red Cross collecting.

COPPER OUTPUT INCREASES.

The output of copper at the refineries last year amounted to 2,428,546,171 pounds, an increase of 169,158,856 pounds over the preceding year, according to the records of the United States Geological Survey. Of the total, 1,873,546,171 pounds came from mines of the United States and 555,000,000 pounds had its origin in other countries, being sent here for refining.

In addition to the output of new copper from the mines, 79,110,896 pounds was recovered as "second-hand" metal. The aggregate production from American smelters was 1,886,120,721 pounds, compared with 1,927,850,548 pounds in 1916. Arizona led in smelter output with 719,035,314 pounds, while Montana produced 276,225,977 pounds, Michigan 268,508,091 pounds, and Utah 227,840,447 pounds. The total value of the 1917 output by the refineries of the United States at the average price of 27.3 cents a pound was $514,910,956, against $474,288,000 in 1916.

ACCEPT FLOUR RESTRICTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 27.—The British Ambassador at Washington recently informed the Jamaica Government that the American authorities had decided to curtail Jamaica's supply of flour to about 12,000 bags per month.

It now develops that, owing to recent importations from the United States and Canada, there is some five months' supply of flour in the island. Merchants are approaching the Government with a proposal to ship 20,00 bags to England so as to comply with the American restrictions.

To Settle Claims Against Stockholders.

Superintendent of Banks George I. Skinner yesterday applied to Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn for permission to settle the claims against fifty-eight of the stockholders of the Lafayette Trust Company, which is in liquidation, on a 75 per cent. basis. Mr. Skinner said that if the application was granted about $200,000 would be available for the payment of a dividend to the depositors and creditors of the defunct institution. Justice Callaghan reserved decision. The creditors of the company, which closed ten years ago, have thus far received out of the assets something more than one-half the amount of their claims.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Stockholders of the Fifth Avenue Bank at a meeting held yesterday ratified the proposal to increase the bank's capital stock from $100,000 to $200,000. The details of the offering of the new stock have not yet been formulated.

A syndicate composed of Spencer Trask & Co.; Harris, Forbes & Co., Inc.; Coffin & Burr, the First National Bank of Milwaukee, and the Wisconsin Trust Company of Milwaukee sold within a few hours all of the $2,000,000 Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company two-year 7 per cent. secured notes due May 1, 1920, recently offered by them at 98¼ and interest.

Frederick M. Lambert, formerly of Frazier & Co., has been admitted to partnership in the firm of Sutton & Co., effective June 1.

Bonbright & Co., Inc., announce that their Paris office has been removed from 12 Rue Halevy to 9 Rue Saint Florentin.

Salomon Brothers & Hutzler have just issued their eighth edition of a manual on short term securities, giving descriptive matter on railroad, industrial, and foreign Government notes.

Douglas Fenwick & Co. have issued a circular on the Lone Star Gas Company, which had been paying annual dividends at the rate of 8 per cent., but whose last quarterly disbursement was 2 per cent. and ½ per cent. extra.

The Consolidated Interstate-Callahan Mining Company reports the gross value of shipments in the quarter ended March 31 at $461,743 and the total income $466,908, compared with $614,272 in the same period last year. The profit was $149,596, against $377,575.

The Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company had a gross income of $577,697 in April, an increase of $53,844 over the same month last year. The net income applicable to bond interest amounted to $268,172, a gain of $25,791.

The Emerson Phonograph Company shows in its report for the year ended April 30 a gross income of $339,688. After providing for expenses and depreciation a net profit of $29,953 remained.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,858 packages. A little steadier holding of the finer grades of fresh creamery, but trade only moderate. Secondary qualities plenty and selling at irregular prices. Ladles and packing stock neglected and weak. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb. 43¾@44¼c; extras, (92 score,) 43¼c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41@42¾c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37@40¼c; thirds, 35@36c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 45@45½c; extras, 44@44½c; firsts, 42@43½c; seconds, 39@41½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 43c; good to prime, 40½@42½c; common to fair, 35@40c; renovated, extras, 37½@38c; firsts, 36@37c; lower grades, 32@34c; imitation creamery, firsts, 33½@34c; ladles, current make, firsts, 31@32c; seconds, 29½@30c; lower grades, 28@29c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 29½@30c; No. 2, 28½@29c; lower grades, 26@28c.

EGGS—30,880 cases. Although receipts as posted yesterday were heavy the offerings of strictly fine quality northern eggs free from serious mixture with dark yokes or shrunken eggs were comparatively light and there was a fair call for such at sustained prices. The market was burdened with liberal offerings of average good and lower grade eggs which were pressed for sale at weak and irregular prices; full range of values showed little change. Nearby white eggs were in light receipt and market was clearing a little better than heretofore. Strictly fine to fancy goods was rated steady; undergrades still irregular and had to go at comparatively easy figures. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36½@37c; storage packed firsts, 34½@36c; regular packed extra firsts, 34½@35½c; regular packed firsts, 33@34½c; seconds and poorer, 28@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1 storage packed, 29½@30c; No. 1 regular packed, 28½@29½c; No. 2 and poorer, 25@28c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 26@28c; under grades, 18@25c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 40@41c; ordinary to prime, 37@39c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 37@39c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 35@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 38@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 30@35½c; duck eggs, 29@45c.

American Capital in Canada

The penetration of American capital into the Dominion of Canada has been most marked of recent years, and it is estimated that U. S. investments in Canada now approximate $1,272,000,000.

Canada's potentialities chiefly lie in her rich undeveloped natural resources—forests, mines, fisheries, water powers. As nearest neighbor and following intimate relationships during the great war, the United States seems destined to play an important part in the further progress of the Dominion after the war.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

To the Stockholders of the Keewis Realty Co., Inc.:

Gentlemen: A special meeting of the stockholders of the Keewis Realty Co., Inc., will be held on the 5th day of June, 1918, at 2 o'clock P. M. of that day at the office of the company, No. 115 Broadway, Room 817, in the City of New York, State of New York, for the purpose of voting upon the proposition to reduce its capital stock from $226,-000 consisting of 2,260 shares of the par value of $100 each, to $191,250, to consist of 2,250 shares of the par value of $85 each, and authorize the distribution of $15 per share in cash to the stockholders of this company.

J. EDWARD MURPHY, President.
E. T. HAWKINS, Secretary.

BILLIONS ON PAPER OF DEUTSCHE BANK

Transactions for the Last Year Were 188,000,000,000 Marks, Its Annual Report Says.

PAYS 14 PER CENT. DIVIDEND

3,000 Women Are Now Employed and 10,000 Men, Including Those in the German Armies.

With the piling up of war credits in Germany figures for the transactions of the great banks of Berlin are reaching enormous heights. The last report of the Deutsche Bank for the year 1917, as given in the Vossische Zeitung of April 25, shows a total "turnover" of 188,000,000,000 marks, or about $45,000,-000,000 at the pre-war rate of exchange, and this was an increase of 59,000,000,-000 marks over the business of the year before.

The bank has been able to increase its rate of dividend to 14 per cent., a figure that it never reached in peace times, and 1½ per cent. above the rate for last year.

The statement of resources and liabilities shows a balance of 5,735,000,000 marks; ($1,376,000,000 at the normal rate,) which is compared with the sum of 3,573,000,000 for the year before.

Of the resources by far the largest amount is represented by "exchange and non-interest bearing treasury notes." Their value is put at 3,053,232,-000 marks.

An interesting feature of the statement is the part women are now taking in German banking work. Of 13,000 employes of the Deutsche Bank, including those now in the German armies, 3,000 are women.

The business covered by the latest report includes that of two banking institutions which were absorbed by the Deutsche Bank in March, 1917, the Silesian Bankverein and the North German Creditanstalt, on account of which 25,-000,000 marks of new stock was issued. This new stock shares in the 14 per cent. dividend just declared.

The Vossische Zeitung, in speaking of the bank's record for the year, says:

"For many years one has been accustomed to gigantic figures for the Deutsche Bank statement of accounts and balances. The present figures, however, so far surpass every thing before that they arouse amazement and wonder. * * *

"A glance at the statement of the balance shows to what this expansion of the figures is to be traced, to the enormous increase of foreign credits. The credits in the running accounts increased from 3,503,000,000 marks to 5,689,000,000. * * * This amazing collection of foreign wealth is and remains the chief source of the profit and loss account, although the difference between debit and credit interest, between interest received and interest paid, has decreased. Not to an increase of profit, on separate items, but to the big sums involved is due the increase of profit from interest. * * *

"Altogether there is a gross profit of 112,310,000 marks. That is an amount that passes the capital of the year 1886 (100,000,000 marks) and a nice sum besides. Last year, 1916, it was 24,750,000 marks over the capital of 1886.

"This splendid growth of the gross profits is accompanied by a considerable increase in expenditures. Including those who are now in the field the bank has an army of 13,000 employes, among whom are 3,000 women assistants. At the same time the salary payments increased from 23,850,000 marks to 36,-260,000. Here is included the war relief for the employes, as well as for the families of those in the field, altogether 10,300,000 marks. There are also further increasing costs for war welfare work and increasing outlays for the employes welfare association, and with that a greater division of profits (the number of members having increased) to the amount of 3,300,000 marks.

"Considering finally the greater taxes, 7,130,000, as against 5,450,000 last year, as well as the regular writing off for equipment (standing on the books as 1 mark) and bank buildings, there remains a net profit for 1917 of almost 50,000,000 marks. * * *

"The dividend on the increased capital accounts for 38,500,000 marks, 7,-250,000 more than last year, the share of the profits going to the Board of Supervisors is 423,000 marks more, the share for the employes is 500,000 marks more than last year. There is left over 12,-420,000 marks, in comparison with the former balance of 12,270,000 marks."

CHANGE IN COPPER COMPANY

The Mother Lode Copper Mines Company has passed to the control of the Kennecott Copper Corporation in accordance with the plan which became public some weeks ago. A new corporation, to be known as the Mother Lode Coalition Mines Company, is to be formed under Delaware laws, with 2,-500,000 shares of stock of no par value. Of this stock 1,225,000 shares are to be exchanged for stock of the old Mother Lode Company on the basis of 1.63 new shares for each old share. The remaining 1,275,000 shares are to be issued to Stephen Birch, President of the Kennecott Copper Corporation.

It was announced yesterday that 80 per cent. of the Mother Lode Mines Company shareholders had ratified the plan. The new company will pay the $500,000 outstanding bonds of the old company and provide $1,000,000 new working capital. A special meeting of Mother Lode stockholders has been called for July 1 at Seattle to ratify the proposal formally. In a letter notifying the share owners of the change in Mother Lode's corporate affairs, James J. Godfrey, President, said that it had become necessary to raise additional money for adequate plant construction, and the arrangement was made with Mr. Birch to the end that the property might be put on a profitable basis.

Central of Georgia Earnings.

The report of the Central of Georgia Railway Company for the calendar year 1917, issued yesterday, shows gross operating revenues of $16,024,537, an increase of $2,239,293, with an increase of $334,590 in net operating revenues, which totaled $4,978,688. The operating income of $4,091,536 represented an increase of $387,850 for the year, but owing to losses in nonoperating income and an increase in fixed charges, the net corporate income for the year of $2,640,627 was a decrease of $9,023.

WHEAT.

Good rains occurred in Western Kansas over Sunday and it is the prevailing belief in the wheat trade that in most every section of the country there is now enough moisture in the ground to carry the crop to harvest. Next month's crop report will probably show an improvement over the May figures, and it is thought that the figures may indicate a yield around 625,000,000 bushels. Some authorities in the Northwest also take a most optimistic view of the Spring wheat condition and estimates have been heard as high as 300,000,000. With this favorable prospect in view, the trade is not particularly concerned over the steadily decreasing supplies of old wheat, and the fact that the visible is now down to about 1,500,-000 bushels caused little comment.

RYE.

CORN.

The corn market developed pronounced weakness, closing at about the lowest, with net losses of 1⅜@2¼c. There was heavy general selling and, aside from covering, the demand was slow. The visible supply of corn in the United States showed a decrease for the week of 711,000, bringing the total to 14,407,000, compared with 2,765,000 last year. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.80¾; No. 4 yellow, $1.70¼, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was moderately active, and prices were easy in sympathy with corn and on lower cash prices. The May position was particularly affected, and it was the prevailing impression that a large amount of the cash oats recently sold in Chicago to go in store may be delivered on contract unless longs decide to liquidate. The visible supply lost 18,000 bushels for the week, and the total was 20,496,000, compared with 19,-732,000 last year. The local cash market was barely steady; standard quoted at 81½@82c; No. 2 white, 82¼c; No. 3 white, 81@81½c; No. 4 white, 80@81c; fancy clipped white, 83@86c; ordinary clipped white, 82@83, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was firmer, with a fairly good demand on account of the proposed advance in freight rates, and, while part of the gains were lost in sympathy with grain, the close was generally above the final of Saturday. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 46,000; estimated for Tuesday, 24,000; Kansas City received 12,000 and Omaha 4,900.

COFFEE.

The somewhat irregular ruling of prices in coffee futures yesterday probably reflected conflicting views as to the effect of the latest Government regulation concerning imports. The volume of business was too light, however, to suggest any aggressive sentiment either way, and after opening at an advance of 1 to 3 points, the market closed net 1 point higher to 2 points lower. The local spot market was dull and unchanged at 8⅝c for Rio 7s and 10¾@11¼c for Santos 4s. Members of the Coffee Exchange have voted to close the Exchange on all Saturdays during June, July, and August, and also on Friday, May 31.—Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The freer arrival of raw sugar is keeping refiners busy unloading ships, and practically all plants are in full operation, increasing meltings to a considerable extent. No section in the Eastern territory reports any scarcity of refined sugar, but one or two sections in the West are not over plentifully supplied. The demand has begun to show more activity as the warm weather approaches. The International Sugar Committee reports purchases of 139,200 bags Cuban raws at 4.985c, late May, first half June shipment, and 15,200 tons Porto Ricos, June shipment, at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Net declines from 1 to 7 points were registered at the close of an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The selling movement, which had caused sharp reactions in the morning session and was followed at midday by a substantial rally, was renewed with greater force in the final hour. This was the result of the digestion of President Wilson's address to Congress on the necessity of new financial legislation and his confirmation of the earlier reports that the long delayed German drive had been launched.

GIVE UP OLD SILVER TO AID THE NATION

GERMAN WOMAN BRINGS RING

Wants to Help America Overthrow the Kaiser — Trinket Fund in Two Months Got Some $30,000.

The War Savings Metal Exchange Committee opened its metal exchange in the Winfield Building, at Fortieth Street and Fifth Avenue, yesterday, and before closing $700 worth of articles that had long been personal ornaments or had been accumulating dust in closets and safe deposit vaults were on their way to the melting pot to assist the Government to win the war. Each article was appraised by experts of the trade and the owners received their value in War Savings Stamps, which, as one of the committee in charge remarked, were better than cash, as they brought interest with them.

From the time the exchange opened informally in the morning there were customers constantly coming in. They brought many and various articles, some of them worth no more than their value as metal and others valued by their owners because of personal association or excellence in carving or design. Each piece will be melted and converted into bullion.

One of the first to arrive was Mrs. L. A. Fisher of 403 West 115th Street. She brought several pieces of silverware which, she said, had been part of her mother's wedding presents. Among the first pieces turned in was a silver coffee pot sent by Mrs. Charles S. Whitman. She had intended to bring the Governor's coffee pot in person, but was unable to do so, and sent it by messenger. Mrs. Joseph Griswold Deane, head of the committee, placed it on exhibition, and it remained on view nearly all day.

Another early caller was a German woman, who spoke so little English that she asked for some one who could speak German. She handed in a wedding ring, saying she wanted to give it to the Government. It was explained that the Government was not accepting gifts, but was taking articles in exchange for Savings Stamps. She told Mrs. Dean that she came because she wanted to see the present form of government in Germany overthrown.

The articles varied in value from a collar button for which one stamp was given to a large silver piece valued at about $200. One young woman brought a gold mesh bag that was appraised at $125, irrespective of the artistic value of the bag. One woman came with a soup ladle and silver pitcher. E. M. Gattle, the Fifth Avenue silversmith, who acted as appraiser, valued them at $20.

"All right," said the visitor, "I am glad the Government can use them, for they have been of no use to me for years. Give me the stamps."

Several pewter articles were also turned over to the exchange, but were afterward rejected because of the press of business.

The exchange was formally opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Assistant United States Treasurer Martin Vogel and V. M. Bovie, Superintendent of the Assay Office, 23 Pine Street, were present, as were Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, Mrs. Charlotte Delafield, Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont, Mrs. E. P. Morgan, Mrs. Ogden Reid, and Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, members of the Exchange Committee.

Mr. Vogel, speaking on behalf of the Government, said there was need of increasing the supply of silver bullion, so that the United States could keep its gold. The United States Treasury, he said, had 87,000,000 silver dollars that were being melted up because of the demand for the metal in countries where there is a silver standard. In the last two months, Mr. Vogel said, the Government had received between $20,000 and $30,000 worth of metal from articles turned in by the Trinket Fund, and since the beginning of the war it had received about $1,000,000 a year from this source. The present movement was different, he said, in that the Government gave for value received.

When the exchange closed there were piled up alongside the cashier a varied assortment of sideboard decorations, heirlooms, jewelry, and miscellaneous articles. There were also in the lot children's articles, given up in many cases because they had been outgrown. A careful watch is being maintained at the exchange for those who cannot vouch for the ownership of the articles they bring. It was found last night that sixty sheets of stamps had been given out. There are forty-five stamps to a sheet, which means that the Government has given a five-year note for about $700 of precious metals received from residents of New York. Noteholders include Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. Warner Leeds, Mrs. Dallas Pratt, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, and Mrs. Laurent Oppenheimer. Miss Beatrice Straus acted as saleswoman, Mrs. Clarence Smith was in charge of stamps, and Miss Evan Evans was cashier.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

A good business proposition that would appeal to business men—to men who have the surplus means to invest in profitable enterprises—may be advertised in the Business Opportunities column of The New York Times with full expectation of favorable response. COAL ALLOTMENTS.

Division of the Bituminous Product to be Announced Today.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Announcement by the Fuel Administration of the apportionment by States of bituminous coal for the new coal year is expected tomorrow. Fuel Administrator Garfield said today the industrial survey to determine the fuel needs of the United States had been completed, and final compilation of figures now being made would enable the Fuel Administrator of each State to know the amount of soft coal that will be available for distribution.

It is understood that considerably in excess of 600,000,000 tons will have to be mined to meet all requirements during the year. Apportionment and distribution will be by States.

Under the plan to be announced it is expected that anthracite coal will be distributed on a short haul basis. This will mean that many States, particularly those in the South and West, using hard coal in the past will have to burn bituminous. On the other hand factories, closer to anthracite mines than to bituminous, probably will be required to use hard coal even if its cost is greater.

The Fuel Administration "does not make any concealment of the prospect that there will be a coal shortage during the present coal year," said a statement tonight, in which the public was urged to order its coal for next Winter during the Summer.

"The requirements for the year for bituminous coal as ascertained by the Administration experts," said the statement, "indicate that the production will fall considerably short of the necessary amount. The Fuel Administration is devoting its efforts toward removing as far as possible the deliveries of coal for domestic purposes and essential war industries from the freight congestions on the railroads that are sure to come with the Winter season."

OUR TOTAL EXPORTS FALL.

But Amount Sent for Belgian Relief Far Exceeds That of Last Year.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Increased shipments for Belgian relief last April sent exports totaling $4,109,860, compared with $823,753 in the same month the year before. Figures announced today by the Bureau of Commerce show that in the ten months of the fiscal year relief shipments totaled $72,302,295, twice the value during the corresponding period the year before.

Total exports from the United States for April and for the ten months' period showed decreases. The figures for April were $500,116,504, compared with $529,927,815 the April before, and for the ten months $4,893,671,856, compared with $5,166,907,000 the same period the year previous. Exports to Europe decreased from $3,597,559,503 to $3,099,186,928, and those to Africa fell off more than $1,000,000. Exports to other countries increased.

Imports increased both for April and for the ten months, due to heavy increases in the value of goods brought from North and South America and Asia. Imports for April were $276,981,327, compared with $253,935,966 the same months the year before, and for the ten months they were $2,362,452,434, compared with $2,072,005,082.

To Take Up Queens Gas Rate Case.

The Queens Borough Gas & Electric Company withdrew yesterday the schedules filed with the Public Service Commission for an increase in its rates and filed instead a notice that it desired to make the increases. This was done in order that the usual course might be followed. The commission will now hold public hearings, when the company will have an opportunity to present reasons why it should receive permission to increase its rate for gas from $1.15 to $1.40 and its rate for electric current from 12 cents to 14 cents per kilowatt hour.

HELD FOR KILLING SUITOR.

Angelo Galuzo, Police Say, Objected to Attentions to His Daughter.

Angelo Galuzo was held without bail on a charge of murder when arraigned in the New Jersey Avenue Court, Brooklyn, yesterday. She is accused of having killed Rosario Salamone, a subway worker, because, the police believe, Salamone persisted in his attentions to Antonette Galuzo after her father had objected. Salamone's body was found in a vacant lot on Bergen Street, near Eastern Parkway, early Sunday morning. There was a bullet wound in the back and the head was almost severed.

The body was found by Policeman Sweeney of the Brownsville Station, who before he found it heard a woman's voice crying, "don't do it," a pistol shot followed. The police believe that the cry came from a woman in passing automobile who was trying to prevent the crime. When Galuzo was arrested a charge of carrying concealed weapons was lodged against him. This was changed to murder yesterday and he pleaded not guilty. Galuzo is 44 years old and lives at 2,325 Pacific Street. Salamone lived at 320 Rockaway Avenue.

APPROVES RAILWAY LOAN.

Finance Corporation Will Let St. Louis Street Railways Have $3,235,000.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Approval of a direct loan of $3,235,0000 to the United Railways Company of St. Louis was announced tonight by the War Finance Corporation. The loan will run for six months, secured by first mortgage and underlying bonds plus $800,000 in Liberty bonds, and the interest rate will be 7 per cent.

In announcing the action the Finance Corporation called attention to the fact that its function primarily is to make advances to banks, and that loans are made to war industries and utilities only in exceptional cases. In view of the number of direct applications filed, the statement said, an erroneous impression seemed to exist.

SAYS TEACHER HIT HER BOY.

Mrs. Darcy Makes Charge in Court Against Dunkelbloom.

Harold Dunkelbloom, a teacher in Public School 43, Amsterdam Avenue and 129th Street, was in Washington eHights Court yesterday in answer to a summons issued by Magistrate Groehl by Mrs. Margaret Darcy of 449 West 130th Street, charging that the teacher had struck her 10-year-old son, Luke, across the head with a blackboard pointer. Magistrate Groehl examined the boy's head in court and observed a slight discoloration near the right temple.

Magistrate Groehl decided to investigate the case further and he put the hearing over until Friday. He requested the teacher to have the Principal of the school in court on that day.

DISCUSS RUBBER EMBARGO.

Dealers Plan Ways to Meet the Cut in Importations.

The Rubber Trade Association of New York, composed of importers handling crude rubber, met yesterda yat the Waldorf-Astoria to consider ways of meeting the embargo put on the importation of rubber by the Government for the purpose of conserving ship tonnage.

W. E. Bruyn of Littlejohn & Co., 138 Front Street, presided at the meeting, which was attended by seventy-five importers of rubber. According to the Government plan, imports are to be cut to a basis of 100,00 tons of rubber a year.

CLING TO CANOE FOR HOURS.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., May 27.—After struggling in the water for more than two hours, holding onto their overturned canoe, Renselair Whitman and Thayer Francis, two Southampton youths, had a narrow escape from drowning in Big Fresh Pond yesterday afternoon. They were rescued by two other youths. When a large wave capsized their canoe, Whitman, unable to swim, caught hold of Francis, who aided him to the overturned boat.

Two hours later Melville Morris and Carlton Reeves heard the screams of the two lads and rescued them.

Grief-Stricken, Tries to Die.

Grief over the death of his son impelled Harry Levine, a tailor of 283A New Jersey Avenue, Brooklyn, to attempt suicide twice this morning. Late last night Levine and his wife, Mrs. Anna Levine were called to Bradford Street Hospital, where their son, Joseph, 11, lay in a critical condition. He died before they reached him, and Levine, who idolized the boy, returned home at once and when the house was clear of neighbors, shut himself in the bath room and turned on the gas jets. His wife suspected his intention and when she found the doors locked called policemen, who broke in the door. Levine was revived, broke away from the policemen and tried to jump from a second story window. After treatment in Bradford Street Hospital, he was sent to Kings County Hospital a prisoner.

Escaped Convict Soon Caught.

OSSINING, N. Y., May 27.—Samuel Costello, a burglar, who escaped from Sing Sing's prison Farm at Wingdale, had less than twenty-four hours freedom before he was recaptured aboard a Harlem Railroad train at Bedford Hills today by Policeman James Russell. Costello says he walked safely by troopers of the State Constabulary, to whom no alarm had been sent.

Costello boarded the Pawling local at Pawling shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning. The conductor, becoming suspicious, telephoned ahead to the Bedford police. The policeman had received a description of the fugitive, and when questioned Costello admitted he was the much-sought "honor" man.

Find Cripple's Body in River.

The body of an unidentified man about 50 years old was picked up in the upper bay off Governors Island yesterday by Recior Hercke, pilot on the U. S. Engineering lighter Rockaway of St. George. The body, which was turned over to the police of Harbor A, was that of a man five feet eight inches in height and 160 pounds in weight. The man had black hair and black mustache and was partly bald. The left foot was deformed. He wore a black overcoat.

Loyalty of the Lutheran Church.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 27.—At the first session of the seventeenth annual convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of New York and New England here this evening, Kingston was selected as the place for the 1919 meeting. Addresses made at tonight's meeting asserted that the Lutheran Church was distinctly American and had shown itself to be loyal in the present war. Sessions will be continued tomorrow.

To Demand 44-Hour Week.

BOSTON, May 27.—Provision of a work week of forty-four hours is to be demanded in future agreements with employers in Canada and the United States, according to a vote passed at the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union here today. It is stated that this new schedule, which is four hours shorter than the present one, would be presented only when present agreements expire.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Operator Acquires Manhattan and Bronx Apartments in Cash Deals.

Frederick Brown, operator, continues to be prominently identified with the real estate market. Mr. Brown purchased yesterday from William F. Connor the two five-story apartment houses at 558 and 562 West 189th Street, covering a plot 100 by 100, between Audubon and St. Nicholas Avenues.

The properties have been held at $140,000. Nehring Brothers were the brokers in the sale, which was made on an all-cash basis.

In the Bronx, he bought from the Loring Construction Company the five-story apartment house at 2,226 Loring Place, known as the Laurington, on a plot 79 by 127 by irregular. The house overlooks the Hall of Fame and has been held at $130,000. J. A. Ulanov negotiated the sale.

Tenant Buys on Cooper Square.

Morris Simon, the tenant, purchased from Emma F. Wyckoff and others 12 Cooper Square, a four-story altered building, on a lot 25 by 76.11. Horace S. Ely & Co. were the brokers. The buyer has occupied the property for about fifteen years.

Activity in the Bronx.

Frederick Brown has resold to Johanna Bloomfield 491 East 140th Street, a five-story apartment house, on plot 37.6 by 100, near Brook Avenue. This structure and 495, adjoining, a similar house, were acquired last week by Mr. Brown from the Joysil Realty Company. Charles Kountze was the broker.

A. Blumenthal sold for Bertha Sengrad, 1,429 Bryant Avenue, a five-story apartment house, on plot 50 by 100, near Freeman Street, to Morris Polsky. The same broker has resold the property for Mr. Polsky to the Benenson Realty Company. Both were cash transactions.

Queens Borough Sales.

H. Richter & Co. sold for the Cato Realty Company to Mary J. Cox, the house at the southwest corner of West End and Bay Avenues, Rockaway Park.

The Barber Asphalt Paving Company sold its property, 100 by 100 feet, on the north side of Sixth Street, 175 feet west of West Avenue, Long Island City, to J. W. Coulston of East Orange, N. J.

J. J. Buckley sold to the Triangle Holding Company the dwelling and plot, 53 by 117 feet, on the east corner of Jackson Avenue and Sixth Street, Long Island City.

The Dickel Construction Company sold to A. Brezinski, Inc., the dwelling and plot, 42 by 75 feet, on the south side of Hammond Street, 102 feet east of Campion Street, Jamaica.

Westchester County.

The Robert E. Farley Organization sold for the estates of Tappan Zee, Inc., a plot on Broadway, Tarrytown, N. Y., to W. E. Caldwell of New York City.

Connecticut.

Cosmo Hamilton of New York, the author and playwright, purchased the residence of Charles Ingram, on Calhoun Drive, at Greenwich, through the agency of Franklin Edson. The property, which was held at $50,000, consists of a dwelling of the New English cottage type with about three acres of land.

Large Warehouse Lease.

The Jarvis Stores, Inc., leased through William A. White & Sons and Walter B. Olive, from the Henry-William Company, Edmund Coffin President, represented by Goodale, Perry & Dwight, the seven-story warehouse at 726 to 736 Greenwich Street, southwest corner of Perry Street. This building faces 136 feet on Greenwich Street and 122 feet on Perry Street. It was occupied for a number of years by Austin, Nichols & Co. before their removal to Williamsburg. The Jarvis Company, about a year ago, leased the seven-story warehouse at 610 and 612 Greenwich Street, running through to 591 and 593 Washington Street. The lease just closed is for a long term of years, at a substantial increase over the former rental.

$500,000 Queens Borough Lease.

The Kindel Bed Company of Chicago leased the entire building at Anabel Avenue and Creek Street, Long Island City, to Albert T. Otto & Sons, Inc., and it will be occupied for the manufacture of dress forms. The building covers a plot 100 by 254. The lease is for a long term of years at an aggregate rental of $500,000. This building was erected by the Degnon Realty and Improvement Company in 1916, and is one of a similar group now occupied by the Defender Manufacturing Company, Ward Stationery Company, the Studebaker Company, Brett Lithographing Company, and Rome Metallic Bed Company. M. & L. Hess, Inc., negotiated the lease.

Commercial Leases.

Alice Maynard, now at 546 Fifth Avenue, has leased the store, basement, and second floor in 16 and 18 West Forty-sixth Street for a term of years. The lease was made by Pease & Elliman for the Silas E. Pearsall Company and the Schneider Anderson Company, and will provide larger quarters for the lessee.

Horace S. Ely & Co. leased for a client 561 Washington Street, a two-story brick stable, on lot 25 by 71, to W. L. H. Gallin for a term of years. The tenant will make extensive alterations and use the premises for garage purposes. The same brokers also leased the building at 412 and 414 Lafayette Street to Arrott & Faunce, Inc., hauling contractors of Philadelphia, for a term of years.

The Schulte Cigar Stores Company leased from the Adams Land and Building Company the store at the southeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street. Pease & Elliman and E. S. Willard & Co. were the brokers.

Realty Notes.

The White Fireproof Construction Company has been awarded the general contract for the erection of a five-story reinforced concrete cooperage building, 100 by 150, at Ninth and Henderson Streets, Jersey City, N. J., to cost approximately $205,000, for Swift & Co. Plans were prepared by A. E. Bump, and the building is to be completed in twelve weeks.

Justice Platzek of the Supreme Court has granted permission to the Congregation Sherith B'nai Israel to sell 22 East 118th Street, 20 by 100.11, to Beth David Anshel Wilna for $14,000.

Joseph P. Day will conduct a special sale today at 14 Vesey Street, at which a number of Manhattan, Brooklyn, and suburban properties will be offered at auction.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the Southern District of New York.—In the matter of CONSOLIDATED MOTORS CORPORATION, Bankrupt.—No. 23152.

To the creditors of the above-named bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that the real estate and factory building thereon situate, belonging to the estate of the above-named bankrupt, will be sold under the direction of Maurice P. Davidson, the Trustee, at public auction by Charles Shongood, United States Auctioneer, on the premises, Seneca Street and Foster Avenue, City of Schenectady, State of New York, on the 28th day of May, 1918, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The property to be sold is the premises with the manufacturing plant thereon situated located at Schenectady, New York, bounded and described as follows:

"Beginning at a point where Foster Avenue's easterly line intersects the within described property, running thence in an easterly direction about one hundred fifty-two (152) feet; thence in a northerly direction about four hundred twenty (420) feet to Stony Lane; thence in a westerly direction about one hundred and forty-one (141) feet; thence in a southerly direction to the place of beginning.

"Being the same premises conveyed by Joseph Dunfee and wife to Mohawk Valley Brewing Company by deed dated October 24th, 1905, and recorded in the Schenectady County Clerk's Office in Book 161 of Deeds, at page 135.

"Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land adjoining the premises above described and situated, lying and being in the Second Ward, formerly known as the Third Ward of the City and County of Schenectady and State of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.: Commencing at a point of intersection of the northerly line of the land formerly of William Van Vranken and the easterly margin of Foster Avenue at the northeasterly extremity of Foster Avenue, and running thence northerly on a line in continuation of said easterly line of Foster Avenue about four hundred and twenty (420) feet to the southerly margin of Stony Lane; and thence westerly along the southerly margin of Stony Lane about four hundred and twenty (420) feet to the said northerly line of land formerly of William Van Vranken, at a point about twenty-five (25) feet westerly from the place of beginning, and thence along said northerly line of the land formerly of William Van Vranken, about twenty-five (25) feet to the place of beginning.

"Being the same premises conveyed to The Mohawk Valley Brewing Company by Jane Helen Fuller, by deed dated January 5, 1906, and recorded in said Clerk's Office in Book 161 of Deeds at page 240.

"Also, being the same premises conveyed to Thomas J. Henry by Charles F. Fryer, Referee, by deed dated February 7, 1917, recorded in Schenectady County Clerk's Office February 7, 1917, in Book 258 of Deeds, at page 265."

On the foregoing property are located the main building owned by the bankrupt, occupying an area of about 248 feet by 78 feet; also a barn, 77 feet by 32 feet.

The said premises may be inspected on any business day prior to sale, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 5 P. M.

The Trustee reserves the right to withdraw any of the said property from sale, unless it shall bring at least 75 per centum of the appraised value.

Dated, NEW YORK, May 13th, 1918.

His sister, Sarah Rodman Baldwin, receives one-half the residuary estate and several pieces of real estate located in New Jersey, as well as all his household effects, bric-a-brac, jewelry, and art work. The other half of the residuary estate is made into a trust fund for his sister, Maria Prentice of Princeton, N. J. At the death of the residuary legatees their shares are to be divided between their issue.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Pressure is generally low over the northern half of the country, except in the Northwest, and showers occurred generally from New England and the Middle Atlantic States westward almost to the Pacific Coast. South of this area the weather was fair.

High temperatures continued in the Middle Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, the South, and Southwest, while in the upper lake region they fell considerably. Over the western half of the country, except in the extreme Southwest, temperatures have risen since Sunday, although they are still much below the seasonal average.

Unsettled weather will prevail Tuesday and Wednesday over the northern districts east of the Mississippi River, with showers over the greater portion of this area. In the South Atlantic States fair weather will continue, while in the East Gulf States fair weather will be followed by showers Wednesday.

It will be cooler Tuesday in the lake region and Wednesday in the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be moderate, shifting, with showers; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate south, except east of the South Florida coast, fair.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND TOMORROW.

Eastern New York—Showers Tuesday, cooler in the northern and central portions, Wednesday, showers and cooler.

Southern New England—Showers Tuesday, and probably Wednesday; cooler Wednesday in the western portion.

New Jersey—Showers Tuesday, cooler in the southwestern portion; Wednesday, showers, cooler in the interior.

Western New York—Showers and cooler Tuesday; Wednesday, partly cloudy.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers Tuesday, and probably Wednesday; cooler Tuesday in the southeastern portion; cooler Wednesday.

Northern New England—Showers Tuesday, cooler in Vermont; Wednesday, partly cloudy.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

Applications for Medical Superintendent, Grade less 4, from $2,400 to $3,000, and Grade 5, $3,000 and over, will be received until 4 P. M. on June 17. The subjects and weights of the examination are: Experience, 3; technical, 4; oral, 3. A qualifying physical examination will be given. Candidates must be at least 21 years of age. They must have had at least two years' administrative experience in hospitals or the equivalent.

United States.

The commission announces, for July 10, an examination for shop apprentice, for boys only. A vacancy in the Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C., at $400 a year, and vacancies in the Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C., at entrance salaries ranging from $480 to $600 a year, will be filled from this examination. The Bureau of Standards furnishes excellent opportunities for young men having elementary training who wish to fit themselves for the advanced work of mechanism. The bureau employs a number of instrument makers and other assistants. Subject to the provisions of the civil service law and rules, young men filling successfully the position of shop apprentice are eligible for promotion in the mechanical lines of work as they become proficient. The Bureau of the Census offers exceptional opportunities for young men to acquire experience in the growing art of mechanical tabulation. The position of shop apprentice at the Bureau of Standards is designed exclusively for young men who desire to become proficient instrument makers, and candidates will be expected to state definitely that it is their intention to pursue a mechanical apprenticeship to completion. Competitors will be examined in arithmetic, letter writing, practical questions, and education and training. For positions in the Bureau of Standards, applicants must have reached their sixteenth but not their eighteenth birthday on the date of the examination; for positions in the Bureau of the Census they must have reached their sixteenth but not their twentieth birthday on such date. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

The Board of Superintendents has decided to make certain changes in the course of study in high schools, the most important of which are the introduction of the teaching of community civics, typewriting, and elementary general science in the first year. The last-named subject will replace biology. It will inform the children about things they see each day, such as the automobile, the engine, the trolley car, and the elevator; also about things in the home, such as plumbing, cleanliness, and food. Salesmanship will be taught in the second and third years in Julia Richman High School.

There will be a meeting of the Board of Representatives and the Executive Committee of the High School Teachers' Association at 4 P. M. today in the Assembly Hall of the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building. Final reports of committees will be presented, and preliminary arrangements made for a continuation of the salary campaign during the Summer and next Fall.

The Teachers' Loyalty League of Districts 25 and 26, the Bronx, will hold a meeting at 4 P. M. tomorrow in the auditorium of P. S. 44.

The Military Training Commission will conduct a training camp for boys during July at the old State rifle range in Palisades Interstate Park, Rockland County.

Public school teachers yesterday urged upon their pupils the necessity for cleanliness of personal habits and cleanliness in the home. This was done in co-operation with the Health Department's drive week.

President Somers of the Board of Education has written to Mayor Hylan, suggesting that a conference be held between representatives of the Boards of Education and Estimate to consider the problem of salary increases for school teachers.

Morris Leistner, a pupil in the De Witt Clinton High School, has been expelled because he continually tried to evade military training.

The Real Reason for the German Drive

Told by a French General

General Malleterre, Governor of the Invalides; Professor at the Military School before the war. On General Joffre's staff at the Marne, where he was wounded. Military critic of the Paris Temps, and recognized authority on tactics and strategy.

AFTER nearly four years of mingled success and failure comes Germany's supreme effort to break down the Allied defence—the great drive that was to force the British to the sea—the drive that all Germany watched with terrible hope and intensity. For there is one thing today that Germany fears above all else.

This thing makes her willing to sacrifice thousands, hundreds of thousands, even a million men. This thing forced her desperate effort.

Few men realize the vital issues that forced Germany to make this desperate drive as does General Malleterre, distinguished French military authority. In this week's Collier's, General Malleterre's article, illustrated with exclusive French official war photographs, explains why Germany risked all on this mighty drive. It tells you what this one thing that she fears is.

"THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE"

KITCHIN ASCRIBES REVENUE BILL TO PUBLISHERS' PLOT

CALLS IT WORK OF LOBBY

Says It "Made Itself Felt" with Some in Whose Judgment McAdoo "Had Great Faith."

WILL FIGHT TO BLOCK THEM

Declares Publishers Even Hope to Get President and Secretary of Treasury to Aid Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Representative Claude Kitchin, Democratic leader of the House and Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee—an advocate of postponing revenue legislation until next session—announced to the House today that the Ways and Means Committee would take up consideration of revenue matters tomorrow. He then, in a sensational speech, attacked the publishers of the country, declaring that they were responsible for the Revenue bill recommended by President Wilson, and that they hoped to induce the President or the Secretary of the Treasury to force through a Revenue bill with the postal zone system eliminated. A law has been enacted putting the zone system in operation on July 1, and increasing the second-class rate on newspapers and magazines, placing them in zones similar to the parcel post. It increases considerably postage rates on periodicals and newspapers.

In his speech, heralded by informal announcements in the House lobby for several days, Mr. Kitchin first reviewed the attitude of the Administration, which was originally opposed to revenue legislation at this session. He said that this attitude changed after Secretary McAdoo returned from his Liberty Loan speaking campaign and that he had been influenced by "some one in whom the Secretary of the Treasury had great faith." Without saying so directly, Mr. Kitchin plainly attributed this influence to what he called the "publishers' lobby."

Representative Kitchin's speech, as corrected by him after its delivery, follows:

Urged Tax Bill Early in Session.

"In view of the hearty co-operation by members on both sides of this aisle to dispatch business in order to adjourn Congress by July 1, and in further view of the assurances which I have made so often to members upon both sides of the House that we would not have a tax bill at this session, I feel it is due to myself, as well as to the House, to make a brief, plain statement concerning the legislative situation at this time.

"The first of this year, in fact, at the convening of this session of Congress, I recognized that the appropriations and the expenditures under the appropriations for the coming fiscal year would be so enormous that we would be under the absolute necessity, either at this session or at the next session, of bringing in a revenue bill largely increasing taxes.

"After returning to Washington after the holidays, I talked with officials of the Treasury Department, with the Secretary and others, and insisted that a part of this session's program should be the enactment of a new revenue measure. When Mr. Burleson brought to me the President's program for the session, finding that it did not include any revenue legislation, I insisted to Mr. Burleson that the President should include as a part of this session's program a tax measure. I insisted upon it and talked with the Treasury officials, including Mr. McAdoo, about the necessity of a revenue measure at this session as late as March 15.

"I thought it was wiser and better, if we were to have tax legislation at this session, that we should begin it at once, in the early part of the session, so that we could get it behind us and upon the statute books before the hot Summer days came on, and then the people would have sufficient time to understand it, and to approve or disapprove. Those favoring would have opportunity to defend before their people their position on it.

"Finding that it was not the policy of the Treasury or the policy of the Administration to undertake the passage of a revenue measure at this session of Congress, and knowing, too, that a

Capture of Two Americans Is Basis for German Boast

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—Two lone Americans gave the Germans an opportunity to mention the capture of "prisoners from American regiments" in the German official communication today. One of the Americans is missing in Picardy and one in the Lunéville sector. These are the only men reported missing.

WOOD LAYS CASE BEFORE WILSON

General, Denied Overseas Service, Visits President, but No Change of Status Announced.

NOT ON PERSHING'S LIST

Impression Conveyed at Capital Commander Did Not Want Wood, Bell, or Barry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—"I don't care to say anything except that whatever order I get I shall obey cheerfully," said Major Gen. Leonard Wood as he left the White House this evening after a half hour's interview with President Wilson. The object of the interview, which was sought by General Wood, was to ask the President to countermand the order detaching him from overseas duty in command of his division and assigning him to the administrative post of commanding officer of the Western Military Department with headquarters at San Francisco.

No statement, official or otherwise, concerning the outcome of the conversation between President Wilson and General Wood is forthcoming. Prior to General Wood's visit to the White House it was said authoritatively that General Wood had asked Secretary Baker to change his orders, so as to assign him with troops, and that the request had been referred to the Chief of the Army General Staff for consideration and report. It was made plain, however, that there was no thought of assigning General Wood to the command of troops overseas.

As far as the public is informed in any authoritative way, the action of the War Department in detaching General Wood from duty with the expeditionary forces just as he was about to start for Europe remains as much of a mystery as it was yesterday.

Wood's Friends Indignant.

Whatever the feeling may be in other parts of the country, it is undeniable that here in the nation's capital there is indignation in many quarters over the manner in which the senior officer of the regular army has been deprived of service at the front. It is not going too far to say that even among men who have no particular interest in General Wood the opinion exists that some explanation is due in his case. It is pointed out that he was permitted to organize the National Army Division at Camp Funston, was sent to Europe for observation in order to familiarize himself with the work ahead of him as a division commander, was found physically fit for overseas service by a board of medical officers, and was allowed to make all his preparations for service in France, and even to go to the port from which he was to take passage, when telegraphic orders came directing him to proceed to San Francisco.

The Eighty-ninth Division, which General Wood organized, is composed of drafted men from Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona, and it was said today by Congressmen from Kansas and Colorado that General Wood was idolized by the people of those States, who would feel that they were entitled to some explanatory statement of the reasons for his sequestration. It was recalled that the Governor of Kansas recently, by public proclamation, had declared General Wood a citizen of the State with the designation of Citizen Extraordinary.

The impression is being conveyed in Washington that the change in General Wood's status was due to a recommendation of General Pershing. The fact appears to be that General Pershing submitted to the War Department a list of general officers who would be acceptable to him as commanders of troops in the expeditionary forces. General Wood's name, it is asserted, was not on the list. Evidently, if General Pershing did not want General Wood to serve under him in France he took no positive action toward keeping General Wood at home.

It is expected that the question will be exploited in Congress before very long. The understanding that a "negative list" was prepared of general officers not on General Pershing's list, applies also to the cases of other high ranking officers who, after training divisions of troops, were not permitted

AMERICANS TAKE CANTIGNY

200 PRISONERS CAPTURED

BRITISH HIGHLY GRATIFIED

Note Hard Hitting and Speed of Ally—"Magnificent!" a French Officer Says.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—American troops in Picardy attacked this morning on a front of one and a quarter miles, captured the village of Cantigny, took 200 prisoners, and inflicted severe losses in killed and wounded on the enemy, says General Pershing's communiqué made public tonight at the War Department. The American casualties were relatively small. The statement follows:

This morning in Picardy our troops attacked on a front of one and one-fourth miles, advanced our lines, and captured the village of Cantigny. We took 200 prisoners and inflicted on the enemy severe losses in killed and wounded. Our casualties were relatively small.

Hostile counterattacks broke down under our fire.

In Lorraine and in the Woevre artillery fire on both sides continued active. Early in the day our aviators shot down a hostile machine.

Our Losses Were Light.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (by The Associated Press.)—American troops this morning attacked the village of Cantigny, northwest of Montdidier, attaining all their objectives. The German counterattack was feeble. The American losses were light, but the Americans captured 145 Germans, including two officers.

PARIS, May 28.—The French official statement says:

West of Montdidier the Americans, supported by our tanks, brilliantly occupied a salient along a front of two kilometers and the strongly fortified village of Cantigny, capturing 170 prisoners and war material. They repulsed counterattacks.

Salient 600 Yards Deep.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—In the brilliant action, noted in the French official communication, an American regiment captured the village of Cantigny and also a salient 2,000 yards wide and 600 yards deep, in addition to 170 prisoners.

The Americans left their trenches at 6:43, after a heavy artillery preparation and covered the 600 yards in ten minutes. They carried machine gun positions with hand grenades. French tanks co-operated. The houses and cellars in the village were captured.

The Americans reached the German second position and consolidated themselves within three-quarters of an hour. French troops witnessing the operations exclaimed:

"The Americans are wonderful!"

Hit Hard and Quickly.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—The American troops on the French front near Montdidier delivered an attack against the German positions, fought their way through all objectives, including the village of Cantigny, and captured 140 prisoners.

The American attack was along a two-kilometer front, and it seems to have taken the hard-hitting Amer-

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Tuesday, May 28.—When the Germans attacked in Flanders yesterday, between the neighborhood of the Locre hospice and Kruisstraat, a front of about five miles, they were able after violent gunfire to take a few of the French outposts, like the Pompier Estaminett and the farm near it, which the French themselves had gained by their successful effort on May 20, and here and there they penetrated the French forward line, as in copses east of Dickebusch Lake. This morning the French troops counterattacked and restored the situation almost exactly as it was, with the exception that a small party of Germans remained this morning in one of these copses, covered by the machine gun fire of the French. They suffered a number of casualties, and lost sixteen men as prisoners and six machine guns.

At the moment of the German attack yesterday it was doubtful whether it was intended as a serious effort to gain ground in depth and whether the first assault would be followed by succeeding waves to carry it through against the main French defences. It is now fairly clear that this was not intended, but that it was a minor action to grab back just the stretch of territory which had been lost on the 20th and also, no doubt, as a demonstration timed to coincide with the great battle down south along the line of the Aisne.

German prisoners are of this opinion, and, anyhow, it does not matter very much one way or another, now that the operation is held in check by the French, who have re-established their positions.

Seasoned Veterans in Battle.

For the time being the interest of the war is shifted to the position on the Aisne, where the enemy has struck heavily in great force, while still threatening our northern front by huge numbers of men and artillery concentrations. With that battle I have nothing to do, as a war correspondent, as it is outside my boundary, but up here in the north our thoughts are with those divisions of ours, the 8th, 21st, 25th, and 50th, which have been heavily engaged in this new battle along the Aisne in the midst of French troops.

It is hard luck on them, but they have fought with the courage that made their divisions glorious in many battles. It is hard luck on them, for they helped to bear the brunt of the German onslaught of March 21 and in the following weeks, and their battalions fought day after day and night after night against overwhelming odds, falling back slowly at times, before the enemy's great weight, but always keeping their face to the foe and fighting rearguard actions which made the Germans pay a frightful price and at last brought them to a dead halt.

The Northumberland Fusiliers and other battalions of the 50th Division were men who had made a forced march to the battlefields of the Lys when the Portuguese were broken, and by the sheer valor of the young officers, Sergeants, Corporals, and private soldiers fighting in small bodies holding isolated positions, holding on to the death when surrounded by hordes of Germans, counterattacking with weak numbers against three times or five times their own, staggering up to new attacks when at last they were so tired that they could hardly stand or walk or keep awake, stopped the gap which the enemy tried to force and broke the head of his battering ram.

Fighting Men from the Somme.

So was it with the other British divisions. The 8th faced the enemy's wild rush across the old Somme battlefield and helped stem that tide by their bodies, barring the way to Amiens, their spirit never failing though their losses were many and obeying the Commander in Chief's watchword of fighting to the last with their backs to the wall.

The 21st Division are veterans of this war. Their first baptism of fire was in the battle of Loos ages ago, as time counts now. They, too, were in the retreat that followed March 21 of this Spring, and their rearguard actions were fought by small bodies of men tired to the last point of human fatigue, but never giving up ground without taking toll of the enemy.

The 25th Division fought all through from Wytschaete Ridge to the end of the Flanders battles last year, and then, when the German offensive began at the end of March this year fought again, as then, with dogged devotion and pride beyond the fear of death. They had long, hard innings, too long except for our great need, too hard except that they never lost their fighting spirit, and in separate bodies between Stenwerk and Messines they stuck it out, not only with amazing endurance but with a quality of courage which enabled them to attack and counterattack, so that the enemy had to give ground before them.

Those English County troops are the men against whom the enemy has hurled new masses of fresh troops, and the heart of their old comrades up here in the north goes out to them.

Berlin Reports a Sweep from Vailly to Beaurieux and Successes Near Rheims.

French Northeast of Soissons, British Northwest of Rheims, Withstand Attacks.

French Official Report.

PARIS, May 28.—The War Office bulletin on the Aisne fighting issued tonight says:

Last night and today the enemy, taking advantage of his numerical superiority, renewed his thrust more strongly toward the southeast of Soissons. On our left we counterattacked vigorously, stopped the German advance, and broke up attacks on the heights of Neuville-sur-Margival and Vregny, northeast of Soissons, and on the heights in the region of Ciry-Salsogne and Vasseny, dominating the Vesle Valley.

The principal effort was directed toward rolling back the centre on the line of the Vesle, which the Germans succeeded in crossing at several points, notably in the region of Bazocres and Fismes.

On our right the British withstood the assaults against the Massif of St. Thierry, [northwest of Rheims,] inflicting particularly heavy losses.

BERLIN, May 28, (via London.)—Complete victory over the French and English divisions south of Laon [on the Aisne front] is reported from Army Headquarters, which records the capture of 15,000 prisoners, and the storming of numerous towns north of the Aisne, followed by the driving of a wedge southward from the Aisne to Fismes, on the River Vesle, which has been crossed on both sides of that town.

[This crossing of the Vesle indicates an advance of about six miles beyond the four-mile gain reported in Monday's official communication from Berlin.]

In the sector northwest of Rheims the British troops have been forced back toward Berry-au-Bac and across the Aisne-Marne Canal.

German Advance Passes the Vesle.

We are now fighting for the Vesle sector, between Soissons and west of Rheims, and have captured the southern bank on both sides of Fismes.

Our attack across the Aisne is being continued, and yesterday's successes have been further extended.

The day report says:

On the Kemmel and Lys battlefields and on both sides of the Somme and the Avre the artillery duels increased in intensity yesterday morning. Between Voormezeele and Locre we penetrated the French lines and brought back more than 300 prisoners.

The attack of the German Crown Prince to the south of Laon led to complete success. We completely defeated the French and English divisions stationed there.

The army of General von Boehm took the Chemin des Dames by storm. The long ridge, against which the great attempt of the French to break through collapsed in the Spring of 1917, and which we evacuated in the Autumn of last year for strategic purposes, is again in our hands.

After tremendous artillery preparation, our infantry at daybreak found its way across the Ailette River between Vauxaillon and Craonne and penetrated the English lines further east, between Corbeny and the Aisne. Completely taken by surprise, the occupants of the first enemy lines generally offered only slight resistance.

By G. H. PERRIS.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Tuesday Afternoon, May 28.—The French reserves are now beginning to arrive at the front, and it is believed the worst is over now. It is clear the German plans were for a big offensive, not a mere diversion.

PARIS, May 28.—The situation tonight is more reassuring. The latest advices from the front show that, while the violence of the enemy's effort as yet is unabated, he is only making headway on the centre, and that even there the German momentum is giving signs of slackening. The Allies are beginning to react with effect on the wings.

On the right the British still cling successfully to the group of hills north of the Vesle River.

Division to a Mile on 25-Mile Front Hurled Against Allies in Attack

Defenders, Outnumbered Five to One, Fall Back Under Immense Pressure of More Than 250,000 Men—Three Large Fields of Offensive Now Have to be Supplied by Germans.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 28.—Hindenburg has scored another spectacular success. At dawn yesterday, after three hours' bombardment, composed largely of gas shells, a new German mass attack was thrown upon a twenty-five-mile front, extending from the Ailette near Vauxaillon to the Aisne-Marne Canal near Brimont.

It was four or five times as numerous as the defenders, and in other regards correspondingly stronger. In these circumstances, an attempt to retain the line of the Chemin des Dames would have meant that the French troops would have been massacred before reserves could reach them, and there was nothing for it but to fall back steadily and in good order, using successive lines of trenches and deep folds of ground to punish the enemy for every forward step he made.

Old Method Again Employed.

As I anticipated in my last message, the method of the first phase of the German offensive was again employed with some improvements. This method rests, as I have shown, upon two main elements—the prodigal expenditure of the large reserves obtained by the collapse of Russia and Rumania, and the skillful use of the great advantage of what are called interior lines of communication to throw a mass attack suddenly upon the chosen sector, and so to gain the further advantage of surprise.

The front now chosen was held till a day or two ago by parts of two armies belonging to the group of which the Prussian Crown Prince is the titular chief. General von Boehm's army, extending from the Oise at Noyon to east of Craonne, numbered nine divisions. In the sector of General Fritz von Below, extending across the Rheims front to Suippe, near Auberive, there were eight divisions. The whole twenty-five miles attacked yesterday had therefore been held till the eve of battle by only seven or eight divisions. The exact number of divisions engaged yesterday is not yet known, but it seems to have been about twenty-five, or over a quarter of a million combatants.

There is here a curious difference and likeness as compared with the first phase of the offensive on March 21. To the seventeen divisions already holding the sector of attack there were added another seventeen. This time the same number has been added where there were only eight. Two months ago the front of attack was about forty miles long. This time a rather denser force was employed, perhaps because the Aisne height constituted a formidable position and it was intended to carry it at a single rush

Has Advantage of Position.

While the front keeps its present shape the German staff has necessarily a great advantage over that of the Allies in that it is acting from the centre of a crescent, and they are around and outside of it. I have described the elaborate measures taken by the enemy to secure complete secrecy and the utmost speed in bringing up the army of shock to its starting points.

If enough time can be given to preparations—and as my last message showed the pause had been abnormal—they must gain a certain benefit of surprise, and with this benefit such a mass of shock must win a certain depth of ground. It is out of the question at present for the Allies to hold all possible sectors of attack strongly enough to make them perfectly secure, and indeed if they had men enough this is not the way in which they would be used.

Nothing is more difficult for laymen to seize, and yet nothing is more certain, than the change of values as the war evolves. Our only notions of the Chemin des Dames were obtained in a time very different from the present emergency, the time of fixed fronts and of methods defensive and offensive that are already old-fashioned to those of us who have watched these blood-soaked hills and gullies for nearly four years through heartrending vicissitudes, who remember Haig's and Smith-Dorrien's first attempts to scale what seemed an impregnable fortress, who saw the French bluecoats rush forward last Summer till at length they stood firm on the cliffs of Craonne and Heurtebise, who explored the dragon's cave at Malmaison Fort and the vast Montparnasse quarry when they still stank from rotting flesh.

It is not a light thing that ground so full of tragic memories should be lost. It seems only the other day that I was adventuring along the Ailette by Anizy-le-Château, sleeping in a dugout in Pinon Forest, and examining the outposts that then held the northern edge of the hills.

Retreat a Wise Manoeuvre.

War pays little regards to sentiment, and it is not any spectacular stroke or sentimental score that will restore the falling fortunes of the Hohenzollerns. No doubt the French command found it grievous yesterday to order a retreat to the Aisne. Feebler men might have temporized and lost in doing so many good lives which are after all more sacred than the most sacred earth.

The attack could not be anticipated. It was far beyond the powers of the small defending forces to ward it off. With sound tactical sense the heaviest assault was directed toward the eastern end of the Aisne Hills at Craonne as soon as it became evident that this corner could not be held, and that from here the whole line was in danger of being turned.

The Times Special Cable Dispatches from the War Centres

March attack—two divisions of the Prussian Guard and other crack formations. It was only at heavy cost that they got forward so quickly. The French retired from position to position without confusion, firing continuously. The fact that their losses are small in comparison with those of the enemy is an essential point.

What, then, has the Crown Prince gained? A showy advertisement to set off against his long list of failures, as the position, whether for defense or offense of the Aisne line, is for him no stronger than that of the Ailette, with the Laon hills behind it.

Looking beyond the Crown Prince to the German effort as a whole, how does the account stand? This success does strengthen and protect its southern flank. Against this slight or theoretical benefit must be counted the serious dispersal of forces. Three large fields of offensive have been successfully opened, extending beyond Ypres to near Rheims. None of them can be neglected. All of them must be fed under a system entailing a ratio of loss constantly higher than that of the allied defenders.

On the Eve of the Attack.

May 26.—I have said that the delay of the third act of the German offensive was abnormal. The first was perhaps, in design and execution, the most powerful operation in the history of warfare. The second, the attack in Flanders in the middle week of April, almost certainly began as a diversion intended to draw the British reserves from the Amiens front and to fill the interval needed for the reorganization of forces.

Up to the middle of April the German armies not occupied in fighting could do little but commence the strengthening of their new fronts, as lines of defense and departure. Their staffs, high and low, must, however, have been already engaged upon plans for the next push. Six or seven weeks then have passed in constituting a new mass of attack, with its armament and transport, in constructing roads and railways, dumps and supply centres, in bringing forward batteries, airdromes, and hospitals, and so on.

True, this is not as long as the time of preparation for the first phase of the battle, which may be broadly counted as from New Year's to March 21. But there should be a vast difference between the mounting of a wholly fresh offensive and its pursuit into the later stages. A reletless continuity of pressure is evidentlly of very great importance after the advantage of the initial surprise. It is the thing which a commander will most aim at.

If the Germans did not keep going on the main line of their attack north and south of the Somme after the middle of April, it is because they could not do so; and the partial success of their extemporized campaign in Flanders should not disguise from us this significant fact.

It would be useless at this period of the war, when all Germany demands a decision and nothing less, if the new offensive did not lead to the capture at least of some place of symbolic importance, such as Rheims, Verdun, or Nancy. But that would require a force so large as to cripple the major effort in the northwest. All the military virtue of the German strategy is against such a dispersal of effort.

Co-operative action by Austria in Italy is not open to these objections unless German troops are called for to take part in it. It is anticipated with so little fear by our allies that they have sent some good divisions to our front to help bear what will be, even from the Italian point of view, the more important shock. The desire to wait till weather conditions enable the unhappy Austrians to act may be a minor reason for the delay of the German adventure.

It is possible, also, that at the recent conference of the directors of the Central Empires Austria agreed to relieve the whole of the German troops remaining on the eastern front. This would, after some delay, yield Hindenburg a reinforcement considerable in numbers, though of very indifferent quality. There have been, I believe, two more certain and sufficient reasons for the delay. The first is the heavy losses and disorganization suffered by the original mass of attack; the second, flowing from this, is the intention to attempt a still greater effort essentially of the same character.

FOE SEEKS TO DRAW IN FOCH'S RESERVES

Gen. Maurice Thinks Germans Figured on a Harder Defense of Chemin des Dames Ridge.

VIEWS ATTACK AS A FEINT

British Expert Sees No Proof Yet That the Enemy's Main Reserves Are on the Move.

By MAJOR GEN. SIR FREDERICK MAURICE.

LONDON, May 28.—It has fallen to the Crown Prince to open the ball in the third phase of this year's campaign in the west. Part of the group of armies which he commands formed the left of the great German attack of March 21, and pressed south of the Somme toward Montdidier and Amiens. Once his progress was definitely checked, he withdrew such divisions as were not immediately required on his front to be refitted, trained, and rested; and it is probable that a considerable number of them have been located in the valley of the Oise, between St. Quentin and Hirson.

Here they would be near the centre of the chord of the rough arc which bows into the Franco-British front between Rheims and Lens, and would be moved easily and quickly to attack the allied lines west of Rheims; in fact, more easily and more quickly than for an attack on Amiens, since they would be marching across ground which has not been devastated by the recent fighting and through which communications may be presumed to be in apple-pie order.

The Crown Prince had few preparations to complete to enable him to attack on the front he has now chosen. How many of his reserve divisions he has moved down for this new battle it is not possible yet to say. But so far this attack has more the appearance of a preparatory blow than of a great effort intended to produce great results. Soissons is some ten miles behind the actual front line which was struck by the right of the German attack at the Forest of Pinon in the neighborhood of Anisy, north of Soissons. This would give for an attack extending as far as west of Rheims a front of some thirty miles, as compared with the fifty-mile front of the attack of March 21. Behind this thirty-mile front there is for some distance nothing which the enemy has not already had in his hands and nothing which is vital to the Allies, who, in contrast with their position north of Amiens, have here room to give way without suffering serious consequences.

A great part of the present battlefield is on ground which carries us back to the Autumn of 1914, when, after staying our retreat southeast of Paris, we turned our faces with a joyous shout northward, passed the Marne, and forced the passage of the Aisne east of Soissons, to be held up by the arrival of the German Army which had been besieging Maubeuge.

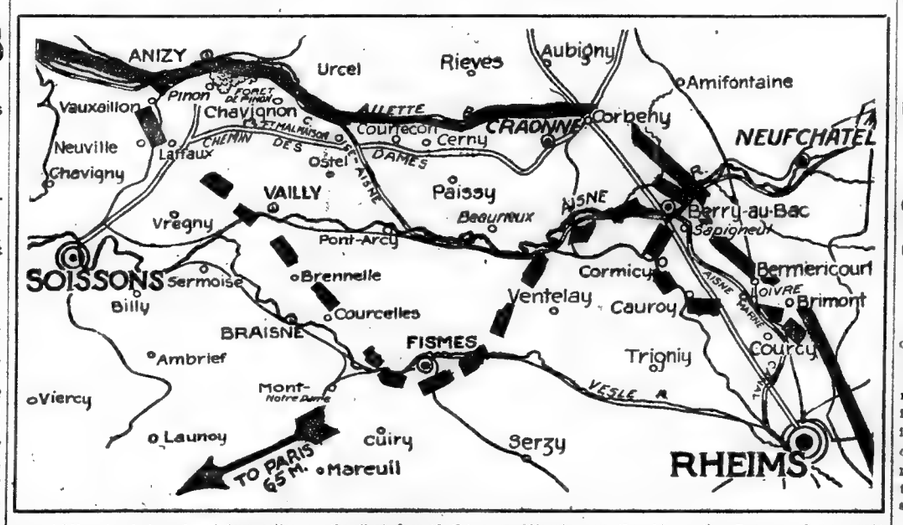
We know that British troops are again fighting on this front, and from the German reports it appears that some of them at least are between Rheims and Berry-au-Bac on the Aisne. Included in the battle area are the famous Heights of Craonne and the equally famous Chemin des Dames Ridge, both bones of contention throughout the great part of the campaign of that year. They were of great local value to the French, as they commanded the whole valley of the Ailette, afforded the possessor admirable observation to the north, and formed a fine defensive line. The loss of these heights is locally inconvenient, but should have no wider effect. An advance across them leads through highly defensible country to the strong line of the Aisne and gives the enemy nothing but hard-won ground for his pains.

The attack in Flanders between Locre and Vormezeele has been made on a front of some four miles, and therefore in comparison with the battles which we have this year been witnessing is of the nature of a local affair, probably designed to capture Scherpenberg Hill and to obtain a footing on the slopes of Mont Rouge west of Locre.

The Germans probably reckoned that the French would fight hard to keep the Chemin des Dames and prevent the capture of Denivs and of Scherpenberg. They may have therefore calculated that these attacks would draw in more of Foch's precious reserves and take them away from the area which is to be the scene of their great effort. For as far as it is possible at present to judge, nothing has yet been attempted by the enemy on a scale to indicate that his main reserves are on the move.

If, as in the case of the attack in Flanders of April 9, he gains by either of these efforts considerable and unexpected success, it is highly probable that he will exploit it to the full extent of his power. But, failing that, we must look elsewhere for the great blow which has been hanging over our heads for the past weeks.

Scene of the Aisne Offensive



Adding to their gain of four miles on the first day of the new offensive on the Aisne, the Germans have again advanced to a depth of six miles at the point of their most successful operations, having pressed forward since yesterday from the Aisne at Pont-Arcy to the River Vesle at Fismes, where they are about sixty-five miles from Paris.

Their principal advance after the passage of the Aisne, between Vailly and Beaurieux, seems to have been on a front of about nine miles. To the west of this stretch the French, and to the east the British, appear to be holding their ground.

The heavy black line indicates the position of the opposing armies when the drive started; the heavy broken line the present battlefront.

GUN DUEL WAGED ALONG OUR FRONT

Germans on Luneville Sector Launch Storm of Gas and Explosive Shells.

BOMBARD FOR SEVEN HOURS

Americans Reply to Challenge Quickly—Fire Is Hottest in Several Weeks.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27.—Coincident with their new activity in the Soissons-Rheims district the Germans were busy along the American sector this morning. Their artillery fire and ours was busier than it has been for several weeks.

American forces in the Luneville sector tonight started a vigorous artillery action against the Germans in retaliation for a boche gas and high explosive storm last night, which was followed by a raid, and in which we sustained casualties.

The boche bombardment last night and this morning lasted seven hours, gas coming not only from long and short range guns but by projectors. The American activity gives promise of repaying the enemy in full. The Germans launched the heavy gas attack against our men in the Luneville sector early today. Gas projectors were used for the first time in many weeks against the Americans.

Following the gas attack the boche sent over a raiding party. When the boche withdrew he left five dead behind. We suffered some casualties, chiefly from gas.

The renewed German activity all along the line included an attack on the American troops near Montdidier, which was preceded by heavy artillery preparation with both gas and high explosives. A portion of the heavy driving wedge of the Germans got into the American front line and stayed there four hours, after which the Americans, in a strong counterattack, not only drove them out and across No Man's Land, but penetrated to the German second line. We kept our prisoners.

For the first time in some days the boche airmen came across our lines on the Toul sector. Three American airmen met four German air machines. A battle followed, in which one of our fliers drove off one German machine with machine-gun fire. The other boches darted home, when the same airmen drove on to one of them, and shot both wings off, destroying the machine. All our airmen returned.

May 28.—A German observation balloon over the American sector broke from its moorings this morning, and drifted more than sixty kilometers, coming down in a town occupied by American General Headquarters. American troops there took possession of it. The German observers had left the balloon by parachutes.

ALLIES RE-ESTABLISH LYS-YPRES POSITIONS

LONDON, May 28.—In counterattacks this morning the Franco-British troops on the Lys-Ypres front re-established their line east of Dickebusch Lake, says Field Marshal Haig in his night report. The Allies inflicted heavy losses upon the four German divisions which were engaged in yesterday's attacks in this sector.

The text of the night bulletin follows:

Counterattacks carried out early this morning by French and British troops successfully re-established our line east of Dickebusch Lake. Several prisoners were captured. In the enemy's attacks yesterday morning in this sector and to the south as far as Locre four German divisions are known to have been engaged.

In the course of the fighting heavy losses were inflicted on these divisions. The allied line has been maintained at all points.

On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report beyond artillery activity on both sides in the different sectors.

The day report says:

On the Lys front local fighting was recommenced this morning in the area east of Dickebusch Lake.

On the remainder of the British front a number of prisoners have been taken by our troops in successful raids carried out at different points during the night, and the artillery has been active on both sides.

French Recover Ground Near Locre.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—British and French troops on the northern side of the Flanders salient launched a counterattack this morning east of Dickebusch Lake for the purpose of retaking a few bits of ground which the Germans captured in this section during their drive yesterday between Locre and Voormezeele. The operation appeared to be going well at the outset. Its success was all that was needed to make the enemy assault a complete and costly failure.

When the correspondent visited the French last night virtually the entire sector involved was intact. It was stated that the gains which the enemy made in the Dickebusch region were small.

There was very hard fighting on the French left flank throughout the day and the artillery duel was intense, but the German attack was not made in great strength. Its object appears to have been merely to regain the high ground which the French captured on May 20. Apparently elements of four divisions were employed by the enemy, and it may be estimated that 8,000 to 10,000 German infantrymen were sent forward on a front of about 6,000 yards.

The attack was preceded by the heaviest bombardment since von Hindenburg launched the offensive of March 21. At the beginning of this terrific cannonade it looked as though the Germans were about to renew their great effort. From 1 o'clock yesterday morning until dark a great concentration of hostile artillery maintained a bombardment of drumfire intensity, which was opposed furiously. More gas shells than usual were employed by the Germans, especially in the back areas, in an effort to catch concentrations of allied troops.

When the Germans advanced they met such an effective barrage on the French right flank that the attackers never got to close quarters. They sustained severe punishment from concentrated shellfire and French machine guns.

In the centre and on the left flank, however, the enemy was more successful in the first rush. Pompier, south of La Clytte, was captured, and the enemy pushed back the defending line somewhat south and east of Dickebusch Lake.

Fighting was still continuing this afternoon east of Dickebusch Lake, where the British and French early today counterattacked to evict the Germans from some positions which the latter captured yesterday. The allied line had been virtually restored at all points. In a few places small bodies of enemy infantry were still clinging desperately to bits of ground they had won by the hard and costly struggle, and these invaders were being dealt with.

About 100 prisoners, with a considerable number of machine guns, had been added to the total already secured by the French.

BERGSON CONFIDENT OF ALLIED VICTORY

French Philosopher Thinks Outcome of War Plain to All Except German Leaders.

NO LIMIT TO SACRIFICES

Declares His People Are Ready for Anything — Doubts If Failure of Present Drive Would End Struggle.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

PARIS, May 28.—Henri Bergson, the French philosopher, spoke today of the wartime psychology of Paris under the resumption of the big battle and with the long-distance bombardment shells exploding. I met him by chance in the street. He recalled the fact that I gave him the first news of the Russian revolution in March, 1917, in New York. He talked freely, walking along the bank of the Seine.

"Paris is not the same today as in August, 1914," he said. "You see no excitement now, but you feel and are sure of much more determination to win than in the first wild demonstration of patriotism when the war began. It is better this way, more dependable. That first mental state was too intense to endure.

"Today you see Paris itself under bombardment and the great battle resuming, without a trace of public fear or excitement. Men are still going off to the war every day, but now it is a matter of course to the men themselves and their families. They are heroes still, but no longer cheered by frantic crowds in the streets.

"There is great assurance for the national safety for the future in this dogged calmness. It is not indifference, but the ever-growing strength does not depend on shouting to keep increasing.

"Now that the lull in the big battle is over, we are more ready for new fighting than the enemy. The interval of quiet was of more use to us than to the Germans. We could have gone on without the lull. The Germans were forced to rest and recuperate after their losses in men and material, which were vastly greater than ours.

"But I do not expect the failure of the present offensive to end the war. The Allies should not assume that now. It would be a logical thing if the German people controlled their Government. But they do not. The German militarists will not cease with the failure that seems conclusive to all rational beings. However, France and her allies will go on to a victory that will convince even the German Government.

"There is no limit to the sacrifice which the French people will make of themselves and no limit to the sacrifices the Germans will make of other people. The difference is all in favor of France, where absolutely every act of the Government reflects the wishes and determination of the people. The French are fighting their own war of their own volition for a Government all their own, entirely subject to their opinion. But fighting, suffering, sacrificing, has ceased to be a novelty; it has become the indispensable routine duty. The French never neglect a necessary routine. There is no question of the outcome.

GERMANS SEE NEED OF RAW MATERIAL

Military Victories Futile if Peace Terms Do Not Provide Supplies for Manufacturing.

CALL FOR RETURN OF SHIPS

By GEORGE RENWICK.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—One of the most interesting things to be noticed in the German press these days is the intense anxiety regarding the provision of raw material after the war. It appears the people at last are becoming thoroughly alarmed as to what they are up against in this direction.

The Vossische Zeitung, for instance, gave its most prominent position on Thursday to an article on the subject, and the next day gave an article on the same question equal prominence. One article points out how thoroughly the Entente and America have and will have supplies of raw material in their hands, and goes on to say:

"Our people will still be suffering want when those of the Entente have returned to, comparatively speaking, normal conditions. Our industry will be at a standstill, while that of our opponents will be running full time. The industry of the Entente will therefore be first upon the markets of the world."

Therefore, the writer says, it is necessary before all else to secure raw material by the terms of the treaty of peace. This is a matter which hits every German article. He adds:

"For what is the use of the most brilliant victories, if our economic life cannot, owing to the pressure of our enemies, rise again after the war? In that case all the sacrifices would have been in vain, and the enemy would achieve without bloodshed what had been impossible in an honorable war. Germany would remain overburdened with debts and poverty-stricken."

The other article sweeps into secondary place all such considerations as annexations and the freedom of the seas, and gives pride of place to the need for obtaining raw material. As a condition of peace the writer insists that, even before an armistice comes along, Germany must be assured of sufficient raw materials from England in order to set her industry going again.

A year's supply on the basis of the amount used in 1913 is what he thinks will be needed as a minimum. To get that needful material, he suggests that an armistice regarding sea warfare should only be concluded "when all the seized German ships now being used by the enemy have been sent back to us laden with raw material," or when England agrees to some "fairer arrangement" with Germany.

Otherwise the U-boats are to continue their work, though the writer thinks England will not be very averse to making such terms, for the readers of the article are told they may be certain England's nerves would not be such at the time of the peace conference that they could stand the threat of continued submarine warfare against her commerce.

325,000 GERMANS IN THE AISNE ATTACK

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, noon—(Associated Press.)—At least twenty-five German divisions [about 325,000 men] today joined in the attack and forced further back the few French and British divisions holding the Aisne line.

Tanks, machine guns, and poison gas shells were the principal factors in the successful advance aside from the numerically superior forces of the Germans.

Notwithstanding the smallness of the Allies armies, they did their utmost to stay the immense push of the enemy troops, ten times their number. The German advance, which was one of the most rapid since the beginning of the war, could not be held, however, as wave after wave in dense lines came forward.

The western allied flank has maintained its positions well, and reserves are hurrying toward the danger point of the greatest advance.

The retreat of the French and British was made in orderly fashion, the troops destroying their material as they withdrew, or taking it along with them. The Army Staff still retains the fullest confidence in the outcome of the battle.

The Germans yesterday, executing a repetition of their tactics of March 21, threw overwhelming forces which they had brought forward during the night on the lightly held positions extending from the westward end of the Chemin des Dames to Courcy, near Brimont.

At least twenty-five German divisions participated in the onslaught. Among them were two Guards divisions. The attack was preceded by the most intense bombardment of poison gas shells lasting for several hours. The entire allied line was thinly held by French and British troops.

Meantime other German divisions attacked from the Ailette Valley, and the small bodies of allied troops holding the knifelike ridge decided to fall back in order to avoid useless losses in trying to keep an untenable position in the face of greatly superior numbers.

Everything had been prepared for such a movement in the case of necessity, and the troops retired, fighting foot by foot, until joined by their reserves further back, the local reserves covering the retirement of their comrades before the German masses.

As the troops fell back with virtually all of their guns and material they took up positions already prepared, where they awaited the arrival of reinforcements, which were rapidly coming.

Very strong enemy columns about 4 o'clock in the morning came through the plain to the east of Craonne and around Juvincourt, and the allied troops, after the overwhelming nature of the enemy's forces were perceived, carried out the order to retire across the Aisne to their principal defensive positions. Craonne fell, leaving the remainder of the Chemin des Dames open to a flank attack.

German Victory on Chemin des Dames More a Moral Than Material Gain

By WALTER DURANTY.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Tuesday, May 28.—The enemy has struck at last and as was expected the blow has been in conception and execution almost an exact parallel of the original attack on March 21.

As stated in previous cable dispatches the French have known for some time that the Germans had concentrated strong forces of picked divisions in the Hirson-Mezières region—just as they had done in March—ready to repeat the eleventh-hour night marching tactics which enable them to throw an overwhelming force at a given point and thus gain the tactical advantage of surprise.

Both rail and road communications are exceedingly good, either west and southwest toward Amiens, or south and southwest toward Rheims; and, in fact, I have been informed that in March it was generally expected that the blow would fall in the region chosen yesterday, which was one of the reasons why the Allies experienced a certain difficulty at the outset, because being on the outside of the angle, they had to move their reserves a much greater distance than the enemy. Ludendorff evidently hopes to involve them again in the same dilemma.

As regards the attack itself, there is no good trying to conceal the fact that it has accomplished results of a certain importance. According to the latest information, here is what occurred:

At 1 A. M. a terrific bombardment, in which, as before, gas shells largely predominated, was opened along a twenty-five-mile front, from Neuilly, north of Soissons, to Brimont, north of Rheims. After three hours an assault was delivered in overwhelming force, a quarter of a million men at least being thrown against the Franco-British defenders, who were outnumbered.

The position attacked was the historic plateau of the Chemin des Dames, a long, bare chalk ridge, whose widest portion is westward, and which tapers down almost to a knife edge above Craonne. The latter sector was held by British divisions that had been severely engaged in the great battle.

The feature of gas attacks is that, owing to the necessity of wearing masks continually, oral and telephonic communication becomes virtually impossible, and the defenders, who must counter plans of which they are in ignorance, are at a special disadvantage as compared with the assailants, who know exactly what they want to do.

Secondly, the very steepness of the ridge in the Craonne region gave the enemy an advantage, as it sheltered them as by a wall from the allied fire until they actually reached the summit, where sheer weight of numbers enabled them to gain a foothold. Exploiting the vantage thus gained, they thrust the British off the ridge and progressed simultaneously westward.

But on this occasion there was no such rupture of our line as occurred in March. It had been fully realized by the allied commanders that the enemy's ability to attack with tremendous strength at any point might necessitate a withdrawal, and measures had been taken accordingly. Step by step the Allies retreated toward the Aisne, inflicting terrible losses on the Germans, who, as before, flung mercilessly forward new masses of troops over their comrades' bodies.

Evidently it is regrettable to lose the histroic plateau, and the enemy will certainly do his utmost to exploit the moral value of his advance. The value of the plateau was far greater for the Allies last year when we were attacking and Germany was on the defensive, as it formed the bastion of a gigantic natural fortress, of which Laon is the central keep.

The comparatively small forces holding the plateau and the successful nature of the retreat prove that Foch had no delusions about the situation and declined to fall in with Ludendorff's plan by using up in unfavorable conditions the forces that will be needed.

Obviously, the moral value of yesterday's success is not to be ignored, but the Allies are no less confident than before.

PARIS ABANDONS DIVERSION THEORY

Critics See Enemy Command Making Every Effort to Exploit First Success.

PARIS, May 28—The military critics now consider that the idea that the German offensive launched yesterday between Soissons and Rheims is a diversion must be abandoned, now that the movement has developed into a great battle along a thirty-mile front.

The enemy's initial efforts, says the Temps, having unfortunately obtained for the troops of the German Crown Prince some notable advantages, as they succeeded in carrying the Chemin des Dames and thrusting back the Franco-British contingents from the Ailette to the Aisne, the enemy command has at once made every effort to exploit the success.

"We have retired; that is unfortunately incontestible," it continues. "But we are only beginning the battle. The French command has only begun to place in the line the reserves which will go into action when the enemy's intentions are perceived, and this is why the rôle of the commander of a defensive army is more difficult than that of his adversary.

"The enemy, who had a carefully prepared plan, who had chosen the hour of its execution, and who had his reserves ready to strike where they could be employed most effectively, engaged Monday evening with fresh forces, which were in highly superior number to those with which we opposed him. In consequence of this he has succeeded in crossing the Aisne, between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac, on a front of about twenty miles. The Franco-British forces withdrew to the valley of the Vesle, which flows some six miles south of the Aisne, in the region of the plateau behind which our reserves are arriving."

Henry Bidou, the military critic of the Journal des Débats, says the enemy began the offensive with some thirty divisions.

"He had enormous numerical superiority," M. Bidou continues. "On the allied side the front was held by a few French divisions, and on the right in Champagne by a small number of exhausted British divisions."

M. Bidou calculates that the Germans had from ninety to 100 divisions for use in the battle, of which they employed one-third for the initial shock.

Courtecon, Cerny, the Winterberg and Craonne, the Villerberg, and fortified works near and to the north of Berry-au-Bac were taken by storm.

Toward afternoon we reached the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac. Vailly was taken. The craterfield of last year's Spring and Autumn fighting was thus captured in uninterrupted attacking pressure.

In the afternoon the attack continued. Between Vauxaillon and Vailly we are on the heights near Neuville and Laffaux and north to Condé.

Between Berry-au-Bac and Brimont we crossed the Aisne and carried the battle into an area which had remained untouched by the war since 1914. The enemy was again driven from the fortified wooded heights on the southern bank of the river. Between Vailly and Beaurieux we reached the heights due north of the Vesle River.

The army of General von Below threw the enemy out of strong positions between Sapigneul and Brimont back across the Aisne-Marne Canal and the western bank of the canal, and took by storm Cormicy, Cauroy, and Loivre.

Up to the present 15,000 prisoners are reported.

Between the Meuse and the Moselle, on the Lorraine front, the fighting activity revived. Advances into the enemy lines resulted in the bringing in of more than 150 prisoners belonging to French and American regiments.

FRENCH CENTRE RETIRES FLANKS HOLD ON AISNE

Paris Reports Apex of the German Advance Beyond the Vesle River.

PARIS, May 28.—Heavy counterattacks by the French troops stopped the German advance on the heights of Neuville-sur-Margival and Vregny, northeast of Soissons, and other heights dominating the Valley of the Vesle River, according to the War Office statement issued tonight.

The Germans, however, succeeded in crossing the Vesle in the region of Bazoches and Fismes, having forced the Franco-British troops across the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac in the fighting of yesterday afternoon.

The British troops northwest of Rheims have withstood the assaults against St. Thierry, inflicting heavy casualties upon the Germans.

Late yesterday the Germans, with the assistance of newly arrived forces, succeeded in crossing the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac. Franco-British troops, confronted by enemy forces of greatly superior size, are continuing their retirement in good order. The battle is going on with violence between the Vesle and Aisne Rivers, in the region of the plateaux, behind which French reserves are coming up.

In Champagne, on the right bank of the Meuse and in the Woevre, great artillery activity continues. A strong raiding attack in the sector of Chambrettes was repulsed by our fire.

French Reserves Arriving.

PARIS, May 28.—The Liberté correspondent at the French front says:

"The battle is being fiercely contested, with alternating fortunes. Our reserves are beginning to arrive south of the Vesle and their effect is already felt."

It Had to Give Ground When French Retired Across the Aisne.

LONDON, May 28.—The left of the British divisions engaged on the Aisne front near Berry-au-Bac was compelled yesterday by the success of the Germans in forcing the passage of the Aisne to the west of their positions, to give ground before the great strength developed by the enemy.

The War Office day report says of this fighting:

Continuous pressure was maintained by the enemy all day yesterday against the British troops engaged on the Aisne front, and severe fighting is still taking place on the whole front of the British sector.

On our right the 21st Division, in touch with our allies, held the battle positions throughout the day, and successfully withstood the enemy's attempts to advance. In the centre and on the left of the British sector troops of the 8th, 50th, and 25th Divisions by determined resistance maintained the second-line positions against the enemy's assaults until a late hour.

Toward the end of the day the weight of the enemy's attacks carried his troops across the River Aisne to the west of the British sector, and compelled the left of our line to fall back. The enemy is developing his attacks in great strength along the whole of the Aisne battlefront.

RUSSIANS READY TO RALLY

Would Be Encouraged, It Is Argued, by Direct Military and Economic Assistance from the Allies.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 28.—Russia needs support from the Allies in the shape of direct military and economic assistance. The technical term for such action is intervention. This word may be interpreted variously from certain comments and criticisms. It is in my last article stated that intervention must be disinterested, that its sole object must be to help Russia as a whole to resist the efforts of Germany to secure and extend her domination in Eastern Europe and in Asia.

We are fighting against German aggression, and nothing else; and in this we know that we have the warm sympathy of Russians of every class and every shade of opinion. We, as allies, are desirous of helping Russia to resist her enemy and ours. We cannot take sides in Russian internal politics. It is a great error to suppose that intervention should take the form of a campaign against the Bolsheviki. Neither should the Allies come in to support the Bolsheviki. There is one all-sufficient motive for operations of an allied force on Russian soil, and that is to fight Germany.

Intervention does not, and must not, mean that we are going to undertake a punitive expedition, to shoot down Russian peasants and workmen. That would be suicidal. It would only make confusion worse confounded and facilitate the task of Germany, besides compromising the principles for which we are waging war. The whole purpose of intervention is to enable Russia to help herself, to supply a rallying point for resistance to Germany.

Russia is in a deplorable condition, torn by internal dissension, by bitter class strife. In ordinary circumstances friendly nations could only leave her to work out her own salvation, whatever suffering this might cost her. But the present Russian confusion is not an isolated fact in an otherwise stable world. It is the outcome of the war. It is one of the aspects of the world war in which we are engaged and in which, until recently, Russia fought bravely by our side.

Military Motive for Intervention.

It is not the confusion in Russia in itself—the civil war, bitter feuds, immense physical and moral suffering—that immediately concerns us as allies. It is the fact that the remnants of Russian independence are menaced by our enemy, that Germany is doing her utmost in Russia to take full advantage for her military purposes in the world war of the confusion she herself has provoked. Therein lies the direct and urgent appeal to us. This is an all-sufficient military motive for intervention, and this motive must be kept clear of all other issues, both in the discussion of intervention and in its important execution. But, and here is the important point, would the dispatch of allied forces to Russia on this purely military mission bring us into conflict with any section of the population and furnish fresh occasion for civil war? There is not the slightest reason why it should. On the contrary, evidence is increasing daily that all classes, all parties, would welcome allied assistance against the Germans.

Reports from the Ukraine, which is in German occupation, are most illuminating. Here the attempts of the Germans to requisition corn have provoked a peasant rising. The peasants are resisting by every means in their power, with rifles and machine guns. An irregular force of peasants, including former soldiers of the regular army, is carrying on a guerrilla warfare all over the country. Hatred of Germany is breaking out into fierce flame. Actual experience of German methods is provoking a passion of patriotic resistance that no amount of persuasion and argument could ever have aroused.

The German peace is forcing home to the Russian people an explanation and justification of war. Germans on Russian soil have transformed the appeal of Belgium and Serbia from a distant barely credible abstraction into a poignant reality.

But what of the Bolsheviki themselves? I do not speak of the masses, whose instincts are naturally anti-German, but of the leaders, who still, to an obviously diminishing extent, influence the masses. Recently the Isvestia, the official organ of the Soviets, published an article conveying a veiled intimation that the Bolsheviki were disposed on terms to accept allied aid and to struggle with a too-insistent Germany.

Resolve Under German Demands.

There can be no doubt that the Bolshevist leaders find the German demands extremely oppressive. While the task of governing what remains of Russia on communist principles under the darkening shadow of German imperialism is insuperable, Lenine still seems to believe he can retain an oasis for Socialist experiments by playing off against each other the two groups of belligerent powers.

But other Bolsheviki, who were opposed to the conclusion of the Brest-Litovsk peace, realize clearly that their only hope is in resistance to Germany. Tchitcherin, for instance, the leader of the delegation that signed the peace of Brest-Litovsk, said to me on his return:

"We hate the Germans as the French hated them in 1871."

The Bolsheviki are forming a Red Army. It is true that, so far, this army has been wholly ineffective against the Germans, and that it has only served as a kind of gendarmerie for the maintenance of Bolshevist despotism. But in idea and inception, at any rate, it is anti-German, and several Generals hope to make it so in fact. Taking everything into account, it is extremely unlikely that the Bolsheviki will oppose a firm allied determination, and the advent of an allied force, strictly neutral in internal affairs, should have a calming effect on all political passions and rivalries. That is the clear ground for military intervention in Russia. Whether the Russian people choose to be governed by Bolsheviki or monarchs, or by occult planetary powers, is not a matter that concerns the Allies in the very least.

The War Situation

From such news as has reached us as to the progress of the German offensive along the Chemin des Dames, a success is threatened which will rival that in the Picardy battle zone. The news from the battlefield is distinctly bad. At the outbreak of the offensive the French had every advantage of terrain. The Germans were down in the valley of the little Ailette River, with the river between them and the French. Above them towered the Chemin des Dames. Some four miles behind the French lines ran the Aisne, a river of considerable width, with banks which recent heavy rains had turned into wide marsh belts. The Germans not only crossed the Ailette in the first rush, but completely overran the Chemin des Dames, driving the French back toward the low land of the Aisne Valley. By nightfall they had reached the Aisne at one point—Pont Arcy.

The degree of success gives some idea of the force of the blow. In one day's fighting every advantage of terrain which the French and British held was completely swept away. Only the Aisne remained, and it was hoped that, once behind this formidable military obstacle, the allied troops would be able to make a stand which would check the German rush. But in the fighting of yesterday this line also went.

Monday's reports indicated that the Germans had plunged into the French lines for about four miles and had dug a salient into the line at Pont Arcy. Following this up, the Germans crossed the Aisne, presumably first at this point and later apparently at other points between Berry au Bac and Vailly. The entire position behind the Aisne was thus flanked, and there was nothing left to do but pull the entire line back. To have adopted any other course would have exposed the French who still remained on the north bank of the river to destruction or capture. With this barrier behind them, the Germans then began to struggle for the high ground south of the Aisne.

South of the Aisne at an average distance of about four and a half miles is the Vesle River. This river empties into the Aisne two miles to the west of Vailly. Between the Aisne and the Vesle there is a stretch of rolling ground which gradually rises from the Aisne Valley until a ridge is reached which runs almost parallel to the course of the Vesle and about midway between the two rivers. The valley of the Aisne is about 125 feet above sea level, that of the Vesle about the same. The height of the ridge between, which is the watershed between the two streams, is about 550 feet. This high ground is the key to the defense of the Vesle Valley. It is this ridge which the Germans are fighting for now, and which the French are defending, although, with the tremendous impetus the German advance received as a result of its first successes, it is doubtful whether the French will be able to hold it.

It is becoming clearer that this attack is no mere diversion, no feint to draw men away from the Picardy front. It is an attempt to force the French line back and to widen out the Amiens salient. At the same time there is the effort to beat the French by destroying them if possible. No word has reached us of the number of prisoners taken. The list, it is feared, will be heavy. The Germans tried to do what they had previously tried to do at Verdun—by a very heavy and sudden attack to drive the French back upon a large river and catch them before they had an opportunity to cross. In the case of Verdun it was the Meuse; now it is the Aisne. To just what extent they have accomplished their object remains to be seen.

The successes which have been gained, however, are already sufficiently serious regarded merely from a territorial aspect. Rheims, which the French have defended for so long, is in serious danger. If the French are forced back to the southern bank of the Vesle River, it does not appear that any power can prevent Rheims from falling into German hands. The city will be practically surrounded. This may not affect the French positions in Champagne, but it will have a most depressing effect on the world at large.

At the same time we must realize and must keep constantly in mind, in order to retain a true perspective, that geographical locations no longer have any necessary bearing, no matter what the location may be. It is now a question of armies, and as long as the armies of France and Great Britain remain intact and keep an unbroken front Germany has not won and cannot win. And this has been done to date.

The question of numbers has again arisen, with the statement that the Allies have been greatly outnumbered in this fighting. This is undoubtedly true at the line of contact. But this means only one thing. The object of military strategy is to concentrate at a threatened point more troops than one's opponent; it is to have the most troops at the right point at the right time. This the Germans have done, this the Allies have failed to do. The German General Staff has simply outguessed the Allies for the time being. And the German advance will probably go on, as it did before, until this condition is corrected by the arrival of the allied reserves.

GERMANY MAY PLAN UKRAINE MONARCHY

ROYALISTS COMING TO FORE

By JULIUS WEST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 28.—The prevalent theory that Germany intends to establish a monarchy in the Ukraine, preliminary to a modified restoration of the Romanoff dynasty, is distinctly supported by news just received from Kiev. Antonius, Archbishop of Kharkov, has just been appointed Metropolitan of Kiev, which is the highest post in the hierarchy of the Orthodox Russian Church in the Ukraine. (His predecessor was murdered by hooligans in February in circumstances of extraordinary brutality.) Now the sentiments of Antonius are as well known as his career. He has always been pro-Czar, first and all the time.

Since the March revolution he has been one of the few leaders of the Church who offered public prayers for the restoration of Czardom, and he is known as the centre of the monarchist propaganda.

At the same time as this interesting elevation takes place, Eulogius, Archbishop of Volhynia, a friend of Antonius and also a monarchist, breaks out in a significant manner. When the Ukrainians began discussing independence a year ago, and the prospects of a return of the monarchy were very slight, Eulogius was violently opposed to all talk of Ukrainian autonomy, let alone separatism. Now the same Eulogius, scenting a return of Czardom in the Ukraine, whatever its prospects in the rest of Russia, has become almost a fanatical follower of Skoropadsky and is addressing numerous public meetings in support of the Hetman appointed by Germany. The sentiments of Eulogius are no secret either, as he distinguished himself as a member of the Russian Duma by the reactionary nature of his speeches.

Nor are these the only straws which show the way the wind is blowing. The forces behind the Ukrainian Government caused the appointment of Professor Senkovsy as Minister of Public Worship and M. Lerke as Director of the Public Treasury at Kiev. Both these men are known monarchists.

Germany's intentions are therefore obvious. But of one thing we may be sure, if Germany sets up a King at Kiev, she will not allow him to reign also at Moscow. Rival monarchs, always quarreling, suit her book much better.

GERMANY REACHING FURTHER INTO RUSSIA

MOSCOW, May 25, (Associated Press.)—Although the peace negotiations between Russia and Ukraine have now been begun at Kiev, the Germans have broken the armistice on the Voronezh front, occupying the town of Valuiki after four days of fighting, and making a further advance. The Izvestia, organ of the Bolsheviki, explains the advance as being due to Germany's intention to seize those portions of the Voronezh Government which Ukraine desires.

Meanwhile the Germans are making extensive preparations in the Caucasus and continuing their operations in the Don region, where no armistice has been agreed to. Germany's intentions, says the newspaper, seem to be widening in scope.

Reports of the first session of the Kiev peace conference, held on May 23, indicate that the Germans are in no hurry for the conclusion of peace between Russia and Ukraine. The Ukrainian delegates told the Russians their credentials were invalid because they did not specifically contain authorization for concluding peace or an armistice, and also did not state what parts of Russia composed the Soviet Republic. The Russians requested time to make a reply, and a day was granted for this purpose.

Opposition by the peasants in the Ukraine against the Germans and the Russians supporting the Central Powers is extending rapidly. The peasants are firing forests, destroying buildings, and otherwise hindering the work of German bands trying to commandeer food. The Germans have been forced to send additional troops into Poltava, where rioting is reported to be most serious. The peasants have organized large detachments, and are armed with machine guns and rifles. The Germans are using artillery to suppress the rioting.

The financial congress just held at Moscow, which was called to devise plans for financial reorganization to be submitted to the Fifth All-Russian Congress of Soviets, which is to meet in Moscow on June 20, developed considerable friction.

The congress named a commission of four Bolsheviki and two Social Revolutionists to frame the plan, but the Social Revolutionists thereupon quit the congress, declaring their representation on the commission was not in proportion to their membership.

The congress passed a resolution instructing the commission to devise a temporary scheme for taxation pending the adoption of the larger measures contemplated. Under this scheme the local Soviets will be permitted to continue to levy contributions, provided the Provincial Soviets approve the levies.

M. Axelrod, prominently identified with the Bolshevist financial program and formerly Commissioner of Banks, addressed the congress in explanation of Premier Lenine's recent speech to that body, which M. Axelrod declared had been misinterpreted. He said Premier Lenine had explained to him that indirect taxation was necessary as a temporary measure. (Lenine in his speech told the Congress that the Socialists favored a property and income tax rather than indirect taxation, and expressed expectation that the Soviet Government would adopt a general income tax, collected monthly.)

The Chinese representatives in Russia have sent a protest to Foreign Minister Tchitcherin against the confiscation of property of Chinese firms in Mongolia and Siberia by Russian customs officers and other officials.

SHELLS KILL 3 IN PARIS.

14 Persons Also Hurt in German Long-Range Bombardment.

PARIS, May 28.—The long-range bombardment of Paris by the Germans was continued this morning.

In yesterday's bombardment three persons were killed and fourteen injured. One shell burst in a crowded street in front of a tramway station. Three women were getting into a car. One was killed and the others injured. Several persons within the car, one a child, were injured.

An official explanation has been issued by the Government as to why it cannot make public more than the scantiest details regarding the regions suffering from the bombardment.

"In its daily communiqués," says the statement, "the Government keeps the public absolutely up to date on military operations and their development. As to the bombardment of the Paris districts, this cannot be done.

"Though it is permissible to indicate the positions where we are in contact with the enemy, it would be a veritable crime to permit the Germans by means of details furnished by us to rectify the least precise of their fire. It is therefore forbidden to announce the points where bombs strike; likewise to make them known. It is in the interest of the population itself that this good sense measure is taken."

PARIS RAIDERS FOILED.

German Airmen Only Succeed in Bombing Remote Suburbs.

PARIS, May 28.—German aviators attempted last night to raid Paris. They dropped bombs in the suburbs, but were prevented from flying over the city. The announcement follows:

Last night about ten enemy airplanes which were flying toward Paris were reported by our lookout stations. An alarm was given at 10:32 P. M., and anti-aircraft batteries threw up a curtain of fire.

Several bombs were thrown on the more remote suburbs. No enemy machine flew over Paris. The "All Clear" signal was given at 11:45 P. M.

WOMEN SIT IN RIGSDAG.

King Opens First Parliament Under Denmark's New Constitution.

COPENHAGEN, May 28.—Denmark's first Rigsdag, assembled under the new Constitution giving equal suffrage to men and women, was formally opened today by King Christian in the new Christiansborg Palace, on the site of the old palace burned thirty-four years ago. Interest was added by the presence for the first time of the nine women members.

The address from the throne emphasized the Government's intention to continue its policy of strict neutrality, expressed confidence that the Iceland question would be amicably adjusted, and referred with satisfaction to the co-operation of the Scandinavian countries.

ALLIES CONSULTING ON HELP TO RUSSIA

Seeking Constantly to Find the Most Effective Way, Cecil Tells Commons.

REJECTS RUMANIAN TREATY

Statement on Ireland Withheld by Government—Hospital Casualties from Bombing.

LONDON, May 28.—The British Government, according to Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, speaking in the House of Commons, which reassembled today, is in constant consultation with the allied Governments as to the most effective way of rendering assistance to Russia.

Lord Robert said that the diplomatic representatives of the Allies at Jassy had notified Rumania that their Governments could but consider as null and void the stipulations of peace forced upon Rumania, inasmuch as they violated the rights and interests of the Allied Powers and the principles for which they were fighting.

There are 6,000 American civilians between the ages of 18 and 41 years resident in England, according to a statement made in the House by A. Cecil Beck, Parliamentary Secretary for National Service. The statement was made in reply to a question as to how many men, subjects or citizens of allied countries, of military age, were resident here, and whether it was proposed by convention, legislation, or otherwise, to make these men eligible for military service.

Andrew Bonar Law, Government spokesman in the House, announced that he had no intention at present of making any statement regarding affairs in Ireland. He also today told the House that 300 casualties to hospital cases had been caused by the bombing of British hospitals in France by German aviators.

Speaking on the subject of the payment by the Bank of England next Saturday of well over £50,000,000 in dividends on war loan stock, Bonar Law said he was looking forward to the reinvestment of a very large part of this sum in national war bonds. The system of continuous borrowing, he added, had been a much greater success than he had hoped for at the time it was adopted. It had the advantage from the point of view of bankers and financial interests generally, of causing the least disturbance of the money market, and the further advantage of encouraging the avoidance of unnecessary expenditure.

Up to the end of last week the amount raised by national war bonds since the issue of Oct. 1, 1917, was £738,043,303, in addition to £59,000,000 raised by war savings certificates, said Bonar Law.

He added that the banks had agreed to invest in war bonds the dividends they received from all Government stocks within the coming week, to deal generously with customers in making advances against war bonds and to persuade customers to invest directly in the war loan instead of piling up deposits, which were steadily increasing. In addition many of the biggest financial institutions were arranging to set aside weekly a definite proportion of their resources for immediate investment in war bonds.

GERMAN CROPS GOOD, BUT HERDS SUFFERING

Food for Animals Scarce and Farming Hindered by Shortage of Labor.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—The official German agricultural report for Western and Northwestern Germany states that the crops in this district are from three to four weeks earlier than in 1917. The growth of rye is described as luxuriant and the condition of Summer grain as satisfactory. Grass in general is of good growth, but clover is not uniformly so, the report says.

Cattle which, owing to lack of fodder, had been put to pasture early in April are beginning to pick up, the report announces, but animals kept in the stable are in very poor condition because of the lack of straw and hay. There have been no oats available for a long time, it is added.

Pigs are in poor condition, owing to lack of fodder, so that next Fall, the report forecasts, a larger number of them must be killed. Young porkers are commanding fabulous prices.

Expropriations of cattle for the army and navy, it is pointed out, have a very bad effect on breeding, while the extremely low prices paid by the Government is a cause of much irritation. The lack of farm labor is hampering the proper tilling of the soil.

LOOKS FOR CHANGE IN IRISH ATTITUDE

FEAR LOSS OF SYMPATHY

Realization That Present Method of Combating Conscription Is Alienating Friends Abroad.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 28.—The Chronicle's Dublin correspondent reports that a meeting of the Irish Parliamentary Party will be held in Dublin on Thursday, when topics of the greatest importance will be discussed.

"I believe a definite halt will be called, not to the policy but to the method of advocating that policy, which certainly tended to alienate former friends of Ireland and even Irishmen themselves in other countries," he says. "No democracy in the world would resent Ireland's hostility to conscription imposed upon her against her will, if the unanswerable objection were fairly stated; but many of the objectors, through their want of faith in democratic principles, or perhaps their ignorance of them, have resorted to more primitive and dramatic arguments which needlessly introduced passion and confusion into what one might almost call an issue of arithmetic—do two and two make four?

"Dillon seems determined to bring us all back to this calculable issue, and so at the eleventh hour to save the Irish cause from the worldwide prejudice in which it has been obscured by the frenzied irrelevancies of violent men, not all of them Sinn Feiners. His language in East Cavan yesterday was very significant, and it may be accepted as an introduction to topics which will be considered on Thursday. He declared that the Sinn Feiners, by refusing to enter into a party truce, were 'gravely endangering the continued existence of the Mansion House conference.'

"His consent to the diversion of the National Defense Fund for the support of dependents of deported suspects, he honestly described as 'a surrender,' though he claimed he could defend it. The main argument of his speech was that arrests and deportations had nothing whatever to do with the fight of suspects against conscription. His defense of the surrender was that it was a sacrifice made to preserve the unity of the anti-conscription forces."

FOE STRIVING FOR DECISION.

Paris Temps Says Leaders Are Searching for Weak Defenses.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 28.—"Hindenburg and Ludendorff," says the Temps, "are widening the battlefront in search of a place where they imagine our defenses are less strong. They are once more striving for that decisive battle which so far they have always missed. The tremendous struggle is again in progress. The shock will be formidable. The enemy for months has brought together an accumulation of his most powerful possible materials. Our soldiers know it, and they await the enormous effort of the enemy with a valor which is universally acclaimed.

"The dearest and most grateful thoughts of France are with them. Our British allies are fighting by our side. The rear will show the same calm, the same confidence, as our magnificent men at the front."

LONDON LESS ANXIOUS.

Not So Disturbed as During the First Days of March Offensive.

LONDON, May 28.—The British public received the news of the resumption of the German offensive with less manifestations of anxiety than were observable during the critical days last March.

At that time the Germans sprang a surprise, as the British people did not expect the allied line to fall back. On the present occasion, the much-advertised resumption of the German onslaught found the public prepared. Furthermore, the attack comes under somewhat changed conditions, such as the unified command and new troop dispositions, all of which give the people here greater confidence in the final outcome of the gigantic struggle.

The crowds which thronged the streets, the parks, and other public places eagerly read the latest reports from the battlefront. The first editions of the afternoon newspapers, which appeared shortly after midday with Field Marshal Haig's official dispatch, the longest in many weeks, were snatched up quickly everywhere, and some persons stood in the middle of the street at the imminent risk of being run over while they scanned the statement.

Among the groups which gathered before the newspaper offices and read the latest news there were frequent remarks as to the probable participation of the Americans in the new battle.

BRITISH CASUALTIES 33,694.

Week's Total Shows Decrease from Preceding Seven Days.

LONDON, May 28.—British casualties reported in the week ending today reached a total of 33,694. They are divided as follows:

Killed or Died of Wounds—Officers, 168; men, 3,527.

Wounded or Missing—Officers, 735; men, 29,264.

The total for last week was 36,677 and for the week before 41,612, the largest of any week since the beginning of the German offensive. The falling off in the totals reflects the lull in the fighting between the attack which ended in April and the one now beginning.

STRIKE FOE IN EAST AFRICA.

British Seize Guns and Equipment and Rescue Prisoners.

LONDON, May 28.—Reporting recent military operations in East Africa, an official statement issued tonight by the British War Office says:

East Africa—German troops remaining in the field have been driven southward of the Lurio River with substantial casualties.

In addition to war material captured in an action midway between Nanungu and Makua, we have taken a machine gun, a three-pounder gun and the entire equipment of four enemy companies. Thirty Portuguese native soldiers, prisoners with the Germans, have been released.

At the same time, as the result of an attack by our patrols on the enemy near Monende, we released one British officer and two British noncommissioned officers, who also were prisoners in the hands of the Germans.

PRIZES FOR BOMBING PARIS.

German Airmen Who Succeed Have Claim to Iron Cross.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 28.—It has just transpired that German airmen who succeed in bombing Paris have a right to claim the Iron Cross for their prowess. Such is the statement made by Captain Kohl and a "Feldwebel," who formed the crew of a Gotha brought down by French fire near Verberie last Tuesday night, after attempting to bomb Paris.

Kohl and the Feldwebel when they made their enforced landing set their machine on fire. After wandering nearly four days inside the French lines, both were captured on Saturday night at Dives le Franc by some French trench artillerymen, just as they were in the act of slipping down a sunken road running across the French front line into the German trenches.

COLOGNE IN PANIC FOLLOWING AIR RAID

THE HAGUE, May 28.—Eighty-eight of the persons who were killed when the British air squadron raided Cologne on May 18 were buried in the same grave, according to Les Nouvelles. The correspondent of the newspaper says the inhabitants of the city are panic-stricken.

Les Nouvelles also publishes details of the British air raid last week in the Liege district of Belgium. A score of machines participated in the action, dropping about twenty bombs.

One bomb fell in the middle of the important railway station of Kinkempois, killing or injuring a large number of German soldiers and civilians. The explosion set fire to the building, and part of it was destroyed.

Another missile fell close to the Meuse Iron works, which was occupied by Germans, and it produced a panic among the workers. Bombs also were dropped at Herstal upon the Pieper Munition Works and the National Arsenal, which is now German controlled. The damage here was small. Another bomb fell on an industrial plant at Chenee.

The raid, according to the newspaper, completely surprised the Germans. No defense airplanes went up, and the anti-aircraft guns had not been supplied with suitable ammunition.

On the same day this British air squadron also successfully bombed and set on fire factories at Aix-la-Chapelle.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—Nineteen bombs have been dropped on Landau, Germany, by ten allied airmen, the Tageblatt of Berlin reports. The garrison headquarters and some private houses are said to have been damaged.

GERMANS LOSE 15 AIRPLANES

Tons of Bombs Dropped on German Towns and Positions.

LONDON, May 28.—Fifteen German airplanes have been destroyed by British aviators and three others have been driven down out of control, according to the British official communication on aviation issued tonight. The communication says also that many tons of bombs have been dropped on railway stations in Germany.

The text of the communication follows:

"Monday the weather generally was cloudy and the visibility was not good. However, a full day's work was done by our airplanes, both in co-operation with the artillery and in photography and bombing.

"Sixteen tons of bombs were dropped in the course of the day on various objectives, including billets between Armentieres and Lens, and the docks at Bruges.

"Fifteen German machines were destroyed and three driven down out of control.

"Two of our machines are missing.

"Monday night heavy bombs were dropped on the Zeebrugge lock and the Bruges docks. A great number of dumps and billets behind the enemy's lines also were bombed. A total weight of twenty-one tons of bombs was used in these different attacks. All the airplanes engaged in this work returned in safety.

"Hostile night-bombing machines have been active over our back areas. A Gotha airplane was forced to descend behind our lines, and its three occupants were captured.

"The same night our long-distance bombing machines were very active. They dropped between four and five tons of bombs on chemical works at Mannheim, the Landau railway station, an electric power station at Kreuzwald, and on the Metz-Sablons railway station and the Courcelles railway station. Very large explosions were caused. All our machines except one returned."

CAPTURE 433 AUSTRIANS.

Italians Storm Defenses on Lower Piave and Hold Gains.

ROME, May 28.—Italian troops on Monday night broke into the Austro-German defenses at Capo Sile, on the Lower Piave front, to a depth of 750 yards. The Italians captured 433 prisoners. The Italian official statement says:

On the night of May 26-27 our assault parties broke into successive enemy defenses at Capo Sile to a depth of more than 750 yards. In spite of the enemy's violent reaction, the positions reached were maintained. There were considerable enemy losses, 450 prisoners being taken and four trench mortars, ten machine guns, several hundred rifles, and ammunition and material being captured.

The artillery of the Italian Navy contributed to the success of the action, which cost us very slight losses.

Hostile detachments were repulsed in the Ornic Valley and on the banks of the Piave.

VIENNA, May 28, (via London.)—The official communication on operations in the Italian theatre, issued today, reads:

The fighting activity in the Tonale region diminished yesterday. Repeated Italian attempts to make further progress were frustrated, but part of our materials, built in what is no wa glacier, fell into the hands of the enemy.

Strong reconnoitering advances to the south of Capo Sile, supported by violent artillery and mine fire, put the Italians in possession of an unimportant part of our first line.

WANTS TO KEEP BELGIUM.

Von Tirpitz Declares It Must Be Retained for Welfare of Germany.

AMSTERDAM, May 28.—"We must retain Belgium economically, politically, and militarily," said Admiral von Tirpitz, former German Minister of Marine, in an address at Dusseldorf on Sunday, as quoted in the Nachrichten of that city. The Admiral's address was delivered before the Dusseldorf branch of the reactionary Fatherland Party, of which he is one of the leading spirits. Speaking of Germany's requirements after the war, he said:

"Neither Central Europe, the Orient, nor Northern Europe can supply us with the raw materials requisite to our industries. We need to have the sea free from Anglo-Saxon tyranny for that purpose."

Apparently the Admiral did not mention the submarine warfare, which was discussed at the same meeting in a highly optimistic manner by Herr Bachmeister, a Deputy in the Landtag.

icans just about three-quarters of an hour to complete their conquest, which included that amount of territory as well as the village of Cantigny—an exceptionally short time for such an operation.

This remarkably fine showing comes as a fitting companion piece to the brilliant work done by the United States soldiers in repulsing an enemy assault made against them in the same region yesterday. One American division was attacked at that time, and the gray coats met with a complete reversal at all points.

Causes Good Impression.

This enemy attack was not a heavy one, however, and was easily dealt with by the Americans, who had the situation well in hand at all times.

Word of these two victories has added much to the very favorable impression which the American troops already have created along the British front. It was a foregone conclusion that the Germans would make the newest of the Allies along this front the object of an attack, in an attempt to push them back and thereby create a feeling that they had formed a weak link in the defending chain.

The general opinion of the way in which these American troops have handled themselves in the last two days seems to be summed up in a comment made to the correspondent this afternoon by a French liaison officer.

"Magnificent!" he exclaimed with delight. "That is the sort of stuff we will give the boche."

British Comrades Pleased.

LONDON, May 28.—The capture of 140 prisoners by the American forces near Montdidier is reported by Reuter's Headquarters correspondent.

"Great satisfaction is expressed among the British troops," says the correspondent, "at the news of a successful attack by the Americans near Montdidier, where they captured over 140 prisoners.

"Four British divisions that so stoutly withstood the tremendous enemy onslaught in the Aisne Valley had already borne their full share of the desperate fighting since March 21."

38 Casualties Reported by Gen. Pershing Include 7 Killed in Action, 18 Wounded

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Department today gave out a list of 38 casualties in the American army abroad, bringing the total to 6,899. In the list there were the names of 7 killed in action, 1 died of wounds, 18 wounded severely, 6 missing in action, 1 died of drowning, and 5 died of disease.

Two commissioned officers were named, one of them being Major Raoul Lufbery, who was regarded as the best ace in the American air service. He was shot down in flames by a big German triplane the morning of May 19. The other commissioned officers named is Lieutenant Walter B. Schafer, missing in action.

AMERICANS REPULSE FOUR RAIDING PARTIES

Pershing Reports Germans Suffered Heavy Losses and Some Prisoners Were Taken.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Another section of General Pershing's communiqué of yesterday, made public today by the War Department, said that an enemy attack after a violent bombardment with high explosives and gas shells on American advance positions in Picardy before daylight yesterday was repulsed by counterattacks. Two places in the American lines were penetrated. An attempted raid accompanied by artillery fire in the Woevre also was repulsed. There were gas attacks in Lorraine yesterday.

The text of the communiqué follows:

Section B—In Picardy before daylight this morning the enemy after a violent bombardment with high explosives and gas, attacked our advance positions in three detachments. In two places he penerated small portions of our front lines. Shortly afterward our troops counterattacked, expelled the Germans at all points, and occupied part of the German trenches. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy and some prisoners were taken. Our casualties are light. In one case an American was taken prisoner, but was rescued by counterattacks and all of his captors were killed. Our troops displayed a fine offensive spirit at all times, and have achieved a notable success.

During the early hours of the morning in the Woevre a hostile force, supported by violent artillery fire, attempted a raid upon our lines. This force, which was composed of three officers and about one hundred men, well equipped with light machine guns, blew up our wires and attempted to capture portions of our trenches. They were completely repulsed by our infantry and our artillery, leaving one officer and four men dead in our trenches and one wounded prisoner in our hands. Fifteen or twenty dead were observed near our wire and ten stretchers were seen being carried from this point. Here also our losses appear to have been relatively slight.

Yesterday in Lorraine the enemy was unusually active in bombarding our trenches with gas and in patroling. On one occasion a patroling party approached our lines with cries of "Kamerad!" Our troops replied with rifle fire. One of the hostile detachment was killed and his body secured.

Reference in the communiqué to the incident on the Lorraine front wherein German soldiers apparently attempting to surrender were greeted by rifle fire from the American trenches was easily explained by army officers here. On more than one occasion, they said, the Germans deliberately have sent patrols forward with every man in the front rank holding his hands high in the air and shouting the familiar "Kamerad!" Directly behind these and shielded from view would be two or three men with light rapid-firers. As the party approached the first line would drop to the ground or swiftly separate and the machine gunners would obtain immense advantage in sweeping a considerable section of trenches.

The reception given the patrol by the American commander indicates that the allied Generals have determined to stop this violation of one of the most elementary rules of civilized fighting.

Instances frequently have been reported of the Germans failing to respect the white flags sent forward with parley parties. With the Allies adopting a precedent established by the Germans, some officers are of the opinion that hostilities in which little quarter will be given and perhaps none at all are not beyond the bounds of possibility.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE FRENCH FRONT, May 27, (Associated Press.)—In the simultaneous attack of three German raiding parties against the American positions in Picardy today, the enemy penetrated the American first line to a depth of 200 yards.

A brilliant counterattack threw the Germans out and the Americans kept on until they had entered the enemy first line, where they remained until ordered back.

The Germans suffered heavily in the fighting, which was of a hand-to-hand nature at times. Several prisoners were taken by the Americans.

After a lull of several days the artillery bombardment in Picardy has become more intense on both sides. The Germans are throwing many gas shells into the American lines. The American gunners, however, are returning the enemy fire twofold.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27.—German raiding troops attacked the Americans in the Luneville sector this morning. In sharp fighting the raiders lost five men killed. The Americans suffered some casualties.

The German infantrymen were sent forward after the American positions had been deluged with gas launched by the use of projectors. The body of one German was brought into the American trenches.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—After French aviators had located the approximate positions of the German gas projectors which deluged the American Luneville front with a thousand shells on Sunday and early Monday, the American artillery laid a heavy fire of high explosives throughout last night, covering the area with hundreds of shells and making it virtually certain that the projectors were destroyed.

There has been increased artillery activity and also increased patrol activity on all the sectors held by the Americans since the resumption of the German offensive.

Shortly before the American attack today the Germans again attempted to shell American hospitals behind the American lines. Two high explosive shells fell one hundred yards from one hospital. All patients able to walk or to be moved sought safety in shelter trenches.

FIVE AMERICANS WIN THE SERVICE CROSS

Citation Describes Heroism That Cost Lives of Two—Three Marines Decorated.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—Three men attached to the American Marine Corps and two American infantryman have won the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous heroism in action. Two of the crosses will be delivered to the next of kin of the men upon whom they were conferred, who lost their lives.

Pharmacist Fred C. Schaffner, U. S. N., serving with the marines during an engagement on the west side of the St. Mihiel salient, southeast of Verdun, died as a result of his heroism. The cross was awarded him for "the highly commendable action he displayed in the care and attention incident to the removal of more than one hundred casualties, following a gas shell bombardment April 13," says the citation, which adds:

"He worked incessantly for the comfort and welfare of the sick, disregarding his own premonitory symptoms, insisting that he was all right, when the contrary was evident. He had to be relieved against his will, and as a result of the gassing died."

The citation and award to Hospital Apprentice Carl O. Kingsbury, U. S. N., are presented for work identical to that done by Schaffner. Kingsbury, however, did not lose his life.

Corporal Walcott Winchenbaugh of the marines got the Cross for having "on April 22 with exceptional coolness and devotion to duty while under fire near the enemy lines, rescued his severely wounded leader, Second Lieutenant A. L. Sumoval, from the hands of the enemy."

The citation of Private Charles Schmitz of the infantry says: "During an attack April 14 by his company against superior enemy forces he advanced single-handed against five Germans who had taken cover in a shell hole and killed or wounded all of them with his automatic rifle."

Private Frank Alekno of the infantry on April 21, while a member of a patrol of three men, attacked an enemy patrol of seven men.

"Although mortally wounded," the citation adds, "he continued in action until the enemy was driven off. He then carried a message for assistance 200 yards from the place where he was wounded."

Not long afterward Alekno died from his wounds.

AMERICANS WIN AIR COMBAT.

Rickenbacher and Campbell, Fighting Six Planes, Down One.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 28, (Associated Press.)—Lieutenant Edward V. Rickenbacher of Columbus, Ohio, and Lieutenant Douglas Campbell of California this morning forced a German biplane down out of control in the Bois de Rate, northeast of Xivray, in the Toul sector. They fought six enemy planes.

The German machines encircled the American pilots and attempted to drive them behind the German lines. Rickenbached suddenly pounsed on one of the enemy planes, and Campbell going to his assistance, managed to drive the enemy down.

It was Lieutenant Campbell, it has been established, who destroyed an enemy biplane near Essey, inside the German lines on the Toul front, yesterday in a battle a mile in the air. The German machine's wings crumpled and it crashed to the earth.

American pursuit monoplanes on Monday evening brought down a German biplane in flames east of St. Mihiel in a two-minute fight. The Americans sighted two German patrolling machines and pounced upon them. One German fled, but the American pilots surrounded the other and speedily put an end to his attempts to give battle.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27.—A number of American airplanes late this afternoon assisted the French infantry in fighting near Pont-a-Mousson. Swooping down over the German lines, the Americans poured an avalanche of bullets into the enemy's trenches.

ATTACK AMERICAN HOSPITALS.

Enemy Artillery and Fliers Rouse Anger in Picardy.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 27, (Associated Press.)—What was apparently a deliberate attempt to wreck American hospitals in the rear of the American lines in Picardy occurred Sunday afternoon when the Germans hurled high explosive and gas shells within a few hundred yards of two hospitals. Fortunately, no damage was done.

The bombardment was going on while American funerals were being held. Several shells fell a short distance from one funeral party, but the ceremony was not disturbed.

German attempts to carry the warfare to American sick and wounded began about ten days ago, when, with the advent of a new moon, enemy airplanes circled over the little villages where it has long been known hospitals were situated and dropped bombs. Several civilians were injured in a recent air raid while not far from the American hospitals. They were asleep when the attack began, feeling secure in their proximity to the hospitals.

Much indignation has been caused among the soldiers and civilians over the air raids and Sunday's bombardment. It was not the fault of the Germans that those in the hospitals were not killed and wounded, as were those in the British hospitals in Flanders recently.

The only comment of the sick and wounded American soldiers is that they want to get out as soon as the doctors will permit, so as to strike back at the enemy.

Aged French women in the villages in the rear of the American sector in Picardy have asked and received permission to take care of one or more graves of American soldiers. This tribute is all the more impressive because it comes from peasant women, most of whom have been robbed of their husbands and sons by the war and have had a hard time to sustain themselves.

The affection with which the villagers regard the Americans is most pathetic at times. The difficulty of languages is swept aside, and the villagers share the American sorrows and joys. In the villages where American troops are billeted and which are in constant danger from enemy shells the Americans share their gas masks with the peasants, whom they teach how to use them.

NEW YORK DOCTOR HONORED.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE BRITISH FRONT, May 28, (Associated Press.)—The British Military Cross has been awarded Captain Thomas Edward Walker of the United States Army Medical Service and eleven Lieutenants in that service.

The Lieutenants thus honored are Linwood M. Gable, Arthur Irving Haskell, James B. Clinton, Samuel Adams, Gourverneur Boyer, Harold Foster, John Gregg, Albert L. L. Jones, Baldwin L. Keyes, Guy D. Tibbetts, and Harvey C. Updegrove.

Lieutenant Linwood M. Gable was the second of the fifty-four doctors who within the last year have left the staff of the Polyclinic Hospita, 358 West Fiftieth Street, for war work. Dr. Gable was house surgeon of the hospital. His home address is Brooks, Ga.

to take them to France. Among these was Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, who organized and trained the Seventy-seventh National Army Division at Camp Upton. Another was Major General Hugh L. Scott, former Chief of the Army General Staff, who was in command of the Seventy-eighth Division at Camp Dix. Another was Major Gen. J. F. Morrison, formerly in command of the Thirtieth Division at Camp Sevier, recognized as one of the most advanced officers of the army in military science and a foremost advocate of scientific military training.

Wood Highest in Rank.

Major Gen. Wood is the highest ranking officer of permanent grade in the regular army. He is senior in the regular establishment to General Pershing, who holds his present rank under a temporary commission while serving as commander of the expeditionary forces. Major Gen. Bell ranks next to General Wood in the regular establishment. The third ranking officer in the regular establishment is Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, who commanded the 86th Division at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

With the displacement of General Wood all these ranking officers of the regular army have been deprived of service at the front. All of them are senior in the regular army to General Pershing, although he ranks them under his commission as the commander of the American expeditionary forces.

It became known today that Major Gen. Bell had not been detached from command of the 77th Division at Camp Upton because of physical disability. This was admitted officially and caused surprise, as it was the understanding that General Bell's detachment had been due to a report of the Medical Board that he was physically unfit for overseas service. It was explained that General Bell was found to have some slight ailment that could be corrected by dieting, and that his detachment from active service with troops destined for the expeditionary forces was not due to any physical reason. However, the real reason for his detachment was not revealed. The hint is being conveyed that General Bell was deprived of an opportunity to command troops in France because General Pershing did not want him. His name, it is said, did not appear on the list submitted by General Pershing.

At the time General Barry, their ranking officer of the regular army, was detached from command of the Eighty-sixth Division it was said at the War Department that he had been found physically unfit. It is not certain, however, that this statement was made officially. Nothing has appeared to show that his name was not on the preference list said to have been prepared by General Pershing.

During the day General Wood called on Senator Warren of Wyoming, father-in-law of General Pershing. When General Pershing was promoted by President Roosevelt, General Wood's intimate friend, from the rank of Captain to that of Brigadier General in the regular army, for his services in the campaign against the Moros, Senator Warren was Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, of which he is now the ranking Republican member. Neither General Wood nor Senator Warren would discuss the visit.

There is reason to believe that the case of General Wood was discussed at the regular meeting of the Cabinet today. One Cabinet officer said afterward that General Wood knew why he had been detached and that it was for a military reason. He would not throw any further light on the subject.

It is generally believed in the best informed quarters here that if General Wood's orders to proceed to San Francisco are countermanded he will not be assigned to the command of troops ordered to France, but may be permitted again to undertake the training of the new drafts that will be sent to Camp Funston.

ROOSEVELT SILENT ON WOOD.

But He Declares America Could Have Prevented the War.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Colonel Roosevelt, who was in Chicago today for a few hours while awaiting a train for Madison, Wis., refrained from any mention of the transfer of General Leonard Wood. He did say, however, that in his opinion the German war was a distinct lesson for the people of the United States. He declared that America is awakening to Hun aggression.

"If we had been as wide-awake three years ago as we are now," he said, "there never would have been a war. And if we had been as keen to the dangers of our enemy's aggression one year ago the present German drive could never have been launched. We would have had 1,000,000 Americans on the fighting line today. But the people realize the great significance of the war now.

"It is needless to say that those at home must do everything in their power to re-enforce our army and navy. We must take for granted that every one is giving liberally, sacrificing everything through the Y. M. C. A., the Red Cross, the War Savings Stamp campaign, and other war measures. But it is our men at the front who count, and no sacrifice is too great to meet their sacrifices."

MADISON, Wis., May 28, (Associated Press.)—Declaring that the war would have been over a year ago if this nation had started to prepare three years ago, and criticisms for the Government censorship were the features of the speech of Colonel Roosevelt here tonight.

"Most of the censorship which we have had, I think, is exceedingly foolish," he said. "I have wished there had been a censorship on boasting. The statements of what we are going to do should have been censored. Six months ago we were going to startle the world with our achievements. Six months have passed. We were going to have a large airplane fleet. The Germans built to meet that fleet. We were not ready, and our allies, England and France, have had to ward off the attack. Let achievement speak without boasting."

The Colonel declared that only the English language should be taught in the grade schools and asserted that "English should be the national language, and Americanism the national ideal."

"Americans should be educated in our own universities and every newspaper should, within a reasonable time, be printed in the English language," he said.

During the course of his address the speaker praised the loyalty of the "State of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin State University." The large audience which heard him had expected him to make some reference to Senator La-Follette, but the Colonel never mentioned his name.

BROOKLYN MEN WOUNDED.

J. A. Holland, Jr., and William Kearns on Casualty List.

Private James A. Holland, Jr., named in yesterday's casualty list from General Pershing as among those severely wounded in action, is a son of Mrs. James A. Holland of 101 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn. He is in the regular army and is with one of the engineer units, supposed to be on the Picardy front. Mrs. Holland received a telegram yesterday announcing that her son was wounded on May 15. She also received a letter from him yesterday written on May 5.

"If my boy has been permanently disabled I want him sent home," Mrs. Holland said, "but if he is not so seriously hurt and recovers I want him to fight on, for it is a good cause. I have another boy who is going into the army next week, and in doing so he is doing exactly what I want him to do."

Another Brooklyn boy reported severely wounded in yesterday's list is Private William Kearns, a son of Mrs. Margaret Kearns of 4,502 Atlantic Avenue. Kearns, like Holland, is in the regular engineers. He was in the employ of the Long Island Railroad before the war and enlisted the day that Congress declared war. He went to France with the first division of regular troops to follow General Pershing overseas.

HOUSE RUSHING BILL FOR INCREASED ARMY

Spurred by German Drive, Congress Is Eager to Give President Unlimited Power.

AIR PROGRAM DEFENDED

Kahn Declares Pershing Has 323 Foreign Battleplanes and a Number That Were Built Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Spurred by the German drive and eager to give the President unlimited authority to expand the army, the House today began the consideration of the Army bill, carrying the largest appropriation for war purposes ever before a legislative body. The chief feature of the bill, providing for the expenditure of more than $12,000,000,000, is the clause conferring upon President Wilson unlimited authority to increase the size of the army.

In the course of today's debate it was disclosed that the American troops in France had 323 battleplanes that were bought there, and some that had been built in this country.

With the House entirely agreed upon the unlimited authority section and not opposed to the main provisions of the bill, Representative Dent, Chairman of the Military Committee, formally presenting arguments for its passage, asked that the House pass it promptly. He said that the committee had carefully inquired into all the proposed expenditures. Mr. Dent asserted that no bill had been more carefully prepared, as the committee began its hearings early in December last, and only reported the measure last week, after hearings attended by the war officials.

Because of the necessity of having bills out of the way early, this and the other annual appropriation bills will be acted upon promptly. Before the end of the week the House probably will have passed the bill and sent it to the Senate.

Kahn Asks for Speedy Action.

Representative Julius Kahn, ranking Republican member of the committee, pleaded for speedy action. He said there had been various mistakes made in the war programs, and accounted for this condition by the lack of preparedness existing in the nation.

"For years," he said, "some of us tried to make the rest see that we were living in a 'fool's paradise.' So we drifted along while the sparks were flying everywhere, and refused to make appropriations. I myself offered an amendment here to increase the army to 250,000 men. It was voted down, because some thought that because we were the United States of America no nation dare attack us. Some thought the war could be prevented by the circulation of religious tracts. We were notoriously unprepared. The enemy knew it. They thought that because of it they could heap everything on us, and we could never fight. So when war broke out we had to start from the bottom with everything. We had to create industries.

"We have had criticism from the beginning. Honest criticism is a good thing, and it has not been amiss at the present time, because when criticisms were made the War Department exerted every effort to correct the evils that had been pointed out. So at the start we were criticized about the building of the cantonments. I know there have been mistakes, serious mistakes, but when you think that we had to start out on an uncharted sea it is surprising that so few have occurred."

Representative Philip T. Campbell, Republican of Kansas, interrupted Mr. Kahn to say that there was graft in the cantonment building due to the cost plus principle, and that it had to be abandoned, but not before enormous and unjustified profits had been made.

"The gentleman speaks of graft," replied Mr. Kahn. "I have here a clipping from a Liverpool paper, showing what real graft occurred in England."

"But graft in England does not justify graft in America," retorted Mr. Campbell.

Demands Proof of Graft.

"Does the gentleman know of any graft?" snapped Mr. Kahn. "It is his duty to notify the proper officials of this Government if he does."

"I know this: that the cantonments have cost much more than they ought to have cost," replied Mr. Campbell.

"I submit further that if the gentleman knows of a case where contracts were delayed in order to make profits, as a good, loyal citizen, it is his duty to call the attention of he prosecuting officer of the Government to any violation of the law," said Mr. Kahn.

Discussing the aircraft program, Mr. Kahn declared that much time had been lost in trying to create an engine. He told of the great precautions to perfect the Liberty engine. It was tested on Pike's Peak, he said, to adjust it to changes of temperature. These experiments and the failure of the co-belligerent nations to co-operate, he said, were other causes for the delay in the perfecting of the Liberty engine.

A cable from abroad recommended manufacture of a certain foreign engine. The Dusenberry factory in New Jersey, Mr. Kahn said, was re-equipped for this work after some weeks. "Just as it was ready," he declared, "another cable came that the engine was not desired. That is some of the evidence before the committee."

Mr. Campbell asked about reports that only one or two battleplanes were in France.

"That information," Mr. Kahn replied, "was not before our committee. That is misinformation that was published in some of the newspapers.

"You have been reading of our men bringing down enemy machines. What more evidence do you want as to whether we have battleplanes or not? There are at least 323 battleplanes on the other side that were purchased there and quite a number made in this country. They had the factories ready to make them on the other side."

Mr. Kahn said that while one-third of the $640,000,000 for airplanes was actually expended the balance and much more had been contracted for.

"Ted" Meredith Safe at Front.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—Notice that her brother, Lieutenant James E. ("Ted") Meredith, the University of Pennsylvania athlete, was safe, was received today by Mrs. Albert E. Holl from Washington. It was reported by the War Department last week that "Aviator Lieutenant J. J. Meredith" was among Americans captured, and it was feared here that the prisoner was "Ted" Meredith.

TOLD MORGENTHAU OF KAISER'S PLOT

Secrets of Potsdam War Council Were Revealed by German Colleague to Our Envoy.

FINANCIERS DELAYED COUP

Obtained Two Weeks in Which to Change Securities Into Cash on World Exchanges.

The inside story of the Potsdam conference, at which the Kaiser decided on war, was told to United States Ambassador Henry Morgenthau by a German who was present at the Kaiser's command. This man was Baron von Wangenheim, the German Ambassador at Constantinople when the war began. Mr. Morgenthau tells the story in the June issue of World's Work, just published. He says:

"The German Ambassador left for Berlin soon after the assassination of the Grand Duke, and he now revealed the cause of his sudden disappearance. The Kaiser, he told me, had summoned him to Berlin for an imperial conference. This meeting took place at Potsdam on July 5. The Kaiser presided; nearly all the Ambassadors attended; Wangenheim came to tell of Turkey and enlighten his associates on the situation in Constantinople. Moltke, then Chief of Staff, was there, representing the army, and Admiral von Tirpitz spoke for the navy. The great bankers, railroad Directors, and the captains of German industry, all of whom were as necessary to German war preparations as the army itself, also attended.

"Wangenheim now told me that the Kaiser solemnly put the question to each man in turn: Was he ready for war? All replied 'Yes' except the financiers. They said that they must have two weeks to sell their foreign securities and to make loans. At that time few people had looked upon the Sarajevo tragedy as something that was likely to cause war. This conference took all precautions that no such suspicion should be aroused. It decided to give the bankers time to readjust their finances for the coming war, and then the several members went quietly back to their work or started on vacations. The Kaiser went to Norway on his yacht, von Bethmann-Hollweg left for a rest, and Wangenheim returned to Constantinople.

Proud of Germany's Action.

"In telling me about this conference, Wangenheim, of course, admitted that Germany had precipitated the war. I think that he was rather proud of the whole performance; proud that Germany had gone about the matter in so methodical and farseeing a way; especially proud that he himself had been invited to participate in so momentous a gathering. The several blue, red, and yellow books which flooded Europe the few months following the outbreak, and the hundreds of documents which were issued by German propaganda attempting to establish Germany's innocence, never made any impression on me. For, my conclusions as to the responsibility are not based on suspicions or belief or the study of circumstantial data. I do not have to reason or argue about the matter. I know.

"The conspiracy that has caused this greatest of human tragedies was hatched by the Kaiser and his imperial crew at this Potsdam conference of July 5, 1914. One of the chief participants, flushed with his triumph at the apparent success of the plot, told me the details with his own mouth. Whenever I hear people arguing about the responsibility for this war or read the clumsy and lying excuses put forth by Germany, I simply recall the burly figure of Wangenheim as he appeared that August afternoon, puffing away at a huge black cigar, and giving me his account of this historic meeting. Why waste any time discussing the matter after that?

"This imperial conference took place July 5; the Serbian ultimatum was sent on July 22. That is just about the two weeks interval which the financiers had demanded to complete their plans. All the great stock exchanges of the world show that the German bankers profitably used this interval. Their records disclose that stocks were being sold in large quantities and that prices declined rapidly. At that time the markets were somewhat puzzled at this movement; Wangenheim's explanation clears up any doubts that may still remain. Germany was changing her securities into cash, for war purposes.

Stock Market Slump the Proof.

"If any one wishes to verify Wangenheim, I would suggest that he examine the quotations of the New York stock market for these two historic weeks. He will find that there were astonishing slumps in quotations, especially on the stocks that had an international market. Between July 3 and July 22, Union Pacific dropped from 155½ to 127½, Baltimore & Ohio from 91½ to 81, United States Steel from 61 to 50½, Canadian Pacific from 194 to 185½, and Northern Pacific from 111⅝ to 108. At that time the high protectionists were blaming the Simmons-Underwood tariff act as responsible for this fall in values; other critics of the Administration attributed it to the Federal Reserve act—which had not yet been passed. How little the Wall Street brokers and the financial experts realized that an imperial conference held in Potsdam, presided over by the Kaiser, was the real force that was then depressing the market.

"Wangenheim not only gave me the details of this Potsdam conference, but he disclosed the same secret to the Marquis Garroni, the Italian Ambassador at Constantinople. Italy was at that time technically Germany's ally."

CONGRESS PLANS RECESS.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Congressional leaders of both parties agreed late today on a plan for a recess about June 15, after appropriation bills are out of the way, until Aug. 1, while the House Ways and Means Committee works on the new revenue bill. Passage of the revenue measure by the House between Aug. 1 and Aug. 10 is contemplated, to be followed by a thirty-day recess of the House to await action by the Senate.

The Senate adjourned today until next Friday so that members may fill Memorial Day speaking engagements in distant cities.

FRIEND OF KAISER IS ARRESTED HERE

Gustav Kuhlenkampff Described as "Probably the Most Important Enemy Alien."

INTIMATE OF BERNSTORFF

Hoffermann Drank Beer, Assailed the United States, and Then Got Six Months.

Gustav Bernhardt Kuhlenkampff, an importer who is reputed to be one of the wealthiest enemy aliens in the United States, who is said to have been on intimate terms with von Bernstorff and his two chief plot assistants, Captains von Papen and Boy-Ed, was arrested as a dangerous enemy alien yesterday. Kuhlenkampff is also an officer in the German Army and is said to enjoy much more than a speaking acquaintance with the Kaiser and Crown Prince. He has been in the United States twenty years, has amassed a fortune here, yet has remained a loyal subject of Germany. His standing is such that it is said the German Government has promised to reimburse him after the war for a small fortune he has lost in the West Indies as a result of Great Britain's entry into the world struggle.

Kuhlenkampff, who is 41 years old, was arrested by agents of the Department of Justice, who acted under instructions from Chief De Woody. An official of the Government described Kuhlenkampff yesterday as "probably the most important enemy alien in this country," yet for more than a year he has been permitted to enjoy complete freedom. In the first two years of the war Kuhlenkampff is said to have been an intimate adviser of Bernstorff. He is said to have had a prominent part in a scheme perfected in 1914 to get supplies from American ports to German commerce raiders in the Atlantic. He is also said to have handled large sums of money in this country for the Germans, both before and after the outbreak of the war.

Recently the Department of Justice learned that Kuhlenkampff had a code which might have easily been used to communicate important information to Germany. It was pointed out that the war regulations of the United States prohibit Germans from having code books of any kind.

Agents of the Government are said to have found several important letters, including one from Boy-Ed, in which he thanked Kuhlenkampff for "all the services rendered us." It was also said yesterday that Kuhlenkampff's books show that at one time he had on deposit in New York banks about $750,000, all of which he is said to have received from the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, of which Hugo Schmidt, the interned German agent, was the American representative at the time. Kuhlenkampff is reported to have made the claim that he did not know who placed the $750,000 to his credit. It is alleged that much of the money was paid out on orders issued by Boy-Ed.

Kuhlenkampff, when asked why he had never become an American citizen after a residence of twenty years in this country, replied frankly that he had never desired to be anything else than a subject of the German crown. He said he expected to return to Germany some day and spend the rest of his life in that country. The amount of money he is said to have lost in the British West Indies is estimated at about $150,000. Captain Boy-Ed, it was stated, promised to see to it that he was reimbursed after "Germany won the war."

At one time Kuhlenkampff is said to have been the Treasurer of the German Club in this city, which was closed recently after the effects of several of the resident members had been seized by Secret Service agents of the Government. The German Club was the New York City home of Boy-Ed, Hugo Schmidt, Carl Buenz, and other well-known enemy subjects. Buenz is now serving a sentence in the penitentiary at Atlanta for being concerned in a conspiracy to make New York a supply base for German raiders.

Friedrich Hoffermann, a German, whose American home is in White Plains, was arraigned in the West Side Court yesterday, charged with making insulting remarks about the war activities of the United States. He pleaded as an excuse that he had drunk two bottles of beer.

"I am glad you did, since it made you speak your true thoughts," said Magistrate Healy when he sentenced him to serve a jail term of six months. Another subject of the Kaiser who got into trouble by talking too much is Otto Woldt of 432 East 145th Street.

"I have been an officer in the German Army for seven years," Woldt is charged with saying, "and I say damn the United States, the President, and the Red Cross! Before we get through, we Germans will wipe out this country, and I am going to help do it."

Woldt said his father had served as an officer in the German Army for thirty-three years, and claims that his grandfather was a General under William I. Magistrate Mancuso sentenced him to serve six months in the Workhouse. It was said that the Department of Justice may request that the prisoner be transferred to Federal control for more drastic action.

MEXICO STANDS FIRM FOR NEW OIL TAX

Lawyer Who Assisted in Framing It Replies to Secretary Lansing's Protest.

DENIES INDUSTRIAL BURDEN

Measure Only Checks Speculators and Is Not Confiscatory, It Is Asserted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 27.—The unofficial attitude of the Mexican Government on the oil question is explained by a prominent Mexican lawyer, who aided in drafting the law which has caused a protest by the American State Department. A note sent through Ambassador Fletcher states that the United States cannot permit confiscation of the private property of American citizens or arbitrary loss of acquired rights, and makes it known that the Mexican Government law of impuestos [taxes] will be considered so. Supporting the position the United States cites the following principle of international law:

"Exploitation of property by simple supreme sovereignty without due process of law, amply and equitably administered, always has been considered as a denial of justice."

The note calls attention also to the distinction established in Article 27 of the Federal Constitution between property in superficial and property in subsoil oil lands. This principle is applied in the law of impuestos without first having made effective the expropriation in accord with constitutional principles because until now there has not been made a legal disposition which explains the form which the verified expropriation takes or the means of discounting the rights of interested parties.

Protecting American Rights.

For this reason the United States calls the attention of the Mexican Government to the necessity that might present itself for the United States to protect the property of its citizens in Mexico. In conclusion the United States manifesto says it cannot believe that the Mexican Government will not attend to its obligations toward Americans who have invested capital in Mexico, trusting to the justice and good faith of the Mexican Government and its laws.

The note also contains several questions about the payment of taxes in coin and the conditions of the storage of the oil product. It adds that the new tax is a heavy burden for the oil industry and its tendency is confiscatory. The American note sets forth that the ratification of articles 4, 13, and 14 of the law which seems to indicate an intention to separate property in oil from the subsoil and to give owners only a superficial preference in exploration and exploitation.

Mexico Claims Full Legality.

The lawyer, in setting forth the unofficial attitude of the Mexican Government, begins by remarking that the principle of right on which the demand is founded is that there is a denial of justice in an arbitrary act of sovereignty which despoils an owner or several owners of properties by its simple will without following legal proceedings. His statement follows:

It is indubitable that the Federal Constitution is Mexico's supreme law. The principles that it contains are obligatory for all the inhabitants of the country. Its application cannot be considered arbitrary, but, on the contrary, all laws and all decisions of Mexican authorities are obliged to be adjusted to constitutional principles, so that the validity of the new law of impuestos or any of its clauses never can be in contradiction with constitutional rulings.

The Constitution, when promulgated, established the direct dominion of nation over carbide of hydrogen and confirmed the difference that has always been recognized between superficial soil and subsoil. Whatever other laws have been made later must of necessity conform to the same principle. This is enough to justify the decision to pass the new law of impuestos, whose confiscatory character disappears when it is considered that the State only collects part rent, although given the right to collect all through direct dominion.

In mining matters, Mexican legislation has taken up Spanish legislation. Besides the mining laws issued at Aranjuez several rulings had been applied by New Spain, some of which did not make clear the distinction between property and subsoil and superficial soil, as shown by the history of this legislation, in which is the noted order of Philip II., which revoked mining gifts bestowed since the time of Juan I. and incorporated them in the Crown. In the same way Charles V. took the use of the subsoil from the owners in America.

Article 1, Title 5 of the law of Aranjuez states that the King of Spain is the owner of the mines. This is confirmed in Article 2, which states that "without separating from my royal patrimony, I concede my vassals in possession in such form that they may sell, transfer, and inherit; they may transfer the same rights as they possess." Article 22, Title 6, states the right to denounce the titles not only of mines of gold and silver, but also of precious stones, copper, lead, fossil metals, or half metals, and coal.

Spanish Rights Acquired.

The royal patrimony of the Spanish Crown was converted into the national patrimony of the United States of Mexico historically by the war of independence of 1810 and 1821, and this was legalized by the treaty signed at Madrid Dec. 28, 1836, which states that his Majesty renounces for himself and his succession all claims to government, property and territorial rights in these States and countries. The same article recognizes the Republic of Mexico as a free and independent sovereignty, fixing the limits of her territory.

The Mexican nation takes the place of the Spanish Crown in sovereignty over the national patrimony, with all inheritances of rights to be conserved and actually protected by the flag. These rights, under the Constitution of 1917, confirm the direct dominion of the nation over carbide of hydrogen rights, which never had been disputed before 1884.

The law of Dec. 14, 1883, reformed the Constitution of 1857, changing Article 72 as follows: "The issue of laws is obligatory for all the republic on mining and commerce, embracing in this last banking institutions." With this constitutional reform the legislators of 1884 pretended to destroy the direct dominion of the nation over carbide of hydrogen without being authorized. Clearly this dominion existed and exists, and the Constitution of 1917 proclaims its legal standing and general principles, nullifying the arbitrary exception referring to coal and oil.

Rights to Oil Deposits.

To understand the principle of the constitutionally proclaimed Article 27, we must analyze the rights conceded in 1884 to the owners of the superficial soil. This right is no manner of right of property for the deposits contained in the subsoil. It cannot be, because this right can only be acquired by the possession of the oil, which requires its discovery and the working of the deposit. The law compares oil with game, over which full dominion is only acquired by possession.

Explorers are permitted to extract from the wells that they own all the oil possible, even though they drain the beds used in a different end of the stratum, nullifying the production of neighboring wells. The only defense against this system is to drill wells called defense wells as near the boundaries as is permitted by the regulations.

The law of 1884 does not concede to the owners of the superficial soil property in the deposits, but only the power to make exploration, work and exploit the oil within the limits of their property, prohibiting this right to foreigners. This power was granted as a free title, but even supposing that the concession was legal the same legal power that issued it has the power to retire it through the act of the same constitutional Congress which has inherited the sovereignty.

"The constitutional recovery of the dominion over oil and coal cannot be considered as confiscatory or arbitrary. Its action should only be restricted by the principle of equity which respects legitimate individual interest, but without admitting that possession of the superficial soil carries rights over the flows of beds which were not known, or that the right conceded for oil exploration in 1884 is irrevocable and perpetual.

The American citizens to whom the State Department at Washington refers can be superficial owners, middlemen, and industrials. Regarding the first, rights acquired by purchase of land, the superficial part, carry the right to make oil explorations and exploitations. Rights which are maintained within the law are only lost in case the owners are unwilling to recognize the law of the Mexican National Constitution, which authorizes owners to maintain their rights always when willing to be considered Mexican citizens.

Denies Impairing Title to Soil.

Respecting property, the new law of impuestos only asserts the maintenance of the power to explore and work oil lands, without this obligation working any injury to the owners of the superficial soil. This power as to the intermediators was not due to the revolution.

The dominion of the nation over oil always has been inalienable and imprescriptible. The Constitution of 1917 and laws derived from that Constitution define the right to determine proceedings of application but do not take away all benefits that have been obtained by law, even though the law was not permanent.

When slavery was abolished in the United States there was no existing law on the expropriation of slaves for the public good, nor were special courts established to defend the rights of foreigners who owned slaves expropriated. It was only considered contrary to the public welfare to consent to the exploitation of human beings, even though they were considered commercial articles by the buyers of slaves and the owners of plantations in the South. The justice of the measure cannot escape the comprehension of any cultured person, although in those times it caused a civil war which was the greatest conflict the United States has had until the present war.

The Constitution of Mexico does not abolish the rights of superficial owners by reviving the national right. The law of impuestos shows the way to superficial owners to adjust themselves to the new system without disparagement to the interests by which proceedings are taken in Mexico, which are most equitable and liberal.

Rent Converted Into Taxes.

It is considered that capitalists, individuals, and companies which have invested capital in oil exploration and exploitation will not feel the new tax, as they will continue to pay the same rent as they paid before, only entering part as taxes in the Federal Treasury, which is perfectly legal.

Article 2857 of the civil code provides that when a law imposes taxes the landlord demands payment from the lessee, who will pay from the rent. Considering cases which do not pay rent, the regalia which the same owners exploit on account of rent, the Federal regalia has the character of a charge due to the national dominion. This charge cannot be considered confiscatory. Allowing that the regalia equals half the regalia of 10 per cent. deducted from agreed contracts made with the owners of the superficial soil, the Federal rent of five pesos per hectare is less than half the rent which was deducted according to agreements made in the District of Tuxpam during the years 1911 to 1916.

Another company owns lots for which it pays 1,000 pesos yearly per hectare. Many other companies pay excessive rents, so that oil workers whose payments are reduced to the rent Federal basis are found in better conditions than industrialists who carry the weight of the dead change of the land owners.

Asserts Law Favors Americans.

It should be noted that Americans form the principal part of the group of industrialists, and those can be considered an exception who belong to the group of superficial owners or speculators in oil lands.

Ambassador Fletcher, a profound student of our laws, can make known to his Government that the nationalisation of oil in Mexico, instead of harming, favors American citizens, especially those who have devoted capital and initiative to the exploration of oil, harming only a part of those who have gone into exploration and exploitation in behalf of shareholders assembled by companies for the sale of shares and not for exploration of the subsoil.

Referring to payments in specie, the law states that the Federal regalia can be paid in specie when designated by the Secretary of Hacienda, it being understood that the Government of Mexico will elect payment in specie when the needs of oil for public service do not conflict.

The only object is to injure exploiters, which could be inferred from reading the diplomatic note, because the interests of the Government coincide with the interests of the industrialists. There is a desire to facilitate the progress and development of the most flourishing industries of the country which were the least damaged during the disturbances in Mexico in the last few years. Not only the actual conditions of the country would incline the Government to give easier facilities to foreign capital for investment in Mexico, but since half a century there has been a tendency by the Mexican Government to be always benevolent toward foreigners who in good faith have come to our country with capital and labor to help Mexicans exploit the natural riches. The Constitution of 1917, it can be seen, reflects this tendency, even though it contains clauses which demand respect for the sovereignty of the actual statutes of the nation.

Ambassador Fletcher states truly that until now there has been no confiscation of property. Americans can have the security that in future all the acts of the Mexican Government will be adjusted so that Mexican laws will class Americans with all the inhabitants of the country, with protection and shelter under the laws equally as effective as the protection that could be given by their Governments.

In order to correct wrong interpretations the State Department of Commerce and Industry is willing to furnish pertinent data to Ambassador Fletcher, esteeming it a great pleasure. Although the enforcement of the law has been postponed to the end of June, it can be considered that the Government stands pat on this article regarding oil. Representatives here are holding conferences, but do not expect results until the end of June.

WILL HEAR RATE PROTESTS.

Commission May Modify McAdoo Increase in Minor Particulars.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Complaints against the order of Director General McAdoo increasing freight rates approximately 25 per cent. and raising all passenger fares to 3 cents a mile will be heard by the Interstate Commerce Commission, despite the action of that body yesterday in approving the order without hearings, it was pointed out today by Railroad Administration officials. It was said that suggestions would be welcomed either from individuals and concerns or from State Railroad Commissions. It is hoped in this way that a satisfactory adjustment of the new rates can be made.

Through the reviewing by the Interstate Commerce Commission of these complaints many adjustments will be made, but it is not expected the general percentages of increase will be changed to any great extent, nor will the additional revenues, estimated at from $800,000,000 to $900,000,000, be lowered to any appreciable extent.

LEWIS MEN HOPE FOR ROOSEVELT AID

Selection of Colonel's Nephew as Campaign Manager Causes Republican Comment.

CANDIDATE WOULD LIKE IT

Senator Robinson Says He Consulted Uncle Before Agreeing to Take Charge of Campaign.

The selection of Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson, a nephew of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, as campaign manager for Attorney General Merton E. Lewis in his fight against Governor Whitman for the Republican nomination for Governor, has caused a flutter of excitement among Republican politicians and thrown wide the doors of speculation.

"Does it mean that the Colonel is behind Attorney General Lewis in his fight?" was a question invariably asked when the matter came up for discussion among the politicians. Incidentally it was recalled that, politically speaking, Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Whitman have not been on friendly terms since the Colonel added Mr. Whitman to the membership of the Ananias Club in 1914, after a bitter controversy in the course of Mr. Whitman's first campaign for the Governorship. It is not on record that the Colonel has slapped Governor Whitman on the back and made up with him, although they have observed the amenities when meeting in public, and the Governor at one time presided at a meeting in Albany where Colonel Roosevelt was the principal speaker.

Attorney General Lewis was at the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday attending to the opening of his campaign headquarters. He was asked whether the selection of Senator Robinson was an indication that he would have the backing of Colonel Roosevelt. Senator Robinson himself, in an interview in Albany yesterday, admitted that he had consulted his uncle before he agreed to take charge of the Lewis campaign.

"I am sure I do not know whether Colonel Roosevelt will support me or not," said Mr. Lewis. "I hope he will. I have only seen Colonel Roosevelt twice since he left Albany. When he was Governor I was in the Assembly and had occasion to see him frequently."

Colonel Roosevelt when he occupied the Governor's chair regarded Mr. Lewis as one of the men in the House on whom he "could depend." The relations between Colonel Roosevelt and the Assembly, where the late Fred Nixon at that time was Speaker, were not always pleasant. It is on record that Speaker Nixon upon one occasion tore up a message sent to the Assembly by Governor Roosevelt, in which the Assembly was chided for its action on a tax measure.

Put Civil Service Bill Through.

The attention of Colonel Roosevelt was first fixed upon Mr. Lewis after, unsolicited, he had become sponsor for a civil service reform bill which Mr. Roosevelt had very much at heart. Governor Black, who preceded Mr. Roosevelt as Chief Executive of the State, in his inaugural speech pledged himself to "take the starch" out of the civil service law. He kept his word. When Colonel Roosevelt was inaugurated he pledged himself solemnly to "put the starch back" into the law. He caused a bill to be introduced which was passed by the Senate and sent to the Assembly, where it was planned it should be defeated by the coterie of Republican lawmakers who worked in close co-operation with the Speaker. Mr. Lewis took up the fight for the bill, and fought so vigorously that it was passed by a majority of two votes.

A couple of days later, after Colonel Roosevelt had read Mr. Lewis's speech in a Rochester paper, he sent for him to come to the Governor's private room back of the Executive Chamber and take luncheon with him. President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia and Elihu Root lunched with Colonel Roosevelt, too. After this incident Mr. Lewis was included in the little circle of lawmakers, among whom were Regis H. Post, later Governor of Porto Rico, and Gherardi Davis, who were frequently consulted by the Colonel.

George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and some other Republicans in Governor Whitman's corner profess to see in the selection of Senator Robinson as campaign manager for Attorney General Lewis no significance beyond his outspoken hostility to the Governor. They do not look for any active opposition from the Colonel. It is the consensus of opinion in Republican circles that the Colonel will not take any part in the campaign in this State, either in the primaries or after.

With the arrival of Governor Whitman yesterday from Rochester, where he spoke on Monday night, came a rumor that the Governor's friends, with the aid of George W. Aldridge, Republican leader of Monroe County, where Attorney General Lewis resides, were seeking to induce Public Service Commissioner John A. Barhite, a Monroe County man, to become candidate for Attorney General on the "Whitman-Office-holders' Entente" primary ticket. Commissioner Barhite received his appointment, which pays him $15,000 a year, after it had first been rejected by Mr. Aldridge.

"Putting a man from Monroe on the ticket is regarded by Governor Whitman's friends as good strategy, which would save to the Whitman ticket many votes which otherwise out of local pride might be cast for Mr. Lewis, despite the fact that the Monroe County Republican organization a week ago last Saturday adopted resolutions indorsing the Governor's third term candidacy.

It was learned yesterday that soon after Senator Robinson, who, as the result of a slight injury he suffered recently, will be compelled to undergo a minor operation in one of the hospitals in this city next week, takes up his new duties, a representative Statewide committee will be formed to promote the candidacy of Attorney General Lewis. Senator Robinson expects to take hold on June 15.

HIS COUNSEL DEFENDS ACT

Asserts There Could Be No Temporizing with a Movement to Defeat Nation's War Plans.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 28.—That Walter Douglas of New York, President of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, was among those indicted in the United States District Court here for alleged participation in the deportations at Bisbee on July 12 last, developed here today. Douglas, through his attorney, entered a voluntary appearance together with other Bisbee and Douglas citizens indicted jointly on a charge of conspiracy to deprive citizens of the rights guaranteed them by the Constitution and laws of the United States.

This was the date set for the arraignment, but none of the defendants appeared in person. Through their counsel, they filed a demurrer to the indictments, on the ground that the facts as alleged do not constitute a violation of the Federal law. A hearing on the demurrer probably will not be held before the Fall.

Douglas formerly was general manager of the Phelps-Dodge interests at Bisbee and lived there prior to 1917. He was in Bisbee on the day of the deportations. He is one of the most widely known copper producers in the United States. About a year ago he succeeded his father, James Douglas, as President of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation.

Walter Douglas, President of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, declined yesterday to discuss the indictment handed down against him by the Federal Grand Jury in Arizona. Matthew C. Fleming of 71 Broadway, attorney for Mr. Douglas, pointed out that the indictment did not charge the latter with any overt act, and, while he was unwilling to comment on Mr. Douglas's alleged participations in the deportations, he outlined the situation which led up to the indictments.

"Mr. Douglas was in Arizona when members of the I. W. W. outside the State started in to cripple production there," he said. "It is generally considered that this was part of the movement to stir up industrial trouble in the Rocky Mountain region. The I. W. W. prosecutions now going on in Chicago are the outcome of that widespread activity.

"Urged by the alien I. W. W. mischiefmakers, the Austrian and Mexican miners in Bisbee struck on the call of a committee and without vote of the men, and began a campaign of intimidation and violence. The copper output, desperately needed by the Federal Government, was tied up.

"Sheriff Wheeler, who is now a Captain with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, taking the stand that the orders of the I. W. W. were aimed at the Government's prosecution of the war, and thus were treasonable, adopted means to rid the community of the disturbers as quickly as possible. In this he was joined by other loyal citizens in Bisbee.

"With the aid of a large force of special Deputies and a posse comitatus, including some of the most prominent men in the county, the Sheriff arrested 1,200 of the troublemakers. He hired a train, stocked it with food and water, and sent the men to the nearest army post, which was at Columbus, N. M. No man was deported who, on being asked, consented to take the oath of loyalty to the United States.

"No steps were taken by the Federal authorities to return these men to Bisbee, the general feeling being that there could be no temporizing with a movement that aimed to keep the Government from getting the copper it needed. The men were fed at the army post for a time, and finally were allowed to drift away. No women and children were deported. False statements to that effect probably were based on the fact that three women insisted on going with their husbands. In the East there seems to have been a general misunderstanding of the situation and what actually happened."

PRIORITY FOR NEWS PRINT.

But Fuel Applications Will Be Acted Upon Individually by Board.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Under a policy agreed upon today by the Priorities Board of the War Industries Board, fuel priority will be granted manufacturers of news print paper upon application accompanied by proof that the plant applying is entitled to priority.

Newspapers were placed on the preference list some time ago, but the paper industry was not included, and representatives of the mills have complained that scarcity of fuel had curtailed their output to such an extent that hundreds of newspapers might be compelled to shut down for lack of paper. The Priorities Board decided to meet the situation by dealing with each plant separately.

Edwin B. Parker, Priorities Commissioner, authorized this statement after today's meeting:

"The Priorities Board has not declined to put manufacturers of news print on the preference list, but will consider their application as a plant and not as an industry, as some plants may be entitled to preference while others are not, and those having preference may be entitled to varying degrees of preference. Each case must be considered on its merits."

Testimony before the Federal Trade Commission on the cost of making news print paper ended today. Three days will be allowed for argument, after which the commission will undertake to fix a fair price for paper, in accordance with the agreement made by manufacturers with the Department of Justice.

BEAT COMMISSION PLAN.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 28.—At a special election held here today the proposition to adopt the plan "C" commission form of city government was defeated by a majority of 170.

There were 1,635 votes cast in favor of the plan and 1,805 against. About 500 women voted.

Wrecks Not Due to Raiders.

NORFOLK, Va., May 28.—One of the several derelicts, the presence of which off the Virginia Capes gave rise to rumors that German submarines or raiders had been operating along the coast recently, was the wreck of a coastal schooner which collided with another off Winter Quarter Shoals, Del., last week. This was learned today at the office of the Commandant of this naval district, where it was announced that the wreck had been destroyed by coast guard cutters.

Miss Stinson's Machine Damaged.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 28.—Miss Catherine Stinson attempted to resume her flight to New York from this city this morning. When she was about to rise from the field a gust of wind caused her plane to drop forward, the propeller striking the earth and the plane turning turtle. Miss Stinson was unhurt, but the propeller was broken and the steering gear damaged.

SEVEN ORDNANCE DIVISIONS.

Not Reorganization, but Development of Department, Says Baker.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Department today announced more changes in the organization of the Ordnance Department to bring the operating divisions more closely in contact with the Acting Chief of Ordnance. The Ordnance Department will now be divided into seven divisions—Administration, Engineering, Estimates and Requirements, Procurement, Production, Inspection, and Supply.

The name of the General Administration Bureau is changed to Administration Division, without any change in its work. The Engineering Bureau is changed to the Engineering Division, charged with the preparation of designs and specifications of material and the decision as to types to be manufactured.

The Estimates and Requirements Division will be charged with the formulation of requirement schedules based upon the man-power program dictated by the General Staff. This division is also charged with the statistical analysis of the work and progress of the Ordnance Department.

The Procurement Division will be charged with the purchase of all ordnance material, a task which includes the development of facilities for manufacture as well as the letting of contracts where such facilities already exist.

The Production Division will be charged with the responsibility for production. The Inspection Division will be charged with the responsibility of maintaining quality and uniformity in production.

To the Supply Division is assigned the entire task of storage and distribution of more than 50,000 different articles supplied by the Ordnance Department to the armed forces. It was explained that this form of organization placed special emphasis upon the importance of production and gave the freest rein to those divisions charged with that responsibility.

"The changes made do not, however, constitute a reorganization of the Ordnance Department," said Secretary Baker. "The achievements of that department during the last few months are considered to have demonstrated the soundness of the form of organization planned last Fall and finally established by official order on Jan. 14, 1918. It has been realized for some time that certain modifications and improvements in the plan of organization would be suggested by actual operation under that form of organization. The order just issued is an improvement and development of the plan of organization as it existed heretofore."

DENIES WHEAT IS ABUNDANT

Hoover Warns That Consumption Must Be One-third Normal.

Herbert Hoover, United States Food Administrator, yesterday branded as false a report that the United States Food Administration no longer considers the conservation of wheat a factor of vital importance. Officials of the Federal Food Board, 220 West Fifty-seventh Street, were unable to locate the source of the rumor, but bulletined Mr. Hoover's message, which was forwarded to Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams.

"Reports have been circulated that the Food Administration officials state that further wheat conservation is not necessary," read Mr. Hoover's telegram. "No statement of this character has ever been issued. The actual position is that our wheat supply until harvest allows a home consumption one-third normal, if we are to maintain supplies to the Allies. The actual position is that in farmers' hands and in storage we had at the beginning of May 75,000,000 bushels of wheat to carry for approximately three months, or, with an early harvest, perhaps two weeks shorter. Our normal consumption for three months would be 120,000,000 bushels, not allowing the Allies anything.

"In New York State approximately 75 per cent. of the householders have pledged total abstinence from wheat or wheat products until the next harvest, it was announced. The organizations which have passed resolutions pledging membership in the all-wheatless program include the Knights of Columbus, Masonic bodies, the Odd Fellows, and the Knights of the Golden Eagle.

$50,000 FOR SHIPWORKERS.

London Daily Mail Offers Prizes—Riveting Contests Stopped.

LONDON, May 28.—The Daily Mail offers £10,000 as prize money for competition among workers in merchant shipbuilding yards in Great Britain and Ireland. The contest will be based on the percentage of time actually worked according to the total possible number of working hours.

An attempt to establish a record for hand riveting at the shipyard of J. Crichton & Co. at Saltney, near Chester, was stopped by officials of the Boilermakers' Society, according to The Daily Mail. This action was taken after a riveting squad had driven 2,125 five-eighths inch steel rivets into frames for ships in six and a half hours.

The stoppage of the attempt is believed to have resulted from the circular sent by Secretary Hill of the Boilermakers' Society to branches declaring that riveting contests must be stopped, and that members taking part in them would be dealt with by the society.

SEMINARY TO AID IN WAR.

General Theological Will Turn Over All Unused Dormitories.

The Board of Trustees of the General Theological Seminary voted yesterday to turn all unused dormitories over to the War Department for war service work. It was decided that to help make up the deficit the students this coming year should follow the example of the West Point cadets in shoveling snow from paths and sidewalks, an item which amounted to $800 last year. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on the Rev. Edward A. White of Bloomfield, N. J., and Bishop Charles Fiske of Syracuse, N. Y. The Rev. Dr. Francis J. Hall was elected a professor in the seminary for life.

HOSPITALS WILL AID DRAFT REGISTRANTS

4,000 DEPART FOR CAMPS

In response to an appeal by the Government, the hospitals of New York have notified Adjt. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, as chief representative in New York State of Provost Marshal General Crowder, that they are now prepared to give surgical and medical treatment to those registrants of Class 1, who have been classified as eligible for military service subject to necessary surgical operation or medical treatment. Dr. Victor Pedersen, chief medical officer of the selective draft for New York, will be in general charge of this part of the draft work in New York.

General Sherrill's instructions were mailed to the 180 local draft boards of New York last night. After referring to the patriotic offer of the hospitals, the instructions give the following procedure to be followed by the local boards and the hospitals:

Authority for treatment must be shown by a letter from the board. Identification of the registrant before the board and again before the hospital must be completed. Special cases, such as eye, ear, nose, and throat and foot cases, should be referred to special hospitals limited to these classes of service. The registrant should be told that if no bed is available at the time of application, his name shall be placed on a waiting list from which notice will be sent as soon as there is a bed.

The registrant should understand that he must go to the hospital on thes day when such notice is received, otherwise his opportunity of treatment will be postponed. The registrant should understand that if a hospital states its waiting list to be unreasonably full, he should report back to his board for reference to another hospital.

Boards and hospitals should confer so that the condition just referred to shall as far as possible not occur. No responsibility is of course assumed by the Government, the State, or by those called upon to perform these gratuitous services.

If you will communicate with Dr. Pederson, consulting medical aid of this office, by letter or telephone, he will advise you of the hospitals to which you should send your registrants.

More than 4,000 New York City selective draft soldiers left for camps and cantonments in New York, New Jersey, and the Southern States yesterday. Stirring scenes marked the departures of the units when thousands of persons gathered at Manhattan ferry terminals to join in the farewells to the soldiers of the new National Army. The final celebrations were joyous and there were few tears. The men were happy and shouted their good-bye to friends and relatives.

FOUND BY CRYPTIC LETTER.

C. W. Myer, Wanted in Ranger Will Case, Arrested in Pittsburgh.

Carl W. Myer, a law clerk, was arrested yesterday in Pittsburgh by Detective Cunniff of the District Attorney's office, according to a statement by the District Attorney's office yesterday. Myer was indicted some time ago on the charge of being a co-conspirator and for alleged subornation of perjury, with Edith Ranger, a sister of the late Henry W. Ranger, an artist. Mr. Ranger's probated will, leaving his estate to the National Academy of Design, was contested by an alleged later will presented by Miss Ranger.

Myer, it was said, waived extradition and is on the way to this city. It was said by the authorities that Myer was found by means of a cryptic letter intercepted in New York, in which he gave a certain code message and an address by which he was to be notified if the "coast was clear." The District Attorney sent the necessary message and Myer was arrested at the address to which the letter was sent.

Musical Copyright for French.

SAYS PRICE OF GAS MUST BE KEPT DOWN

Service Board Sees Danger to Public in Proposed Government Action.

ASKS FOR A CONFERENCE

Lower Cost of Production by Cutting Supply of Oil Must Be Accompanied by Lower Rates.

Word reached the Public Service Commission yesterday that W. L. Requa, Fuel Administrator, had under consideration a proposed order limiting the supply of oil to the gas companies throughout the United States. For the purpose of reducing the oil consumption without depriving the public of gas it was the intention of the Administrator, it was said, to fix a maximum standard of quality of gas. This standard was to be 528 B. T. U.'s, and it was understood that if the companies exceeded this maximum they would get no oil at all.

Last October the gas companies here appeared before the commission on the question of changing the standard of gas from twenty-two candle power to the B. T. U., or heat basis. Then came the question of the number of units it would take to make gas equal to the legal standard of twenty-two candle power. The companies fought for a low basis because cheaper gas could be made and more would have to be used to get the same results. Finally the commission fixed the standard at 650 units but gave the companies the privilege of accepting this offer or rejecting it as they pleased. They made no sign and the old candle power standard has continued to prevail.

When it was learned that the Washington authorities were interesting themselves in the matter, the commission felt that any interference with its control of public service corporations by representatives of the Federal Government might weaken public supervision to the extent of making any further orders of the commission of no avail. The commission sent this telegram to Mr. Requa:

"Any change to heating standard at a low B. T. U. without corresponding reduction in gas rate and other important conditions would seriously affect consuming public. Opportunity is, therefore, requested to present important phases of the matter from the public point of view by this commission and such other commissions and cities as may wish to join."

Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney said yesterday that if the gas companies in this city were losing money and needed an increase in their net earnings they should apply to the commission and present the necessary evidence. He added that if the heat basis was fixed at 528 units it would have startling and far-reaching results to the public in every section of the United States.

Mr. Whitney said that the commission had already given the companies permission to reduce the quality providing that they lower the price, but the companies did not care for such a privilege.

"As approximately 80 per cent. of the gas is used primarily for its heat value," continued Mr. Whitney, "it will be appreciated that a reduction to a maximum 528 B. T. U.'s would be a very substantial reduction in quality and therefore would to a corresponding extent affect consumers' bills."

Lightning Strikes du Pont Mill.

CAMDEN, N. J., May 28.—Three tons of nitroglycerine were exploded today when the mill of the Repauno chemical plant, at Gibbstown, N. J., a subsidiary of the Du Pont Company, was struck by lightning. The explosion tore a great crater in the ground and destroyed several buildings. The mill was not in operation when struck and there were no casualties. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

WITNESSES IDENTIFY SLAYERS OF PRAGER

Pick Out Five of Defendants on Trial for Lynching German in Illinois.

Special to The New York Times.

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., May 28.—Five of the eleven defendants on trial on charges of murder in connection with the lynching of Robert Prager on April 5 at Collinsville, Ill., were partly identified today by witnesses who took the stand after eleven days had been used up in getting a jury. The chief witnesses of the day were Mayor Siegel of Collinsville and John Bruso, a lumber dealer, who was foreman of the Coroner's jury that investigated Prager's death.

Important testimony given before the Coroner three days after the lynching became public for the first time today through the testimony of Bruso. The inquest was held behind closed doors. Bruso said that Joseph Riegel, one of the defendants, testified he had addressed the crowd with the words:

"Come on fellows, we're all in on this, don't be slackers."

Bruso said that Riegel stated he didn't remember who placed the noose about Prager's neck, but it might have been himself. He further stated that Riegel described how Prager was lowered to the ground after it was discovered that his hands were not tied; how he was asked if he had anything to say, and in response to a request, received paper and pencil and addressed a farewell note to his father in Germany, and of how he received a moment in which to pray before he again was hoisted into the air.

Louis A. Gerding, a druggist, gave a graphic account of the actual lynching. He testified that he left a picture show at 10:15 and soon afterward met the crowd and followed them to the City Hall. He followed the crowd in his automobile to the scene of the lynching, and the lights from his car helped illuminate the death scene.

Mayor Siegel, who attempted to prevent the mob from getting Prager, told of seeing a crowd leading Prager through the streets early in the evening, of rescuing the man with a policeman's aid, of attempting to hide him from the mob at the City Building, and of the search of the premises by the mob until Prager was discovered. He identified Joseph Riegel, Wesley Beaver, and William Brockmeier of the defendants as having been in the mob.

PIGEON BRINGS WAR CALL.

Delivers Countess of Reading's Plea for British Recruits.

Having flown from Washington to this city in seven hours, three carrier pigeons released in front of the British Embassy by the Countess of Reading, wife of the Ambassador, arrived at the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, 220 West Forty-second Street, yesterday evening. Attached to the leg of one of the birds was the following message from Lady Reading:

"This is the supreme crisis of the war. Honor and loyalty call every British subject of military age to the fighting line. Our American comrades are pouring across in their thousands. Don't lag behind. Time presses. Come now and join your brothers who are in arms to crush perfidy and cruelty and to win freedom and happiness for a suffering world."

The pigeon and message arrived in time to be taken along to a recruiting rally held between sets of "The Man Who Stayed Home," West Forty-eighth Street Theatre. Following the act in which a German spy uses a carrier pigeon to transmit a message from England to Berlin, a member of the British Mission handed the pigeon which made yesterday's flight to one of the actors, who read out the Countess's summons.

CITY TO STORE COAL FOR WINTER NEEDS

Has Storing Facilities — Problem Is to Buy Supply, Say Dealers and Officials.

TO PURCHASE 100,000 TONS

Committee Appointed to Arrange to Buy Coal Wherever It Can Be Obtained.

The Committee on Domestic Supplies of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense took the first steps yesterday in carrying out the plan for storing at least 100,000 tons of domestic coal against the days of need next Winter. The Committee, Chairman George W. Loft presiding, held a conference with coal dealers representing the different boroughs in the Board of Estimate room in the City Hall, and it was the opinion of both the city officials and the coal men that the city has facilities for the storing of the coal and that the problem is where the coal can be purchased.

After a thorough discussion of the situation a committee of city officials and coal men was appointed to press the National Fuel Administration for an answer to the question, and to make arrangements for the acquisition of whatever coal could be obtained. The meeting agreed not to limit the amount to any stated figure, but to purchase what coal could be obtained in whatever amounts it could be purchased.

At the beginning of the conference Supervisor Brady charged that last Winter some coal dealers took advantage of the situation to profiteer. He warned that unless the city administration did something now there would be riots next Winter, with men and women marching to the City Hall crying for fuel.

The Chairman read a letter sent to Fuel Administrator Garfield some weeks ago asking what coal could be sent to New York, and whether the city would have to store coal, or if the dealers would receive sufficient to meet the demands. To this letter Dr. Garfield replied under date of May 25 that the shortage in this city was being looked into by the National Distribution Committee, and that that body would take action to meet the situation.

Michael Burns said he believed that if everybody waited patiently they would get enough coal. He said that the Administration was making arrangements to supply the necessary coal to the Atlantic States. In this connection he said that the Fuel Administration had stopped the delivery of anthracite coal in twenty-four States where they burn bituminous coal and have it at their very doors. He thought much of the trouble last Winter was due to nervousness. As it is going to take from now until the cold weather to supply the orders on the books, he said, it would be advisable for the city to put in a supply for the needy even if it lost money on the transaction.

Other dealers spoke and resented the charge that they were profiteers. Finally Chairman Loft demanded of Mr. Brady the names of those who had profiteered. "This is a serious matter," he said. "You have made the charge and I think you should give the names."

This Mr. Brady was not inclined to do, and the City Chamberlain broke in to say that it was not the time for a discussion on profiteering which happened last Winter.

There was talk at the conference of using Blackwell's Island to store coal, and it was agreed to ask the State authorities for the use of the property on the waterfront acquired for barge canal terminals. There was also discussion on the proposition of allowing the reserve supply of coal to flow into the dealers' yards and letting them handle at least a part of the supply. These matters will be taken up by the new committee, which will first get into touch with the National Fuel Administration to find out what coal can be obtained.

ASK CITY LAND FOR GARDENS

Socialist Aldermen Want Property Used by Community Farmers.

A proposal that all available land in the city which is under municipal control be turned over to the Park Department in each borough to be used for community gardening purposes was made by the Socialist Aldermen at yesterday's meeting of the Board. The suggestion came in the form of a resolution which provides that the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund "shall turn over to the Department of Parks in each borough such property as the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund may certify as available for use as community gardens and which, in the opinion of the Commissioners, is not available for any other purpose." The resolution was referred to the General Welfare Committee.

By a vote of 49 to 7 the board adopted the report of the Committee on Labor and Industry to file a proposed ordinance introduced by the Socialists in behalf of the street cleaners, proposing for them an eight-hour day, time and a half for overtime and the right to form a labor union. All the Socialist Aldermen voted against filing the proposed ordinance. They declared that if the majority of the board wished to pass the measure there would be no difficulty, and also stated that the maximum salary of the street cleaners was only $720 a year, and that the previous administration had found it impossible to get men at that wage.

TO CURTAIL DEBATES.

Committee Reports Measure Limiting Speechmaking in Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Senate Rules Committee today agreed to report out an amendment, offered by Senator Underwood, that, if adopted, would have the effect of greatly curtailing debate in the future whenever the Senate might want to invoke it. The amendment would limit debate for each Senator to one hour on a bill and twenty minutes on any amendment of a bill, except when, by general consent, the Senate would decide to extend the time. This amendment takes the place of a resolution offered in the Senate a few days ago by Senator Underwood limiting debate to twenty minutes on a bill and ten minutes on amendments after a bill has been on the calendar for two days.

The object of the Underwood amendment is to hold debate within reasonable bounds on bills that otherwise might drag through the Senate for weeks. It is a compromise for the closure rule, adopted at the last session, but never invoked. If the amendment is adopted, it is believed that it will tend to shorten appreciably the debate on the new Revenue bill when it comes up.

Telegraphers' Inquiry Here June 1.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 28.—The grievance of the commercial telegraphers against the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies, involving the right of the telegraphers to be members of a union, will be taken up by the full National War Labor Board next Saturday at the Hotel Belmont in New York. Today's sessions here were presided over by Chairman Frank P. Walsh. In New York both Mr. Walsh and ex-President Taft will be present.

HURLEY SAYS COAL MUST BE SPEEDED UP

Producing of Sufficient Fuel Soon Will Be Squarely Up to Operators.

MORE EFFICIENCY NEEDED

Urges Owners and Unions to Co-operate for Fuller Working Time and Increased Effort.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—Bituminous coal men from all parts of the country attending the first annual convention of the National Coal Association here, were told today that as the Government purposed to spend $1,000,000,000 to expand railroad facilities, the producing of sufficient fuel would sooner or later be squarely up to the operators.

This declaration was made to the convention by E. N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board. Mr. Hurley said there must be more efficiency in and about the mines to increase production and that there must be new business methods, new co-operation between employer and employe, and creation of schools for training new superintendents, foremen, and workers to meet military drafts on labor.

He urged that a study be made of production in the weaker mines, that competent foremen and superintendents be obtained and that both owners and unions appoint committees in each district to "co-operate in democratic fashion" in the matter of fuller working time and better effort on the part of American labor.

With full running time Mr. Hurley said the miners could make good earnings, because their pay was based on individual effort. He paid a tribute to leaders of organized labor and expressed admiration for the United Mine Workers of America, the only union that as a whole recognized the piece work basis of remuneration. Mr. Hurley decried the practice of some manufacturers in lowering piece rates when the earnings of employes through more efficient work began to mount.
